CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE LID COMES OFF!

Tonight's the night. This evening the roar of hockey fans will subsy in the 1949-50 Belleville District Hockey League season in Memorial Arena. Tonight we embark on another six-month session of covering the ice-lanes. And to formally start the fireworks, the Northern Electric and Canadian National Railways Diesels will trot out their representatives in a battle that should be a repeat of the dramatic clashes that characterized their feuding last year. Both teams boast considerable strength and fans and players alike are all pepped up over tonight's bestiing. It should be a flitting curtain raiser to what is anticipated one of the best pro-season loops to be launched here.

There has been much talk, guessing and hazarding on the rialtos anent the potential strength of these teams. Diesels definitely loom up as strong contenders for a repeat performance, but don't sell these Electrics short. They, too, have plenty of what it takes and although we are not definitely certain of their dramatis personas for tonight's little love-fiesta, you can bet next year's income tax somebody will know they have been in a hockey battle before Referee "Speedy" St. Louis ioolles taps this evening.

And the second performance should be a thriller. RCAF Flyers and 6 R. D. have been scorching the ice lanes in practice sessions the last few days, and they too, should give the fans a fancy eyeful come nine o'clock tonight. Lou Schmidt, formerly of the Trenton Town team turned out with the 6 R. Ders and was skating 60 miles an hour. He should be in for a grand season. In any event it should be a fine opening for the seasonal sniffvilles. Bill Holway will share the official duties with St. Louis.

THEN THE DRIVER FAINTED

Cec. Perdue, Peterborough scribe is rapidly gaining fame as a story-teller. He penned one the other day that we thought should be passed along. It seems the hockey team was all ready to depart on a long trek to keep a fixture. It was a cold blizzardy night. The bus was loaded and players impatient to get away. But, one of those pesky things called a motor refused to work. The driver stepped on the starter, but once in a dozen times. Then he tried the time-honored method of cranking. Still no luck.

After all bus drivers are human, too, and finally the lad's temper gave way. He exploded into a stream of profanity that would make Barnacle Bill look like an amateur. But the motor remained adamant. Came another roar of cursewords till "no soap."

A little old lady stood on the pavement listening to the tirade. Finally she approached the driver and touched him on the shoulder. "Young man," she said sternly, "swearing won't do any good. You should be ashamed of yourself for emitting such language."

The driver still furious, swallowed hard. After all he couldn't cuss a lady.

He forced a smile. "Have you any suggestions, madam?" he murmured with as much grace as he could muster.

"Yes, I have," the LOL said. "First try a prayer. That often helps if it fails, go get a mechanic."

Mechanics were not available at that time of night, so the driver to humor the LOL bowed his head and muttered a few words. Then he stepped on the starter.

With a spatter the motor roared into action.

"Well, I'll be d . . . . d" she said.

NAMED AS DIRECTORS

Some significant changes were made at the meeting of the Canadian Boating Association, an affiliate of the American Power Boat Association over the weekend. Ed. Fine, and Charles Allwin of this city, were again named to the directorate of the organization. Taylor Franklyn, withdrew from that august body and Dr. Harold Craig accepted the post. That gives this city strong representation on the executive.

One of the most important changes, from a Canadian point of view is that made in the 125 cubic inch class. The change was made to give Canadian drivers more protection and to get more interested in this class of speedboat. According to Ed. Fine, the class from now on will be open to Canadians only. The boats must be of Canadian construction and the engine must be assembled in Canada.

But the Canadian drivers in the 225 cubic inch class, Division II, did not fare so well. The meeting would have none of Fine's motion that the $500 engine clause in the classification be changed to include labor. Fine stated that Americans had been spending plenty more than the $600, and claiming additional contingents. But the majority of the meeting thought the proposed change would deter American drivers from coming here in competition, and accordingly gave the motion the old heave-ho.

REFEREES FORUM

A meeting of all coaches, managers, referees and others interested in Minor Hockey in this part of Ontario will be held at Memorial Centre, Belleville, on Monday night, November 14th. This will include all those from points west to Port Hope, easterly to Kingston as well as Campbellford, Bancroft, Tweed and all centres in between.

It is planned to have 'Squeak' Morrison of Oshawa there as chief instructor for the referees while O. M. H. A. Secretary Jack Christie is also planning to attend.

There will be a general round table discussion and all those who have any desire to promote kids' hockey in their own communities are urgently invited to attend.

Two J.W. Roberts Have Bad Time On Sunday

Brandon, Man., Nov. 7—(CP) —It was a bad day Sunday for J. W. Roberts and J. W. Roberts.

Between the two of them (no relation) they piled up two accidents and got an assist on a third.

J. W. R. (No. 1) was involved in a mishap which sent Bruce Phillips, 8, of Souris, to hospital with cuts and shock.

Rushing to the scene of the accident, a mile south of here, an R.C.M.P. vehicle collided with one driven by V. W. Schappert of Gladstone.

J. W. R. (No. 2), driving a light truck, sideswiped one of these vehicles, lost control and hit a hydro pole, sheared it off and crashed into a parked car. No one was hurt.

BUILD WIDOW'S HOME

Oshawa, Nov. 7—(CP)—Oshawa policemen and firemen are spending much of their spare time around the home of Mrs. Steward Bice, but there is no fire and no crime. The men are using their off - duty hours to build the widow a home which is expected to be completed by Christmas. Mrs. Bice's son, Stewart, was drowned last June, shortly after he finished the excavation. The police and fire departments then raised $1,000 and took over the building job.

PERFECT CRIB HAND

Toronto, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Leslie Plenty had plenty Sunday night. In fact, he had so many points in his cribbage "crib" he didn't know how to count them. When his opponent finally counted Mr. Plenty's points, he found he had the highest possible score — 29 points. The five of diamonds, hearts and clubs, plus the Jack of spades, were all in the crib and the five of spades had been cut.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN CANADA UNLIMITED

North American Football owes its life to a visiting Canadian University!

It was 1874 . . . McGill University were guest opponents of Harvard in Boston. During the warm-up period, the Harvard men noticed that amazement that McGill were kicking and carrying the ball.

The two captains got together and discovered they were playing different games: McGill had come to play rugger, Harvard were ready for a soccer match. But the Harvard captain, with true Bostonian courtesy, offered to play McGill's game. The result was the first "football" game ever played in the United States . . . ending in a scoreless tie.

Good sportsmanship has won many world friends for Canada . . . just as the spirit of working together has made us one of the world's great nations. These two—sportsmanship and team spirit—keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited.

Canada's East-West final for the Dominion Football Championship and the Grey Cup began in 1921 . . . Toronto Argonauts defeating Edmonton Eskimos 23—0.

Showdown Nears for Six Football Teams Still in Running for the Grey Cup

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The showdown draws near in Canadian football and the executives of most of the six clubs still in the running for the Grey Cup are showing their strength with the customary mighty flexing of vocal muscles.

While players beat their brains against stonewalls to toughen them for the big games, the sideline athletes carry the Barker ball. It's hard to say which group will be more exhausted before the Nov. 26 East-West classic in Toronto ends it all.

Montreal Alouettes and Ottawa Rough Riders started it with their Big Four sunlight serenade. But it didn't take long for Calgary Stampeders and Regina's Saskatchewan Roughriders to decide they could steal some of that thunder in the West.

So far, Sarnia Imperials and Hamilton Tigers are the only playoff contenders still playing their football on the field. But there's no telling when these Ontario union opponents will get into the act.

Listen to the latest drumbeats from the six corners:

1. Montreal Alouettes are advertising Wednesday's Big Four playoff opener in newspapers as a "Command Performance" — command by the league to play in the afternoon instead of under floodlights. That one might help enough workers find sick grandgrandmothers to build the Delorimier Downs crowd well over 20,000.

McCaffrey Not Happy

2. Ottawa, its daylight argument won, is switching to different tactics. Manager Jim McCaffrey warned his charges Monday night—for publication—"we're going to have our hands full with Montreal—the Als are powerful and plenty tough." Seems even looked far ahead in his softening up speech and said neither Sarnia nor Hamilton could be taken lightly in the eastern final.

3. Coach Lou Lazz, despite his Stampeders 16-12 victory over Regina in the first game of the Western final, took time out from practice in Calgary to say publicly: "I'm sick and tired of this situation where we have to play four officials as well as the opposing team . . . those same officials had better be on their toes here Friday or the fans will come down out of the stands and throw them into the Bow River where they belong."

4. Regina, surprisingly, didn't bite too hard on this bait. Roughriders president S. D. Thistle merely said he thought Calgary "got off very nicely on the refereeing. Riders haven't complained of the officiating all season and weren't going to start now, despite their six point loss.

Tigers Ready for Sarnia

5. Coach Merle Hapes pronounced his Hamilton Tigers full of fight for their Friday-Saturday playoff with Sarnia and said he planned to play himself full time "as long as taps will hold my knee together." Hapes said even his two injured stars, quarterback Tommy Waldon and half Boris Tipoff, may get into the series.

6. Sarnia, the only all-Canadian team still in the running, announced that the injury jinx had struck again. Veteran half Gus Scholten, carried off the schedule's windup against Windsor Saturday, is a doubtful starter. He joins a casualty list including Don Knowles, Jack Soper, Jack Lewis and Doug Reamore.

In the football way, Ottawa announced that the Aequi will definitely miss the opening game of their two-game, total-points series with Montreal through his groin injury.

Alouettes, who went through a light workout Monday night, also reported in top shape with no injuries.

Even though Delorimier Downs can hold 22,000, Alouettes officials said they expect only 12,000 at the game because Wednesday is not a holiday in Montreal.

MUMS IN BLOOM

Niagara Falls, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Summer is far behind, but Niagara Peninsula residents still can wander through a profusion of chrysanthemums. The flowers are on display in the Niagara Parks Commission greenhouses which will be open to the public daily from 8 a. m. to 4.30 p. m.

Snead Selected Golfer of Year By Association

(By The Canadian Press)

Slammin' Sammy Snead, who barely missed scoring a grand title slam, was selected the golfer of the year in a country-wide poll conducted by the Professional Golfers' Association of America.

Snead's selection was announced Monday at Chicago by George Schpalter, Manager of the P.G.A. tournament bureau.

Runner-up to Snead in the poll conducted among sports writers and sports casters was the man who beat him out of golf's most coveted crown, National Open champion Cary Middlecoff. Third was Johnny Palmer, also third in cash-collecting behind Snead and Middlecoff.

The National Open title eluded Snead but he copped the Masters, the P.G.A., and Western Open championships among his six tournament victories to date.

With still the Miami Open (Dec. 8-11) to be reckoned in official P.G.A. money-winning for the year, Snead has a top grab of $26,203 followed by Middlecoff with $24,604.

Toronto Wanderers, recently formed to revive English Rugby Union Football in Ontario, was formally organized as a club at Toronto Monday night.

At first general meeting, Norman Fawdry, of Toronto, chairman of the original temporary working committee, was elected chairman of the new executive committee.

The club plays McGill University Saturday in the semi-final playoffs for the McTier Cup—awarded the best club team in eastern Canada. If they win, they have hopes of playing St. Francis Xavier University, Antigonish, N.S., at Sydney, N.S., Nov. 19, in the cup finals.

Among points discussed at the meeting was the active encouragement of English rugby in Ontario schools. It was decided, if possible, that club members tour schools before next season with rugby educational movies and to lecture on the game's principles.

The London, Ont., city council Monday night gave some support to the stand of the Gazette, University of Western Ontario's twice-weekly newspaper, Insky, Quebec Rugby Football Union President announced at this year should be held in London.

A letter will be sent to the President of the Intercollegiate Football Association asking that London be "considered" as the playoff site. According to the rules, a playoff must take place on neutral grounds unless agreed upon by both teams.

It was pointed out that the two playoffs involved the Western Mustangs in recent years were held away from home—in Toronto last year and in Montreal in 1938. The local stadium holds about 12,000.

Conn Smythe, president of the National Hockey League Club, granted the International Students Service permission to charge admission of 25 cents a person, with proceeds going to the I.N.S. campaign for $7,000 to help restore bomb-damage universities in Europe and to bring European students to take up studies in Canada.

The Eastern Canada Junior Football Championship will be held next Friday evening at Hamilton Civic Stadium, Myer Ontario's twice-weekly newspaper, Insky, Quebec Rugby Football Union President announced at be fair."

"Neither you nor I have ever seen an athlete flaring up from a fair razzing," he says. "But we have heard filthy tongues beside us in the stands."

"I have no sympathy for the fan who isn't fair," he added.

If a fan wants to punch, grab or insult a fenced-up athlete, O'Brien thinks it should be considered a "two-way deal."

Athletic or Ferocious

The Montreal Amateur Athletic Association, which restricts membership to "gentlemen of amateur standing," has accorded Reardon the equivalent of a vote of confidence, Andy reports.

The move was "undoubtedly" prompted by the fact that Reardon's status as a professional hockey player won't affect his amateur standing as a squash and handball exponent or ardent ability.

Answering "ferocious Chicago reports" that "Hesnar" is no gentleman," Andy retorts that the M. A. A. A. "has a warm spot for fighting athletes who refuse to be licked."

Montreal, Nov. 8 — (CP) — Come on, hockey fan, let's be fair:

That's the plaintive cry from Andy (Montreal Standard) O'Brien who says, "a few things to say in defence of Kenny (Beans) Reardon of Montreal Canadiens.

(Ken and teammate Leo Gravelle were charged with assault in Chicago last week as a result of a melee during the scheduled Montreal-Chicago National Hockey League game).

"It's been grossly exaggerated," says O'Brien, "as have been too many things in the N. H. L. of recent years."

The Montreal sports writer explained it this way:

"Somebody grabbed Reardon's sweater and he wheeled — violently as usual. A fan's puss was in the way of Reardon's stick. Said the fan: 'Geez, I'm your friend. I always cheer for you. I only wanted to tell you that Roy Conacher (of Chicago) was coming at you.'"

Let's Be Fair

Andy's plea to the fan is: "Let's

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You can labor long and hard at bridge without being sure of any future bid. Every so often the cards go out on strike. Up comes an odd distribution that throws your pet theory for a loop.

The deck was out of gear in this deal:

NORTH

♦8 4 3
♣8 4 3

WEST

♥None
♦K J 10 9
♣K J 10 9 6

SOUTH
♥Q 7 6 5 4 3
♣A Q 2

Would you like to sit south and make a grand slam in hearts? It happened to get there with this mess of bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 H	Pass	1 NT	2 C
2 H	Pass	3 H	3 S
4 H	Pass	Pass	5 D
6 H	5 S	Pass	Pass
7 H	Pass	Pass	6 S
Pass	Pass	7 H	Dbl
Pass	Pass	Pass

Somewhere along the line, south and north could have taken time and a half out to double their opponents' bets but they held decks bowed to play the hands as if all the chips in their stock.

Anywhere along the line, south and north would have been glad to stop at a game contract in hearts. From the values held in the pair, no more than ten tricks could be read between them.

You need not go around saying that I justify any of their bids. But I will attempt to explain some of them during the next few days. Not that it will do you any good.

While you are waiting for these details, look at what the play brings forth. West led club seven, the suit first bid by partner. Take all 13 tricks before you knock off for the day.

The fastidious actor has sold his Greenwich, Conn., home and bought one in Beverly Hills; his film schedule will keep him busy here. Now playing the father of 12 in "Cheaper by the Dozen" he returns to his familiar character next in "Mr. Belvedere Takes a Rap."

This will apparently precede such other announced subjects as "Mr. Belvedere's Book of the Months," "Mr. Belvedere Goes West" and "Mr. Belvedere Goes to Africa."

Webb himself would like a change of pace. Says he: "I'd like to play a despicable character, one even I could hate."

Off the Cuff

Charles Laughton's Bible reading tour in the east may be extended. He has been well received and is enjoying himself. But he'd like to be home for Christmas.

William Bendix will be added to the growing list of famous Hollywood grandparents. His daughter Lorraine expects a baby next Spring.

Louis Calhern has abandoned the idea for at least a couple of years. Now playing Buffalo Bill Cody in "Annie Get Your Gun," he has bought a home here and will settle down.

Humphrey Bogart says he doubts if Warners will lend Lauren Bacall. "If she ever got out of her contract, she'd probably look for my company, Santana," he added. "She might as well—she owns half of it under community property law."

Bogey said he'll have a honey Christmas this year for the baby Stephen, not Lauren.) He admitted Hollywood softens up at Christmas.

"Why Hollywood people are the most sentimental in the world he said on the set of "I'm a Lonely Place." I don't know where people get the idea we're hard-boiled and tough. We're just like anybody else."

$50 UNDER GIRDLE

Toronto, Nov. 8 — (CP)—Jean Dunbar, 37, couldn't explain how $50 got tucked underneath her girdle, so she was arrested on a theft charge. A police matron found the money when the suspect was taken from a club to headquarters for questioning after Mrs. Elizabeth Barclay reported the loss.

Orono, Me., Nov. 8 — (AP)— Victor Hugo never played softball for Notre Dame but apparently some people think he did.

Production Value 17 P.C. Higher Than in 1947

Ottawa, Nov. 8 (CP)—Canada's growing manufacturing industries had their biggest year in history in 1948.

They turned out products with a gross value of $11,800,887,000—nearly $950 for every man, woman and child in the country.

The value of production was 17 per cent higher than in 1947, itself a record year.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics, reporting the figures Monday, said the increases were shown by all nine groups of industries. The largest actual increase was in iron industry but non-metallic minerals showed the biggest percentage increase.

During the year, iron and iron products replaced wood and paper as the biggest group of manufactures.

The total value of the iron group—comprising 18 individual industries was $2,251,392,000, an increase of 21.4 per cent. The biggest increase were shown in farm implements, automobiles, machinery, primary iron and steel, railway rolling stock and sheet metal products.

The wood and paper group had a gross production value of $2,207,361,000, compared with $1,952,243,000 a year earlier. There was higher output in all but one—the cooperage industry—of the 27 individual industries in the group, with substantial production gains in pulp and paper, sawmills, printing and publishing, planing mills, sash and door factories and paper boxes and bags.

AT THE BELLE — Anne Baxter and Dan Dailey in one of their fighting love scenes in "You're My Everything," the fast-paced Technicolor musical romance, featuring two Short Motion-Pictures today and Wednesday at the Belle.

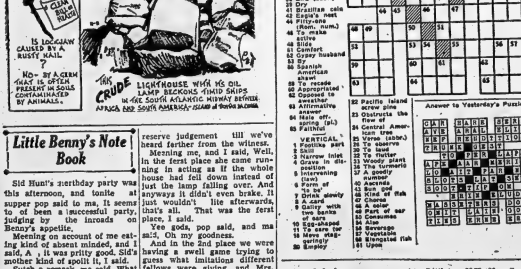
SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT



Little Benny's Note Book

Sid Hunt's birthday party was this afternoon, and tonite at supper pop said to me, It seems to of been a successful party, judging by the inroads on Benny's appetite.

Meening on account of me eating kind of absent minded, and I said, A , it was prity good. Sid's mother kind of spoilt it, I said.

Sutch a remark, ma said. What do you meen, for land sakes? she said, and I said, Oh, she didn't seem to be in a very good humor.

Sven as it wasn't very considerate of her to take it out on little children at her own child's party, do you think it was, Williams? ma said, and pop said, I'll said, For Peet sake, he's bilding up to a 3rd place.

reserve judgement till we've heard farther from the witness.

Meening me, and I said, Well, in the first place she come running in acting as if the whole house had fell down instead of just the lamp falling over. And anyways it didn't even brake. It just wouldn't lie afterwards, that's all. That was the ferst place, I said.

Yee gods, pop said, and ma said, Oh my goodness.

And in the 2nd place we were having a swell game trying to guess what imitations different fellows were giving, and Mrs. Hunt ran in again and broke it up just when Puds Simkins was giving a swell imitation of a atom bomb by jumping up in the air and landing on the floor in a setting position, I said. That was the 2nd place, I said, and pop said, Now Benny, we've heard quite enough, ma said.

The result being I didn't tell them how the leg came off the sofa.

Ottawa, Nov. 8 — (CP) — The leaders of Canada's booming tourist industry met behind closed doors to discuss ways and means of keeping visitors flowing into the Dominion.

About 45 delegates were on hand for the opening session of the fourth annual Dominion - Provincial Tourist Conference. All 10 provinces and the Federal government had representatives at Monday's closed session.

Sessions today and Wednesday will be open to the press and will also be attended by representatives of other organizations, such as transportation firms interested in promoting the trade.

One of the main topics scheduled for discussion at opening session was the possible effect of devaluation on Canada's tourist industry.

D. Leo Dolan, chief of the government travel bureau, said at a brief press conference Saturday that devaluation may result in some improvement for the Dominion's tourist trade, which for the fourth consecutive year is breaking all records. The United States tourist's dollar now will go 10 per cent farther since devaluation in September.

He said that although the 30 and 40 per cent devaluation made by the United Kingdom and other European countries might draw some U. S. tourists to those countries, he believed Canada still would draw the short-term vacationer.

Tonight the representatives will be tendered a dinner by Reconstruction Minister Winters at which Prime Minister St. Laurent will speak briefly.

Eels Shipped Alive to N.Y. Bring High Prices in Market

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Quebec, Nov. 8. (CP)— For the hardy men of "Isle D'Orleans" the big St. Lawrence island just a mile down river from this ancient capital, the eel-fishing season is over.

Some 400,000 pounds of black, wriggling "aguilles" caught in weirs are on the way to the United States to be fancily-cooked and tickle discriminating palates.

Most of the eels, weighing from one to seven pounds and measuring up to five feet long go frozen in packages. But about 40,000 pounds of them make the trip to New York alive.

A special boat with a perforated section that keeps the eels in fresh water sailed last week for New York, the market of connoisseurs who pay high prices for an "aguille qui giguite."

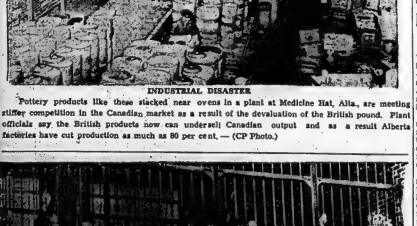
Americans of Jewish, German and Italian descent are specially fond of eels and make them into spicy Christmas dishes.

The islanders have developed other specialties of their own to live by. In the spring, they grow strawberries of famous quality and through the summer they produce fine garden vegetables that bring good prices in Quebec City. In the fall fishing brings its rewards.

Through the long winter months good humor and fun prevail on the island where some of the oldest houses in America still stand in their simple severity. But the islanders, mostly of Norman ancestry, still use those months for producing another specialty, the "fromage raffine" or refined cheese.

Eel-fishing today, like other island industry, is well-organized. Fishermen belong to a co-operative which markets the eels and distributes the profits.

The fishermen set out their traps in October. Cool stormy nights, when eels seek refuge in rocky bays, bring the biggest hauls. When the first snows fall the weirs are taken in because ice that forms damages them.



INDUSTRIAL DISASTER

Pottery products like these stacked near ovens in a plant at Medicine Hat, Alta., are meeting stiffer competition in the Canadian market as a result of the devaluation of the British pound. Plant officials say the British products now can undersell Canadian output and as a result Alberta factories have cut production as much as 80 per cent. — (CP Photo.)

BARS ERASED

Some 267 European refugees, held behind bars in Halifax immigration headquarters for nearly two months, have been admitted to Canada. The refugees arrived aboard crowded ships after a perilous Atlantic crossing. Admission of the refugees, chiefly from Estonia, came after the federal government had announced it planned to curb the entry of such illegal immigrants to the Dominion. — (CP Photo.)

Acheson Arrives To Attend Big-3 Ministers' Meeting

Paris, Nov. 8 — (Reuters) — State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States arrived at Orly Airfield here today for the meeting of the Big Three Western Foreign Ministers.

Acheson declined to comment on any subject he might discuss with Foreign Secretary Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Schuman of France, the three-power meeting begins tomorrow.

"Our plans are not yet firm," Acheson said.

"I am delighted to come here to Paris for one of my periodic meetings with my British and French colleagues," the secretary said. "I am hopeful for frequent meetings in the future because our last was so successful."

Bevin already was in Paris. He came from Monday's meeting of foreign ministers from five of the Western European countries — Britain, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and The Netherlands.

The group talked over the problem of Germany from many angles, but withheld any outright decisions until they could get Acheson's views.

Flat-Chested Silhouette of Flapper Area Out

By DOROTHY ROE

New York, Nov. 8 — (AP) — Women can wear a shirt, but the Cupset and Brassiere Association of America will resist to the death a return of the flat-chested silhouette of the flapper era.

So said Dorothy Kurzman, president of the Association, on his return today from a flying trip to Britain and France, to track down the frightening rumor that feminine curves are on the way out.

"There is no truth to the rumor that the sack silhouette of the 1920s is due for a comeback," he said. "Women would never accept it. And for the immediate future, I can assure you that the natural curves of the bust will be more important than ever in 1950 fashions."

Contrary to the disturbing report of a return to the boyish form, Kurzman found that the revealing neckline is slated for even deeper plunges next spring and that many new dresses, with no visible means of support, are being made, in part, by corsetieres.

"The exposed bra, which is part of the dress, seems an important new trend," he said.

The only change in the silhouette of the bust, said Kurzman, is a trend toward less exaggeration and more natural but still rounded lines. He does not think the silhouette will interfere with the sale of "falsies."

As for the silhouettes in general, he said:

"The straight silhouette makes proper corseting imperative, if women wish to wear the new skin-tight skirts they simply cannot wear them without correct foundation garments."

FINED $1,500 FOR NEGLIGENCE

Sacramento, Calif., Nov. 8 (AP) —Automobile dealer Phil Davis was sentenced Monday to serve six months in prison and fined $1,000 for negligence in a speedboat accident at Lake Tahoe which maimed Imogene Wiltsche, 14. The girl, now back in school, was swimming with a companion in Lake Tahoe when she was hit by the speedboat, losing both her legs below the knees.

RETURNS TO INDIA

London, Nov. 8 (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nehru of India today arrived in London from his North American tour, flying in President Truman's private plane, the Independence. He is in Britain at the invitation of the British government and will return to India Sunday.

Toronto Constable Nearly Overcome In Rescue Work

Toronto, Nov. 8. (CP)— Constable Charles Webb had to be helped from a burning building in the east-central part of the city early Sunday when he was nearly overcome by smoke while checking to make sure the building's 22 occupants had escaped.

The tenants, including five children escaped in their night clothes.

68 Canadians Are Honored For Gallantry

Ottawa, Nov. 8 — (CP) — A group of Canadian men and women — 68 of them — have tangible proof that the King has recognized their wartime and peacetime gallantry.

Each member of the group stepped forward in turn in the white pillared ballroom at Rideau Hall Monday to be decorated in the name of the King by Canada's Governor - General, Viscount Alexander.

Tales of coolness in the face of enemy opposition, of operational sorties and mine-laying operations were listed in the citations read out as members of the three armed services stepped forward, clicked their heels, bowed, and then stood stiffly at attention while Viscount Alexander pinned on the hard-won decorations.

A part of the terrible cost of war was written in the proud, but sad faces of 13 mothers, five fathers and four widows who received awards of those who either did not return from overseas or who later died.

The decorations ranged from the Order of the British Empire to the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

". . . 'Tve come a horrible cropper here," were Martin's words. At the moment I first saw you on the promenade, and then when he suddenly found you standing beside me on the gangway—that finished me completely. . . ."

"Yes, you baby!" May answered, as she looked at him with wide open eyes, thought it was no dark that she could see nothing but something bright where his teeth were when he laughed. It was eleven at night. The dancing still went on at the Big Peterm mann; the music could be heard from where they were, far away. Martin and May had been dancing and at first they had gone only as far as the terrace to take a breath of air. Slowly arm in arm they walked for some distance along the promenade. But soon they drew aside among the trees, from where they could see the eyes of the summer visitors who sat talking on the benches. They felt the pine needles soft beneath their noiseless steps and fell almost immediately.

When they came to the little foundation of Aulicrkreuz they kissed for the first time. It was not altogether a success, it was a little shy and clumsy. Immediately afterward they began talking again, but what they said had little meaning. It was a mere accompaniment to the murmur of the trees, to the fact that they were alone there. They fell silent again, and it seemed to Martin that he would soon have to suffocate or explode—but he felt full and big and burning hot within.

In the shadow where the path began to climb the hill the zigzags amid the scent of the pines, they kissed a second time. And this time they both went pale, and Martin had a weakness in his knees as if from sporting too hard in a race.

"Why, you're trembling, dear," May whispered. This kiss had gone through her like lightning in a dark sky; now she stood there scorched and transformed, her arms hanging, her eyes closed and limbs heavy with longing.

"Yes, I'm trembling a bit," said Martin, amazed.

"How wonderful . . ." May murmured. It was wonderful that he, so strong and big, stood there trembling at the mere touch of her. As if a last thin frost had held her that now was thawed. May yielded herself to Martin's arms, and to the kisses that sought and drank her own.

It struck eleven as they mounted the highest of the five windings of the path and, a little breathless, reached the Zirbitzplatz. The Zirbitzplatz was a small spur on the hill. It was a viewpoint. May and Martin, holding each other's hands so tightly that it hurt, sat down on a bench and began to talk of all kinds of things, in voices deepened by their emotion. Nothing. They said nothing in particular—only what came into their heads; but behind it all was the urgency of something new, and something never heard before—the whole sum of their happiness.

And Martin would reply in a trance: "Tomorrow it'll be at least eighteen degrees."

Below in the big Peiermann two saxophones, a young one and an old one, were sobbing out their heart-breaking Negroid melancholy. From the Zirbitz pastures above came the sound of cowbells as if heard in sleep.

"I wonder how it started with both of us!" asked May, and she bit his shoulder like a playful animal. Martin had taken off his coat—it was the one belonging to his dark blue suit—and laid it on the bench for May to sit on. He was wearing his white shirt, and May's head was through the linen and through his skin and all right down to the core of his heart with their sharp sweetness. "You smell so strange," May murmured. During the ascent of the five windings of the path she had changed from a solemn girl into a wee man. "You smell of—yes, of newspaper, and of leather, and of smoke, and of sunshine, and of something else as well . . ."

"Of you, Perilot. I rub myself over with it every day. You ought to, too, then you don't get, bilitered with the sun . . ."

"I never get blistered. I get brown the first day of tennis every summer, and that's the end of it," said May.

"You're a darling," said Martin, confusedly. "And then, of course, he went on to tell her how it had all started with him, and began to describe his first crush and how he was now completely bowled over. When it was May's turn she said it had started very soon with her, too, and had got worse and worse. And now it had got to this, and she had quite lost her head, and had really the limit.

That was how this lovely girl, straight-grown and beautiful as a young tree, expressed herself, and how the sad down together, dazed and helpless with emotion. They were lost in love, and the blood coursed and raced within them and throbbed in their veins.

To make things worse, there now came more strains of music, this time the Little Petermann, called by Herr Biroldi, the Annex. It was frequented by visitors of the second rank, and they had only a gramophone, which chose the moment for lifting up Caruso's voice into the night among the hills. "Caro mio ben" . . . began the melting melody, and far away up the valley a hunting-horn sent down faintly but distinctly through the clear air. On the Wiesenalp a star or a ting lantern moved silently to and fro, and over on the other shore in the Weissvilla one or two windows were lighted in the Dobbersberg manner.

Puck is waiting for me there, Martin thought to himself. But he did not care.

May divined his thoughts and said: "Don't tell me that you go across every evening to the crazy little baroness. You mustn't do that any more—or is it to see the actress? I won't have that, but is it, Martin?"

"Oh, there's nothing in that," said Martin, and with a slight movement of his hand he put Puck away from under the bench. She had gone. She had never existed.

"What takes you there then? Is it an affair? or just a flirtation."

"Nothing of the kind, May. Honestly."

"Carla has a flair for anything of that kind. Carla is horribly jealous already, too."

"Carla? Did you say Carla?" asked Martin foolishly.

"Yes, Carla, she's very fond of you and so she's jealous. And that little fat woman from the Sexspitz is always making sharp remarks to me about you, and more than that—look at the rags there is for bathing. How many lessons are you giving her now?"

"Twenty-three yesterday. I was quite stiff from holding the pole up all day."

"There you are, and I don't mind betting that half of them can swim already, and only take lessons as a chance to flirt with you," said May angrily as she bit a pine twig between her teeth.

"What rot! Flirtation, indeed!" Martin said laughing. Then he had an illumination. "Are you jealous too?" he asked, and thought himself very knowing.

"If Not I am slightly! I am not so old-fashioned. That would be ridiculous. Do you think I'm a flirt too?"

"Yes? I haven't noticed it. But why do you say 'too'?"

May suddenly felt two hot tears in her eyes, and she blinked. "You come here and kiss me. You mustn't think, Martin—You must not think—It's not so simple as that with me, that kind of thing that you do with Puck or with Carla. It is not a joke and an amusement. It is all or nothing with me, and I take it seriously. Now you know the whole story. Boring—isn't it?"

She moved away from him, she looked at him with a beseeching look in the darkness of the pine wood, and wailed. A bird flew upward with a light flutter of wings, and immediately after the 11.27 train, looking like a tiny toy, puffed into the station.

"I am not a girl to flirt with for a moment or two," May went on, and then her boyish voice broke. She laid her head on Martin's shoulder and wept out the whole confessed stress of her feelings. Martin sat quite still, merely patting her back gently with his large right hand. As he listened to her sobs—he was so shaken that everything inside him seemed to turn over and over. Once before he had experienced this. It was when a thousands of fruitless experiments, after three and a half years of vain attempts, he had at last first glimmer of success in his researches, a first indication that he was on the right track.

At this moment he once more the narrow strip of metal as he raised it uninjured out of the flame. It had not sunk down, the color and trembled slightly in his fingers . . .

He put his other arm around May, who was now blowing her nose. He could hear in a warm tight embrace, for he understood as well as his own heartbeat the behind the childish tears.

"Everything's all right with us," he said. "We understood each other. Two or three weeks! What an idea!" He laughed as he clenched his teeth. "No, my dear girl, my dearest, this is for always. I know that from the first moment . . ."

"Now you have a deep, deep voice like an old man," said May. "How nice it is to hear it. Of course I know you really love me; you're the only person who can tell the difference between them, of course it's all the same to the rest of them while I'm in bed with Puck, showed me at once that it must be right between you and me. Come . . ."

She gave Martin her lips eagerly and trustfully. Her cheeks had a faint smell of apricots like a child's. Martin's did. He kissed her felt that he was plunging into an abyss.

Below on the lake a boat turned sadly home and a stern-oar left a furrow of light in its course for the Wurmtal shore. In front of the Big Petermann, Herr Lyssenhop was arranging with Frau Cicerony, looking down the promenade.

"Where on earth can Clara be?" he said.

"Fraulein Clara was on the terrace a moment ago."

"Oh, I thought that was May. Where is May, then . . ."

"She's outside dancing with Bobby," said the count. "I came to say that my wife is waiting for you at the Annex. She says she would like to have another row on the lake, if you would care to . . ."

"I can tell you one thing, my dear count, it's a dog's life having a pair of twins to look after," said Herr Lyssenhop, sighing beneth his faultless shirt front.

MARMORA

Anniversary Service

Marmora.—The closing 75th anniversary services of St. Andrew's United Church were held on Sunday with large congregations. The church was artistically decorated for the occasion, including white chrysanthemums in memory of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Williams, and their daughter, Nellie, given by the latter's daughters, Elsie, Hazel, Gladys, and Jessie.

The pastor, the Rev. G. D. Young, B.A., B.D., was in charge of the morning and evening services with the Rev. W. P. Woodger, B.A., of Cobourg, pastor of St. Andrew's 1916-1922 as guest preacher. At the morning service the senior choir rendered the anthem "Praise to Him" by B. Godard, and Mrs. P. G. Fletcher of Oshawa, former member of the choir, as guest soloist, sang "The Earth is the Lord's." The Rev. W. P. Woodger preached from the words of St. Paul, "Such as I have, give I to Thee", expanding on the thought that the church's mission was the world's welfare.

At the evening service the junior choir sang "O Lord, Most Holy", Caesar Franck; Paula Anglicus, Mr. Fletcher sang "The Holy City". The guest preacher took the story of Jacob wrestling with the angel as his theme.

He touched upon God's dependence to gain a victory over man. Jacob. He angered with another clerk who had spent a meeting of clergy and other responsible citizens of Cobourg that basic morality should be taught in the home. God takes the initiative in reconciliation between God and mankind. He besieges our lives by all the gentler pressures of His Spirit and exercises that love that will not let us go.

Following the service the Rev. and Mrs. Young invited old friends, the Rev. and Mrs. W. P. Woodger to the parsonage to renew associations and enjoy a social hour.

Govt. to Stand By Domestic Rent Boosts

Liberal Benches Blasted By Opposition in Debate

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 9. (CP)— The government, despite opposition in parliament and outside it, plans to stand by its decision to authorize 20 and 25 per cent increases in domestic rents.

Finance Minister Abbott, amid a blast of criticism, told the Commons Tuesday that the government will not alter the rental-control policy outlined last Thursday.

The government, he said, recognized that an authorized increase in rental ceilings would be unpopular.' But it involved considerations of fairness to landlords who had been subject to controls for nine years while wages and salaries rose about 90 per cent.

"In centres where the shortage of rental accommodation is rising acute, probably the majority of the landlords will be within a range of the maximum ceiling allowed," said Mr. Abbott.

My estimate is that it will not be an across-the-board increase. This merely gives tenants and landlords the right to bargain within that range. My opinion, which is supported by the rental authorities, is that there will not be a horizontal increase of either 20 or 25 per cent."

Most opposition speakers discussed and said they believe the landlords will take "every cent they can get." Many of the members quoted letters of protests from constituents and read newspaper editorials criticizing the government's action. Some suggested that the increases were tantamount to complete removal of rental controls.

Little Verbal Support

Mr. Abbott, although applauded loudly by Liberal members, drew his only verbal support from his parliamentary assistant, Gleason Belzile (L—Rimouski) and C. A. Cannon (L—Iles-de-la-Madeleine).

Claxton Sponsors Government Bill In the Senate

Ottawa, Nov. 9—(CP)—Defence Minister Claxton Tuesday night entered the Senate to sponsor a government bill to "Canadianize" and unify existing legislation relating to the three armed forces.

The minister opened the new Senate bill "with leave of the Senate" under a procedure which is comparatively recent and designed to speed the business of parliament while giving the Senate a greater share of its work.

The government cut the 508 sections of existing legislation respecting the armed forces to 251 clauses and lays down one piece of legislation applicable to all three services.

The provisions, subject to two years' review, include the following points as outlined by Mr. Claxton:

1. To include in one statute all existing legislation relating to the defence departments and the Canadian forces.

2. To provide a single code of service discipline making soldiers sailors and airmen subject to the same law.

3. To make all legislation applicable to service personnel Canadian legislation. Previously the army and air force were regulated by the Army and Air Force Acts of the United Kingdom.

4. To provide a right of appeal from the findings and sentences of courts-martial and for a new trial on the discovery of new evidence.

5. To authorize use of active and reserve forces to meet a national disaster, such as a flood.

The Bill, Mr. Claxton said, would make service justice uniform and make transaction of routine business more efficient and "expeditious."

FOUR CALVES CARRIED IN INDIAN CANOE

Coldstream, Nov. 9 (CP)—Four calves, carried 1,000 miles by water in Indian canoes, started the first cattle-breeding in this part of Western Ontario, Wilfred Lehman of the University of Western Ontario said Tuesday. He said the calves were taken to Fort St. Marie and kept in stables built between inner and outer palisades

Three Big Ministers Convene in Paris

By JOSEPH E. DYNAN

Paris, Nov. 9 — (AP) — The Foreign Ministers of Britain, the United States and France met for 25 minutes today reviewing "a wide range of subjects," an American official reported.

There were indications that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin raised the question of China and that Foreign Minister Robert Schuman brought up the problem of French Indo-China, on China's border. Bevin has been reported planning to tell the French and Americans Britain wants to recognize China's communist government.

Schuman told reporters he expects the conference would end tomorrow night.

Bevin, Schuman and State Secretary Dean Acheson scheduled a second meeting for late afternoon today. They received reports from Konrad Adenauer, Chancellor of the West German government.

John J. McCloy, American High Commissioner for Germany is here to sit in on the talks charting Germany's role in the economically unified Europe.

The foreign ministers of Britain, France and the United States began their talks, in the Quai d'Orsay, on proposals from the new West German regime which might lead to:

1. Lay the foundation for a Franco-German reconciliation — a cornerstone of the United European history.

2. End the technical state of war still existing between West Germany and the Three Western Allied powers.

3. Give Germany a definite part in Europe's future political and economic co-ordination, including at least associate membership in the Council of Europe, the 13-country Parliamentary body working for a United continental Europe. Officials said the Bonn regime's proposals suggest revisions of the present three-power occupation statute which at present subordinates the West German Civil Government to the occupying nations.

The powers offered by the Germans also include a project for ending of the present program of dismantling German industrial plants — a sore point to the Germans.

German Invited

Germany will be represented only in the form of written recommendations to begin with, but later it will be the high German official may come to Paris.

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 9. (AP) — James Powell, 74, a retired real estate and insurance man, Tuesday distributed $350,000 to friends happy "while I'm still alive."

Powell tried to make the gifts —ranging from $100 to $50,000— anonymous, explaining that he identified only as "an unknown soldier marching away."

But he made many gifts to too many persons and organizations to avoid a leak of his secret.

Barn Dance Gripping Montreal, Measures Popular Like All Git-Out

Montreal, Nov. 9—(CP)— The barn dance is barnstorming Canada's largest city like all git-out.

Yep, those old-time square dances—the Virginia reel, turkey in the straw, the Lukey Lou and others—have attracted the feet of countless Montreal dancers. Night club owners say the "movement" is constantly growing.

One of Montreal's top night spots (Normandie Roof) has introduced the barn dance as a regular, nightly feature—first night club in Canada to do so. Others are preparing to get in on the old-time dance revival, which current-ly is big a thing in the United dancers.

States.

Why the sudden popularity? Because it appeals to young and old," band leader Buddy Bregman, Virginia native, explains barn dance without feeling the least bit self-conscious. They have a caller to tell them what to do— the music is lively and the steps interesting."

"It's a novelty that will eventually die out," he added. "But not for a long time yet."

Montreal's French speaking population is no stranger to the old-time steps. For many years, there have been several establishments catering strictly to square

Is Russia Preparing Way For Withdrawal of Forces Of Occupation in E. Germany?

By JOHN HIGHTOWER

Washington, Nov. 9 — (AP) — United States diplomats are studying seriously the possibility that Russia may be preparing the way for withdrawal of its occupation forces from Eastern Germany.

State Department officials long have believed the Soviets would not make such a move when they could realize their military position in Eastern Europe so as to suffer no real loss of power.

They now may have moved to accomplish this, in the opinion of responsible officials here, through the appointment of Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky as Minister of Defence in Poland.

The Warsaw government's public explanation is that the Soviet officer is a Pole by birth — though he has spent most of his life in the service of Russia and that Poland sought his services. This is scoffed at by the State Department.

A department press officer in fact described Rokossovsky Tuesday as a "proconsul," thereby branding him as being, in the American view, the Kremlin's overboss in a satellite state. Officials are looking for an explanation of the extraordinary move in the policies and strategy of the Kremlin itself.

Several possibilities are being studied. They are not considered contradictory. The Rokossovsky appointment, officials say, may be designed to serve more than one purpose. The outstanding possibilities listed are:

1. As a step toward building the Russians may be planning for withdrawing troops from Eastern Germany. Russia would still have powerful military positions far west of her own frontiers.

2. They may be planning changes in the East German-Polish boundary to return to German some of the territory which has been under polish control since the end of the war.

3. The appointment of Russian power in Poland may be designed to prevent application to the Eastern European communist countries. State Department experts said it would permit the Soviets to dictate the policies of these countries in an absolutely way without their actually being annexed.

$10,000 Scholarship Fund Left Owen Sound B. of E. By Native of Belleville

Owen Sound, Nov. 9 (CP)—A scholarship fund of $10,000 has been left to this city's board of education by the widow of a man who spent much time in Owen Sound collegiate and vocational institute for more than 40 years.

Allan Packham, secretary-treasurer of the board, announced today that the bequest had been made by Mrs. Bertha Packam who died here on Sept. 7.

Mrs. Packham was the widow of James H. Packham who died in 1928 after teaching here for more than 40 years. The late Mr. Packham was one of the founders of the Owen Sound public library.

Mrs. Packham, a native of Belleville, lived in Owen Sound for 56 years, although for several years after her husband's death she was a resident of Toronto between this city and Sebringville, near Stratford.

Britons Looking To the Dominion For Silver Lining

London, Nov. 9. (CP)— Canada is rapidly becoming the No. 1 country in British financial thinking.

With an economic thunderclout coming to a head over the British lisis, there is an increasing tendency among members of Parliament to look to Canada for the silver lining.

Some even go as far as to say Canada could be the only country in the Commonwealth— should join the sterling area. Others say the Dominion should at least accept part payment in sterling for such commodities as wheat.

These suggestions come largely from the "labor left," a group of Socialist back benchers whose opinions seldom find expression in motion but often in newspapers. But the proposal that Canada should join the sterling area has also come from the Conservative benches.

L. S. Amery, one-time Dominions Secretary, urged that he be identified only as "an unknown soldier marching away."

He said he made many gifts to too many persons and organizations to avoid a leak of his secret.

Dead Woman's Relatives Testify At Murder Trial

Sherbrooke, Que., Nov. 9—(CP) —Relatives of Mrs. Anita Robert took the witness stand here Tuesday in the murder trial of Tony Demers went on trial for the murder of the 32-year-old woman from Coaticook, Que.

Mrs. Robert's father, John Laberge, testified that he had met the former National Hockey League player Demers might before his daughter was fatally bludgeoned in a hospital hotel, the Hospital Sept. 16 at Magog, Que., after a drinking party with Demers, lawyers, during a preliminary inquest showed.

Laberge said he did not know that his daughter was a friend of Demers. He told Crown Lawyer Gerard Lecavalier that Demers intended to leave this Quebec eastern township region for a cocktail hotel. Her husband, a railway chef, at Lake Megantic.

Demers, 32-year-old former player with Montreal Canadiens of the N.H.L., last year played with Sherbrooke St. Francis of the Provincial League, went to Magog and won that circuit's award for "most valuable sportsmanship player."

The murdered woman's father said that after he, his daughter and Demers had done some drinking at the hospital hotel, they went to Denis Laberge's home where they did more drinking.

Laberge said that during a later visit Demers "became quarrelsome" and added that two sisters of Mrs. Robert, who were with the party, had told their father to go home because Demers "was dangerous and bound to start a fight."

The trial is expected to last until next week. The defence is expected to call on a large number of character witnesses.

DEMOCRAT WINS CHEER PARTY'S HIGH COMMAND

Lehman Easily Defeats Dulles for Senate Seat

(By the Associated Press)

Smashing democratic victories in New York's United States Senate race and in city elections in many parts of the country set President Truman and his party high command chortling today over the outlook for 1950.

Republicans didn't find much to crow about in Tuesday's off-year elections. They held on to the New Jersey governorship they already had and tossed out a Democratic mayor here and there.

But they took a mauling in the day's feature political bout, in New York State. Democrat Herbert H. Lehman easily knocked Republican John Foster Dulles out of the U.S. Senate seat Dulles has held down since last July on an interim appointment.

There was one, big, clear-cut issue: Lehman campaigned hard for the Truman home-front program; Dulles campaigned hard against it.

The president himself interpreted Lehman's victory as a vote of confidence in his "fair deal", Truman said it would help the 81st congress to be more receptive to the president's domestic rival, Sale Senator Owen Brewster (R-Me.), on an indirect grubbing to Frank Hague, the former boss of Jersey City, who is one of the state Democratic organization who backed Wene.

Predict C.C.L. Will Follow CIO In Ousting U.E.W.

Peterborough, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Fred Hannah, district organizer of the Canadian Congress of Labor, predicted Tuesday night that the CCL would follow the lead of the committee for industrial organization in expelling the United Electrical Workers of America from its ranks.

Mr. Hannah addressed a meeting of employees of the Canadian General Electric Company here, sponsored by the right - wing executive of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, which last week led a move to split from the communist-dominated union and affiliate with a new anti-communist C.C.L. group.

The meeting endorsed the actions of the local's executive.

ASKS PROGRAM OF SCHOOL EDUCATION

Toronto, Nov. 9 (CP) — Toronto Board of Education's management committee Tuesday asked the Ontario Department of Education to start a program of education for parents of children. Trustee Harold Male said that there was such an increase in liquor sales that he felt a well-planned course in alcohol education was needed.

Hollywood, Nov. 9 (AP). — Hollywood fired right back today at Lady Astor, who called it an educational "backfire" against "the wretched glamor girls" of the movie colony and their impact on world civilization.

The British noblewoman appealed in London for a $1,120,000 fund to help pay for study in Britain by university women of both countries. She said there was a lack for education women from every land to understand each other and exchange their varying points of view. This, she indicated, might help offset the wide indifference of American films.

"I feel the world is being swept off its feet by Hollywood," said Lady Astor. "We hear nothing but tales of nothing about these wretched glamor girls."

Ava Gardner, seldom if ever referred to as unglamorous, had this to say:

"What surprises me is that an educated woman like Lady Astor apparently believes beauty and brains are mutually exclusive. The fact that I've been called a glamor girl only in comic strips. Real glamor is a combination of ideas and eye appeal."

Jane Russell, not exactly pushed through cotton batting by Lady Astor should recall that most of Hollywood's glamor girls "wretched or otherwise" — did plenty to influence world-thinking quite favorably during the late war.

"Their professional appearances on the screen," said she, "and their many appearances in military hospitals and at charity functions continue to win worldwide admiration."

Said Virginia Mayo: "What's the matter with Lady Astor? Wasn't she a wretched glamor girl back in—well, quite a few years ago. Is she chagrined because wretched glamor girls command more attention than she?"

Family Narrowly Escapes Death In Night Fire

D. Vance Home at Chisholm's Mills Totally Destroyed

Rollin — (Special) — Awakened by smoke and the roaring of flames in the attic of their two-storey frame dwelling, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Vance, of Chisholm's Mills, 15 miles north of Belleville, together with their four children, escaped with their lives early this morning when fire razed their home.

The family escaped in their night clothes and failed to save any of their clothes or household furnishings. The home was a complete loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Vance with their four sons and five-month-old daughter were sleeping on the second floor when they were awakened by the smoke at 3.30 a.m. "The flames were then roaring in the attic like an express train," Mr. Vance said. "We are lucky to be alive today."

Noticed Son Missing

Mr. Vance said he grabbed his trousers, roused his wife and then pulled two of his sons out of bed who were sleeping in the next room. When they got safely outside one of the boys noticed their year-old Douglas was not with them.

"Douglas is still in there," Mrs. Vance recalled one of the boys as sleeping in his bed on the first floor. The narrowness of the family's escape is highlighted by the fact that as the young family were brought out of the house the ceiling of the parents' bedroom fell in. Names of the Vance children are Barbara, seven; Douglas, 4; Donny Lee, 10; John, 11, and Ann, 12 years.

Origin of the fire which destroyed the Vance home could not be explained by the fire chief who said when the family retired at 10 o'clock last evening the fire in the kitchen stove was out. He was certain, however, that the fire started in the attic.

Much Bad Luck

Tough luck has dogged the Vance family insofar as fire is concerned. Two years ago Mr. Vance completed construction of a new barn only to have it destroyed by fire. Within a few months ago he had his home wired for electricity.

After last night's fire the Vance family was given temporary shelter at the Chisholm store at Chisholm's Mills, quarter of a mile distant. Mrs. Vance is an employee of the W. H. Chisholm grist mill at Chisholm's.

Generosity of neighboring residents was seen today in gifts of clothing to the fire-stricken youngsters of the young family.

Despite the misfortune which overtook his family only a few hours before, Mr. Vance was still mindful of his job at the mill. "I've got to get back to the grist mill," he said, "They are shorthanded there.

And the same spirit was reflected by Lloyd Chisholm, president at Belleville Collegiate, in the midst of examinations he declined to miss a day of school and went to classes in donated clothing.

HAY FEVER INDEX NOT PROBLEM TO BE SNEEZED AT

Sniffling Sufferers Make Good Tourists Says Travel Bureau Head

Ottawa, Nov. 9. (CP)— If you want to attract tourists, the Dominion-Provincial Tourist Conference says, check up on your "hay-fever index."

This is not quite in the same class as the east-of-living index, except that where either index is high, folks are likely to go somewhere else.

The problem came up before the conference on the suggestion of D. Leo Dolan head of the Canadian Government Travel Bureau. Mr. Dolan said it was not a problem to be sneezed at. Mr. Dolan, a staff salesman of what he stoutly claims is the "world's best product—Canada," is a hay fever sufferer from away back. His case, he told the conference, was so bad he was welcomed by doctors as a clinical example.

He has been cured by serum treatments, but only after a lot of vain searching. "We'd be glad to give any delegate advice on how to cure hay fever— it's worth just that."

But he recalled the advertisements of seven years ago in which areas were promoted as "free of hay fever." He recalled the immense relief on reaching such areas. He cited the Gaspe and Port Arthur.

"Hundreds of thousands of tourists in the U.S.," he said just cry for hay-fee free areas. Give a place they can find a holiday without getting hay fever."

Refers to Booklet

He brought to the conference's attention a booklet published by the Chicago Motor Club Information Bureau. The booklet had a "ragweed pollen index" and ad-

No Butter Sold Below 60½ Cents

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (CP)—Officials of the department of agriculture of the Department of Agriculture said today no government-held stocks of butter had been sold to wholesalers at 59 cents a pound and that such a price had never been fixed for sales of government stocks of butter.

The department announced last week that some 30,000,000 pounds of butter purchased under the federal butter prices support program would be sold to wholesalers at 60½ cents a pound.

The butter had been sold by the government until the price of 60½ cents was set.

(The Canadian Press erroneously reported Tuesday that a price of 59 cents had been set for sale of government stocks although no butter was sold at that price.)

Butter prints were unquoted.

Supplies were ample for demand on the egg market this morning and prices remained unchanged. Country shippers quoted graded eggs, case free; grade A large, 55-56; A medium, 46-48; A pullet, 38-40; grade B 44-46; grade C 34-35. Wholesale to retail: Grade A large, 58-60; medium, 51; A pullet, 42-43; grade B, 49-50; grade C 39-40.

First grade butter solids were unchanged on a steady solids market this morning and were quoted at 60 1-4-50 1-2. Second grades were quoted nominally only at 58-58 1-2.

HOGS

Toronto, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Hog prices remained unchanged on the Toronto market today. Grade A truck hogs were quoted at $29.

Dressed grade A hogs were steady at Hull, Quebec, and quoted at $28.75 delivered.

Probe Sudden Death Of Young Child, Father Held

North Bay, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Provincial police are investigating circumstances surrounding the sudden death Monday night of Richard Merriman, nine-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Douglas Merriman of nearby West Ferris.

The baby died at its suburban tourist camp home while the mother was visiting at the home of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Merriman of North Bay. When the mother arrived home, she found the child dead. He had been left in charge of his 28-year-old father.

Police said they later arrested Merriman and lodged him in district jail under a nominal charge.

An autopsy was performed Tuesday, but the results were not available this morning.

Police said the father, a veteran of six years overseas service, will be given a mental examination before any charges, if any, are laid.

Police were reluctant to release details of the fatality, but they said it is believed the infant died from a blow or blows.

WILL BE RETURNED

Detroit, Nov. 9 (CP)—Detective Sergeant Bruce McCamis of Calgary said today extradition now is well under way" with United States authorities toward returning Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace to Canada to face trial for a beer-bottle slaying in a Calgary auto court cabin last Aug. 11.

He said he has with him sworn warrants charging the couple with murder in the death of 23-year-old Florence Lavetique. He refused to say whether they have actually been served.

Father of Seven Given One Year On Two Charges

Toronto, Nov. 9 (CP)—George Cooper, 35-year-old father of seven children, today was sentenced to one year in jail for unlawfully wounding his two daughters.

Cooper had faced two charges of attempted murder and one of wounding. The charges were laid after police he fired through the window of his father-in-law's home last spring struck his children, Cynthia, eight months, and 13-year-old Constance. Cooper has been charged with the attempted murder of his 41-year-old wife, Eva, and the two girls.

Defence counsel Norman Borins told the Assize Court jury there was "a great burden on defence to prove concussion existed to sufficient extent to render it impossible for Cooper to realize the extent and seriousness of his actions."

Cooper's 19-year-old son, Walter, struck his father with a baseball bat just prior to the shooting.

Mr. Justice Kelly told the jury they must decide whether the plea of guilty should be accepted, but they should remember "the words are members of his family now living with him and depending on him for their livelihood."

70 Miles an Hour Gale Sweeps Atlantic Coast

Halifax, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Gales of 70 miles an hour swept the Atlantic east of Newfoundland today where the Halifax bog Foundation Josephine is plowing to the side of the disabled freighter Scottish Prince.

Bad weather conditions slowed the Josephine's progress to six knots Tuesday while she still was 300 miles away from the 7,000-ton British vessel.

The Scottish Prince, carrying a crew of about 40, first called for assistance Saturday when she developed engine trouble. She was not believed in any immediate danger because she was able to keep her course, sounding slowly and head into the gale.

TRAFFIC DEATHS UP

Toronto, Nov. 9—(CP)—Ontario traffic fatalities increased 17 per cent in the first 10 months of 1949 compared to the same 1948 period, a department of highways report showed Tuesday. Although October figures show a slight drop, the report said, 571 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the 10-month period compared with 574 during the same 10 months of 1948. In October, 79 persons were reported killed against 85 in October, 1948.

Colored Eggs For Breakfast Latest Prospect

Toronto, Nov. 9 (CP).—O. P. Johnson, a businessman who raises chickens as a hobby, says he has produced a strain which has no wattles nor combs and lay eggs of Easter hues. Mr. Johnson crossed imported birds from Chile and Holland with Canadian stock. So far the birds which will be on exhibition at the Royal Winter Fair here next week, have produced chocolate, green, khaki, gray, olive colored eggs. The eggs will also be on display.

Barking Dog Saves Family

Hamilton, Nov. 9 (CP).—Awakened by the barking of their pet dog Prince, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Marcotte and their four children found a fire raging in the basement and smoke pouring into downstairs living rooms early today.

Firemen checked the blaze in the basement before it spread to the upper rooms. Damage to the basement was placed at $700.

"We were certainly pretty lucky that Prince kept up his barking," said Mrs. Marcotte.

GASOLINE TORCH EXPLODES IN REFRIGERATOR, TWO DIE

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 9 (CP)— Two men were burned to death when trapped inside a flaming refrigerator compartment in a department store today and another suffered critical burns.

Dead are Ralph Doncaster, about 30, and Hugh Morrison, about 50.

Jack Nicolson, 30, was taken to hospital in critical condition.

The three were installing a refrigerator when a gasoline torch exploded. Pitch and tar being used on the job caught fire.

AN INVITATION!!

WE EXTEND a cordial invitation to all the citizens of good old Belleville, all our friends and customers, all those who are not yet our customers — to visit our COAL YARD.

COME ON DOWN!

AND SEE FOR YOURSELF HOW WE DO IT! How your coal is unloaded, stockpiled, handled, screened, loaded into trucks, weighed and sent to your homes, and business places.

THERE'S NOT MUCH USE in harping on how good our coal is and how we came through the difficult years of two World Wars, permitting NO ONE to want for fuel — Everyone knows all about that.

BUT NOT EVERYONE, in fact very few have ever visited a Coal Yard.

SO —COME ON DOWN. We are very proud of our neat yard and our Modern Equipment of Conveyors, Trucks and Buildings. Jim Belair, our Yard and Dock Superintendent, or Rocky Campbell, Jack Henderson and Manley Loveless, will be glad to show you around and explain how we put forth every effort to store lots of coal for every use and handle it in modern ways to please you.

SEE THE INSIDE of our Big Coal Shed — Almost 100 years old and still going strong.

COME ON DOWN! Down to the Dock where our Coal Yard is — Foot of Front and Pinnacle Streets.

LIVING LONGER

It has been noted in the New World that people are living to a greater average age, the life expectancy rising in a marked degree. More than twice as many people in Britain are living to greater ages as individuals, that is, there are more than twice as many people living to over 85 years than there were in 1931. Altogether men and women who have passed that age total 193,000.

It is also a fact that women of that age outnumber men by more than two to one. There are at present more "surplus" women than men—280,000 as of December 1947 against less than 1,700,000 in 1931.

Not only Britain but America has the evidence of the greater expectation of life for the millions of people.

It is but natural that with the increased knowledge of the laws which govern living there should be a marked increase in the life span. Inventions and discoveries have done much to help extend it. Burdens have been lightened by machinery which in other ages would have worn out and shortened the lives of people. Most of all are the expansion of the services, such as sanitation and general knowledge of the use of foods, which have meant a great deal in health and longevity.

With what science may have in store in as yet undiscovered facts relating to the span of human life the outlook appears bright for further extension of the number of the sojourn on earth. A few centuries ago the length of life was rather abbreviated as compared with the average length of life today.

BIRDS AND PLANES

Birds have sometimes caused damage to aircraft over Prestwick and Renfrew airports in Scotland and as a result steps have been taken to experiment with means to rid airfields of birds. At Prestwick there are tests being made with "bird scaring ropes."

Here the Chinese practice of using fire crackers to frighten away evil spirits will be given a modern application. In fact Great Britain has taken up the idea of frightening birds away from orchards, nursery gardens and crops. The manufacturers of fireworks for the United Kingdom, too, are adapting the principle to clear airfields. Lengths of rope are being strung between poles on the fields to act as fuses to explode—at pre-set intervals —a series of crackers strung along the ropes. Each of the crackers will give a loud report and it is thought this will scare birds off the fields for a distance of four hundred yards.

Industry has accepted the challenge and has devised a chain of firecrackers which will last for eight hours with detonations every fifteen minutes. Materials for this method have the advantage of being cheap to manufacture, they are available in quantity and require very little attention. It is also important because no specialist operators are needed.

Industry and invention have the facility of meeting new situations.

NATIONS STUDY PRINCIPLES OF GOVERNMENT

The bonds uniting the free nations are having results which tend to expand the bounds of democracy more and more. An example has come to light in the meeting in London this month for government officials from Britain, France, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg. This is a natural outcome of the friendly relationship existing among these states.

It is the first of a series of such gatherings arranged at the request of the cultural committee of the Brussels Treaty Permanent Commission. Meetings of this nature will be held regularly, it is planned. Attending this meeting will be a representative of the Western Union nations. Among the subjects which will be those relating to the machinery of government in Britain and the work of the British Civil Service. Parliamentary control and relations of local government officials with the Central Government will also be examined and discussed.

How can we expect another to keep our secret if we cannot keep it ourselves?—Rochefoucauld.

THE FUN OF AGE

If you can laugh at a jest,
And keep it in mind to repeat it
When a bean falls onto your vest,
Although you'd intended to eat it,...
If you can chuckle and grin,
Remember, whatever your age be
You're not old. You're just entering
One of life's merriest stages.

If potatoes and meat
You say that a little is plenty,
That you are not eager to eat
As much as you used to at twenty,
If you laugh when the spoon in your cup
The lid of your right eye closes,
You're not old. You have merely grown up
To one of life's merriest stages.

When asked if your health is still good,
Being neither a whiner nor fretter,
You answer, "I feel as I should,
Or maybe a little bit better."
If you smilingly say you are done
With youth's frequent follies and rages,
You're not old. You have merely begun
One of life's merriest stages.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The Rome Express was—perhaps still is—a famous train that raced daily from Paris to Rome carrying besides Frenchmen and Italians, a cosmopolitan collection of Britons, Swedes, Americans and every other denomination of mankind, more curiously all a important section of the world's wanderers.

Two memories of it stick in my mind, the second more as a remotely interesting device that might well be adopted by our own railways.

The first curiosity was —Switzerland. Canada, there has been, for the greater part of my life, a taboo on toothpicks. The only people allowed to chew, suck or otherwise twiddle toothpicks are race track tycoons, theatre stage hands and men wearing velvet velour dress suits. But on Rome express, Toothpicks were served on a silver tray with your bill. The Italian gentlemen in the diner promptly picked up a toothpick and proceeded with an open and public and somehow ostentatious job of oral sanitation. The Italian ladies, as a rule, concealed their activities behind their serviettes (though you knew what they were up to by the way they widened their eyes and got a faraway expression in them.) The Frenchmen used the toothpicks, but a little more modestly. The covert glances around to enquire, as it were, if this were all right, socially.

The English, Swedes, Americans, however fell into two groups; those who put on a stony expression and pretended that after a few minutes of observation, decided to do in Rome as the Romans did. And with shy grins, picked up a toothpick and did a little probing, too; just to show no hard feelings. No snobs, see . . . ?

The other memory of the Rome Express is that shortly after the train started, it wandered from diner to diner came through and gave you a numbered meal ticket. When, at last, the time arrived, you were called your number, you went into an unoccupied dining car, where a place awaited you.

THE SAGO OF SAVO

Next time the world deals you a deuce, it might not be a bad idea to consider the case of Jimmy Savo, the little man who became a broadway star because of a series of mix-ups. And if you're not familiar with his story, here's a quick-run-through of his cloud-cluttered career . . .

First of all, Jimmy got off to a botched-up start by getting himself born into a family of nine which was living in a one-room shanty in the Bronx. His father, a catch-as-catch-can shoemaker, couldn't afford the four cents a quart that Grade B cost in those days, and the bambinos was raised on heavily watered condensed milk. But this dietary misdeal undoubtedly laid the foundation for the infantile leprosy that left the Bronx a typhoid epidemic in 1904, and killed a dozen of kids in better-off families. When the Board of Health inspected Savo's, it was found that the epidemic had been caused by consumed milk.

At the age of six, besides being the poorest kid on the block, Jimmy was also the puniest. But it was this piece of bad luck which boomeranged into his first stage career. To defend himself against the bigger and stronger playmates, he spent several hours each day at the school gym, and it was there that he was seen by a talent scout who happened to be in the house booked him to play one of the minor roles in "Peter Pan."

Professional strong men rarely do anything else—which is just as luck again hit Jimmy's assistance. Since the plot-size strong man couldn't afford a real assistant, his grandmother made him one out of bits and pieces. And on and on stage, there wasn't enough left over for pockets. When he got his first weekly pay, he had no place to stash it but his shoe, and the first step encountered a half-dollar began tickling his instep. Any relief, he went into a funny-legged walk, and after the show the house manager complimented him on it. It was a pretty funny fellow. And thus, as the saying goes, a star was born.

In 1933, I hired Savo to hold down the important comedy spot at an opening night at the Casino, erating, and for an entire season the little clown with the endless gob of baggy pants had practically everything but a nightclub. Following this success, however, Jimmy crawled and continued using his old routines instead of digging up new material.

What his career needed, of course, was another shot of disaster. And it got it a few years later when the comedian made the mistake of thinking he was a business man and invested his dough in a dry cleaning plant. He was so short of eating money, he dreamed up a comedy of new routines on the strength of which he landed the leading role in "The Boy From Syracuse" where he scored the biggest hit of his cockeyed career.

Three years ago, an infection set in and one of Savo's legs had to be amputated. Broadway managers and agents figured he was through, but Mistreated Jimmy made his paid no attention to their sepulchral attitudes. While in the hospital he wrote a gay little book about himself, and as soon as he was out he studied how to manipulate an artificial leg and built a comedy routine around the way into people's hearts and funnybones.

The story of the one-legged comic was a "natural" for the columnists, and on the strength of their publicity it wasn't long before Savo was back working at the only job he could handle —and most of them at double their former salary.

I watched him perform not long ago, and it was a thrill and a privilege to tell him how he was more wistfully amusing than ever. The secret, he said, "doesn't that wooden leg bother you, Savo, when you're doing your routines?"

"Not at all," said Jimmy. "I have a more or less comic ache in the side affected and this ache is sometimes worse than the immediate area of the kidney, but may be "referred" to adjacent areas. When I am ready to go away to the urter, the slender muscular tissue connecting the kidney to the bladder, it may and usually does cause severe pain. At first there may appear to be in the upper abdomen and may be accompanied by nausea. It may subside temporarily on change of position. When the stone begins to enter the passage' in the urether, if large enough, it produces severe and sustained pain. If the stone is quite rough, considerable blood may appear in the urine.

A small stone may pass through the ureter without the knowledge of the patient, enter the bladder and be discharged from the body upon urination. Slightly larger stones are usually retained in the bladder if they are too large in size to cause pain in descent. A stone retained in the bladder may increase in size from day to day. Abrupt stoppage of the stream in urination is often the first symptom of the presence of a bladder stone, although other symptoms usually follow.

Russians Often Speak in Riddles Says Mackenzie

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Russian diplomacy often adopts the ambiguous characteristic of speaking in riddles, and so it is with Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky's intriguing pronouncement about sleeping Russo-American friendship.

What Vishinsky actually said to reporters in Washington was that the continuation of the Red revolution was that the common feeling of friendship between the people of the United States had fallen asleep but that someday it would awaken.

That's really a beautiful poetic expression and is very interesting. The trouble is that, after the cryptic fashion of the Russians, the foreign minister doesn't give us the all-important information as to when he believes it is that will awaken friendship. That leaves it up to us to supply the answer.

The sleeping friendship will be awakened when we have a happy day in which neither is interfering in the private affairs of the other. That is to say in this instance the country is dependent on each side minding its own dog-gone business. Upon this basis Russia can extend to Moscow's world-revolutionary movement of communism, and to the cold war which has grown out of the revolution.

The Soviet government was established in Russia in 1917 at the conclusion of the second Bolshevist revolution. But it wasn't until 1933 that Washington established formal relations with this regime.

Why Long Delay?

Why this exceptionally long delay in recognition? Because Russian agents in the United States were spreading the gospel of communism and doing all they could to undermine the American government. Finally President Franklin D. Roosevelt extended recognition after protracted conversations with Moscow's emissary, Maxim Litvinoff, who

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A FRIEND OR TWO

What a quest this is of ours—to find a friend! How many of us can well understand the words of Aristotle: "O my friends, there is no friend"

The most genuine and undying of friends is that one on whom we can look as our other self. And that means that he embodies, in complete understanding, the viewpoints and our bad ones, but in complete understanding. The appreciation and hunger of the one is that of the other. And when that friend is found there is a great fragment of ourselves leaves us when we die in that one.

You can't buy a friend You have to earn him. Sometimes the quest this is a long process—sometimes the period of a lifetime. But the search and triumph are well worth all that their cost demands. Montaigne dedicated his life story to "a friend I cannot find again."

There is magic in that phrase: "I want you to meet a friend of mine." When you hear it you're looking upon. There is no security in this world that can compare to that of a genuine friend. The very thought that you have such a possession makes you feel comfortable and happy.

Friendship between men is always an inspiring thing. It's sincere and lasting and so highly valued. No one can consider himself poor if he has at least one friend. That's wealth in itself, wealth that is not wiped out, even in death, for the memory and influence of a friend are undying.

Of course, we have to be a friend nor offer excuses. There is a sympathetic understanding that is always appreciated. It's that solid friend who gives encouragement, who listens so much, and who appeases the burden within the heart when most needed. It may be no more than a silent hand-clasp or a word aptly spoken at the right time.

You can walk for miles with a friend, without a single word spoken, yet having the feeling that everything is right. You can go with your own, and every joy along the way being a mutual appreciation. You ought always to carry a friend or two with us wherever we are or go

KIDNEY STONES

A kidney stone is a matter of extreme interest to one who knows he has one. A great many people have one or more and do not know it. Like gall stones, if they form in areas where they do not obstruct important passages they may be "silent" indefinitely. But when one of these stones, by increase in size or change in position causes obstruction, a patient soon realizes that something is wrong although at first he may not know just what.

Kidney stones are formed of the crystals of deposited salts and are held together by colloid material derived from the blood. When the nature of the composition of these stones become known, doctors thought their formation might be prevented by eliminating or at least decreasing the intake of foods which created them. But it didn't work out as anticipated.

It has been established that a lack of vitamin A is a very important factor in the development of urinary stones. Thus it becomes apparent that while these stones are related to diet, their presence is due largely to the foods which are not eaten rather than those which are.

Drinking water with a high lime content may not be a cause in the formation of urinary stones when there is a lack of vitamin A and phosphorus. There is very little evidence that an excess of lime acts to form stones when other factors are absent.

A stone in the kidney may produce a more or less severe ache in the side affected and this ache is sometimes worse than the immediate area of the kidney, but may be "referred" to adjacent areas. When it starts on its way to the ureter, the slender muscular tissue connecting the kidney to the bladder, it may and usually does cause severe pain. At first there may appear to be in the upper abdomen and may be accompanied by nausea. It may subside temporarily on change of position. When the stone begins to enter the passage' in the ureter, if large enough, it produces severe and sustained pain. If the stone is quite rough, considerable blood may appear in the urine.

A small stone may pass through the ureter without the knowledge of the patient, enter the bladder and be discharged from the body upon urination. Slightly larger stones are usually retained in the bladder if they are too large in size to cause pain in descent. A stone retained in the bladder may increase in size from day to day. Abrupt stoppage of the stream in urination is often the first symptom of the presence of a bladder stone, although other symptoms usually follow.

Operative treatment is invariably successful. Procrastination is costly. The advances of medical science are of no avail to a person who is persistently and dangerously negligent. This is eminently the physician's sphere and no place for the amateur expert.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Old Folks Require Less Sleep

Is it true that people require less sleep as they grow older? (P. D.)

Answer—Yes. And sedentary workers require more sleep than workers and others who live by their wits require less than those of athletic persons, houseworkers, laborers and others who get considerable exercise every day.

Running Ear

I thank you for your suggestions for chronic running ear. After twenty years of it I was pretty tired of it. The ear drops stopped it, and there has been no sign of it now for several months. (D. L.)

Answer—On written request accompanied with stamped self addressed envelope, any reader may have the whistler mailing what to use the drops for running ear.

Antique Porcelain Beautiful, Useful

Montreal, (CP)—Dust off that old English porcelain service that belonged to great-grandpa and put it where it belongs, on the table.

Addressing a meeting of the Women's Art Society here, Elizabeth Ramsey, expert on antique English porcelain, said it is hardy, won't chip and with normal care should prove most practical in use.

Miss Ramsey said that the earliest known marked pieces of porcelain date from about 1745 and the collector, she warned, had to learn to identity the pieces by the markings. They can not be distinguished by the patterns, since those used in one factory were often copied by another.

Today, Miss Ramsey said, it is impossible to imitate the beauty of the early porcelain, because of the high cost of labor and materials.

Seven-year-old Tasma Lee (Tammy) Hinch learned to swim last year — so two-year-old Kenneth Bowen is alive today. Tammy, a member of the Campbell River, B.C., Brownie Pack until she and her parents moved recently to Victoria, saw Kenny fall into the Campbell River last May. Without hesitation, she plunged in and brought him to shore. Constable Peter B. Girl's Tiny Purse Bequest to Church

Greenwich, Kent, England — (CP)— Just before she died, an orphaned, almost blind 18-year-old girl asked that all the money she had should be given to her parish church.

The bequest totalled 2s 6d (35 cents).

"It is one of the greatest and most humbling gifts we have ever received", said the vicar, Rev. S. H. Heaton-Shaw.

Stop That Run-- Not With Polish

Bebington, Cheshire, England,— (CP) — "Women who use nail varnish to stop a stocking run may be sorry," says Z. V. Crapper, chief sanitary inspector for Bebington.

"Varnish often contains tricresyl phosphate to stop it from cracking and this can cause dermatitis. Infections from this chemical can occur even when a woman only touches her own or someone else's skin."

Mr. Crapper has asked the Sanitary Inspectors' Association to have cosmetics covered by the Food and Drugs Act so that it would be possible to keep such substances from being used in nail varnish.

"We are considering what can be done," said an official. "But this tricresyl phosphate is the best for making nail varnish crack-proof."

Wife Preservers

If you haven't a mould with ring in centre, and want to make a pretty ring, slice a small, firm plain cake and place in the centre of any suitable dish you have on hand, wetting it first. Pour the liquid jelly around the cake, and when ready to unmould, fill the centre with warm water, lift out, and unmould the ring of jelly on serving dish. The centre may then be filled with whipped cream, cut-up fruit, or what you please.

WEDDINGS

MINAKER—MIKEL

The parsonage of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty double ring wedding ceremony, on Saturday, October 22, at 2:15 p.m., when Barbara Phyllis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mikel, Consecon Lake, became the bride of Everett Walter Minaker, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Walter Minaker, Mountain View. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Donald C. Amos.

The bride wore a lovely floor length bridal gown featuring a sweetheart neckline, tight fitting three-quarter length sleeves and full set skirt falling from points on the bronzed satin waist. Her floor length veil of net and lace was held in place by a coronet of encrusted pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses. Her only ornament was a sister-in-law's gift, a pearl the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Shirley Mikel, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, becomingly gowned in light green taffeta, with shoulder length veil of the same color matching the bride's in design. She was held in place by a braided halo of orchid satin. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay.

Mr. Arthur Minaker, student at Queen's University, Kingston, was his brother's groomsman.

A reception followed at Maple Elm, Bloomfield, where the rooms were beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers, white wedding bells, and baskets of multi-colored baby 'mums. A three-tier wedding cake centred the bride's table.

The bride's mother, wearing navy blue with matching accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums, received the guests. She was assisted by Mrs. George Rikeby, sister of the groom, who also wore navy blue with matching accessories. Her corsage was of pink 'mums.

For travelling through Quebec and New Brunswick, to the Bay of Fundy, and through Maine to Boston, U.S., the bride donned a mulberry wool gabardine suit with black accessories. Her going-away corsage was of Talisman roses.

The gifts to the maid of honor and to the bridesmaid were triple strands of pearls and to the groomsman, a billfold.

Guests were present from Victoria, Kingston, Consecon, Wellington, Trenton, Carrying Place, Mountain View and Trenton.

ROWSWELL—RICHARDSON

A lovely November wedding was solemnized in Christ Church, Deer Park, Toronto, in a candlelight service at 7 p.m. on Saturday, the fifth, when Helen Evalena, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Richardson, of Belleville, was united in marriage by a double ring ceremony, to Timothy Arthur Rowswell, of Toronto, before the altar decorated with 'mums. The Rev. Northcote Burke officiated.

Mr. John Lovick, organist of the church, provided the wedding music, and the soloist, Miss Greta Janes sang, during the signing of the register, "Because".

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a charming floor length bridal gown featuring a lace bodice, long sleeves pointed at the wrists, full satin skirt falling from a long train. Her headdress was of matching beaded satin, held in place her fingertip veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Mr. William "Bill" Cone, of Belleville, was groomsman, and Clayton Mr. Smiley and Mr. Ronald Thomas, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of black and white crepe, with black accessories and corsage of red roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, wearing a black gown with black accessories and corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to St. Catharines, and Buffalo, the bride chose a navy suit with dark wine accessories, and corsage of red roses. Upon their return, the happy couple will reside in Belleville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was entertained by the Misses Bertie Guttormson and Margaret Sullivan, Charles Street, when she was the recipient of many lovely gifts.

Fashion Flashes

ENDLESS VARIETY is to be found in mix and match mates for both day and evening. In the latter group a skirt of velvet satin is gathered with two pockets concealed at the sides. With it a top of black wool jersey, the front cut high to the neckline like a sweater, with long plunging pointed V neckline in back. Long tight sleeves have dolmen armholes.

SOFT AND charming is the little velvet theatre suit. Black velvet is used for a suit cut on slim lines. Double silk tassels project from slots on one shoulder under a curved upstanding collar. Jacket closes with four brilliant buttons and is lined in white satin.

EASY TO DRESS for evening with a stock of blouses and one or two skirts of velvet or silk, or a long slim wool skirt. Quilted silver lame for a blouse cut on simple lines. Folds of the fabric simulate a round neckline, and the collar folds in soft points either side of the deep neckline.

CLEVER CONNECTIONS between fabric and fur mark some of the new coats. Shaped seaver edges the collar, the tuxedo front and the turn-back cuffs of a handsome coat in pale beige wool fleece, the fur and fabric surfaces and colors nicely complementing each other.

EASY-TO-WEAR frocks are most in demand, especially in wool jersey and velveteen. Beige wool jersey is used for an easy dress with softly gathered skirt and scoop neckline, sleeveless top worn with a matching cardigan.

Beautiful Blouse

By ALICE ALDEN

There comes a time when a special suit, a beautiful skirt says that nothing else will do but a soft, feminine, lace-trimmed silk blouse. Yolanda interprets this type of blouse beautifully in this design. It is fashioned of white silk and Valenciennes lace is used to ruffle the edges of the little standing collar, the cuff of the long, pretty sleeves and the delicately tucked jabot. The same lace is used to form a triple yoke. Little pearl buttons fasten the cuffs and the front closing.

Footwear for Autumn Outfits

By FRANELLA WOOD

The clever little shoe, pictured today, is called "Lapel." And the explanation is simple, this model was especially designed for suit wear as a match or part of the ensemble as the lapels on a jacket.

Built on tailored lines it combines comfort and chic. The pump comes in calf in a shade lighter than navy, in suede, in black and brown. It is equally appropriate with any daytime frock and looks most attractive for street wear with a fur coat or cloth winter topper, with or without fur trim.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's 16 and in a Hurry to Get Married.

Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 16 and have been going steady with a boy 17 for almost two years.

Lately, we are having arguments about our marriage. I want to get married next year, but Bill thinks we should wait till he gets out of college. That won't be for four years and I love him so much it seems like a million.

He told me to write to you and see what you thought about it. If you think he's wrong, we'll get married next June. M.G.

Dear M.G.:

I am sorry, but I think this young man is quite right. I think, too, that even though it may be very difficult for both of you to wait so long, you should be glad that this chap has so much good common sense. Many young people are so eager to get married that they rush into it headlong, even though the boy may be completely unready to support a wife, and almost nine times out of ten the marriage comes to grief in a very short time.

If you feel that four years is an impossible time to wait, then I suggest that you make an agreement that you will wait at least two, then size up the situation and see if there is any way by which it might be practical for you to marry before the boy finishes college. But I hope you will not do anything so foolish as to get married next June.

Would Give up Husband and Child for Another Man

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am in love with a married man who lives with his wife in name only. I am 30 years old, married to a man who loves me dearly and I have a child of 7 years.

This man is 30 years my senior. He has told me he loves me, and the only thing which holds us back is that he is well established in a good job and might possibly lose his position, and might have to give up the child whom I love dearly.

This is not a flirtation, as I have felt this way for three years and have tried repeatedly to control myself and stop seeing him. With the knowledge that I have everything to lose by this relationship, I still cannot help myself.

Should I take the chance that society will not judge us too harshly and make a clean break and marry this man that I love, hoping for some happiness? Or shall I stay with my husband, for fear that he will never hear of it if I feel or sense that I cannot be his alone?

Please help me and keep in mind that I know the folly of this, yet cannot see life without this other man H.

Dear H.:

What makes you think this man "lives with his wife in name only?" Because he told you so? Many another man has misled a woman with such a statement so that she has been bitterly disillusioned when she found that this was manufactured to gain her sympathy and make an illicit affair seem excusable.

You give me no reason to believe that your husband has not made you happy in the past or that there is any good reason for your leaving him except that you have become infatuated with someone else. If there were a real reason, I think you would have told me. If your husband has been good to you, don't you think he deserves your loyalty, and how do you think the child you love is going to feel about you when it grows up and can judge the situation? Don't you owe it a good start in life, and do you think you would be giving it one if you broke up your home for little or no real reason?

Lastly, H, as you say, you "know the folly of this," why not have the common sense and the character not to commit folly with your eyes open, as you would be doing, since you recognize it as such. If you could have the will power to take a firm stand by refusing to see this man any more, I feel sure that sooner or later you will be glad you did so, no matter how much it may cost you now.

A Good Foot Care Program

After bathing, and before putting on shoes and stockings, sprinkle feet with fragrant bath powder. Put a little in shoes, too, to absorb moisture.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you walk in beauty like the night or do you hobble around in tight shoes which cause the toes to twinge, the soles of your feet to burn? Do you use your head when buying shoes?

Few women have their little feet properly shod. The main idea is to find fancy casings that will make the trotters look small and nifty. But what about comfort? If you don't look comfortable you can't look attractive and that's a fact.

Make an effort to find the correct last, the style of shoe that conforms to the contour of your foot, and see to it that it has a flexible leather sole that will provide easy movement. When your feet hurt, you hurt all over. You feel like snarling if anybody looks at you. Fess up, isn't it true? Even an earth angel will get a curdled disposition if her shoes are too short or too narrow.

Pumice Stone

Give your feet the hygenic care to which they are entitled. When having your bath scrub your hoofs with a rich lather and a heavy brush. The friction will hustle up circulation. Have a toilet pumice stone to use on the back of your heels where the top of the shoe often rubs, causes the skin to thicken. The stone can also be used on calloused spots that come on the outer side of the big toe. Of course if your shoes were right you wouldn't have any of these pedal griefs.

A vigorous massage with mineral oil will help the feet if you have been doing a good deal of walking or standing for some hours. Treat each toe separately. Smooth the oil along the sole and over the heel. Clasp your fingers under your foot, rub from toes to ankle with your thumbs, pressing into the flesh. The oil will soften corns that may be forming.

After your tub, sprinkle feet with fragrant bath powder. Use it with light friction. Sprinkle it in your shoes. It will absorb moisture. If your feet are inclined to perspire, rinse your stockings in water in which boric acid has been dissolved.

Should One in Mourning Send Christmas Cards?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband died very suddenly just after Christmas last year, and I would like to know if it is proper for me to send Christmas cards this year. I do not feel like doing this—but if you think that my friends would expect to receive Christmas cards from me, I will of course send them.

M. H. M.

You yourself have answered your question, my dear lady, by your touching and so-understandable words, "I do not feel like doing this." If your heart and spirit are too sorrowful for you to take so much "memories" responsibility, you certainly should not add this burden of sending Christmas cards to the burden you already have. Please don't attempt this task if you feel it will be too wearying.

Of course I couldn't know if your friends would expect to receive Christmas cards from you this year. . . but this I do know: that if they are friends with even a minimum of gentle understanding, they will not, should not, expect you to send them Christmas cards.

(However, if later on you change your mind, decide to send cards, carefully choose suitable cards, perhaps appealing religious ones, and send them only to your intimate friends. They will be particularly touched by your spiritual triumph of wishing others to have happiness at Christmastime, even if this will be difficult for you.)

Simple Foods and Drink for Limited Budget Reception

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

We would like to invite approximately 50 guests . . . members of the two families, relatives, close friends . . . to our church wedding and to an informal reception following. Our budget is very limited.

1. Would it be proper at such a modest affair to have four bridesmaids? We are all such very close friends that it would be practically impossible for me to choose any two.

2. What are the absolutely necessary expenses for an informal reception of this type?

What would you suggest as the most "economical" refreshments which would be in good taste? And would it be proper to serve as the beverages, just wine and punch, instead of strong drinks?

I. G.

1. It isn't the number of guests that would determine this, but your costume. If you are wearing a wedding dress and veil, although a very simple bridal costume, it would be quite all right for you to have four bridesmaids. But when the bride wears informal attire, for example afternoon dress and hat, she generally and appropriately has only one attendant.

2. The only "absolutely necessary" expenses are (a) for the wedding cake and (b) for the punch or other cold beverage with which to drink the toasts. To this basic menu, you may, if you wish, add small, simple sandwiches and coffee.

Not only is it proper to serve only punch or punch and wine instead of strong drinks, but it is vastly better taste. Many wedding hosts serve only an excellent fruit punch for the toasts; others serve the traditional wedding champagne; others, champagne, with fruit punch as an alternative for those who prefer a non-alcoholic drink. Very few offer "strong drinks."

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Figures Take to Curves

During the Victorian period the ideal of beauty was fragility. Women seemed sick—according to the novels of that period—to faint at will. Their aim seemed to be to have no particular purpose in life except possibly to wheedle their husbands. No matter how mad the world is at present, it is certainly a better place for a woman than it was in those days.

There have been many other ideals of pulchritude since then. The boyish figure flourished in a period not so remote but what many of us remember it. The breasts were bandaged so the chest would be flat. Reducing became a madness. Dresses were cut with no more curves than a pillow case. One wasn't supposed to have any hips. It all sounds pretty silly.

What now? We're back to normal, natural lines with accent on curves. Skinny girls, unable to put up a front, resort to falsies that all-too-often proclaim themselves as counterfeits.

Woman's curves should be graceful and developed according to the proportions of the body. Have hips, but don't be hippy. Be busty, but not too much so. Keep your waist trim. See that no fat collects on the upper arms, or the top of your back. Curves, yes, but lovely ones.

Have hips, but don't be hippy.

The efforts of fashion designers some years ago to bring back what they called the "doll waist" came to nothing. Corsets, modified somewhat after the old style saddles, were offered and all they got from the states were a lot of boos and snears. No tight lacing these days. We're too fond of freedom of movement. Compressing the feminine equator just does not appeal.

The slender woman—all too often she is actually starving—is working hard to join up with the medium-weights. She finds that present-day styles are not precisely and exactly for the string bean shape.

At figure remodelling salons, there is as much work done on the skinnies as the plumpies. Those little whispless who could slide through a crack in a door are lapping up their hot cereals for breakfast, downing their quart of rich cream on cake in an effort to become pictures of pulchritude.

The heavyweights realizing at last that their excess tonnage is due to overeating, or eating the wrong kind of foods, are seeking medical advice, which is the only way of going about the matter of normalizing. If the doctor gives a good bill of health, cutting down on fats, sweets and starches will eventually cause the adipose cushions to evaporate.

Nun Finds New World After 28 Years in Convent

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Pinner, Middlesex, England—(CP)—Freed from her religious vows after 28 years of convent life, a former Roman Catholic nun lives alone in a trailer outside Pinner, trying to find her bearings in the modern world.

Monica Baldwin, niece of the late and Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin was four times prime minister of Great Britain, slowly is accustoming herself to freedom.

"It took me three months to learn how to swing my arms again," she said the other day, adding that in the convent sisters walked stiffly.

"We had to walk with eyes cast down, in short steps and with our hands clasped together in front of us. We were never permitted to make any noise. There was much self-administered corporal punishment."

A convert from the Church of England, Miss Baldwin remains a devout Roman Catholic and tolerates no criticism of the nuns she left behind when a papal rescript freed her from her vows.

"After all those years in the nunnery," she said, "I began to feel I could not do any good things the way the other nuns saw them. I often cried and I longed for freedom, although it took a great deal of courage to brace myself to the thought of coming out into a world I no longer knew."

Miss Baldwin's father died when she was eight and she was brought up by "Uncle Stanley". She ignored his advice when she formed fashionable society and became a novice.

The bare austerity of the life she says, came to her as an immense shock." A cell of bare boards without heat. It had no furniture, except a plank bed, a straw mattress and a kneeling desk.

She started kneeling on the floor before stirring herself in snow-white habit, white woollen stockings and coarse underwear. Reveille was at 4:45 a.m., and for the day until 7.30 p.m., when silence was observed throughout the day until 7.30 p.m., when the 30 sisters, with the mother superior, walked backwards and forwards in the communal hall with permission to talk "as a group."

Of self-inflicted punishments, she said "A nun would bare her back for the privacy of her cell and beat herself with a multi-thonged whip, or with chains. Many did this every day and at certain times, such as Lent, we drove ourselves to 80 strokes a night with all our strength.

"Our food was plain and simple, with never any flavor strong enough to satisfy one's sense of taste. We lived like sparrows. Newspapers were forbidden and the Mother Superior told us only the main events, such as the declaration of war and the abdication of Edward VIII.

"When I reached the outside world I nearly swooned. I could not walk like the women I saw and I did not know how to put on their clothes. I went into the convent wearing a skirt that trailed on the ground. I was horrified to see women's legs and the amount of body they exposed. I was shocked at the advertisements for corsets.

"Everyone was so made-up they looked like people of the disreputable demi-monde that I knew in Edwardian days. Only actresses and courtesans were so 'painted' then.

"Shopgirls now look so dazzling that you cannot tell them from a duchess. I am still gasping."

New Film 'Pinky' Touches Problems of Race Question

By RALPH DIGHTON

Hollywood.— (AP)— For the first time in movie history, a white girl is playing the role of a Negro.

The girl is Jeanne Crain, native Californian of Irish descent who has specialized in "all-American girl" portrayals. The role is that of a part-Negro girl who passes for white until the problem of marriage and offspring arises.

The movie is "Pinky" made 1949 project of Darryl F. Zanuck, who two years ago won an Academy award with another film on racial discrimination, "Gentleman's Agreement."

"Pinky" is bound to stir up a controversy. It's laid in the deep south, where Jeanne flees after abandoning her masquerade as a white nurse in Boston. In desperation she returns to her grandmother (Ethel Waters), who washes for being black.

Why wasn't a young Negro girl chosen for the role, instead of the fair, red-haired Miss Crain? Certainly there are many Negro actresses capable of handling the job.

"Undoubtedly there are," said Jeanne, "but it would have involved, a long, expensive talent hunt."

There's another touchy problem. There are love scenes between Jeanna and the white doctor who she hopes she can help to overlook her Negro blood. If "Pinky" were portrayed by a Negro, how would audiences react to her being kissed by white Bill Lundigan?

Sometimes people will tolerate an idea where they wouldn't accept an actual fact.

There was another reason for Miss Crain's selection. She was available, under contract to Zanuck's studio, and she was courageous enough to risk her growing reputation as an actress on a film that could make or break her with the movie public.

Long after the decision to film "Pinky" was made, two questions bothered studio heads. The first was whether Miss Crain should be made up to look like a Negro. The second concerned the ending of the story.

Because "Pinky" could pass for white, it was finally settled that no artifice should be used to give Jeanne Negroid features. Final decision on the ending was not reached until after the cameras had started rolling.

Pinky's doctor friend tries three times to get her to come back to him, and leave the southern village where she comes face to face with the prejudice and inequality she escaped in the north.

Each time Pinky hesitates. At last she comes to the realization that she doesn't really love the man—she was only using him as a bulwark against intolerance—and that her future lies with her own people.

"Pinky", based on the book, "Quality" by Cid Ricketts Sumner, may well be the most controversial movie of 1949.

Even if it should dodge criticism from all other quarters, it still may fail in the ultimate test at the box office, where it will be judged on artistic merit alone. At stake are Jeanne Crain's career, the current measure of good will toward the Negro race, and two million studio dollars

British Housewives Knitting for Export

By MURRIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—Women's Home Industries, a non-profit-making organization, is winning dollars for Britain by finding markets for articles produced by home handicrafts.

These goods have found ready sales in two United States and now, with the help of devaluation, are interesting Canadian buyers.

The goods are stocked in big United States cities from New York to San Francisco. In Washington, active support is given by Lady Franks, wife of British Ambassador Sir Oliver Franks.

Chiefly in demand are knitted items—the finer and filmsier the better. Twin cardigan-and-jumper sets have been knitted in one-ply cashmere and there is much delicate two-ply work in lacy stitches.

Best-selling lines have been low-necked evening sweaters, Shetland lace jerseys with little matching cardigans and Shetland shawls.

These, and the bold-patterned Fair Isle sweaters, are finding an even readier market when they come in two sizes—one for Dad and one for Junior.

The Fifth Avenue store which devoted a window display to these, sold out its stocks in a half-hour. Movie actor Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., has helped to set a fashion for these brightly-patterned sweaters.

Rabbits' lyrettes of high quality also sell well, the fine cashmeres holding front rankings.

The only disappointing lines have been quilling and needlework. The quilling is found too similar to that produced by United States countrywomen and the needlework is hampered by a high import duty.

Women are Experts As Medical Artists

Toronto, (CP) — In an airy studio overlooking Queen's Park, and the Ontario government buildings Miss M. T. Wishart instructs Canada's grimmest and most exacting art school—the Banting Institute's department of medical illustration.

Seven of the eight graduate medical illustrators in Toronto are women.

The illustrator can show medical and biological processes in one composite picture that would be impossible with even the most advanced scheme of photographic montages.

Miss Wishart says there are only twelve medical illustrators in Canada—all of whom work at various hospitals to supply illustrations for texts in their fields.

Canadian Consul-General In N.Y. Retires at Year's End

By FRED KERNER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 9—(CP)—Canada's "Ambassador of Goodwill" in New York returns to private business at the end of this year.

That announcement— meaning specifically that genial Hugh D Scully, Canadian Consul-General in this city, is retiring from consular service—ends a historic and memorable tenure of office. Appointed to the post in 1943, Scully was the first Canadian Consul anywhere in the world.

Considered "one of the best informed minds in Canada," Scully "has become respected and admired by the many thousands of persons with whom he has come in contact during the last 6½ years.

His official duties included attending thousands of receptions and found him on the speakers' rostrum more often than not. His quiet sense of humor pervaded almost all his talks—despite the seriousness of the subject matter. Time and again the tall, broadly-built consul would depart from his prepared text to tell a pertinent humorous story or quote several lines of poetry.

To the astonishment of many, he can recite poetry by the ream. An ardent reader, he has a most retentive memory and often stumps newspaper reporters by paraphrasing people and events.

The friendly Consul-General and his petite wife were always appreciative members of audiences attending debut recitals by Canadian musical artists in Manhatten.

Returns to Toronto

The 66-year-old consular official returns to his Toronto home to pick up a colorful career in Canadian business. After graduation as an honor student in political science at the University of Toronto, he was successively assistant secretary of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, secretary of the Canadian Home Market Association, assistant general manager and director of the Russell Motor Car Company of Toronto, and vice president and manager of Stewart, Scully Company Limited, Toronto investment bankers.

He was appointed Canadian commissioner of excise in 1932 and a year later was made commissioner of customs, which post he held until he was appointed to head the New York Consulate, May 1, 1943. During the war years he was a member of the Foreign Exchange Control Board of Canada and of the Economic Advisory Committee.

In 1936, Scully was a member of the Canadian delegation which went to London to negotiate renewal of the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement. He was chairman of the Wartime Industries Control Board in 1940 and was steel controller in Canada in 1941-42.

Kenneth A. Green, former Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, is to succeed Scully in New York.

Triplets Born In Toronto

Toronto, Nov. 8. (CP) —Triplets—all boys—were born early today to a Toronto couple who said they weren't even expecting twins.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cook, the surprised—but happy—couple had planned to have a big family and bought a six-room house seven years ago. They already have one child, Donald, seven.

Edward Cook, a 33-year-old photo-engraver, said not until late last night did he hear that he might be the father of twins even. "We hadn't even got together a complete outfit for one baby," he said.

The triplets, all born in a space of 15 minutes, weighed five pounds 11 1-3 ounces, six pounds 3 3-4 ounces and four pounds 10 3-4 ounces.

German Failure To Make A-Bomb 'Extraordinary'

Ottawa, Nov. 9. (CP)—Germany's failure to produce an atom bomb was one of the "Extraordinary" features of the recent war, Dr. C. J. Mackenzie told the Commons Atomic Committee on Tuesday.

The chairman of the Atomic Energy Control Board said the failure could be taken as an example of what dictatorship does to science. The Germans couldn't convince themselves that it would be possible to get a chain reaction—the essential prelude to the release of energy. Their first-class scientists were taken away from the laboratories to do other things and one of the great threats to allied victory was removed.

But, Dr. Mackenzie said, fears of "what Germany was doing" spurred allied activity through a period of great uncertainty which continued even after a Chicago group of scientists obtained a chain reaction late in 1942.

Cost Government $30,000,000 To Bolster Dairy-Product Prices

By HAROLD MORRISON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Legalization of margarine and the effects of a shrinking United Kingdom market have combined to dig a hole in the government's money bags.

In efforts to bolster dairy-product prices, the government has paid out more than $30,000,000 this summer to support Canadian cheese, butter and evaporated milk.

Even this outlay of public funds has been insufficient to clear surpluses from dairies, say government dairy experts.

In Eastern Canada, milk producers are howling that they no longer can find enough warehouse space to store unsold supplies of tinned milk.

The surpluses are not occurring during a period of unusually-high production. Canada's cows have produced about 12,000,000,000 pounds of milk, slightly below the total of a year ago.

However since that time two things have happened:

1. Margarine appeared on the Canadian scene.

2. The United Kingdom began reducing purchases of Canadian milk to conserve dollars.

Some former butter buyers began buying cheaper margarine to the tune of about 9,000,000 pounds a month.

United Kingdom purchases of Canadian evaporated milk dropped from a high of 33,000,000 pounds in 1945 to about 9,000,000 this year.

As a result, sheds are flooded with milk products. Production of evaporated and condensed milk is down, but the amount in storage has climbed to 56,500,000 pounds — almost twice last year's total.

Butter holdings have zoomed to 75,830,000 pounds — compared with 57,713,000 last year.

For the first time in many years a cheese surplus is beginning to show. The fear is that a year ago Canada was unable to produce enough to fill a 50,000,000-pound contract with the United Kingdom.

This year's contract now is filled and the government has bought almost 14,000,000 pounds to appease the cheese producers.

The government is more certain of a butter market this winter, than it is of cheese. There is no certainty it won't take a big loss on both products, as well as on holdings of $1,000,000 worth of skim milk.

Besides its outlay of more than $30,000,000 in initial purchases, the government has paid more than $350,000 in storage charges. More expenses are coming. The government will be responsible for shipping and grading charges, if and when the storage holdings begin moving out.

Wants No Profit

Already it has announced a policy of selling more than 50,000,000 pounds of butter to anyone who'll buy it in carload lots. The government wants no profit —just the average purchase price of 58 cents a pound, plus storage and shipping charges.

Government officials say one thing is certain this year — Canada will not have to import the 15,000,000 pounds of butter it brought into Canada last year to meet the butter shortage.

The government appears to be taking every step it can to develop new foreign markets for Canada's dairy surplus. With the United Kingdom market falling off, more and more attention is being given to undeveloped markets, such as South America. But here the government is meeting heavy competition.

GOVT. TO STAND

Eight of the 13 C.C.F. members voiced their opposition, along with four of the 41 Progressive Conservative representatives. Four of the ten Social Credit members also spoke out.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, initiated the debate with a motion adjourning the regular business of the House to permit a discussion on the rental increases.

Describing the increases as a matter of urgent public interest, Mr. Coldwell said:

"This House must say explicitly to the government that the recent announcement by the Minister of Finance must be reconsidered, and that rental controls must remain until the provinces are prepared to step into the field and undertake the protection of the Canadian people, if it should prove to be their obligation to do so.

"Indeed until the menace of high rentals has been removed the government, at least should provide, in the reconsideration of this policy, for appeals to rental-control boards across the country before rent increases are put into effect.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said rental controls should be taken out of the hands of the government and placed in the hands of parliament, which could decide what should be done after proper study. He suggested a committee be established to deal with the whole question of housing.

Not the Time Says Member

He added:

"It is amazing that while parliament is in session the thing that has happened which affects the lives and homes of Canadians more than any other since this session began was something done outside parliament and parliament is simply notified at a quarter to eleven one evening that it has been done."

C. E. Johnston (SC-Bow River) said his party believed this was not the time for rent controls to be lifted to the extent announced last week. Some landlords might forego the boosts, but it would not be the ones whose premises now rented for $40 and $45 a month to a class of people which could least afford the increases.

At the House opening, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced that all provinces have agreed to a Dominion - Provincial conference on constitutional matters opening in Ottawa Jan 10.

The first hour of the night sitting was devoted to private bills and debate was renewed on a measure to incorporate Prairie Transmission Lines Limited. The measure failed to advance.

Sponsors Bill in Senate

In the Senate, Defence Minister Claxton sponsored a bill to "Canadianize" and unify existing legislation relating to the three armed forces. The proposed act cuts the 598 sections of existing legislation respecting the armed forces to 251 clauses and lays down one piece of legislation applicable to all three services.

Speakers in the Commons rental debate included Ross Thatcher (CCF-Moose Jaw); T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Broadview); H. Courtemanche (PC-Labelle); Leon Balcer (PC-Trois-Rivieres); Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre); Claire Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South); Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East); H. W. Herridge (CCF-Kootenay West); J. W. Noseworthy (CCF-York South) and E. O. Jones (CCF-Yale).

Mr. Abbott said the government had seriously considered letting rental control legislation expire next March 31, but then decided against such a step after careful study.

It was impossible to say what would happen if all controls on domestic rents were removed—a step which some of his cabinet colleagues had believed should be taken. He knew, however, that in the case of some accommodation which has moved out from under controls the rent has been increased from 50 to 75 per cent.

Plans to Test Validity

He reiterated that the government plans to test the validity of rent controls before the Supreme Court of Canada. The government, he said, is ready at any time to have the controls over to the provinces, which, under ordinary circumstances, they belong. Counsel for the government will contend before the Supreme Court that the government has the right to taper off rent controls in a gradual manner, but will not contend that the government has the right to continue them indefinitely.

Mr. Coldwell suggested that if the government had announced rent-control policy before the last general election or the recent by-elections it would not have had such a large following at the polls.

The community planning association estimated that there are at least 300,000 families in Canada who cannot afford more than $30-a-month for rent. The government once had said that a family should not pay more than 20 per cent of its income on rent. Yet many today were paying 40 and 50 per cent of their incomes on accommodation.

"There can be no excuse for allowing drastic increases of 20 and 25 per cent," said Mr. Coldwell. People already were paying rents which could be described only as "extortion."

Mr. Fleming challenged Liberal members to say what they think about the increases and not "to follow along like driven sheep."

Nothing in Order

There was nothing in the order saying landlords should be ordered to carry out repairs for tenants.

Mr. Johnston said he believed 75 per cent of landlords will take full advantage of the rent increases. The landlords that might forego the increases were those who now received between $100 and $150 a month for dwellings. The result would be increases for those who could least afford to pay. Some landlords deserved increases, but that didn't warrant uniform increases across the board.

Mr. Thatcher said he believed the government once again had sacrificed the general well-being of the people to meet the demands of a select group—property owners. He felt a five-per-cent increase would have been sufficient.

Mr. Church said the government's action was too hasty and would lead to untold hardship. What was needed was an overall housing program that would provide the people with the type of accommodation they should have.

Mr. Courtemanche said nothing justified the rental increases. Reference of rents control to the courts would not ease the anxiety of tenants. The government had instituted rent controls. Its duty was to complete the job until the housing situation improved.

Urged to Reconsider

Mr. Balcer urged the government to reconsider its action. Families would have to cut into their food budgets to meet the increased rentals.

Mr. Belzile said Mr. Abbott was to be congratulated for acting as he had. The government had imposed controls in 1940. It had frozen rentals and taken rights away from the landlords. It took courage to act in that way.

It would give justice to landlords whose houses have been under control for nine years and would serve as an incentive for the construction of more houses for rent.

Mr. Cannot said the government could not be accused of playing politics. The government had taken a course which it knew to be unpopular but which it considered to be the right course.

Mr. Nowles said the government would not have taken the course before an election. If it had the government now would have a smaller majority in the commons.

Mr. Gillis suggested it was not unreasonable to urge a return to an excess profit tax to pay for a subsidized low-rental housing project. He said it had been estimated that such a project would cost about $120,000,000 a year.

Mr. Maclaula said the increases would affect Mr. Cannon; they won't effect Mr. Howard Hunt; parliament; nor would they affect anyone else making $6,000 a year. They would affect the people who could least afford it.

Mr. Noseworthy challenged any member from the Toronto area to say that he has a mandate from his constituency to support the increases.

MEETING TO DRAFT

The British and French sources said the Bonn government proposals were handed to Allied High Commissioners late Monday for study by British Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France.

French sources indicated France might be willing to forgo additional reparations by dismantling plants from Germany in return for security guarantees and other concessions. German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, in a move for closer Franco-German reconciliation, is reported to have offered security guarantees including Germany's acceptance of an international authority over the mines and mills of the Ruhr industrial stronghold. He also is reported to have offered co-operation with the inter-Allied military security office set-up to guard against the rearmament of Germany.

A high British spokesman said Britain might be willing to end the dismantling program but he emphasized that war potential plants such as those producing synthetic rubber would have to remain on the dismantling list as one of the so-called forbidden industries.

DEMOCRAT WINS

Harue Stepping Aside

Hague announced he is "stepping aside". At 73, he said, he has reached an age when it is impossible to "carry on the arduous duties" of the Democratic leadership.

Boston voters tossed out the last old-time boss still in office in the United States when they refused a fifth term to Democratic mayor James M. Curley. They picked another Democrat, city clerk John H. Hynes.

Hynes was temporary mayor in 1947 while Curley did a five months' stretch in a federal penitentiary after being convicted of mail fraud.

Of particular pleasure to Democratic leaders for clues to 1950 prospects was the fact that Democrats romped to victory in many a statewide and municipal election. In 1948, And New York State once again is back in the Democratic fold. President Truman lost it to the Republicans last year in their presidential elections.

Actually, whatever push Truman's "fair deal" program gets out of Tuesday's balloting will be mostly psychological. The Democrats got no big numerical reinforcements to Congress.

They did win all the Congressional seats at stake, but those numbered only three.

Extra Hand in Senate

Lehman's victory gives them an extra hand in the Senate. But at the start of the new session, the Senate line-up probably will be just what it was after the 1948 election: 53 Democrats, 43 Republicans.

And in the House of Representatives it will be 263 Democrats, 170 Republicans, one Democrat-Liberal, one American-Labor, one vacancy.

New York City itself gave Mayor William O'Dwyer an easy win in his bid for a second term. He licked Communist-supported representative Vito Marcantonio, the American-Labor candidate who ran a poor third, and Newbold Morris, the Republican-Liberal-Fusion booster.

But such New York State cities as Glen Falls, Lockport and Ogdensburg booted out Democratic mayors for Republican candidates. And Buffalo held a Republican mayor, former United States representative Joseph Mruk.

Virginia ran off the only other governorship race outside New Jersey awarded to form. Democratic State Senator John S. Battle swamped Republican Walter Johnson as expected.

Rift Reported Between Skater And Promotor

Edmonton, Nov. 9 (CP)—T. A. Shandro of Edmonton, agent for Tommy Gorman, promoter of "Skating Sensations 1950" starring Barbara Ann Scott, said Monday there is a rift between Gorman and Barbara Ann's mother.

Shandro made the statement in an advertised personal appearance which Miss Scott failed to make an advertised personal appearance at a downtown department store.

He charged that Mrs. Clyde Scott cancelled plans for a personal appearance after she and Miss Scott arrived in Edmonton.

Miss Scott told a reporter that the appearance, at which she was to autograph dolls, had been cancelled on orders of a Calgary doctor.

She said the orders were given because she cracked a rib during the course of her tour with the skating show.

Shandro told The Canadian Press "there is a definite rift in the organization, with Mrs Scott and Mr. Gorman differing on whether Miss Scott should make any personal appearances."

Rotation Among Commandants Says Claxton

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (CP)—Rotation among the three services of commandants is planned at the joint defence colleges at Royal Military Roads, B.C., Defence Minister Claxton told the Senate Tuesday night.

Sponsoring a bill to "Canadianize" and unify legislation for the three forces, Mr. Claxton was asked by Senator W. Rupert Davies (L—Ontario) regarding one section of the bill.

Senator Davies noted that R.M.C. now was a college for the three services and asked what the policy was regarding appointment of a commandant and whether it would alternate.

Mr. Claxton replied.

"Yes, it will alternate amongst the three services. The present co-mandant of Royal Military College at Kingston is Brigadier Agnew. He will be replaced at the end of his term by a non-service, subject to my approval, from one of the other services.

"Royal Roads is built up on exactly the same basis as the Royal Military College at Kingston. There, we have for the first time an air force officer, group Capt. Millward, replacing the navy officer, Capt. Rayner, on the rotation system.

Our hope is that with our cadets going through these two service colleges, living and working together, having attached the safe entrance requirements and doing the same training, during the academic terms, that they will get to know each other on a first-name basis, and that they will remain on speaking terms when they become admirals, air marshals and generals."

Town Council Names Officers For Election

Picton, Nov. 9.—Officials for the forthcoming municipal election were appointed by town council Tuesday night. Deputy returning officers are Mrs. D. Young, Frank Morden, Sam Hollingsworth, Miss Naomi MacDonald, Elmer Young, Emerson Mason, Morley Breakenridge, Clerks are Peter Hunt, Aileen Hogan, Edna Jones, R. A. Anderson, Mrs. K. Rose, Mrs. W. Jones, Mrs. Barton Reid.

Berry, director of the Sanitary Engineering Division of the Ontario Department of Health, which offered suggestions in regards to the operation of the present dump and keeping a ditch open in the marsh. Unless this is done, the report stated a new site for the dump should be found.

The Police Commission requested that proper traffic tickets to comply with the parking bylaw be prepared. Council ordered this done.

Pension Plan Tabled

A pension plan for the police force was tabled. It would give an annual cost to the town for future service of $245, plus an immediate cash cost of $1,026. It is demand of the provincial government that pensions be established for the police force members, in order to qualify for the provincial rebate of 25 per cent of the total cost of police protection. This was laid over for future consideration.

IT'S AN ENDLESS BATTLE AGAINST ICEBERGS

A cold war that is really cold is that waged endlessly by the iceberg hunters. Icebergs are as dangerous to shipping as if they were enemy submarines, and men of the U. S. Coast Guard keep track of bergs that break away from the fjords and bays of Greenland to drift southward sometimes for nearly 2,000 miles before they melt. Throughout this big drift, they are a menace to shipping. At right you see one of the cameramen adjusting his camera as he looks down from an airplane over the home of the icebergs. Left, thousands of recently "calved" bergs starting their big drift towards the North Atlantic. They may look small to you, but some of them are as large as a city block. The Coast Guard keeps track of them and warns ships of their route. — Central Press Canadian.

Jail 32 Czechs In Alleged Spy Ring Drive

Prague, Nov. 9 (AP). — The communist government's campaign against alleged spy rings continued today with the jailing of 32 Czechs, two of them former members of parliament. A third former deputy, now exiled in western Germany, was denounced as the leader of the ring.

The Czechoslovak government said the arrested men were linked with a "western imperialist power" which was presumed to be the United States.

The two deputies in jail were Karel Folla and Jan Bendlik. The exiled deputy was Dr. Michael Zibrin.

All three were former members of the Slovak democratic party which has been outlawed. They were accused of using American cigarets to bribe Czech refugees in German D.P. camps to spy against Czechoslovakia.

Donald Duck, 12-Year Boy, Saves 5 Lives

Weston, Nov. 8 (CP).—Donald Duck was the hero of a fire that destroyed a five-room bungalow in this Toronto suburb early today.

The 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Duck woke up to find the house afire. He roused his family and carried out a younger brother and sister while his parents led their two other children to safety before the flames swept the building.

Lost in the blaze was a watch depicting Donald's Hollywood namesake, presented to him when he extinguished a grass fire in Weston last summer.

CONSERVATIVES

"I hope that we learned certain lessons and from those lessons we will strengthen the activities of the party, but only to bring about a victory of the Progressive Conservatives members of the legislature at the convention backed Mr. MacKenzie. The rank and file of the 900 delegates appeared about evenly divided.

George Drew, national leader of the party, told the gathering that he accepted full responsibility for the party's defeat in the federal election last June. He added:

"I hope that we learned certain lessons and those lessons we will strengthen the activities of the party, not only to bring about a victory of the Progressive Conservatives but in order that we will be better fitted to carry into government those essential things we believe are best for the country."

Spoke on Gifts Act

Premier Frost spoke of the Ontario Charitable Gifts Act, passed at the last session of the legislature. It requires charitable foundations, such as the Atkinson Foundation which owns the Toronto Daily Star and Star Weekly, to dispose of all but 10 per cent of their interest in any business within seven years.

"The act is very simple," the premier said. "It just lifts the iron curtain and lets people see what is done with the money to which they have given tax exemption."

Changes in the Ontario Educational system, announced last week, were endorsed by the convention. They provide for a grade grouping system to overcome the break between elementary and secondary school education and for abolition of high school entrance examinations.

HAY FEVER INDEX

vised hay fever sufferers to steer clear of areas with an index of more than 10 per cent, prefer those with an index of less than five and described as "excellent" areas with an index of less than one.

The booklet, entitled "Holiday from Hay Fever," listed these as some of the Canadian indexes:

Winnipeg, eight; Brandon, five; Mordon, 12; The Pas, Man., .05; Hamilton, 64; Kenora 10; Ottawa 11; Toronto 23; Port Arthur seven; Cochrane 2. Montreal 30; Quebec three; Gaspe, one; Matapedia, 0.6. Windsor had the worst listed index at 66.

J. R. Menzies, chief of the Public Health Engineering Division, said the Federal Health Department has not taken an active interest in hay fever, feeling that it is a local matter. However, the department would be glad to assist any community in a campaign to eradicate ragweed, goldenrod or anything else contributing to hay fever.

WAY IS CLEARED FOR CONFERENCE OF ALL PROVINCES

Ten Premiers Will Confer With Federal Govt. on Urgent Matters

Ottawa, Nov. 9 — (CP)—The way has been cleared for the important Dominion - Provincial Constitutional Conference to be held here next Jan. 18.

Canada's provincial premiers have agreed to attend the historic meeting.

They will confer with the government on ways to amend Canada's constitution on matters which have a direct relationship to the provinces.

His proposal that parliament immediately obtain this amending power in matters of federal jurisdiction only is making progress.

The resolution taking the United Kingdom Parliament to transfer the amending power in respect to federal matters already has hurdled the Commons and now is under debate in the Senate.

The Dominion - Provincial conference, first since 1935 to deal with the constitution, will face some sticky problems.

Provincial premiers, besides discussing means of amending the Constitution, on provincial matters, also will consider subjects over which the federal administration and the provinces share jurisdiction.

Property and civil rights and schools are matters within the prerogatives of the provinces.

Chicago, Nov. 9. (AP)—John L. Lewis told his 380,000 striking soft coal diggers today to go back to work until Nov. 30, pending further efforts to reach a contract agreement in the industry.

The back to work order came immediately after a meeting of the U.M.W.'s contract which expired July 1, this year.

The back to work order was the most sweeping reversal of the union's traditional "no contract no work" policy to date. The first step in that direction was taken last Summer when the miners were permitted to work three days a week after expiration of their contract.

ROMULO APPEALS FOR SHORT-TERM ATOMIC ARMISTICE

Views the Proposals As Old Stuff, Vague

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 8— (CP)—United Nations Assembly President Carlos P. Romulo announced today he has appealed to the big five and Canada to consider a short-term atomic armistice, a ban on use of atomic bombs, and a new start on the problem of atomic control.

Romulo so far has not received official answers from the six governments but observers in delegate were reported to view the proposals as old stuff and vague.

His plea was published as the United States prepared to tangle with the Soviet Union on the atomic issue in the Assembly's special political committee.

"Mankind is not prepared to accept a deadlock on a matter so serious to the future of the whole world," Romulo said in his appeal to Canada, the United States, Russia, Britain, France and China.

The effort must be made to explore even the remotest of an effective agreement."

For three years the U.N. has been deadlocked over atomic energy control. The majority of the U.N. members have approved the U.S.-backed plan for strict international supervision of all phases of atomic weapons, including the right to send inspectors into all countries without limitation to see that control rules are not being violated.

Baited at Inspection

Russia has balked at unlimited inspection as a violation of national sovereignty. Instead she has proposed that the atomic bomb be outlawed immediately and suggested an unspecified form of international control which presumably would permit the Soviet Union to veto inspection rights when she wishes.

Romulo and many other delegates at the assembly feel that the present session, still scheduled to end Dec. 10, must come up with some sort of solution to the atomic crisis.

They are said to feel that the disclosure that the Soviet Union has the atomic weapon puts a new urgency on the whole issue and that every method must be explored.

Jakob A. Malik, Russian Deputy Foreign Minister, told the special political committee Tuesday that many countries now have the secret of the atomic bomb.

CIVILIAN AGENCY HAS AIR CONTROL OF ALL AIRPLANES

Control Taken Over As Safety Measure

Washington, Nov. 9 — (AP)— A civilian United States government agency today took over air control of military planes as a safety measure, hard on the heels of an airline pilot's report that he had almost collided with a B-29 bomber over National Airport here.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration announced the new safety move Tuesday night, a short time after disclosure of the near-collision between an Eastern Airlines Constellation and an instrument-flying air force plane. The airliner was carrying 54 persons on a flight to Miami.

The C. A. A. did not relate its announcement to the airliner - bomber incident. It said the new regulation resulted from a series of air safety discussions with U. S. Air Force and Navy officials which started several weeks ago.

There has been heavy pressure on civilian and military aviation authorities to take new measures toward greater safety in the air — particularly against air-to-air collisions, in the last 14 months, all fatalities suffered by passengers on U. S. airlines have resulted from aerial collisions.

Disastrous Crash

National Airport was the scene of a disastrous crash last Tuesday, involving an Eastern Airlines DC-4 and a Bolivian P-38 fighter, in which 55 persons lost their lives.

In its statement last night, the C. A. A. said the new move, effective today, applies to fair weather a procedure previously restricted to bad days.

Henceforward, Air Force and navy planes have been able to fly along civil airways in clear weather without the knowledge or approval of the civil agency, although they came under its jurisdiction when ceilings were low or visibility poor.

The narrow escape reported by Eastern Airlines Capt. J. H. Richardson occurred in daylight after he took off Tuesday for Atlanta, Ga. He said he was flying with his wheels down, 'almost ran into me' at an altitude of 2,500 feet.

U.S. Steel Corporation To Join Peace Meeting With Striking Workers

Pittsburgh, Nov. 9 (AP)—The giant United States Steel Corporation is going to join the peace meetings with its striking United Steelworkers (C.I.O.).

A spokesman disclosed today "a meeting probably will be arranged with the union tomorrow." He said there could be no elaboration on that statement.

A peace offer has been reported under preparation by the industry leader which spearheaded the fight against steelworker demands for free insurance and pensions.

U. S. Steel is the only major prod cer among the top four which has held out against strike demands. Bethlehem, Jones and Laughlin and Republic signed.

The parade of steel company officials into steelworker headquarters moved on today with Youngstown Sheet and Tube officials conferring with Union President Philip Murray.

If part procedure hold true, the session may mean another strike settlement.

Youngstown Sheet and Tube is the sixth-largest steel producer in the United States and has 21,000 production workers. It made a pension-insurance proposal which 'is to be considered in Murray's panelled office. Details of the peace plan were not disclosed.

Bethlehem Steel Company, Republic Steel Corporation and Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation—second, third and fourth in U.S. steelmaking capacity—already have signed up after similar sessions with Murray.

Those settlements sent 193,000 workers—129,000 of them strikers —back to work and left 238,000 unionists still on strike in the 40-day walkout for free insurance and pensions.

All peace pacts signed provide for company-financed pension programs with minimum monthly payments of $100, including social security, to workers aged 65 who have 25 years of service. The insurance programs vary slightly from the Bethlehem formula of a five-cent-an-hour plan in which costs are divided equally between company and employees.

Regional union officials are scheduled to confer with Murray soon on the status of negotiations with the Pittsburgh Matter Company. Those talks cover iron ore miners in upper Great Lakes states.

Attack Proposed School Changes As 'Retrograding'

Kitchener, Nov. 8 — (CP) — C. H. Harding, a member of the Kitchener - Waterloo Collegiate Board, today carried his changes planned in the Ontario high school system a "retrograding step" at a meeting of the board Tuesday night.

Mrs. F. J. McGarry, another board member, saw possible danger in a pupil having the same teacher for three years. In the case of a "weak" teacher much harm could result, she said.

Principal W. T. Ziegler could see no advantage in accelerating students beyond their age group. Children entering high school "before their time" often lacked maturity and are unable to play a full part in social and athletic activities.

Rent Increases Not Allowed To be Pyramided

Finance Minister Clarifies Rental Boost to Commons

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (CP)—The effect of the new boost in rents means that since controls were introduced in 1941 landlords are au'orized to increase rents by 30 and 40 per cent for unheated and heated accommodation, respectively, a government spokesman said today. In addition many landlords have been given other increases in specific cases.

The 20 and 25 per cent increases, effective Dec. 15, announced last Thursday by Finance Minister Abbott, will not be calculated on rent levels which resulted from the general 10 and 15 per cent hike last year.

However, they will be over and above increases granted landlords for renovation, tax jumps and other local adjustments.

Regulations bringing the new increases into force likely will be made public tomorrow by Canada's Rental Administrator.

The spokesman made this explanation:

1. The rental increases of 20 and 25 per cent will not be calculated on rents which resulted from the 10 and 15 per cent boost in November, 1948.

2. If there have been no other local boosts allowed the landlords since that time, the new hikes will mean a general increase of 30 and 40 per cent on rentals paid just previous to the general rise allowed a year ago.

Local Tax Increases

3. However, in many towns and cities landlords have been authorized to charges higher rents because of local tax hikes, renovations, improvements in property and because the previous rent charged was lower than the general scale prevailing in the neighborhood. The new hikes will be a top of these authorized increases.

The spokesman gave this case as an example:

A tenant moved into a heated house when the rents were frozen in 1940. He then was paying $10 a month. Because the city taxes were increased sharply, the landlord was authorized to boost the rent five per cent. Before the 1948 general increase, the tenant was paying $105 a month.

The 1948 general hikes allowed the landlord to charge that extra 15 per cent, bringing the rent to $120.75 a month.

In Force Next Month

The new boosts go into effect next month—25 per cent for heated houses, apartments and other self-contained dwellings and 20 per cent for 15 per cent previously allowed making for a total general increase of 40 per cent on the rent paid just prior to the 1948 hike.

In other words, the tenant will be paying $147 a month rent for the house which he was paying $100 at the beginning of controls.

Mr. Abbott's announcement Tuesday night that the increases effective Dec. 15 "will make a total of general increases over that permitted since November, 1941—a period of nearly years — of 40 per cent for upheated accommodation and 40 per cent for heated accommodation."

"While the present increases of 20 per cent and 25 per cent are in addition to the previous increase of 10 per cent and 15 per cent, the government has never intended to apply the one percentage increase to the other, which would of course, have resulted in more than 40 per cent general increase of 30 per cent and 40 per cent.

Not Cumulative"

"In other words, the increases are not cumulative."

This policy of not allowing the "general" increases to pyramid was not contained in Mr. Abbott's rentals announcement in the Commons last Thursday, dictating the 20 and 25 per cent boosts.

New York, Nov. 9 — (AP) — Major steel price increases "are a definite possibility for early 1950 unless demand prices to pieces," the Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, says today.

The publication reports strikes idled more than 10,000,000 tons of steel production means a shortage this year that will carry into next summer.

The compensation deal has come back and the threat of gray markets looms again," it comments. But the Iron Age thinks chances are good that major price increases will be pushed this year. Noting the 1950 possibilities, it says:

"If labor costs of the smaller steel firms are raised by strike settlements some individual price increases are certain."

The industry's August operating rate was placed this week at 72 per cent of capacity compared with last week's revised rate of 12.3 per cent.

PLAN TO RELAX RENT CONTROLS STIRS CAMPAIGN

Made an Issue in Last Minute Speeches Before Campaign Closes

Winnipeg, Nov. 9 — (CP) — The Dominion government's plan to relax rent controls has injected a spark of life into the torpid campaign for tomorrow's provincial election.

The announcement that the Dominion will vacate certain control fields faced Premier D. L. Campbell in coalition, seeking re-election, with the problem of whether or not it would take over the vacated field. First reaction was that the government was "loath" to step in until convinced the step was "in the public interest."

However, it was announced today that a "study" would be launched to find "the soundest and most effective course for this province to follow."

The C.C.F., official opposition in the Legislature, pounced on the issue for all it was worth.

Donovan Swailing, local Winnipeg Centre candidate, ridiculed the idea that the government would act.

"They'll study it and do nothing about it," he said.

Wants Legislation Rescinded

A. Campbell, provincial C.C.F. leader, called for provincial government pressure to have the permitted increase rescinded; provincial measures to stop soaring rents if pressure fails; and legislation to allow the province to institute rent controls if the federal government abolishes them.

The brisk conduct of the dying moments of the campaign was in marked contrast to the rest of it. The main issue until then was simply whether coalition, formed in 1940, should continue. Premier Campbell extolled the government's financial record and sound administration.

The C.C.F. said the union was merely a camouflage for Liberal-Progressives and Progressive Conservatives in office.

The C.C.F. campaign was not too hopeful. At the close of nominations Mr. Hazlett conceded a coalition victory was certain. There were 51 coalition candidates running, and Winnipeg South was the only coalition candidates for four seats.

With voting in far-north Rupert's Landing delayed for 14, only 41 seats in the 57-member legislature are at stake.

Premier Campbell's Liberal-Progressive party put up 44 candidates, his Progressive Conservative partners 16. Other candidates representing coalition swell the total to 53.

Opposition candidates total 63. 29 of whom are C.C.F.

In the last session before redistribution, there were two seats to the then 55-member legislature, coalition had 36 supporters. They were: Liberal-Progressive 25; Progressive Conservative 8; Social Credit 2, and Independent 1. The opposition lined up: C.C.F. 8; Independent 4; Independent Progressive Conservative 2; Independent Liberal 1, and Labor-Progressive party 1. Three seats were vacant.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

Twice each day the postman went past the balding beach and regretfully signalled with empty and enormous hands in response to the swimmers' instinctive expectant eyes. Three or four times daily, little Miss Mary was sent running to the post office and withdrawn for whole quarters of an hour from his duties with the wet towels. Sadly from afar he raised his small grubby paws. "There's nothing, Herr Doctor!" Martin hurried himself to the post office when even o'clock for there was post that arrived at 8.25, and at night before meeting May he hastened there again. "Nothing, I'm afraid," said the girl at the post office, as she gave him a look of yearning sympathy. Martin pretended to make light of it, and whistled as he went in his white trousers to join the evening concourse down below on the promenade.

Yes, Martin now possessed a pair of white trousers. That was the latest. They were the symbol of his love, for he could hardly walk day by day and evening by evening by the side of the magnificent and smartest girl in Franzensee wearing the baggy and rather too short blue trousers of his navy good suit, while those other cousins and Bobbys and other fine fellows passed by in all the splendor of white flannels. So Martin had taken his courage and nine achingly eighty groschen in his hand and bought a pair of white linen trousers that could be washed by the hundredweek. Mary, also, with all the bathing towels.

He had had his hair cut. A corner of his pocket handker hief peeped out correctly from the pocket of his blue coat. If the fine weather continued and also thirun of his swimsuit. Perhaps Martin purposed to ruin himse.f completely by the purchase of a pair of tennis shoes. At present he could only mutter vague and confused excuses when May asked him to make up a four at tennis after his hours of duty. He would rather bite off his tongue, he thought to himself, than tell her how poor he was. For the moment he pretended to the girl he loved that he gave serious attention merely for the fun of the thing. And May, good-hearted and sensible behind her worldly manner, was tactful enough to let the fiction pass.

"I believe he's frightfully poor," she said to Carla one evening. She was brushing her short hair until each separate hair became a silky thread of gold. "He's poorer than we can possibly imagine. That's why I respect him so much. I admire him for it, don't you?"

Carla—her mouth foaming with tooth-paste—stood in her pajamas by the doorway between the two rooms and gave a somewhat unintelligible assent.

"You see," May went on, twirling a transparent slipper on the tip of her toe, "he has no one but himself to rely upon. He hasn't a father who's a bank director, or an uncle in business, like all these Bobbys and Dr. Kleins and the rest of them. He is poor; there's something out of the ordinary. Have you discussed with him? Don't you think he dances marvelously?"

"Divinely. I should think he could have made lots of money as a professional. Why does he bother to teach clumsy girls how fat women to swim " Clara asked, sitting on the edge of May's bed.

"But how absurd! A profession-al dancer is nobody. What an idea! A professional dancer!"

"And is a swimming instructor anybody?" asked Clara spitefully.

"In my eyes, yes. It's a sport at least. And if the AUSTRIA Swimming Club has no objection to make—"

"But hasn't it? That's just the question."

"Well, he's swimming for them in Berlin on the fourth of September—the fifteen hundred metres, then. Don't look so surprised, me, Carla, please."

"I fuss you?" said Carla indignantly. She got up and went to the balcony. The lake lay dark and still below. "I fuss you? I've been playing goose for you the whole evening so that you and he could do what you liked, and now you say I fuss you? You appear for hours together while I have to function as May and next as Carla to prevent you noticing anything."

"Let him notice what he likes," May sad hesitatedly.

"Oh, well. He'll notice all right and then there'll be a pretty kettle of fish. You know what Tat's like when he gets his back up."

"Why should he? Tat ought to congratulate himself on my good taste. Tat began in a small way himself in his time, and he is always preaching about modesty and standing on one's own feet. But now he's putting on airs since this count Czerny has taken him up."

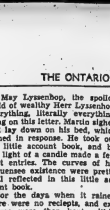
"I wonder if it is the count or the countess? I notice there is never room for us in the car since he began taking the count and countess about. But in any case as you're not going to marry the swimming instructor, what does it matter to Tat whether he's rich or poor?"

"Indeed I am going to marry him," said May, and she nodded her head in confirmation. "Of course I am going to marry him. Can you suggest anyone better? When he comes along in his shabby suit and cheap shoes he looks like a prince just the same, compared with the rest of them. He's an engineer, too. Tat can take him into the works if they want a capable man. I shall be earning something, too, when I do all the English correspondence for Tat. A big establishment is quite out of place nowadays. Five rooms are all we shall want. Then if we had a small car and a boat on the Wannsee, I should be perfectly contented. I don't mind if we are very poor."

"But is he a capable man, May?" said Carla. "I think so. He is always talking of an invention he has made. He hasn't told me what it is. He's waiting for a letter. He's in a terrible state of nerves about it sometimes. I don't know what there's much in it. I imagine he is showing off a bit, making himself out more than he is for my benefit. But he is capable for all that. And I shall certainly marry him. So that's that!"

Carla stroked the cool bedclothes reflectively, and her eyes darkened.

"Yes, that's that," she said. "You marry him, and I am left with



REFUSES TO DIE

Bobby, or someone else like him. You're an egoist, May, that's what you are. So long as it was only me you let me have everything but now for the first time a man turns up whom we take seriously and who really is a man, and you simply take him without a word. Take care that Tat doesn't see anything', you say, and clear off. 'I am going to marry him'. You say, 'and that's that.' And what about me?" she repeated softly. "And what about me?"

May took Carla's bowed head between her hands. Then they looked at each other. It was no longer a game, they just looked at each other.

"Carla," she said, after a brief pause. "That's what the trouble is. I didn't know that you too—I think it quite natural. We always fall in love with the same man, only, you see, Carla darling, this time it's no good trying to go shares. We have no say in the matter, it's he who makes the distinction between us, and it's me he wants. That's the lovely thing about it. It isn't that I wouldn't help you if I could. The right man will come along for you too, if you only wait. It mustn't be Bobby, of course, though Bobby has his points."

This was how the twins talked to each other at nights before going to bed. Meanwhile Martin, in heart full of love, wandered to and fro beneath the balcony as long as the yellow light shone through the curtains, and then, overwhelmed by emotion, turned into his hotel and to Number 36—the free quarters that Herr Birndl had placed at his disposal. He usually bumped his head in the doorway. And he thanked God that even the interior was too low to accommodate his height. Inside there was a camp bed, a table, and a chair. A row of pegs was all he had for his clothes.

A jug of milk was on the table, and a dish of fruit that filled the whole room with the scent of summer. In one corner lived a large spider and Martin looked at it every evening with renewed joy. "A spider in the night brings joy and delight," he thought of the proverb, for he had become very superstitious of late. That came of waiting day after day for a letter that never arrived.

It had always been a matter of importance, of more importance than ever when sit was at stake, when it meant the winning of May Lyssenhop, the spoiled child of wealthy Herr Lyssenhop, everything, literally everything, hung on this letter. Martin sighed and lay down on his bed, which sighed in response. He took out his little account book, and by the light of a candle made a few neat entries. The curves of the Frauensee existence were pretty well reflected in this little account book.

For the days when it rained there were no reciepts, and expenses were then kept within the strictest limits. Martin found entries such as: half a liter of milks a day, 20 pfennigs each. Then for two days there were neither receipts or expenses. Advance of-one schilling from Herr Birndl. Supper at the Schweinschacke—slightly grosches—followed upon this, as an admission of intolerable hunger. A cross stood for a visit to the Dobbers-bergs and a meal for nothing. Then came the days of fine weather with reciepts of four shillings twenty groschen and five schillings forty groschen. The day of twenty-three lessons was the highest so far. Six Schillings ninety was entered under that date, and opposite as expenses: Tea room with May: three schillings twenty.

At this point, after the evening at the tea room that ended with the invitation to the Zirkleitalein—an evening suffused with moonlight and love—signs of agitation entered into Martin's columns of figures. Four days without dinner were set off against the white trousers. In a space set apart were specified certain economies that would serve for the purchase of the tennis shoes. The Dobbersberg crosses became rare, and the suppers at the Schweinscacket were omitted even on the meal when May was waiting for him along the terrace by the lake. On these occasions he merely put a piece of chocolate in his pocket to gnaw at when hunger became too clamorous. Being a swimming instructor was indeed a hungry profession. Even the laboratory when the atmosphere was thick with chloride did not give so keen an appetite as the Frauensee air.

Ask Produce Price Level be Set To Soil Need Not be 'Mined'

Toronto, Nov. 2. (CP)— The Ontario Federation of Agriculture suggested in a brief submitted today to the Provincial Legislature's select committee on conservation that consumers are "filling a noose about their own necks" with demands for cheap food.

The 2,000-word brief, read by R. W. Morrison, Federation president from suburban Long Branch, asked the government to set a price level for farm products that will make it unnecessary for farmers to mine their soil.

"Mined soil" may in the future produce only enough food to support the farmer and his family, not enough to send surplus products for the urban consumer market, the federation said.

It recommended that "most, if not all, soil research should be carried on at the Ontario Agricultural college at Guelph, and suggested that the O.A.C. be established as an independent university administered by an independent board of governors instead of by the Ontario Department of Agriculture."

The brief also recommended inclusion of studies on conservation in the curricula of primary and secondary schools.

The brief asked the government to continue its conservation research and experimental program. It described soil conservation as of "greater importance to urban farmers" whose surplus made "life in the city possible."

"Plant food in our soil may well be likened to a bank account," the brief said. "If the constant urban demand for cheap food results in undue lowering of farm prices below cost of production, then the farmer has no alternative but to mine his soil and obtain but scanty doses when demand and get 'cheap' food are fitting a noose about their own necks."

PLANS TO RETIRE

Hugh D. Scully, Canadian Consul General at New York since 1945, will retire at the end of the year. He was the first to hold this post and was appointed after a long career in government service. He will be replaced by Kenneth A. Greene, former Canadian High Commissioner to Australia. —(CP Photo.)

FRANKFORD

Frankford—Frankford Lions Club sponsored an evening of entertainment and fun for the kiddies of the village Hallowe'en night, which will undoubtedly prove to be an annual event. Boys and girls under fourteen years of age, paraded from the school ground, down Adelaide Street, along North Trent Street and up Mill Street to the community-memorial hall. In the hall a grand parade was held to judge costumes. This proved a most difficult task, as they were all good. A free picture show was put on fo the entertainment of all present. Each member of the Lions Club donated a can of fruit or vegetables, and these were raffled to adult members present to defray expenses. A shell-out was then held for the children. The evening proved an awe,whelming success, and the Lions Club is to be congratulated on a job well done.

Hallowe'en Pranks Few

Hallowe'en pranks were few this year in Frankford, and damage light. Perhaps most inconvenience caused by pranksters, was the despoiling of a government owned building in the Trent Canal. The building drifted some distance up the canal, and had to be taken in tow by members of the Canal Department in charge.

Considerable damage was done to playground equipment in the Frankford Memorial Park by pre-Hallowe'en pranksters. Slides were broken, and boards torn off the park fence, and the railing of the community-hall fire escape was broken. Damage occurred over the weekend, and has been received that the identity of the guilty persons is known, and if so, it is hoped that suitable action will be taken, so that a recurrence of this will never happen again. The Moose Lodge and the Frankford Lions Club spent considerable money in bringing this equipment to the boys and girls of the village, and to mention the many hours of work in raising funds, and setting up the equipment.

The Moose Lodge Hallowe'en dance held in the Community-Memorial hall Friday evening was a very successful event. A large crowd turned out in costume to take part in a most enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Cox visited the Reverend and Mrs. N. H. Lackey in Claremont Sunday.

The Mission Band of the Frankford United Church, held their regular meeting in Rose-Lowery hall Tuesday afternoon.

The Young Peoples' Union of the United Church held a Hallowe'en party in the Rose-Lowery hall Monday evening, with members of the Trenton Union group for the evening. The hall was gaily decorated with Hallowe'en figures. Costumes of every description, both fancy and comic were worn by all. An evening of fun and recreation was enjoyed, followed by delicious refreshments.

Frankford Lions Club held their bi-monthly meeting in the Community-Memorial hall Wednesday night, with a good attendance. Following a fine banquet, and period of community singing, the guest speaker was introduced. Mr. Benarige gave a most interesting and informative talk on the conditions and customs of present-day India, his native land. He was warmly applauded at the conclusion of his talk.

Tuckerman, president of the National Horse Show; Lieut.-Col. Frederick A. Aherne, Irish team captain, and Col. Erazmo Quezada, head of the Chilean Carabineros team. Major Baker placed third in the jumping events, won by the Irish team.—Central Press Canadian.

Tuesday's Past Spans Long Era

The English names for the first two days of the week, Sunday and Monday, dispose of themselves, Rodney Gilbert writes in the Christian Science Monitor. Tuesday (Tiwesdaeg), as the equivalent of the Roman Mars' Day, is not so easily dismissed, however.

Though the nominative of this god's name does not occur in Anglo-Saxon, and may have been spelled Tiw or Tiu, the latter certainly gives the pronunciation, for this is the same god who was known to the Greeks as Zeus, to the Romans as Diu-piter (later Jupiter; and Diana was colloquially Jana, and meaning Father Diu), and the Sanskrit Dyn, which means heaven.

Supreme Father

There can be little doubt that he was at one time the supreme father of the gods to all the scattered Indo-Europeans from the Atlantic to the Indus, although he is a very obscure figure in the relics of heathenism that were written many centuries after this third day was assigned to him. Yet we still pay deference to his original character by holding elections on Tuesdays.

How is that? Well, the supreme deity of all the wandering tribes was, of course, a god of war, since that was their principal occupation, but as god of the sword, he was also god of justice, for, at the assemblies of our savage forebears, such disputes as could not be compromised were fought out. So he was the god of assembly and of official business. When a day was assigned to him, it naturally became assembly day, and so election day. This was the unnatural for the Dutch to turn Dieus-dag into Ding's-day, or assembly day; and for the Germans to turn Ziustag, which had become Dienstag, into Dienstag; for Dienst in German means service, public service. But these assumptions are disputed.

Wednesday's Origin

Wednesday (Wodenesdaeg) is, of course, dedicated to the god who is much better known to us by his old Norse name of Odin than by his old English name of Woden. That the Romans and the primitive Germans agreed to give him the role of Mercury, a decidedly second-rate god, errant boy, patron of merchants and thieves, is confusing to students of Teutonic heathenism, because he later emerges as the father of the gods as well as of many of the royal lines of northern Europe, and the major figure in mythological literature. Yet the impression that one gets from old Norse literature is that he was more sorcerer than god, craftier than wife, and a playboy of rather low morals.

The essential element in his name, Wod, survived to be the same as the Vat in the Latin vates, meaning prophet, came down into medieval English as a word to describe madness or frenzied thinking. Among savage peoples the insane are always credited with second sight and painful efforts are made to interpret their ravings. Probably Odin originally had the rank among the gods as their mad forunteller and had not risen far above the rank when he was identified with Mercury.

Thor and Thursday

Thursday (Thunoresdaeg) is, of course, the day of the old Norse god Thor, the thunder-god, god of the weather, and so the god of husbandmen particularly. So he was a god held in love esteem by the men ruled by war and rapine and despised the lame tillers of the soil. He is not mentioned in any early Roman account of the gods of the Teutonic tribes on the warpath. Naturally not, they were living by loot, not by agriculture. Yet by common agreement he was made the equivalent of Jove, the supreme deity of the Romans. This was for the sole reason that Jove was the thunder-god, among his many other functions; so the Teutonic thunder-god naturally got his day.

Now Friday (Frigedaeg), the day of Freya according to the more familiar old Norse spelling, was and continues to be a natural translation of the day of Venus. The root of her name is in one word "friend"—the loving one.

And finally Saturday (Saetresdaeg), as the equivalent of the Latin "Saturn's" day, brings us to the point at which wise men, who dodge hopeless controversies, throw in their hands. The efforts of loyal Germans seeking to dig up a Teutonic Saturn, or something like him, remain unconvincing. It seems that there was no satisfactory equivalent and that those who cared to keep the Latin, like the Dutch and ourselves did so, while all the rest satisfied themselves with atrocious misspelling of Sabbath, and called the day Sunday-eve (Germen Sonnabend); or like all the old and modern Scandinavians, simply bathday.

Army Dentists Tend Huge Western Area

Calgary — (CP) — Twenty-thousand patients probably would please almost any dentist but when they are spread out over Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, British Columbia, the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, that's another story.

The Royal Canadian Dental Corps' No. 11 company here finds it has its hands full looking after all those teeth. It's the biggest dental company in the Canadian Army but No. 11 has to cover the biggest geographic area chasing cavities.

Besides the army personnel in these areas, No. 11 also handles dental work on the R.C.M.P. families of servicemen and thousands of Indians, Eskimos and civilians in the north.

There are 15 permanent stations and clinics in No. 11 Company's territory with the largest at the naval barracks in Esquimalt, B.C. There are two each in Edmonton and Winnipeg, one that alternates between Regina and Winnipeg and a clinic here. Smaller units are found at Rivers, Man., Churchill, Man., Fort Nelson, N.W.T., and Whitehorse, N.W.T.

Besides all these permanent posts, the company has mobile equipment that it seldom uses. But it is there in case it is needed.

The company handles every type of case from a simple filling or extraction — if that can be simple — to a broken jaw. The clinics can make the soldier a set of store teeth, repair his old ones, or fix up a case of trench mouth.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARTER, Sports Editor

Well, that was it. The District Hockey League's got away to a flying start last night in Memorial Arena and there was no fan came away dissatisfied. Dissapointed? Sure, but not a fan came away dissatisfied. Dissapointed? Sure, but the dissapointed ones, if you can really call them that, were the supporters of the Diesels and the Golden Tigers or 6 R. D. Actually these fellows and gals weren't dissapointed for they, like the rest of us were very definitely surprised to see the brand of hockey as was dished up in the inaugural matches of the loop.

As far as this corner is concerned and after a post-game survey we find that the majority of the hockey Joes and Janes agree with us. In our opinion, we found the ragged-rough a bit, perhaps type of hockey unpopular in the ban. Not that it should get out of all reason where players can be that it should get out of all reason where players can be checked but the type that does not call for a referee's whistle every time a player's stick is discobobolated, or every time a player's armament is disarranged, or his sideburns twisted out of place.

Last night, is definite contrast to a year ago, we, who have been in the member of the league executive could scarcely believe the reportorial cars. We heard, ye gods, and believe this or not, that the local hockey populace, plus team managers, coaches and players actually accepted that the referees did a good job. Okay, dear, don't push too many of those cold packs on my head). That is ACTUALLY what those cold packs on my head). That is ACTUALLY what those cold packs on my head). That is ACTUALLY what happened. And brothers, yes, and sisters of hockey fandom happened. And brothers, yes, and sisters of hockey fandom happened. And brothers, yes, and sisters of hockey fandom here, if say when you can point out a similar incident, we of here, if say when you can point out a similar incident, we of this department will buy you — well not a bottle of can de-this department will buy you — well not a bottle of can de-cologne. Whowi we can't believe that yet.

This is what happened. President Eddie Schreiber, vice president Don Lee, yours truly and representatives of the participating teams went into executive could scarcely believe the suggest body, that too much whistle - blowing was detrimental to good hockey, especially from the fans' point of view. After seeing last Friday's tussle between the Toronto Marlboro Juniors and our Rockets where poor murdered to Marlboro juniors and our Rockets where poor murdered to Marlboro juniors and our Rockets where poor murdered and mayhem was committed, the exec. decided that a modified form of this style would perhaps be of assistance to both players and officials of the Belleville District Hockey League.

So, the master-minds gave Referee-in-Chief "Speedy" St. Louis and his assistant Bill Holway, the green light. "Start listen, boys" was the official admonishment, "use your own judgment. There's a limit to everything and we know you can do it."

Nuff said. The officials last night, St. Louis and Holway did a grand job. They used their heads, their whistles and did a grand job. They used their heads, their whistles and their arms. Holway, especially was put on the spot when their arms. Holway, especially was put on the spot when Vern Goyer, incensed at a decision rushed out on the ice. He pushed Holway. We saw that. Bill immediately gave the He pushed Holway. We saw that. Bill immediately gave the big defenseman a ten minute misconduct. Holway was big defenseman a ten minute misconduct. Holway was right. And he could have done more. But the kid was under right. And he could have done more. But the kid was under fire on his opening night and he came through with flying colors.

However, the biggest surprise of the evening, and 1200 fans will agree, that the tussle, or rather bout between the Diesels and Northern Electric was a bit perhaps, somewhat one-sided. Diesels, overall, were a bit perhaps, somewhat one-sided. Diesels, overall, were a bit perhaps, somewhat one-sided. Diesels, overall, were

Rip-Roaring Rugged Hockey Greets Fans When Electrics, Flyers Win Opening Games

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

The thunderous acclaim of 1200 fans that quickened to a superlative brand of pre-season hockey ushered in the Belleville District Hockey League in Memorial Arena last night.

Surprised, amazed, and some more or less aghast, the inaugural throng was more or less swept off its feet by the rugged, rough but crowd-pleasing brand of the pastime served in the opening game.

Northern Electric and the Canadian National Railway Diesels, more or less took up the thread of tendons where it was broken in the finals last season, and staged a display of hockey that even the waterboys liked. They battled stubbornly for sixty minutes and the Electrics, chased close to the wire at times, emerged the victors on the long end of a 7-5 score.

The second tilt while not perhaps productive of the rugged, body-bashing type of pastime that the first game afforded, was indicative of the rivalry between the two air force entries, but the Flyers proved too strong for the Golden Tigers of 6 R. D. C. and won by a 4-1 score.

From the face-off it was apparent that Northern was not wasting any time. They surged through to the attack and scarcely a minute had flown before the first goal of the season was rung up by Don Barrett from a pass from Green. Diesels, stung by the sudden setback swept back on the offensive and Timmy Williams warmed the cockpit with a clise-in shot from Jerry Moher.

Play was hip and tuck, rough and rugged, with the fans on their feet as play swept from end to end. Then Mulvihill, one of the stars of the night, swept through with a picture goal that had the Diesel defence all fooled. That ended the scoring for the period.

Play was close in the second chukker with both defences sparing neither the boards nor the shoulders. The crowd thrilled as the play got a bit end to end, kept well in hand by Referee Speedy St. Louis and Bill Holway.

Midway through the period Nolan got the gate and Vern Goyer who spoke out of turn drew a ten minute misconduct from Referee Bill Holway. The Diesels however held the fort and were unable to get the crafty play of Peter Jones who went stand off Clare Williamson on a concerted rush and scored the only goal of the period to give Diesels a 5-1 lead.

The game went wide open in the third best with both sides going all out in a bitter rough and tumble style. Eight penalties were dished out in the third period with Williamson and Free drawing most of them.

Johnny Semark sparked by Mulvihill soared through to beat Lefcrf after two minutes of play but Diesels with Doug Free, Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams staged an effective rush with the former sinking the rubber.

Ten seconds later on the pretliest goal of the night Mulvihill broke away from a Diesels attack and cut it down the ice. His sidestepper the Diesels diedence and swept in on Lefort to score.

Diesels Take Offensive

Then Diesels took up the offensive. They bashed their way to the attack and scored two goals from Vern Goyer and Tommy Schreiber to bring the score to 4-3. The crowd was on edge. Diesels supporters sensed a rallying victory. Then the effective Peter Jones and his cousin Mulvihill struck a way. They raced in on the Diesel goal and Jones got the goal.

A minute later Vern Gyoer who played a fine game all night especially in the third period took a sweeping pass from Gerry Moher and made no mistake. From on it was a nip-and-tuck battle with both goals having narrow escapes. Then the old smoothie Peter Jones again partnering Mulvihill, rammed home his third goal of the evening to clinch the game.

Jones with three goals sparked the Diesels but Mulvihill stood out above all with his sparkling play and two goals and two assists. Vern Goyer also starred with three and two.

The "Flying Station" proved a trifle too good for their services "enemies" from 6 R.D. in the second game. While as we said before, this game was not productive of the hash-and-bang tactics of Northern and Diesels, both squads are potential threats to any titular aspirations the so-called stronger teams have.

The 6 R.D. replented in gold and red uniforms that more or less dazzled the audience produced a number of former Trenton players. Flyers, had a lot of the old faces back plus a flock of new ones that don't weaken the team.

From the face-off both squads goal-bent dashed on forays that ended with the defence. Both goailys McKenna and Keyes stood out as they thwarted close-in goal thrusts of opposing forwards. The game was fast and thrilling and supporters of both squads thrilled to the goal mouth escapes.

The first period ended scoreless and Referees St. Louis and Holway sent one to the sin bin.

Fyers Open Scoring

Flyers broke the scoring ice after two minutes of play in the second when Zaleske took Gordy Ault's pass from close in to beat McKenna. They surged up and down the ice and with the goailys again standing out they netted the scoring. Two penalties were dished out in this period by the officials one going to Gordy Ault and the other to Hughes.

Zaleske got his second goal of the night early in the second period on a pass from the old veteran Millar, Gagnon, a starry performer stepped home the third goal three minutes later and repeated on a pass from Jackson and Sargent midway through the period. With three minutes to go, Fillon scored a R.D.'s only marker when he raced in single-handed to beat Keyes. Five penalties were handed out during the game.

Teams Will Have Dry Field for Playoff Tussle

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Rough Riders and Montreal Alouettes take another step along the Grey Cup football trail today when they swarm out on a Montreal gridiron for the first game of their two-game total point series for the Big Four title.

Strangely enough, there wasn't a harsh word Monday night when officials of the two teams met after a week of bitter arguments over the time and venue of the games. The second struggle has been set for Ottawa Saturday.

The harsh word might yet come, from the weatherman. But that worthy, who may have a lot to say on the final outcome of the game, wasn't too definite. He predicted anything from clouds to snow-flurries for the daylight contest. Montreal field officials made their own prediction of a dry and fast ground-providing for the game.

Prophecies on the result of the game are about as flurry as the weather. But the wiseacres are giving the Riders—who have lost only once since game—and that to Alouettes—the nod at 2-1 to 5.

Riders reported that Joe Aguilni and Tony Golab were the only two regulars in the sidelines, but several others are nursing injuries. Included are Andy Gordon, Pete Karpuk, Ralph Bartolini, Alex Saunders, Johnny Dezgel and Benny McDonnell.

Ala In Top Shape

Alouettes, who went through a light workout Tuesday, also reported in top shape with no injuries.

Even though Delorimier Stadium can hold 22,000, Alouettes official said they expect no more than 12,000 as the game because a lot of fans couldn't be absent from work.

Meanwhile, Hamilton Tigers buckled down to a strenuous pass defense practices in preparation for their Ontario union final series against Sarnia Imperials Friday and Saturday.

Hamilton quarterback Tommy Waldon was back in the pivot spot after a long layoff with a knee injury. Stan Wolkowski, who has led the Tigers to their last two victories with a terrific passing display, is suffering an arm injury but hopes to be in the lineup by game time.

On the other side Manager Tops Pearce of the Imperials says:

"I'm confident of our chances against the Tigers. We'll play football."

Out West, Saskatchewan Rough riders have only one major casualty as they prepare for the second and final game Friday against Calgary Stampeders. The Stamps led the Western Interprovincial Union total point series 18-12.

Burt Shotton Named Manager Of the Dodgers

Brooklyn, Nov. 9. —(AP) — Brooklyn Dodgers are going all out for the one man they believe will help them win not only the 1950 National League pennant but the World Series as well. The man is southpaw pitcher Ken Raffensberger of Cincinnati Reds.

The hint that the Dodgers are hot after a "good, reliable" veteran pitcher, with no names mentioned, was dropped at a press conference conducted by President Branch Rickey Tuesday.

The conference was called to announce that 65-year-old Burt Shotton would be back as manager of the Dodgers next year.

Neither Rickey nor Shotton would come right out and say so but it was learned that Raffensberger is the pitcher both are eyeing.

"I think there might be a chance of getting the pitcher we're after before the season opens next April," Rickey said. He didn't identify players offered in exchange. At the same time he did not deny that the names of Catcher Bruce Edwards, Infielder Eddie Miksis and outfielder Luis Olmo and Tommy Brown were mentioned as possible bait.

"I think the club is good enough to win the pennant as it stands right now," Shotton said. "However, we're after the World Series. We have lots of good kid pitchers."

Raffensberger, 32, working both as a starter and reliever last season, won 18 games and lost 17 for the seventh-place Reds. Next season will be his 10th in the majors.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 9. (AP)—Lou Little, who can explain almost anything, has his own explanation of the high scoring in U.S. college this season. It's simply that a coach, in picking his two platoons, puts the fastest and best co-ordinated men on the offensive team . . . "if you make one little mistake against players like that, they're gone goils . . . they're down," Lou explains . Little has watched the best offensive efforts of a lot of good teams while they were running over his Columbia team this fall.

Out of Flat-Tune

When Washington and Lee were playing George Washington recently the Generals (that's W. & L.) drove 80 yards downfield, only to lose the ball on a fumble near the goal line . . . immediately coach George Barclay sent his defensive unit racing on to the field while the offending offensive players trudged off . . . an unlisted spectator behind the W & L bench then sang out: "that seems dawgonned unfair of the coach. The team marches all the way up the field with the ball and just because they make one little mistake, he takes them all out of the ball game."

Rules of bridge bidding are not meant to be broken. Correct rules are the result of a vast accumulation of experience and data. No player can match them on the spur of the moment.

A wise player will break a rule only under certain conditions. It is when he has the ability of warning partner later. Providing also that he has a partner who can recognize the warning.

NORTH
♥A 3 2
♦8 5 4 3
♣8 4 3

WEST
♠8 7 6 5 2
♥K 10 8
♦5 3 2

EAST
♠K Q J 10
♥None
♦K J 10 9
♣K J 10 9 6

♥Q 7 6 5 4 3
♣A Q 2

There was plenty of bidding, round after round. Some of it good. Some of it bad. This is the way it started off:

South	West	North	East
1 H	Pass	1 NT	2 C

The opening bid was correct, of course. So was the defensive bid of two clubs by east. His aim would be to show the three diddle suits, if necessary. Also their relative length.

But what about the north one-no-trump response? In answer to an opening one bid, rule says partner should pass unless he has more than two tricks. The count in north is only two tricks.

Of the billions of responding hands, a few will pose a problem such as this. Not truly enough tricks. But the kind of cards that may produce more tricks than the rule number of tricks it counts.

Taking everything into consideration, you save more in the long run by not bidding it at once. But because it works out well in some cases, players will not be convinced that it should pass.

Most good players will never pass a responding hand with two aces. Even if they know the count is short. This type of stretch is expected among advanced players. They adjust themselves to it.

Such players, however, give partner a warning later. What if partner does not heed the warning? Call for Dr. Kildare.

"I hate it," she said. "For eight years I did nothing else but leg art. Whenever the studio wanted someone to pose for some organization, for a calendar or anything else, they would say, 'Get someone who isn't working.'

"Since I was never working at M.G.M., I spent all my time in the portrait gallery posing with practically nothing on.

"I've portrayed all the seasons, all kinds of weather conditions. I've posed for every benefit I can think of. After eight years, I think I deserve a chance."

U. N. for Myrna

Myrna Loy reports to Washington after she finishes playing the mother in "Cheaper by the Dozen." She will attend a U.N.E.S.C.O. conference. The organization is doing a wonderful job in Europe," says internationally-minded Myrna, "I wish more people knew about it. But, of course, constructive work is hard to publicize."

Arthur Kennedy returns to "Death of a Salesman" on Broadway after he does "The Glass Menagerie" here. He reports that Arthur Miller, prize-winning author of "Salesman," has written his first screen play. It's a New York waterfront story, which Elia Kazan will direct and Kennedy may appear in.

Sin to Come

Howard Hughes has begun advertising "Mad Wednesday" formerly "The Sin of Harold Diddlebock." Does that mean he's finally going to release the Harold Lloyd film, made four years ago?

Bill Bendix doesn't envy the Skinny boys. Without a pretty wife to type him, he has played just about everything — "except a romantic lead." Bill, avid baseball fan, is having the time of his life in "Kill the Umpire."

Bronze Plaque To be Dedicated

Goderich, Ont., Nov. 8. (CP)— A bronze plaque in honor of Sir John Willison, journalist, author and publicist who died in 1927, will be unveiled this month on the Huron County Court House here.

Sir John, born at Hill's Green, Huron County, in 1841, was editor of the Toronto Globe from 1890 to 1902 and editor of the now defunct Toronto News from 1902 to 1910. He was credited with helping Sir Wilfrid Laurier become Canada's first French-Canadian Prime Minister.

Among other tasks Sir John was chairman of the Ontario Commission of Unemployment, and of another commission on housing. He was knighted in 1913.

He was a governor of Upper Canada College, Toronto, an honorary Doctor of Laws at Queen's University, Kingston, and one of its trustees. In his later years he was president of the Canadian Reconstruction Association.

Woman Kills Four Bears With Four Shots

North Bay, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Mrs. Marlin Gauthier, a farm woman, took a group of embarrassed hunters into the woods Tuesday and showed them four bears she killed Monday with 4 shots — all between the eyes.

Mrs. Gauthier said she came across a large female bear and three almost full-grown cubs in a clearing. She picked off a cub with her first shot, then the female, then another cub. The last bear she chased over about two acres before bringing it down with a fourth shot.

The hunters confirmed each animal was shot between the eyes.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma is going to have a birthday and pop wanted to give a party for her but ma told him she didn't want a party, because it would remind her of all the times when she used to be much younger, and after supper she said to pop, William, do you have any idea how old the sun is?

It's reached quite a ripe old age, I believe, though I haven't noticed it slowing down any, pop said, and ma said, Well naturelly nobody knows exactly how old it is, not even the astronomers with their longest telescopes, but I just finished reeding an intristing article on the subject, and according to the latest estimates, the sun is literly hunderds of millions of years old.

That's amazing pop said. It just goes to prove that as long as you take a real intrist in your work, age hasn't got mutch to do with it, he said, and ma said Of course the earth is considerably younger, because the earth was originally a part of the sun, or so they say, but even the age of the earth is well up in millions of years, and as for our whole universe, it started billions of years ago. So I guess waddall that make you feel, William? ma said.

Well, it makes me feel comparatively young, pop said, and ma said, that's exactly the sensation it gives me. So I've changed my mind, William, she said.

About what, for instance? pop said, and ma said, About feeling old just because I'm going to have one comparatively insignificant birthday. So I'm going to let you arrange a party for me after all, William, don't you think I'm rite, William? she said.

My dear, you're as rite as the sun and the stars, and you've just provre' it pop said.

And he gave her a kiss and she started to make out a list of people.

Two Iranian Soldiers Reported Killed in Skirmish

Tehran, Iran, Nov. 9—(AP)—A high government source said Tues., two Iranian soldiers were killed in a seven hour skirmish with Russian troops inside the Iranian border last Saturday.

The Russian attack was reported to have been made at Bagheheh Sara, north of the Caspian Sea port of Astara.

In a previous attack a week ago, Sunday, the source said, Iranian troops brought up reinforcements that caused the Russians to withdraw. In the second clash last Saturday, both sides were said to have brought up reinforcements in the seven-hour fighting and the Russians withdrew once again.

The report did not say whether there were any known Russian casualties.

Russian Bloc Reply Expected To Canada's Plea

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

I ke Success, N.Y., Nov. 9 — (CP)—A Russian-bloc country was expected Tues., to reply to a plea by Canada's External Affairs Minister that all the countries of the world mutually agree to renounce part of their sovereignty needed to make international control of atomic energy possible.

Such international control, Canada's L. B. Pearson said, would prevent a future "atomic Pearl Harbor".

As the tense United Nations debate on the atomic problem entered its second day, Poland was the only country in the Soviet block scheduled to speak this afternoon before the 58-member special political committee.

Pearson told the committee Monday that the door must not be closed to any possible basis of agreement on international control of atomic energy and prohibition of atom weapons.

Canada and France submitted a joint resolution recommending continuation of talks among the five big powers and Canada seeking a basis of agreement by cooperative development and use of atomic energy for peaceful ends; and efforts by all governments to do everything possible to bring elimination of atomic weapons.

MARMORA

Ancient Chisel Found in House

Marmora— About two weeks ago, John Vincent of Marmora Township, had an interesting find while working at the home of his son-in-law, Everett Barrett. The latter, who lives in a century old stone residence, that originally belonged to the John Foxton pioneer settlers in the township, has arranged for the wiring of his home.

Mr. Vincent, who is a carpenter by trade, started tearing off the baseboard of a partition, when an old chisel fell out. The bit is six inches long with a thickness of an inch, and a quarter. It has the simple handle of the early Newbould" on it. Its handle, as oaken one, is of octagonal shape.

Mr. Vincent mentioned that the pine flooring its of slip tongue style, its ends are of hewn timber spaced three feet apart and the lathe is split thin cedar made by hand.

CLADES TRIUMPH OF COMMUNISM IN FUTURE WAR

Deputy Premier Georgi M. Malenkov, one of the top men in Soviet leadership, told a cheering audience in a Moscow theatre that Russia's possession of the atom bomb would mean the end of capitalism in any new world war. He spoke to the Moscow audience on the 32nd anniversary of the Bolshevist revolution. He was greeted with thunderous applause when he said "Russia is not afraid of peaceful competition with the capitalist world, but is sure of its might — it knows well that any war of adventure will end in disaster for the imperialists."—Central Press Canadian.

Refuse Hearing To Canadian C.I.O. Director

Peterborough, Nov. 9. (CP) — Support of the Congress of Industrial organizations for a new C.I.O.-affiliated Electrical Union was pledged Tuesday night by John Hawkins of Mansfield, Ohio, member of the C.I.O. union's administrative committee.

He addressed a meeting of Canadian General Electric Employees called by a right-wing group led by John Morton, president of Local 524, which endorsed the action of the group's leaders in moving to take the local out of the United Electrical Workers Union and into the new C.I.O. Electrical Union.

At Cobourg, where workers decided last week to support the right-wing group, 90 Canadian General Electric plant employees refused to give a hearing to C.S. Jackson, Canadian director of the U.E.W. The U.E.W., allegedly communist-dominated, has been expelled from the C.I.O.

Britons Requested To Give Economy Program Chance

Attlee Urges Longer Hours To Spur Export Drive

London, Nov. 10 (CP)—Prime Minister Attlee Wednesday night asked Britons to give his new economy program a chance before "crying aloud to the world that disaster is upon us."

And he suggested that if labor and management really want to help the country they should work longer hours and set higher production schedules to help increase the export drive and bring to Britain the dollars she needs to live.

The Prime Minister also accused many workers and managers of shirking in their efforts to build up dollar exports. He said both groups were "very" absorbed men were ignoring prospective dollar buyers in favor of home markets and business with non-dollar territories.

"Customers in North American buyers hunting through our markets," he said, "and meeting with little response . . ."

Attlee, speaking before the annual Lord Mayor's banquet, said several factories were producing goods for export because agreed to put in longer hours. Production would be increased, he said, if the mill were working overtime to fill Canadian orders.

"These factories were but a few individual cases which do show what can be done and what is already being done up and down the country," the Prime Minister said.

Increase Hours

As Attlee spoke a company official of the De Havilland works at Hatfield, Hertfordshire disclosed that 6,000 workers engaged in building jet airliners had agreed to work a 5½ - day week instead of five to meet the production and meet the demand from overseas customers.

Attlee's plea for greater production followed a four - hour meeting of the General Council of the 8,000,000 - strong trades Union Congress which discussed wage policy.

Bears Keep Coming Until Hunter Gets Three

New Liskeard, Nov. 10. (CP)

Virgil Foley of New Liskeard, shot three bears on a recent deer-hunting trip but isn't anxious to do it again.

Foley said he killed the bears while walking up a trail with his pair of dogs to scare up a deer. A bear cub scampered down the path and Foley killed it with one shot through the back of the head.

Just as he was going over to inspect his kill he heard a tremendous roar and turned to find the mother bear rushing at him. A shot through the eye failed to stop the animal's charge. The second shot broke its jaw but the bear kept coming. The third bullet, fired at point-blank range, caught the bear in the forehead and it crashed down almost at Foley's feet.

A second cub dashed out of the stump and the hunter dropped it with a shot in the side.

Three other members of the hunting party—Earl Foley, H. Walker and Rod Walker—heard the shots and raced up to see what the excitement was about. The four men skinned the dead bears.

BUDGET DEBATE ENDS SUDDENLY IN THE COMMONS

Only Voice Vote Taken On P.C. Amendment

Ottawa, Nov. 10. (CP)—Main debate on the 1949-50 budget ended in the Commons Wednesday with a dramatic suddenness that caught many members and particularly the Progressive Conservative by surprise.

The end came so quickly that the few Progressive Conservatives in the Chamber at the time did not rise to ask for a formal vote on the party's amendment moved early in the debate on the budget, reintroduced Oct. 29.

Several factors contributed to the mix-up. At the outset of the day's sitting, the party whips indicated there were at least seven speakers who were slated to participate in the debate before it concluded.

Ordinarily a list of that length would have kept the debate moving until well into 6 p. m. EDT Wednesday adjournment hour. But two of the speakers on the list did not rise when their turns came.

When Deputy Speaker J. A. Dion saw no one else wanted the floor he put the Progressive Conservative amendment to a voice vote and declared it defeated. The amendment was to a motion by the budget to refer the committee of ways and means to study the budget with a view to providing for the tax changes announced in the budget. Mr. Dion declared the main motion carried on a voice vote.

At this point, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, obviously flustered rushed into the Chamber, but was too late to call for a vote.

Entitled to Speak Again

It was learned that Mr. Drew was in his office preparing a second speech on the budget. He spoke earlier in the debate, but he is entitled to speak again before the debate ended. Notification that the debate was ended did not reach him fast enough to allow him to reach the Commons from his third-floor office to get the floor.

Mr. Drew's financial specialist was given after court opened today. Defence counsel Wednesday night managed to get a witness who was emotionally upset when he made the statement, having just learned the woman died in a Making hospital.

His Lordship said there was no doubt that the statement was made by Constable Sinclair.

The former National Hockey League right winger is accused of fatally beating Mrs. Robert after a drinking party. But Demers, who admitted striking the woman, alleges she jumped from his speeding automobile. He took her to hospital when she showed several hours later.

The action was dismissed from the court during Wednesday day's afternoon session while Demers made his statement.

Points Out Discrepancies

Pointing out discrepancies in the testimony, Defence Counsel said Demers' life may depend on disposition of the case.

After the jury was called back to the courtroom Magistrate ruled that the wounds on Mrs. Robert's body were caused by blows from a blunt instrument, such as a large board, or by fists. The medico-legal expert who performed the autopsy and death resulted from, "abundant brain hemorrhaging."

Earlier, Rosaire Leclerc, hospital attendant, Magog, recalled Demers' arrival at hospital in a car with Mrs. Robert in the back seat. He said the left side of eye, her face was covered with blood and her nose was pushed to one side.

Demers was formerly with the N.H.L. Montreal Canadiens and last year was voted the "most gentlemanly" player with the Quebec Senior Hockeyloop.

Children at Play Given Credit For Arrest of Two Men

Boys Give Alarm, Girls Watch Car

A group of small children playing an innocent game of hide-and-seek spelled the downfall of two translents who last night were apprehended by police who say they attempted to ransack the grocery store of Lionel "Gunner" Arnott, corner of Pine and Chatham Streets.

The two men John Broadbent, age 29, of Vancouver, and Donald Stickles, 20, of Gravenhurst, have been charged with burglary and with having shop-breaking tools in their possession by night. The alarm was turned in by the children.

The five young children, Marjory and Lloyd Kellett, 125 Chatham Street, aged 9 and 8 years, Brendan and Norman McKinnon, aged 10 and 12 years, and Lena Bradshaw, aged 8, were enjoying a game of hide-and-seek in the vicinity of the Arnott store around eight o'clock Wednesday evening. While one was hiding the children saw the two men come up to the store and make entry through the back door.

Boys Watch; Girls Give Alarm

The three boys then stood watch while the girls ran home to tell their parents. Police were arrived in the cruiser and Police Inspector C. J. Hall, who was on men hiding in the store.

"The two girls were hiding near the store and saw the whole thing," reported Mrs. Kellett to the Ontario Intelligencer today. The two men almost stepped on them but at first they thought it was the boys trying to find them.

"They were brave for a while but they got a bit frightened later," she added.

Police stated that Constable Warring had been sent to the scene when the break-in was first reported. On investigation he saw what he thought was a man in a brown coat standing in the store and he radioed for police reinforcements.

Reinforcements Arrive

Inspector Hayes and Sgt. Dougall, Police Chief Constable Warring and while the other two officers were watching points of possible exit. The inspector entered the store through the back door and flashing his flashlight around saw a hand holding a knife protruding from beneath a counter.

Drawing his revolver the officer called "Come out with your hands up" and one of the men stepped "right into fire." The two men then gave themselves up, police stating they offered no resistance.

Police claim the two men had rifled the petty cash contents of the till and had opened a cigarette vending machine before they were disturbed.

LARGEST THEFT RING IN OXFORD'S HISTORY BROKEN

More Than 100 Charges Laid Against 20 Men

Woodstock, Nov. 10 — (CP)— Twenty youths, one of whom admitted that they had taken suppetty crime as a hobby, today faced charges in connection with more than 100 thefts and burglaries in six Western Ontario counties in the last few months.

Arrested in the last two weeks, the youths ranged all remarks from $100 to $10,000. Police said all held good jobs and several were from prominent Woodstock families.

Bail of $10,000 was posted by Ed Stevens, oldest man in the group, whom police named as the ringleader. Stevens, married and the father of three children, is said to hold a $75-a-week job.

Only other men identified by police thus far are Gordon Caskey, 21, and his brother, David, 19, charged with receiving and accessories. All are free on $100 cash and $500 property bail.

Charges laid against the group, covering operations in Brantford, Norfolk, Middlesex, Waterloo, Perth and Oxford counties, were so complex that Crown Attorney said being prepared Wednesday night, after the group appeared in court Wednesday to receive a week's remand.

A full day has been set aside in Woodstock Magistrate's Court Nov. 22 to hear charges of a variety of breaking and entering, theft and receiving charges involving the group.

Police said the gang's loot was small. Much of it has been recovered and another $4,-000 is estimated as missing.

Did Not Employ Violence

Police said the gang did not employ violence. Thefts and break-ins with which they are charged took place in unoccupied premises.

Police believe the gang never operated as a unit. A small group would cruise around in a car, looking for likely break - in sites.

Loot from the robberies was found literally scattered about the countryside, hidden in hayfields, barns, barns, homes and business premises.

Many of the job - youths stole gasoline and cigarets for their own use and small amounts of money. They also a variety of articles including car horns, cash registers and a fire alarm, which were sold to dairies by farmer members of the gang as bells.

Break Ten Days Ago

The break-in case came 10 days ago when a youth was picked up for driving a car without oil. Questioned in connection with other thefts, he confessed to activities of the gang.

A 17-year-old youth, one of those charged, told police that the gang would meet in small groups after work, cruise around in a car and make out the route we could find it."

"There isn't much doing in Woodstock," he said. "If we couldn't think of anything else to do we always went to see or any dances we wanted to go to—we'd go for a drive."

Rental Boosts Set At 18-22 Per Cent Of Existing Rates

Administrator Says Tenants Must be Given Year Lease

Ottawa, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Maximum rental boosts which can be made on self-contained dwellings next month are 18 and 22 per cent of "existing ceiling-rentals," Owen Lobley, Canada's rental administrator said today.

Tenants living in rooms can have their rents increased by a straight 20 per cent.

The administrator fixed these rates to prevent "sprumiding" of genuine cross-country boosts allowed by Finance Minister Abbott's announcement last Thursday, increasing rents 20 and 25 per cent effective 1948 levels.

The new increases go into effect Dec. 15.

New Rates Feb. 1

But most tenants won't start paying higher rents until Feb. 1, 1950. That is because tenants who rent on a monthly basis must be given a full month's notice of the increase.

Mr. Lobley said that rental orders implementing the recent changes in the rental regulations now have been completed. Copies will be available to the public in rental offices of Nov. 15.

The 18-per-cent increase applies to unheated self-contained dwellings; the 22 per cent increase to heated.

A self-contained dwelling is one in which the tenant has complete use of toilet facilities. If he has to share them with others than his household, then he becomes classed as become a "lodging" or a room.

Regulations Outlined

In is statement, Mr. Lobley also announced:

1. Tenants who undertake to pay the increases must be given a new lease for at least 12 months. I. no case can it terminate before May 1, 1951.

2. Tenants signing leases of two years and more cannot be evicted during the course of the lease to permit the landlord to sell the accommodation.

Two-year leases may be signed at any rental on which the landlord and the tenant agree.

3. Landlords who owned accommodation before Nov. 1, 1949, and want to recover possession must give the tenant six-months notice to quit. The accommodation cannot be sold before April 1, 1951.

Students Told Ability to Appraise News Values Greatest Asset to Careers

Detroit, Nov. 10—(CP)—News-paper work based on education-al background and training to succeed, Arthur R. Ford, editor-in-chief of the London Free Press and Advertiser, told the University of Western Ontario, said today, "Journalism is for the mature students of Wayne University "all the schooling and training in the world will not make a good newspaperman."

Second is that sense of news and the value of news, which some people are never acquire, and which can usually only be obtained in the atmosphere of a newspaper office."

Bringing greetings from Western Ontario, Mr. Ford, established three years ago, Mr. Ford said that it was "a pleasure to be with other old-time newspaper men a prejudice against schools of journalism. However, he had changed his mind and now recognized the necessity of higher education.

In the first two years of their four-year course, journalism students at Western study General Arts with the emphasis on English, languages, economics. At the end of the third year the work is screened and only those ready to pick out those most likely to succeed in newspaper work. In their third and fourth years this group—the maximum class is 30—specializes in journalism.

Mr. Ford reviewed the newspaper picture in Australia, New Zealand, Great Britain, the United States and Canada. At the world conference on Freedom of Information at Geneva the five countries pledged themselves to support the press as a fundamental of democracy.

JUSTICE ADMITS STATEMENT MADE BY TONY DEMERS

Hockey Player Charged With Bludgeon - Slaying of Mrs. Alida Robert

Sherbrooke, Que., Nov. 10.—(CP)—Mr. Justice Cesaire Gervais today admitted as evidence a statement made to police by Tony Demers, hockey player charged with murder in the bludgeon-slaying of Mrs. Anita Robert, 32-year-old Coaticook woman.

Mr. Justice Gervais' decision was given after court opened today. Defence counsel Wednesday night managed to get a witness who was emotionally upset when he made the statement, having just learned the woman died in a Making hospital.

RUMORS OF QUICK END TO STEEL STRIKE SPREAD

Negotiators of U. S. Steel Prepare to Talk Peace With Murray

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10.—(AP)—Rumors of a quick end of the nationally steel strike in United States history today spread like wild fire through this steel capital.

They came as negotiators for big U.S. steel corporation prepared to talk peace today with Philip Murray, President of the C.I.O. United Steelworkers.

Murray recalled his powerful wage-policy committee to meet here tomorrow. Some observers think that means the union will make an offer today—and that the big steel corporation will accept it tomorrow.

Today's peace talk came on the heels of a strike-ending contract with Youngstown sheet and tube company, reported late Wednesday.

Shortly before midnight Wednesday night, Lukens Steel of Detroit reached a similar agreement for its 10,000 employees.

Those rapid-fire developments brought to five the number of steel companies which have agreed to Murray's demands for company-financed pensions.

Get $100 Monthly Pension

Youngstown Sheet and Tube's contract calls for $100 monthly pensions to workers aged 65 with 30 years service. They are also entitled to a $70 monthly pension at the normal social security payment the company will pay $30 to make his pension total $100.

The contract calls for a five-cent-an-hour social insurance boosting pay to $2.20 cents. The company will do the rest.

Details of Great Lakes' contract, announced by the Union, were not disclosed.

Generally, they were expected to follow the "Bethlehem pattern" —the same as Youngstown Sheet and Tube.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation broke the back of the strike by signing Murray last week. Republic Steel Company and Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation soon fell in line.

All told, settlements have been reached with 12 major steel companies who employ 200,000. Another 700,000 are employed by Big Steel — still on strike.

Rentals Highlights

Ottawa, Nov. 10. —(CP)—Here are the highlights of today's announcement by the Federal Rentals Administration:

The new increases effective Dec. 15 will be 18 per cent of current rent levels on unheated and 22 per cent on heated self-contained accommodation.

Lodgings — accommodation in which the water closet is shared with other tenants—increased by a straight 20 per cent.

Applications for increases on grounds that the landlord had to pay higher taxes or had made renovations and repairs will be heard after Dec. 15.

Landlords, who owned dwellings before Nov 1, 1949 and want to recover possession, must show extreme need" and will not be able to sell the property before April 1, 1951. They must give tenants six months notice to vacate.

Landlords owning guest and rooming houses can get permission to take over the accommodation, but the "rights" of the tenant must be observed.

Tenants agreeing to the rental increases must be given a new lease running for at least twelve months, and not expiring before May, 1951.

Any rental can be fixed — either higher or lower than the "ceiling" in leases of two years or more.

Orders implementing the rental changes will be made available to the public at the Dec. 15 rental offices across the country.

Landlords will be able to get forms requesting the increases on Dec. 5.

Gold Unchanged While President Says Truman

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP) President Truman said today there will be no change in the value of gold as long as he is president.

The president replied with that as he discussed the price of gold at a press conference when he was asked if anyone in his administration was giving consideration to raising the price of gold as a means of easing the international debt.

Any such action would have to take the form of a recommendation to Congress.

The answer to that question, Truman said, is a categorical no, as long as he is president of the United States, he said, the value of gold is fixed.

Claims Virgin's Face and Robes Visible in Snapshot Recently Taken

Fort Covington, N.Y., Nov. 10. (AP)—Hundreds of persons have visited this village on the Canadian border to see a snapshot which Mrs. Joseph Fulton claims show images of the Virgin Mary, a Roman Catholic believed her dead father.

Mrs. Fulton, wife of a Canadian National Railways conductor, said yesterday she saw her front yard showed faces in a hole in the snow. She took a snapshot day night to show the pictures to anyone, including a reporter who found about fifty persons examining the tree when he called. No one had been admitted to the house, which was in darkness.

Advised Not to Display Prints

Father Joseph Reid, Rev. R. E. Page, pastor of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, of which she is a parishioner, advised her "not to display them." Father Page confirmed this, saying any statement would have to be made from the office of the bishop of the diocese of Ogdensburg.

Isaac Therrien, village blacksmith, who said he had seen the pictures, the existence of which was first learned Saturday, claimed the head and flowing robes of the Virgin Mary were plainly visible in one print. Above the head of the baby is a star, he said.

Therrien asserted that a second print showed the face of the late Brother Andrew of St. Joseph's Shrine at Montreal, a third was purported to show the head of Mrs. Fulton's father, whom Therrien also said he had known well.

Mrs. Fulton's husband confirmed the story of his wife and the blacksmith when asked by the reporters.

R. Neal Poster Well Illustrates Red Feather Work

Ralph Neal has been awarded first prize for his poster submitted in the contest conducted by the Belleville and District Community Chest Committee amongst the students of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. The poster which is displayed in the Front Street window of the Leslie Shoe Store, was adjudged the most challenging in support of the Red Feather Agencies. Well illustrated and colored the poster gives visual expression to the important work carried on by the Victorian Order of Nurses, the Y.M.C.A. and the Children's Aid Society.

$12,700 Reported

While the amount of $12,700 reported on Wednesday morning is considerably below the minimum objective of $16,000 the campaign executive is gratified at the response which has been forthcoming from the citizens, employees, industry and merchants in the last few days. Many have volunteered additional support to already generous contributions in order to insure the success of the campaign. The committee feels certain that no one will pass up the opportunity to share in the humanitarian service, offered throughout the year by the participating agencies of the Chest.

Many canvassers have been finding it difficult to complete their tasks and are calling on citizens to co-operate with them by being ready with their subscriptions on the first call or by sending in their contributions to campaign headquarters in the Y.M.C.A.

The following was a prize winning essay by Bob Vaughan of Queen Victoria School:

THE RED FEATHER APPEAL

"We should support the Red Feather Appeal of Victorian Order of Nurses, the Children's Aid Society and the Y.M.C.A. in order that they may have the necessary funds to carry on their activities for the benefit of every citizen of Belleville and district.

The Victorian Order of Nurses provides medical care for many who could not afford the cost of private nursing care.

The Children's Aid Society helps children who do not have the advantages of a normal home life.

The Y.M.C.A. provides a place where girls, boys and grownups may go to enjoy good wholesome recreation under the guidance of trained leaders.

These organizations provide their services at very low costs and therefore should receive our financial support to their Red Feather Appeal."

No Danger Seen Of World Running Short of Uranium

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP)—Canada's atomic effort is not in any danger of running short of uranium in emergency because it is rare only a "moderate" proportion of the ore produced in this country, D. C. J. Mackenzie told the Commons Atomic Committee today.

The chairman of the Atomic Energy Control Board said the bulk of Can. uranium goes to the United States for bomb production. He said he'd rather not answer a question about wh her any Canadian uranium goes to the United Kingdom.

Dr Mackenzie said conditions now prevailing make it unfortunately true that industry can provide no large market for uranium but he said the day will probably come when industry does offer an alternative outlet. At the present time the government offer the only market.

He also told the committee that Canada's atomic effort so far has cost $40,000,000 for capital expenditures and operations.

Six Months Term For Manslaughter

Montreal, Nov. 10. (CP)—John Hanlon, 39-year-old St. John's, Nfld., seaman today was sentenced to six months in jail for manslaughter. He was accused in the drinking-party death of Stanislas Verkulevicius, who was drowned when Hanlon threw off the freighter Mondoc near here in September.

In passing sentence Mr. Justice Wilfrid Lazure said manslaughter can be "almost murder or almost an accident."

Evidence at Hanlon's trial, where he was convicted Tuesday, was that he and Verkulevicius were drinking when aboard the lake freighter. A scuffle ensued on the deck and when Hanlon had returned to his cabin he was reported to have said "I threw him overboard."

The seaman's body was found ten days afterward.

Panter Defends Sportsmanship In Hockey Games

Toronto, Nov. 10 (CP)—The standard of sportsmanship in hockey is as high as in any other sport, George Panter, acting secretary of the Ontario Hockey Association, said today.

Mr. Panter was commenting on a letter written by Howard H. Watson, Guelph fan, published Wednesday in a Toronto newspaper (Globe and Mail).

Mr. Watson charged that the "viciousness of Junior "A" hockey in Ontario has resulted in a low standard of sportsmanship in organized, and even unorganized, hockey."

"Just an opinion—any game that has bodily contact is bound to become rough on occasion," Mr. Panter said. "Feelings run high—as they do in a high school football game, for that matter—but we clamp down when the play trends that way.

"There are likely to be flareups from time to time, but you usually see the players hobnobbing with one another within an hour of a game's end.

"Toward the end of a particularly close game, tempers flare and we get the referees to bring them down."

Base metals were also in a one-way downward movement. Key issues eased fractional. Consolidated Smelters held against the trend for a slight advance. International Nickel's nine-month report showing lower earnings sent the price down slightly.

Police Scientist Called to Probe Liverpool Fire

Liverpool, England, Nov. 10—(Reuters)—Police Scientist J. B. Firth of the Home Office today was called to investigate the fire which swept a great Merseyside warehouse at Gladstone dock today.

Four hundred firemen brought the blaze under control after an 18-hour battle but the fire left a sea of molten rubber and dock avenues and roads in the area still were blazing this morning.

Brigades from all over Lancashire, North Wales and Cheshire raced through the night to the scene following an emergency appeal from Liverpool headquarters.

With contents valued at £1,500,000 ($4,550,000) the 400-yard long warehouse had been blazing fiercely since Wednesday afternoon.

$1,500 Heart-Balm Money is Awarded

Miss Russell, who had sued for $10,000, claimed Dr. Baker called off their engagement only a few days before the wedding date, after he had bought a trousseau, realigned from her job, made arrangements for a honeymoon and had publicly announced her coming marriage.

The court also assessed costs of her action against Dr. Baker who during the hearing this week testified he had delayed in breaking his engagement to Miss Russell because he "didn't want to let her down too hard."

Wider Powers Over Freight Rates Urged by Brief

Ottawa, Nov. 10, —(CP) — Wider supervisory powers over freight rates for the Board of Transport Commissioners was urged today before the Royal Commission on Transportation.

Algoma Steel Corporation, one of Canada's three basic steel producers, said the board should have power to consider the effect of geographic and economic conditions in setting freight rates.

(At present, the board holds it cannot take these into account in determining the reasonableness of rates proposed by the railways.)

Senator J. Gordon Fogo (L-Ontario), director of Algoma and its counsel, presented the company's brief, which included these recommendations:

1. Freight-rate increases on iron and steel products should be applied in such a way as to preserve competitive relationships between different producers.

2. The board, regulatory authority of the mines revenues, should examine rates with a view to preserving conditions in an industry which enable its goods to move freely to markets.

3. There might be need for control of freight rates in forms of transport competing with the railways.

While conceding that the railways must raise revenues to meet increased expenses, Algoma declared the series of percentages freight rates increases in the last two years had seriously disturbed the company's relations with its competitors.

THEIR NAME LIVETH FOREVERMORE!

November 11th, a day of national and international significance, approaches with its timeless message to all whether veterans of the two World Wars or to the non-veterans. Commemorative of the end of hostilities after more than four years of war from 1914 to 1918, it has become "the traditional day in which Canada remembers its sons and daughters who died while in their country's service," says The Veteran.

Thirty-one years have rolled by but time has not forgotten the men and women who spent themselves in the first world war in their country's cause. They are still remembered and with them all those who served and passed in the second great conflict of the nations in the years from 1939 to 1945. Their names are cherished and their richest memorial is in the hearts and souls of the men and women who at this time pay honor to those who in these two great struggles gave ungrudgingly their all in battle and thereby left an imperishable fame for the admiration and glory of coming ages. Their devotion was given out of full hearts and unstinted in its measure of sacrifice. Rightly their names forever shine in glory.

• It is a long way back in memory to the days before 1914 when the world was peaceful though the threat to peace was there in the heart of the tyrants. It seems too a long time since 1939 when another generation of young men and women entered their country's service for freedom's sake. And it appears a long time since 1945 when the tyrants fell and when there began the endless discussions and counsels for world safety. The thoughts of men and women have deepened as the years have passed.

Endless problems have come upon the rulers and leaders as a consequence of the disruptive influences of these two mighty contests of the nations. The world has advanced scientifically and scarcely a day passes but there is report of new inventions and progress, so intense is human study upon all the problems arising out of the worldwide struggles.

The return of the anniversary of the firing of the last shot on November 11, 1918, finds men everywhere deeply concerned. As The Veterans says: "Men cannot live unto themselves alone. Men live with other men; races and peoples live with other peoples of many divergent views. When better understanding and greater tolerance are learnt by nations as well as by men the best may yet come to be."

In the light of the sacrifices made in two great wars to down tyranny and aggression and in the view of the future which buoys men's hopes, there is the great task to carry on and do the utmost in duty and service to bring that better day for which all who served and gave themselves ungrudgingly and with great faith in man's future hoped.

War memorials are shrines of a people's memory and faith and hope. They point to those who remain to carry on the fight in memory of the immortal dead who with unselfishness and high devotion fought for the freedom of all men of all time. Those who passed in the smoke of battle are the advance posts of humanity beckoning those who remain on earth to continue the struggle for the emancipation of mankind forever from tyranny. They cheer on the endless hosts of living men and women who remain as heirs of their sacrifice to win at last the security the world so greatly desires.

A THOUGHT FOR REMEMBRANCE DAY

They live! They live! these gallant men of ours,
Whom we, their mothers, cradled for awhile,
And watched them grow to manhood's high estate;
Or proudly walked, their brides, some sacred aisle.

They live! They live! These noble sons of ours,
Whom we, their fathers, hoped in time to see
Pass on our name to children of their own
And prosper well; but it was not to be.

These men of ours, who answered duty's call
And came not back, were listed as if dead,
Yet we well know these spirits "Carry on"—
They live! They live! They have but gone ahead.

—T. B. Gleave.

TO LAST YEAR'S COAT

Old coat, last May, with the returning sun,
I looked at you with four years' service done,
Your lining frayed, your texture beaten thin,
Wrinkled and worn just like an old man's skin.
And said: "Next fall a new coat I'll acquire,
You've earned a rest. It's time you should retire."

Such was the thought that came the last spring.
But now, since there's a tax on everything,—
Income and outgo, from your attic hook
I've brought you down to take another look;
And I will swear my Nellie
I could hear
Saying: "Not bad "Twill do another year,"

So oft she said, and oh so oft was right:
"You've another now. That's why the coat seems tight.
When it is pressed 'twill be as good as new,
And don't forget a lot of bills are due."
So, what she'd say if she were only here
I'll say myself: "You'll do another year."

German Problem Hot Chestnut To Handle

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The German problem, as viewed either from east or west, is a hot chestnut to handle.

It seems logical to interpret the action of the western powers as tac admission that a re-bolshevized Germany is essential to the welfare of Europe as a whole. Just as at the time of the First World War British Prime Minister Lloyd George's cry of "hang the Kaiser" finally died on desert air, so the angry threats of reprisal against the instigator of the Second World War finally have given way to more studied counsels.

Russia probably is viewing the situation largely from a different standpoint. Eastern Germany isn't susceptible to absorption into the Soviet system without endless difficulties. Eastern Germany and western Russia are destined to coalesce in due course unless they are kept down by military strength. That is the nature of the race. Therefore, since there won't be to profit and much pain in trying to digest such an eastern Germany now, Moscow may plan on trying it later, even with Germany by a military withdrawal.

The foreign ministers' conference has before it some delicate and far-reaching points to try to iron out.

One of the most difficult is the layin; of a foundation for reconciliation between France and Germany. The French are bitter and they are wary as the result of looking from the direction of German military attacks three times in some 70 years.

Body Found In Lighthouse

Port Arthur, Nov. 10—(CP)— Harry O'Connor, whose body was found by police in Marathon lighthouse Sunday, was alone and marooned on his post more than seven days while he lay dying, James Crabbe, Transport Department official, said Wednesday.

The body of the Department of Transport employee was found in the fourth floor of the Lake Superior lighthouse near Marathon, 75 miles east of here. Rough seas have prevented removal of the body but Mr. Graham and 4 group of men reached the lighthouse in small outboard motorboats Tuesday.

First indication of O'Connor's illness came through the chance finding of a floating bottle near Marathon Monday. A note inside the bottle said:

"Come and get me first chance, sick—almost died." It was dated Oct. 31.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TENSION

It is amazing how quickly the human body responds to messages sent from the mind. Thoughts and emotions and keen interest creative power than any remedy ever devised. A relaxed mind, free of all tension, can do wonders. It can drive out fear. It can manufacture courage. It can knowledge of the power of the mind has changed failure to a success.

Both worry and fear create tension which can easily defeat any of us. Fear destroys the active power we are born with. We fear so much about some people who talk about being overworked, and even about those who die from overwork. But it isn't that. Work is stimulating. People die from fear, from worry, from lack of fun and recreation.

Tension builds up in a crowded street. How many of them look happy? What a multitude have anxiety and trouble stamped upon them. The rapid strides of modern business have called for speed and quick success. There is tension all along the line. Too many able and useful people die too young. What ours?

a different story if they had relaxed more, taken more time, and enjoyed themselves!

I watched a pitcher in an important baseball game. He was doing wonderfully until he seemed to lose control temporarily. He walked several men. He became tense and could not get his pitches over the home plate, and he was removed. I have noted other pitchers experiencing bad innings, only to relax, to get a grip upon themselves, gaining control and a win.

Anyone who is useful deserves enjoyment out of life. Tension is the enemy of both health and happiness. I know of those—and we do you—who cannot sit still in a room for five minutes at a time, who feel they are given a silent place they are as lost and nervous as a caged lion.

From one of the prayers of Stevenson I quote this line: "Give us courage and gaiety and the quiet mind." If we had but these three things as a gift, how could there be anything but peace and contentment, free of all tension,

25 Per Cent of Total Area England, Wales Set Aside For Parks, Conservation Areas

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 10—(CP)—James Macdonald of Gawenygzor, Britain's "amateur-perennial," thinks farmers are more kindly now than they were when he was a boy.

He told the House of Lords he has vivid memories of childhood days in Wales when he used to go blackberrying or engage in "some other innocent pastime."

"Many times I was chased off by some irate farmer or farm bailiff," he said. "And if he caught had not been fastern than the pursuer, I would have been caught."

National Parks

Lord Macdonald was moving the second reading of the Government's National Parks Bill. Already approved by the House of Commons, it calls for land totaling about 25 per cent of the total area of England and Wales as National Parks and conservation areas.

Twelve national parks would be set up under a commission estimated to cost £100,000 ($310,000) a year.

Suggested park sites include the lake district in northwest England, the peak district between Manchester and Sheffield, the Yorkshire dales and parts of Kent and of Sussex.

Lord Macdonald, 61, took his seat in the Lords last spring. He had formerly held the 2,500-a-year seat of 63rd and last governor of Newfoundland, a job he relinquished when Newfoundland became Canada's 10th province.

Few Mark Cleverness

The cravey-jawed, black-browed man who was known in Newfoundland as the "noor mary-vo-ernor" is already well-liked among peers because of his fondness for gentle reconnaissance.

In his maiden speech, on coal mining, he reminded listeners that started work at 13 as a pit-boy for a few pence a week.

But his reference to a new humanity among farmers brought a wig disclaimer from Earl de la Warr on the opposition front bench. Lord de la Warr said farmers are as tough as ever.

"Only a few days ago," he added, "I was asked by a member of this front bench was turned off his land for cleanliness."

MAY CHANGE HOURS

Toronto, Nov. 9 (CP) Changes in the hours of sale in beverage rooms and cocktail lounges were believed to be on the agenda as Progressive Conservative members of the Ontario legislature met in caucus today.

Two members, Marcel Legace of Cochrane and Hugh Reynolds of Leeds, both victors in recent by-elections, were introduced to the caucus.

THE INSOMNIA OBSESSION

Sometimes I wonder, when I find myself dozing over my book and try to crawl into bed without getting too widely awake, only to lie there wearily next evening column's, whether counting sheep ever put anybody to sleep who wasn't practically unconscious when wide awake.

Speaking of writing in bed, by all odds the finest writing I have ever done was done in bed when I was asleep. Only trouble was that I never could get it on paper before it was gone. Even started one good a pencil, pad and stand with light at my elbow, only the intent to jot a few notes on the pad any time in the night when such ideas occurred to me. Not a jot in the pad as yet—and it has been ready for two or three years.

In the pamphlet How to Sleep Well, available on written request accompanied with stamped self addressed envelope, I divided sins (1) do not use clipping and (2) do not inform me that you suffer from insomnia. In the case of the sins it is a good time to think over in the still watches of the night. It is a good time to reform, too, particularly excesses in eating, drinking, smoking, neglect of daily exercises etc.

Incidentally, next to an honest day's work—I mean a day of honest work—there is even nothing the best corrective of insomnia is two to six miles of oxygen on the road every day or every other day if you prefer.

As for days of wakefulness in the middle of the night when, you imagine, all the world is happily asleep and you alone are awake, I can describe it to your family, friends, lawyer, doctor, undertaker and Transport official, said Wednesday. Sunday.

The body of the Department of Transport employee was found in the fourth floor of the Lake Superior lighthouse near Marathon, 75 miles east of here. Rough seas have prevented removal of the body but Mr. Graham and 4 group of men reached the lighthouse in small outboard motorboats Tuesday.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ROAD TEST

After the garage mechanic has tuned up the automobile engine, he gives the car a road test. He puts it out on the highway, subjecting it to the conditions under which it will be run for the next month or so. He listens for squeaks, engine knocks, or any thing else that will indicate an abnormal condition either in the engine or in the body of the car. A faithful job of tuning up the motor is never complete until the road test has been made.

Have you ever thought of giving your religion a road test? Do you believe in the creeds of your church? If you do, that's fine. Perhaps you are regular in church attendance. You may go even further and hold some office in the church, or perhaps may be quite diligent in reading your Bible and saying your prayers each day.

But have you ever given these beliefs a road test? Have you ever tried them against the hard realities of life? Have you ever paid strict attention to your personal religious experience, to discover whether it was real or a mere speak of intolerance? Maybe you have been religious inside but they may not be working together so as to present to a flinty, Christian life—hitting on all cylinders.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

There is a kind of bread you will encounter in all parts of Canada—which proves it is a recipe and not a particular baker who is guaranteed to be the most delicious bread. The loaf is square in section. All four crusts are equal. And those crusts are as delicate as chrome-tanned leather.

When your section of this bread is served, you can do one of two things. You can wrestle with it as you might with a skate strap. Or you can, by setting your elbows close to your sides, be able to be seen jerking and waving your arms around, tear the slice apart; and then nibble the bread, as best you can, off torn crusts. You would be more sensible to eat the crust then you would to eat a two-by-four harness.

bite of toast with this leather crust and then find yourself, to the delight of all your neighbors, pulling and hauling to get to tear the slice loose from what you have grimly got your teeth in.

Most bread nowadays in cities, is made by people who are not much interested in bread, but rather in making money. The Canadian housewife dominated by gentlemen in finance, rather than by bakers, has become used to one sort of big bakeries in Canada you will find in that fairly. best furnished room in the office section of the bakery a man in a white cap, white jacket, with flour on his nose and up his bare arms to the elbows. The real bakers are those who make bread by characters who couldn't make a pancake out of a pancake pan package.

However, despite the city bakers' trucks you see prospecting eagerly all over the countryside, there are still, in the land, in villages rather than towns, small bakeries where you can be reminded how bread should be made.

PICTON

Cheesemakers, Patrons, Friends Enjoy Banquet at Picton

Picton — With 235 cheesemakers, factory patrons and friends in attendance, the annual banquet of Quinte Cheesemakers' Association was held at the parish hall, Picton, Wednesday night. It marked the conclusion of a competition designed to encourage production of higher quality cheese and improvement of factories. That these objectives were attained was revealed in praise from the judges, C. E. Lackner, Director of Dairying for Ontario, J. M. Bain, Chief Dairy Instructor for Central and Western Ontario, and E. W. Henderson, Quinte Dairy Instructor.

The competition saw points given for average score of cheese, percentage first grade cheese, workmanship score, outside and inside factory conditions, curing room and cheese on hand. The highest number of points in the entire competition was held by James Barnett, maker at Wauseon factory. He received the R. J. McFarlan' Gold Trophy.

Instructors Praised

Colin Carter, president Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce, as chairman, high praise for the dairy instructor and the makers, referring to the important role the dairy industry plays. George Gallagher, president of the Association, expressed thanks to donors of prizes, the trophies and awards being valued at $800.

Ward, K.C., Robert Gillan, Dairy Products Grader, A. L. Gibson, head of the Dairy Division, Kemptville Agricultural School, spoke briefly. A sing-song was led by Dr. E. D. Fyffe.

Toronto Artists on Hand

Entertainment was provided by Toronto artists, including Billy Meek, singing comedian; the Silvertones, musical ensemble, Albert Marson, Negro tenor and Marjorie Daize, piano. These artists appeared through the generosity of H. J. McFarland and were very popular.

Cheesemakers and factories represented in the competition were: John Embury, Acme; Lyle Lewis, Rogers; H. Steenburg, Wooler; Herb Atherton, Royal Street; Stirling Stewart, Mountain View; George Gallagher, Elmbrook; Bert Jones, Black River; James Barnett, Wauseon; W. H. Remington, U.E.L. at Dorland; Cyril McKeown, Weller's Bay; A. Carlton, Sidney; D. A. Harvey, Bloomfield; Ed. Card, Northport; Lester Wyatt, Cloverdale; Thomas Wannamaker, Ben Gill; Alex Johnson, Quinte; John Ackerman, Trenton; Michael Holt, Cressy.

Average Score

Some Baldpates In U.K. so Vain Pay Full Price

London, Nov. 10 (AP) — Some bald - headed Britons are so sensitive they even turn down bargain prices currently being offered by London's barbers.

The barbers, figuring there's not quite so much work to trimming a fringed noggin, have been quietly knocking sixpence (about 7½ cents) off the bill if the customer's head is bare on top. A regular haircut costs two shillings (30 cents).

One barber, in the financial district disclosed that some of the more vain baldpates have "indignantly insisted upon paying the full price."

Tabernacle Church Bazaar And Tea Well Patronized

Clear skies and sunshine, mixed to just the right proportion with a pinch of Winter's 'tang' augured well for the "Christmas Shop", at the Tabernacle Church bazaar and tea on Wednesday afternoon, when friends and patrons thronged to enjoy a social tete a tete, and to select that all important item, the Christmas present.

On opening the outer door, mundane things were left behind. Beyond the pine-lined avenue, which led down the steps and into the spacious assembly room, was a wonder fairy-land where gleaming silver, rioting colors of blue, yellow, bronze, green, pink and gold flaunted themselves from every booth, tea table, stage and columns, and decked the dividing doors at the rear. Welcoming the enchanted senses of guests, who passed along the pine-clad vista, were the gracious ladies, Mrs. R. Irwin, president of the Women's Club; Mrs. F. B. Harback, and Mrs. W. E. Judge and next at hand, the two collectors of customs: Mrs. E. Greenleaf, and Mrs. M. Cummings, treasurer of the Comrade Club, respectively.

Delightful Tea Room

In the rectangle formed by the yellow and gold trimmed pillars, was the tea room, with its little tea tables, each with its white cloth, and centred by a crystal glass of bronze and yellow 'mums and at the rear, the long, tea table, with its lovely cloth of cream cut work linen, centred by a crystal bowl of bronze and yellow baby 'mums; tall ivory tapers in crystal holders, two on either side, and at each end, the gleaming silver services. Passing through the bronze and golden arched gateway, flanked by little red cedars, the long queues of guests were welcomed by Mrs. Embury.

Those who poured during the hour from three to four, were: Mrs. R. Gross, and Mrs. C. Frost; from four to five: Mrs. M. P. Duff and Mrs. G. Prentis. Those who served at supper, Mrs. W. Wonnacott; Mrs. C. Finkle, Mrs. S. McGuire, Mrs. L. Andrews, Mrs. G. Stewart, Mrs. E. Robson, Mrs. E. Boulton, Mrs. S. Joss, Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. A. Bell, Mrs. Greenwood, Mrs. E. Jerome, Mrs. L. Wannamaker, Mrs. H. Moorman, Miss Z. Mosman, Mrs. G. Fenn, and Mrs. E. Barlow; while those who replaced them for last evening's plates were: Mrs. L. Walmsley and Mrs. S. McBride from three till four, and from four till five, Miss Jane Smythe, and Miss Hazel Thompson assumed these duties.

Various Booths.

Arranged around the tea room rectangle were the various booths, each bearing out the theme of yellow, bronze and gold. All were done differently, but all were lovely. Here and there, in this sea of golden tints, could be seen the blue splash of the Candy booth, and the pink and blue of Baby Department, reminding one of blue and pink anemones in a field of daffodils.

The first booth was the Apron booth conversed by Mrs. H. Brodie, and assisted by Mrs. W. Holland, Mrs. V. Harding, Mrs. E. Anderson, Mrs. G. Hogle, Mrs. W. Townsend, and Mrs. W. T. Beggs. This was another booth filled to the gold and bronze entwined across the upright posts and along the front, from which hung a valance of tiny tissue paper aprons, apropos of the real aprons which below mingled in riotous colors of blue with pink, rose and pink with blue, prilled plastic aprons in blue and in pink. There were mauve colored aprons and with borders over which frilled yellow borders; green aprons, with blue; aprons without; aprons with pockets and apples, and golden pears, and aprons with red and green holly. There were tea aprons, and good, big workaday ones. Where space on the booth was scarce, the wall behind was lined with the overcoated aprons and bonnets made, and an asset to any kitchen.

Towel Table

Next came the towel table, also in gold and bronze decoration. Here were guest towels, each embroidered ends; large, soft turkish towels in blue and in pink, and back towels with edges outlined in geometric stitches; glorified dish towels with yellow and mauve embroidered on the ends; lovely embroidered pillow cases, and many other items too numerous to mention. Over this booth Mrs. Smith, Cornish presided, assisted by Mrs. W. Wheeler; Mrs. B. Walker; Mrs. K. Kerr; Mrs. J. Nunn; Mrs. E. Schliever; Mrs. F. Leach; Mrs. G. Winters, Mrs. R. Lockyer and Mrs. D. McLean.

The candy booth under the auspices of the C.G.I.T. group was convened by Mrs. R. Bateman. Miss G. Firth and like a blue anemone with its bands of blue and white meeting tent-wise above its bord of little baskets, cups and boxes, each filled to the brim with dainty creams, chocolate fudge, big, flat taffy squares, and white peppermint eyes and mouth. Just to remind the tardy that Christmas is just around the corner, two huge candy canes stood sentry-like at either corner of the booth.

Garlands of yellow and bronze crossed back forth under the top of the children's wear booth, and turned into a fringed valance running across the front of it. Here one could find all kinds of children's wear, little nighties nighties in soft, warm flannelette gay with pink flowers on a blue background, and others with blue flowers on a pink ground; mitts, all colors and all sizes; aprons, dresses, berets and scarfs. This was convened by Mrs. B. MacMillan, Mrs. L. Smith, Mrs. M. Barrett, Mrs. G. Brickman, Mrs. H. Bowen and Mrs. F. Paul.

Novelty Booth Patronized

Like all the other booths, the novelty booth was gayly dressed in gold, bronze and yellow, and was doing a thriving business with its enticing array of gift cards; little hat pincushions; dogs, blue dogs, green dogs, and purple dogs which had given up walking and chose instead to ride on the owners' coat lapel; a huge strawberry cushion with two green leaves was waiting to be stuck full of pins; oil-cloth daisy tie backs; lace over satin tie backs no heat could penetrate; dude salt and pepper shakers in celluloid, some red, some ivory; pink four-footer bed with two dolls, one in pink and one in blue; fancy dish towels; woolly dolls for hairpins; sunflower pin cushions, antique silver wax; wash-cloth dogs keeping guard over a bottle of Evening in Paris cologne; a lovely crocheted purse in delph blue; knitting bags with appliqued flowers some with sunflowers, others with wild flowers; a pretty hand-painted cushion of a swamp filled with bullrushes, into which swooped a scarlet tanager; and a framed print of Lady Hamilton prints. Over this, the convener was Mrs. F. Izard; assisted by Mrs. R. Johnson; Mrs. W. Johnson, and Mrs. E. Lawrence.

The grocery store must have had a "Friday Special" judging by the throng of patrons. What could be seen were baskets of rosy hued apples; Irish Cobbler potatoes, beans, jellies, eggs, jars of divinity fudge in pink and white, soups, socks, citron peel, cakes, tea towels, a red windmill on a tea cloth, pans, pickles, pickles and tomatoes. The conveners of this busy mart were Mrs. N. Robb, assisted by Mrs. H. Brown, Mrs. H. Poste, Mrs. A. Fisher, Mrs. D. Graham, and Mrs. A. Charleton.

Men Assist at Bazaar

To prove that there is always the exception to all rules, the toy and woodwork booth was convened by Mr. E. Schlievert assisted by Mr. E. Anderson, and Mr. A. Naylor. Showing the result of fine craftsmanship, were doll highchairs in baby blue and red; sleeve boards to make those fine shirts look just right; some bracketed for little do-dads that won't go anywhere else; magazine racks, generous enough to hold magazines; smoker outfits; bird houses; kiddie rocker; jeeps; tin rocking horses; shield and knife rack; a blue wicker cradle, and a dolly's kiddie pram part of the old pipe organ in the church. This was to be auctioned off during the evening to the highest bidder, who wanted a memento of bygone music.

Then came the baby booth, one of the loveliest of the lot. This was done in blue and pink and white, with a huge pink bow on the centre of the valance. Above, across the top, was suspended a line of triangular necessities each bearing a baby's name, and the word "Baby Department." The alcove behind was done in pale pink and white gauze, and below this, ran a blue border about four inches wide having cutouts of Peter Rabbit and Donald Duck. In the centre of the display table was a bassinette, with a bearing his burden of twins, a boy and a girl to some fortunate home, and around about were the various baby things from the jumping saucepan, and baby bib in two, pouch, to the soft white rabbits, and cuddley teddy bears, and baby dolls.

At one corner was a dolls bassinette in pink with dotted swiss over a pink lining. A wonderful gift for some little girl and doll. There was a baby bathing beauty white mitts, a pink carriage cover; pink celluloid dolls; a pink silk dress with tiny hand forget-me-nots embroidered on the yoke; and a little chair in pink, housing all the sewing requirements connected with the baby of this day. Mrs. Clara Lathwogue, and Mrs. Josephine Dragon assisted by Mrs. Pauline Huddleston; Mrs. Stella Firth; Mrs. Grace Thompson; Mrs. Ivy Stanton, Mrs. Audrey Davies and Mrs. Doris Davidson.

Last But Not Least

The home cooking booth last but not least. Across its top stretched a silver filigree curtain over which were scattered beautifully colored maple leafs in shades of gorgeous scarlets, yellow and gold, and underneath were the delicious confections, lovely to behold, and delightful to eat. Here were pink frosted loaf cakes; white cakes piled high with shredded coconut; chocolate cakes with mounds of chocolate frosting, sprinkled generously with nuts; Chinese chews; taffy tarts; raspberry tarts; cookies in nearly all sizes, some tiny and some father's size. Gems, hermits, brownies looking as light as a puff of air might blow them away, wanting only the maple leaf to finish out the picture. Eggs breakfast; and so many others that space will not permit. None went a begging, judging from the three-deep crowd around. There was no time to pick and chose; for she who hesitated lost her cake.

This booth was convened by Mrs. A. Naylor; Mrs. W. Harrison assisted by Mrs. C. Pitcher, Mrs. R. Goodfellow, Mrs. R. Anderson, Mrs. W. Grandame, Mrs. R. Varcoe and Mrs. W. Hamilton.

An outstanding bazaar and tea artistically planned and skillfully conversed by Mrs. Judge and Mrs. C. Mott. Much credit is due to all who so unstintingly gave of their time to make it such a grand success.

Maria Laskaris Shows Great Promise As Pianist In Recital

(By EUGENE LANG)

Last evening a goodly sized audience was in attendance at the Collegiate Auditorium to hear the concert debut of one of the city's most gifted young musicians in the person of Miss Maria Laskaris. Miss Laskaris is a native Belleville girl, the daughter of Mr. John Laskaris of 182 Foster Ave., and has devoted a great deal of her life to the study of the piano, of which she has shown herself to be an accomplished artist. This past June she was awarded both the Teacher's and Solo Performer's Award with honors from the Royal Conservatory of Music in Toronto, an honor that not too many students of the piano attain, and is at present furthering her musical education at the St. Michael's Music Studio, where she presented her recital last evening.

She chose a program of varied interest, featuring in particular the compositions of Bach, Beethoven, and Chopin. Following her opening number, the Prelude and Fugue No. 8 in E Flat Minor of Bach which she performed in a very creditable manner, she launched into the Sonata in D Major, Opus 10, No. 3 of Beethoven, the so called "Tempest" Sonata, a work of no mean proportions. The first movement of this Sonata were real good, but in the last movement, a more or less good motion study, she did not seem to discipline her tricky cross-rhythms that abound in the subsidiary theme, thus tending to unbalance the even sway of the music that must not deviate from its set pace and tempo.

Demonstrates Virtuosity

Chopin was well represented in her third group, ranging from the poetic Nocturne in C Sharp Minor, to the Nocturne in F Sharp Minor, through the minor tonalities that abound in the Nocturne in C Minor, Op. 13 set, and into the power of the B Flat Minor Scherzo, Op. 23, a work of bravura proportions, and the technical hardships that are ever present in the Polonaise Fantasie in A Flat Major, Op. 53. In her set of five Chopin opi she demonstrated her virtuosity and finger dexterity to a high reward degree, proving that she was willing to crack even the toughest "nuts" among the poetic Chopin's symbolically constructed compositions. Even though the technique required for a performance of the F Sharp Minor Nocturne cannot be compared with that needed for the playing of the Scherzo and Polonaise, it proved that the young pianist was having a more difficult time of it in presenting this melancholy piece than in her adept rendition of the longer and more difficult numbers by the same composer. However, her Chopin was taken as a whole, was done very well and capably played.

Following the intermission, Miss Laskaris performed three well-known piano numbers from the pens of Rachmaninoff, Bath, and Liszt. All three composers had their compositions handled nicely by Miss Laskaris, especially her lovely phrasing in the Concert Etude in D Flat (Un Sospiro or Ieary) a Franz Liszt. She really excelled in her rendition of version of this serene Etude. The Prelude in G Minor of Rachmaninoff and the solo piano arrangement of the Cornish Rhapsody of Bath were both given a meritorious performance by Miss Laskaris, who graciously concluded her program by playing two familiar encores, "Claire de Lune" or Debussy, and the fiery Malaguena by the Spanish composer, Leconiea.

Has Promising Future

Miss Laskaris has a very promising future as a pianist, and will no doubt, in time, become a will be herself, and one that will bring more and more recognition to herself and her city in the years to come. Miss Laskaris is to be highly praised for her fine musicianship, the only criticism being levelled is that she must attempt to accelerate her tempos from their given speeds. All hope they may hear this talented young pianist many times in the months and years to come.

Mr. Robert Lucy introduced Miss Laskaris to the audience and three floral bouquets were presented the recitalist during the course of her initial concert, drawing added ovations from the audience.

Pope Pius Honors Former Resident

Dr. J. J. McDonnell

Dr. James J. McDonnell, a native of this city, now residing in Pueblo, Colo., has been signally honored by Pope Pius XII, being one of six to be named a Knight of St. Gregory.

Dr. McDonnell is well known for his humanitarianism, giving freely of his knowledge and time to needy people. Because of his widespread medical practice, he could have been the most wealthy physician in Pueblo had he so chosen, preferring rather to help those incapable of remunerating him.

He has been a country doctor since 1927, and even at his present age of 80, is still ready to answer the day and night calls of any patient in need, and especially so, if the patient is financially embarrassed.

Dr. McDonnell came to Pueblo in 1896, after graduating from Trinity College, Toronto, and is said to be loved by citizens as well as a living example of Christian fortitude. In the practice of his profession, he has never been known to brook any compromise with Catholic ethics. Two of his five children are in religion, Sister Anastasia, and Sister John Chrysostom, both of whom are members of the Sisters of Charity of Cincinnati.

Paris Race-Goers Wear New Styles in Adaptable Fur

By BARBARA STEVENSON

Full sleeves, bloused backs, and full and box-pleated models in flat furs such as lamb are stringflied at the waist. One clever model was fitted with three folds of black faille separating strips of fur running from waist to hemline. It was worn with a matching fur skull cap trimmed with a gray osprey soaring skyward directly in front. The osprey was so full that in the distance it appeared to be a silver fox tail.

Smartest colors against the green track were uranium, gray and Parma violet. But the most popular color is still the traditional Parisian black, relieved this season with touches of brown.

The little boy look, dating back to the middle '20s, with slender silhouette and close-cropped hair, leads the season's fashion parade. Skirts are a good 15 inches from the ground. Wraparound skirts win the suit race, and the asymmetrical line is found in both necklines, side waist drapes, and millinery.

All-Black Ensembles

Several women noted for their fashions have appeared at recent race meetings clad entirely in black, with very large hats. One huge cartwheel hat, trimmed with a ribbon of gardenias at the junction of brim and crown, was made in a fabric which looked like hatter's plush but was really pressed beaver felt.

The most popular hats, however, are small, many dipping at the side or worn on the back of the head. Feathers jut upwards from nearly all of them.

One all-over feathered skull cap was fashioned from tiny multi-dyed blue feathers from the barnyard. Bird of Paradise and osprey supply the towering touches while a few ostrich feathers curl under the tiny brims of head-hugging caps of velvet or velour.

At the "Prix de L'Arc de Triomphe" meeting, one black flat fur coat had a stiffened, stand-alone collar, a box-pleated back and tie belt. With it was worn a straight sailor hat in velvet, piped with braid and trimmed with a spray of Bird of Paradise.

A wine-red alligator bag had a binocular pocket in the back and an adjustable strap. Opera pumps to match were matched with sheer, wine-colored nylons —accessories which proved attractive with a bottle-green facecloth suit.

English fashions are also seen on the Paris race courses fairly frequently this season. Some suits were tailored with extra pockets for notebooks, pencils and programs.

YOUNG MOTHER MISSING

Toronto, Nov. 9 — (CP) — Police are seeking Mrs. Raymond Maybee, attractive mother of two boys, missing since Monday night when she left home to attend a movie. Neither Raymond Maybee, husband of the missing woman, nor Mrs. Thomas Mills, her mother, could give any reason for the young housewife's disappearance.

Walk and Sit Gracefully

Good posture is just as important when you sit as when you stand, says Movie Star Lorraine Day. In a chair, assume an easy pose but don't slump.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Every girl should be a pretty sitter. She should walk beautifully and maintain perfect posture when standing. Body balance is important from the standpoint of health, as well as appearance. The girl who carries herself properly will look well dressed because she will give accent to the good lines of frocks and coats. Slouchy carriage will ruin the effect of the loveliest creation that was ever stitched together.

Some women who qualify as graceful walkers let their bodies droop as soon as they stand still. If they stand with the weight on one foot, one side of the body will, in time, become higher than the other, one hip lower. The abdomen is allowed to protrude, the chest and neck are badly set. The entire body takes on awkward lines because balance has been destroyed.

Sitting Posture

Not many women look their best when sitting. To sit correctly one should occupy the seat of the chair its full depth. The torso should be held tall, but not rigid, as there must ever be present an appearance of ease and grace. An especially bad habit is to twine the feet around the chair rungs or legs. Look about you when you are in a restaurant. You will be surprised to see how many sweet young things do that, making unattractive pictures of themselves.

Some teachers of physical education believe that the movements of the body are but the reflections of the mind, hence one should think beauty, should keep the thought of good posture; then the body will assume symmetrical lines.

Women who are inclined to take on weight will find that the mere practice of holding in the abdominal muscles will gradually tend to decrease the measurements of the waist line. The explanation is simple. By not allowing muscles to go slack, they acquire tone and flexibility. On strong muscles fat cells will not take root and grow. In any campaign for slenderness, good posture is of importance.

The Sunday Roast

A roast is usually first choice for the leisurely Sunday dinner, whether it is a strictly family affair or includes a few friends.

The roast does not have to be the most expensive cut to be attractive and appetizing. The end of the pork loin is always cheaper than the centre cut. The shoulder cuts from beef, veal, lamb and pork are excellent roasts. Some of the less tender cuts make choice pot roasts.

The home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, say that the method of cooking is as important as the cut of meat. Cooking at moderate temperature, in dry heat, is recommended for tender cuts, to prevent undue shrinkage and attain perfection of flavor and juiciness.

For Roasting:

1. Use moderate oven, 325-350 degree F., for the entire cooking period.
2. Cook uncovered, fat side up. Do not add water.
3. Add fat to lean roasts. Baste them occasionally during roasting.
4. Place rolled or flat roast on a rack. Turn rolled roasts every half hour.
5. Cooking time varies with kind of roast, weight, thickness, shape of roast, and proportion of bone and fat.
6. Whether meat is seasoned before or after roasting is unimportant. Flouring is optional.
7. Let cooked roast stand in a warm place for a short time. This makes for more economical and easier carving.

Moist heat is needed to improve the tenderness of cuts from the round, the rump, and cuts from the fore quarter.

A pot roast, well browned and tender needs no apologies, especially if there is plenty of rich brown gravy.

Pot Roast of Beef

3 to 5 pounds beef
Flour
Salt
Pepper
Fat
1-2 to 1 cup hot water.

Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Brown well in all sides in a little hot fat in a heavy pot or Dutch oven. Place a rack under meat, add water, cover tightly and cook over low heat or in slow oven, 300-325 degree F., until meat is tender, allowing about 40 minutes per pound. Turn several times during cooking. Vegetables —carrots, celery, onions, potatoes, tomatoes, turnips, may be added during last hour of cooking. Use dripping in pan as base for gravy.

Stuffed Flank Steak

1 beef flank steak
1-2 cup chopped celery and leaves
1 small onion, chopped
4 tablespoons fat
1-2 cups soft bread crumbs
Salt and pepper to taste
1 cup water

Use one large or two small flank steaks. Saute the celery and the onion in two tablespoons fat for a few minutes. Add the bread crumbs and season with salt and pepper. Pound and flatten steak. Spread with dressing and, beginning at one side of the steak, roll up like a jelly roll and tie securely in several places with string. Brown in the other two tablespoons fat in a frying or roasting pan on the top of the stove, turning the meat until it is browned on all sides. Slip a rack under the meat add water, cover closely and bake in moderate oven, 325-350 degrees F., 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Use dripping in pan to make a rich brown gravy. Yield: 5 to 8 servings.

After the presentation address was read, a dainty luncheon was served. All wished the happy couple long years of wedded life. Mr. and Mrs. Lalonde thanked their many friends for the hospitality shown them and the beautiful gifts.

Lumber Jackets Shown by Fath

Paris, Nov. 10 — (AP)—Lumber jackets, in every sort of material from tulle to fleecy wool and suitable for all occasions (from ball games to elegant soirees, dominated Jacques Fath's mid-season fashion show Wednesday.

Fath also showed large, fancy-framed, white starched pique and glazed linen collars; new ballet-necked bodices, lots of extremely tight, straight skirts and, unlike other designers, many full-length evening dresses.

All the lumber jackets he shows are casual looking affairs, cut along the same lines as a man's shirt, but the collars and cuffs are extremely wide and stiffened. He uses French seams throughout and ropes all buttons tightly into the waist with black patent leather belts.

They all have buttons and buttonholes set down the front from top to bottom, but these are evidently just decoration.

PLUSHY THEFT

Wilton, Wiltshire, England — (CP)— When thieves raided a Wilton carpet factory they unrolled 100 yards of red carpet from the factory to the gates. Having deadened the sound of its wheels, they drove their truck to the door and left with carpets valued at £418 ($1,295).

Fashion Flashes

MANY HOUSES are ensembling overskirts with basic sheath dresses. Orchid satin is used for a short-skirted evening dress with strapless top having curving decolletage. With it a flaring tunic overskirt of black satin made with fullness over the hips.

COME SPRING and you'll be seeing much of the belted bloused suit jacket. Light taupe gabardine is used for a suit with a trim, slender jacket. The jacket back has three deep pleats marked by embroidered silk arrowheads, that start at the shoulder yoke, and make for a deep blouse over the narrow self belt. Small flaps for deep hip pockets.

SPIKE UP last year's coats with a new coat belt. Leopard fur, piped in black or brown suede and buckled in polished brass makes for a handsome belt, good for jackets, coats or dresses. Silk ring cord is used for a real coat belt, with bone or metal rings fastening the looped end through which is slipped the pull-through long tassel end.

GOOD COVER-UP agents for deep necklines are available in charming costume jewelry selections. A five-strand pearl necklace has long grape clusters of smoked crystals beads.

TO MATCH the beautiful afternoon clothes, designers have come through with beautiful bags. A top-handled book-shaped bag is of black satin embroidered on both sides with a big spray of flowers in gold bullion, rhinestones and pearls.

HAND OUT for new gloves of suede that, while dressy, are perfect with sturdy tweeds and fleeces. Brown suede makes a good glove for a tweed suit. It has a deep gauntlet cuff of matching brown alligator.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

In Answer to Request to Act as Patron and to Buy Tickets for Benefit

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please ... I need your help! A friend of mine ... we went to the same boarding school, but to different colleges ... is working very hard to collect money for the Gaslip Fund for her college. She has asked me to be a patroness for the benefit they are giving and has told me that she will send me two tickets (which are to be paid for of course, and which are more expensive than I can possibly afford to pay for). In fact, this year my husband and I have had so many heavy and unexpected expenses that we are really "strapped." I have never met this patroness and-tickets situation before. How can I word a regret that I cannot afford to buy the tickets? And before the time comes should I withdraw from being a patroness, since I cannot buy the tickets? Thank you for any suggestion.

Josephine B.

If this friend is an intimate friend of yours, my suggestion is that you have a forthright talk with her at once (1) explain that you and your husband would be proud to have your names used as patrons of the Benefit, if that would be of any service to the cause, and (2) explaining straight forwardly and gradually just what you have told me, that you and your husband have had such heavy and unexpected expenses this season that you will be unable to buy the tickets or to contribute.

And too that if it would be more important to her and her committee to use names of patrons who can contribute or buy tickets, of course you will understand their choosing their names as patrons. Please don't feel self-conscious about any of this procedure ... it very often has to be met, and should be met with honesty and social grace

Or, if circumstances suggest a note in place of a talk, you might write:

Dear Dorothy:

George and I are deeply honored by your gracious request to use our names as patrons of the Benefit for the—College Scholarship Fund, but I must explain our circumstances. We have this season had so many heavy and unexpected expenses that, unfortunately, we just cannot add any other financial responsibilities to our present list. So, I am very sorry to say, we will be unable either to contribute to the Fund or to buy tickets for the Benefit. I am sure you will understand. If you and your committee decide that it would be more advantageous to substitute for our names as patrons the names of those who can work for and contribute to this very important occasion, please dear Dorothy don't hesitate about doing this.

George and I send friendliest greeting, and best wishes for the success of the fund.

Sincerely,

Tip for Her Little Boys' Haircuts

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please settle a discussion as to what is the right tip for me to give a barber? I have to take my two little boys to get a haircut every month. The price is 75 cents apiece. I have been giving the barber a 25 cent tip for each ... that makes $2 for both of them. Am I giving him too much? I really can't afford this tip, but I thought it was the right tip to give.

A Mother

You've been too generous, particularly if this amount is a hardship. For the two services, 25 cents is an ample tip.

Each Bridal Attendant Pays for Her Costume

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) At the simple, inexpensive wedding that I am planning is it good taste to have only a maid of honor, no bridesmaids? (2) If we do have bridesmaids, can they pay for their own gowns?

R.H.

(1) Yes ... this is often done at a wedding of any type. (2) Each bridal attendant ... maid or matron of honor and bridesmaids is expected to pay for every detail of her costume, except the flowers she carries or wears; these are provided by the bride or her family).

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

There's Always Someone to Help Solve Problems

One of the reasons why people get to feeling that their problems are unsolvable, is because they are apt to try to work them out all by themselves. Inside their mind, they keep brooding over the problem, turning it over and over and wondering what to do. Instead of making any progress toward a solution, they only become increasingly bewildered, and more and more hopeless, until they are finally in complete despair.

Sometimes the trouble is that these people simply do not know where they can get any help. Because this is so often the case, I would like to point out to my readers that in almost any town of any size today there is someone whose business it is to help people in distress. Where the town is so small, or so remote, that it is without such a person, there is usually a way of reaching someone in another area.

For those who can afford to pay for advice on their problems, there are psychiatrists, or psychologists who perform more or less the same type of service as psychiatrists except for the fact that they are not doctors of medicine.

For those who have no money to pay for consultations on their troubles, there are various welfare organizations to which they can go and talk over the thing that is worrying them without charge.

Many of these organizations operate on a national scale, with branches in various towns and cities throughout the country.

One of the latter, the Family Service Association of America, is currently conducting a series on the radio for the purpose of informing the public about some of the reasons why family problems occur, and telling them where help in solving them can be found in over 2,000 cities. While the national headquarters of the Family Service Association are in New York City, its branches in any of these 2,000 cities are equipped to advise on the problems of anyone who wishes to consult them. A letter written either to me, or direct to the central office of the association at 122 East 22nd Street, New York, 10, N.Y., will bring you the name and address of the place to go.

If you can pick up on your local radio station the programs I have just mentioned, it will give you a good idea of how sympathetically and practically a social service worker will cooperate with you in finding a way out of whatever sort of difficulty confronts you. On the program, which is broadcast under the title of "Family Closeup," little plays are presented in which various types of family and personal problems are acted out, together with the part the welfare worker plays in helping to solve them.

You may, at the time, be so fortunate as not to need the advice that is available through this organization. But if, on the other hand, you are in trouble, you may be comforted to find that practical help is nearer than you think.

Sacred Heart Church Holds Fine Bazaar In Town Hall

Marmora—The 29th annual bazaar of Sacred Heart Church opened in the town hall on Tuesday evening with a large attendance.

The chicken supper served by the ladies was as in former years, of high quality. The several games and booths were well patronized.

The fancy work booth under the auspices of the C.W.L. had many beautiful articles for sale, and the wool comforter, and embroidered quilt, on which tickets are being sold were admired by all.

The booth operated by the Altar Society, also received much attention and many tickets were sold on a decorated three-tier fruit cake.

The sodality also supervised a fish pond and candy booth.

Among the visitors were noticed Very Reverend Father Garvin of Tweed, the Reverend Father F. L. Hyland, Madoc, the Reverend Father O'Hearn, Stirling; Dr. and Mrs. G. Fraser, Madoc; P. G. Maloney, Peterborough; Thomas Shannon, Stirling and Mrs. R. McAuley of Trenton.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Blackheads may lead to acne.

Dust-filled pores constitute one griefs. They may many complexions that, otherwise, would qualify. They will develop on any skin, but are more likely to appear when sebaceous glands are overactive and the surface is filmed with oil.

These obnoxious little points appear because the pores have become clogged with oil that has hardened into waxy-like blockades that have picked up atmospheric dust. As they suggest uncleanliness, it is not easy to live with them. They are perfect tenements for bacteria and that is why many of them develop into pustules. When acne is established, many months of medical treatment may be necessary before the face is free of this skin disorder and it makes them self-conscious and unhappy.

Soap and moist heat, together with proper regard for diet, are aids upon which one can rely. At bedtime the face should have a thorough, prolonged scrubbing until the skin is warm and glowing. A clean washcloth should be used every night.

Some skin specialists suggest the use of shaving soap because it lathers freely, can be frictioned into the flesh with the fingertips. Friction is beneficial because it stimulates circulation.

When rubbing in the lather, give the flesh quite stips with the fingertips. Force the soap

Some skin specialists recommend shaving soap

Do a large washcloth in water as hot as the flesh can comfortably bear, hold close to the face, repeat half of a dozen times. Moist heat softens the contents of the pores and, if pimples are present, it will tend to bring them to a head.

After a gentle drying, apply a lotion—made by dissolving a half teaspoonful of ordinary baking soda in half a glass of water. Let it stand on over night. In the morning, lave with clear, tepid water.

It is not safe to press out blackheads with the fingers, as the nails can cause wounds that may develop into scars. At your drugstore you can purchase a small steel instrument known as a comedone extractor. This instrument has an open circle that is placed over the dark point. When pressure is exerted, it is open and the content of the pore emerges without injury to the skin.

Diet plays an important part in overcoming this complexion defect. Butter and cream should be cut down to the limit, fried foods avoided, Chocolate is forbidden by many sensitive men who have skin diseases.

The daily bath, helping the entire skin surface to function as an organ of elimination, is a must.

Cousins Contest $300,000 Estate Wealthy Spinster

Mineola, N.Y., Nov. 10 — (AP) —A clergyman unattached to a church for 18 years is accused in Nassau county surrogate's court of using "sex and a pretence of love" to share in the $300,000 estate of a wealthy spinster.

The charge was made in a will contest suit filed by 10 cousins of Miss E. Marguerite Witte, the spinster. Her home was at Roslyn, N.Y., on Long Island. He was to receive 15 per cent of the money left after disposal of the estate, and one-fifth of the residue.

An affidavit filed by the cousins said Miss Witte met the Episcopalian clergyman, Rev. Richard Doherty, 58, of New York, in 1928.

After her parents died in the early 1930s, "Mr. Dotherty moved into her old family home in Roslyn and stayed at the house with her, almost always alone," the affidavit said.

It added that they took many long trips together to Canada, the west, southwest and south, with expenses paid by Miss Witte.

"The Rev. Mr. Doherty used a combination of sex and pretence of love to gain control over the testatrix," the affidavit said.

Quebec Workers Said Victimized And Abandoned

Montreal, Nov. 10. (CP)— The Herald said in a newspage story today that Quebec woodsmen are being victimized by a gang who promise them "guaranteed labor" in Ontario, exact at $55 transportation fee and then abandon the men in the woods.

The newspaper said union officials of one of the largest employment agencies operating in Quebec confirmed the existence of the gang and said that at least 100 men have been victimized in recent weeks.

Existence of the ring was said to have been charged by an unidentified St. Paul de la Croix lumberjack who paid $55 and then found himself abandoned in a desolate section near Sudbury.

"Operating on the same system as that of a bond-dide agency," the newspaper said, "the group solicits labor in lower south shore Quebec towns ,collects their transportation dues and then whisks them to a pre-ordained spot in known woodcutting country.

"The catch lies in the fact that the firm—or gang—apparently has no contract with a legitimate woodcutting company and the men do not secure jobs."

Lionel J. Leger and Lionel Rivrin, both of Leblanc's employment agency of Sudbury, said they were aware that a "number of men" had been taken to the Sudbury area and then abandoned. Leger said the employment a lumberjack has is to find out if the man who approaches him represents a recognized firm.

Use of Rum In Charles' Cake Shocks Drys

London, Nov. 10, (Reuters)— Temperance societies raised shocked eyebrows at the announcement that a quarter of a pint of rum had been added to the first birthday cake being made for Prince Charles, infant son of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

"It appears quite unnecessary and unphysiologic," an official of the Temperance Council of the British Churches said. "It is too early to say whether the council will consider a protest."

The prince's birthday is Monday.

Weighing 40 pounds, the birthday cake is being presented by the National Association of Master Bakers, Confectioners and Caterers. Twenty student bakers at the Manchester College of Technology worked on the cake, which is described as "a child's delight.

"A representative of the National Association of Master Bakers today defended the addition of a little rum as customary for rich cake.

"It is quite possible there may be some comment from temperance authorities," he said. "It is not essential to have rum, but it is a common practice, like adding brandy to a Christmas pudding."

Four motifs will surround the single candle, representing a teddy bear with a nightcap, a spring lamb, a rabbit and a squirrel holding an acorn.

RENTAL BOOSTS

4. Landlords who want to recover accommodation will have to show a "genuine and demonstrable need." Otherwise they may encounter "legal difficulties" if the tenant refuses to vacate. The rule which prevents these types of vacating notices falling due in the winter has been lifted for the winter of 1950-51. It remains in effect for the winter of 1949-50.

5. Landlords who show "grievous financial hardship" will be permitted to regain possession of accommodation which they previously could not recover.

6. Houses erected by companies for use of their employees become free of rental controls.

7. The rental administrator will hear cases where landlords want to regain possession of property to expand commercial enterprises.

A slight Saving

Generally, the 20 and 25 per cent increases announced by Mr. Abbott a week ago will mean increase of 18 per cent and 22 per cent on current rentals, Mr. Lobley said.

It will bring the "general overall" increases since rents were frozen in 1941 to 30 and 40 per cent over the frozen levels.

The new method of computation will mean a slight saving, the administrator added, if the increases had been allowed to "pyramid", it would have meant additional increases of about 80 cents on a house now renting for $44 a month.

The landlord's offer to grant the new lease if the tenant accepts the rental hikes can be made any time after Dec. 15.

If the tenant declines the offer he will be given 30-days notice to vacate. Those who have long-term leases will not be affected until the leases expire.

Explains Differences

Mr. Lobley also indicated that one of the big headaches was to distinguish a self-contained dwelling from "rooms" or "lodgings".

"The distinguishing characteristic is whether the occupant is required by the terms of his lease to share a water-closet or some similar equipment with any other person who is not a member of his household.

"If the occupant has the exclusive use of this equipment for himself and his household, the accommodation will be classified as a self-contained dwelling; otherwise, it will be classified as a lodging.

Those living in lodgings and unwilling to pay the 20-per-cent rent increase can be given six-months notice to vacate.

No Control After Vacancy

If landlords and tenants agree to leases of two years or more, the amount of rent paid will be whatever the landlords and tenants agree on. This can be greater or smaller than the official ceilings.

But if the tenant takes the two-year lease, the landlord cannot evict him before the two years are up—even though the house may be sold in the meantime.

Personal History of Prince Charles Kept by His Mother, Elizabeth

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 10 .(CP)—The tumbles, tears and bath-splashings of Prince Charles during his first year of life are recorded in a slim, vellum-bound volume which Princess Elizabeth keeps in her writing desk.

This is Elizabeth's own personal history of the blue-eyed, fair-haired prince who will be one year old next Monday. It has been faithfully kept—more faithfully, perhaps, than most diaries.

On the first page is his date and hour, 9.10 p.m., Nov. 14, 1948, of the baby's birth. Then follows his names— Charles Philip Arthur George, and those of his godparents — they are the King, Queen Mary, Princess Margaret, The King of Norway, Prince George of Greece, the Dowager Marchioness of Milford Haven, Lady Brabourne and Hon. David Bowes-Lyon.

The pages that follow contain the little domestic and personal details that every mother likes to tell about her baby, beginning with several snapshots taken when the prince was only a few days old.

One shows him lying on a shawl-draped table near one of the palace windows. Written underneath is: "Three days old—with his eyes open".

Early in the book Elizabeth records that her small son has deep violet-blue eyes, pale gold hair, delicate features and long, artistic fingers.

At the end of each weekly page is a record of the baby's weight. He was seven pounds, six ounces at birth and had more than doubled this weight before he was three months old.

Some fretful days when Charles was six months old preface the entry "First tooth is ready to come through. We are very excited."

Other entries tell how the baby pulled himself up by a chair and of his subsequent tumbles, bumps and tears. Then came the day when he stood by himself and was "so proud you could see him swelling with it."

Angel-Faced Boy Is Holy Terror

Wolverhampton, England.— (CP)—An angelic-looking fair-haired boy of nine was said, in juvenile court, to be "quite beyond" the discipline of a normal children's home.

Offences listed against him were:

Stealing workmen's dinners, raiding the pantry and stealing babies' orange juice, lighting fires under windows, grievously assaulting a six-year-old boy, causing one of the staff at the children's home to resign, stealing from other boys, breaking windows.

The boy, whose parents could not be traced, was sent to a remand home for 14 days while his case is being considered.

Display Windows May be Lighted During Christmas

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 10—(CP)—Ontario power restrictions may be eased early next month to permit merchants' display windows to blaze with light during the Christmas shopping season.

This was announced Wednesday night by Robert Saunders Hydro-Electric Power Commission was able to generate, purchase and deliver to the residents of Ontario 28,200,000 kilowatt hours more than the amount delivered during the corresponding week last year.

The increase was due to improvement in stream flow and to higher production of power at various Ontario generating plants, Mr. Saunders said. He added:

"We are this year in a much better condition than we were a year ago. We have been fortunate in having moderate rainfall since September. It is our hope and actual expectation that we shall not be forced to take further steps to conserve power and that in December, before the Christmas rush, we shall be able to ease the restrictions to the retail merchants who in the last two years have taken the power shortage on the chin."

Restrictions on use of electricity for advertising and display purposes now are in effect, together with a ban on electric heaters.

Mr. Saunders also announced that construction of a $150,000,000 60-cycle power plant on the Niagara River near the Queenston power house will start as soon as a treaty for diversion of the water is negotiated between Canada and the United States: that a steam plant near Hamilton will go into operation next Monday, to be followed shortly by steam plants at Scarboro, near Toronto, and at Chatham and Thorold.

Takes Youth and Agility To Handle Cage of Lions

By JACK QUIGG

El Monte, Calif., Nov. 10 (AP) "It takes youth and agility to handle lions . . ." Charles Gay spoke the words quietly, sadly, as he eyed the sign that proclaimed his life's work ended.

The sign outside the internationally-famed Gay's lion farm read:

"Closed until further notice."

But there will be no further notice. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gay have announced that their showplace, shuttered "for the duration" in 1942, will be put up for sale instead of reopened.

The couple is no longer young. And Gay wears livid scars souvenirs left by tearing claws on the four occasions he was mauled, to remind him that agility is paramount in handling lions.

The pair began their extraordinary venture July 1, 1935, when they opened their jungle-compound with 37 lions. When they closed the door in 1942, 217 big cats stalked the concrete pens.

In that period hundreds of thousands of visitors toured the 350-by-680 feet wooded farm. Gay and his wife became two of the most skilful lion trainers in the world.

Two trainers lost their lives on occasions when the Gays were away. Once, while putting 18 lions through an act, a trainer stumbled backward, fell, was pounced upon and killed. Again five lions escaped and dispatched a trainer trying to restrain them.

The beat known act, the one that held spectators enthralled, was that in which Mrs. Gay lay on a pedestal while Nunez, their biggest least reclined across her body. Gay kept the cat's attention focused on his whip.

and he wasn't going to have liquor on his trains. There were bars at the stations and, in effect, if travellers wanted alcohol they would have to stock up at the stations.

Comments the Sydney Daily Telegraph: "This is inconsistent, impertinent and improvident. Mr. Garside does not propose to close the station bars where liquor swilled when the train comes in makes an ordinary six o'clock house rush in Sydney look like a courtly promenade.

"It is impertinent because the commissioner is using his special power to impose a personal prejudice on the whole travelling public.

"Finally his refusal to allow travellers to enjoy a service they get in Victoria, on airlines, and on first class trains throughout the world is improvident, because it will not help to make New South Wales Railways popular with those wealthy overseas tourists whose custom we hope to attract and the deficit - ridden railways department hopes to win away from the airlines."

Aussies Want Beer On Plush New Train

Sydney, Australia, —(CP)— New South Wales Government Railways is using more and more passenger traffic to the faster, more comfortable and not expensive private airlines, are now trying to compete by providing better-than-usual expresses.

Luxuriously fitted air-conditioned carriages and a cafeteria are popular with passengers on the expresses, but there are growls from some who find they cannot get anything harder to drink than a milk shake.

They point out that the airlines serve beer and spirits on their planes and the railways should be able to do as least as much.

But temperance alliances have found a staunch supporter in railways commissioner F. C. Garside. Government pressure on hing- to-install bars in the new trains has met with a firm refusal.

Mr. Garside pointed out that he was not answerable to the government but, to Parliament.

Motor Trip to West Described By Former Resident of District

Mrs. Halstead Horn, a native-born Ontarian who motored to the west coast early in the summer, has written an account on her trip with the thought that it may be of interest to her many friends.

Mrs. Horn expressed the thought that it was too bad that more Canadians did not see more of this vast country and it was with this idea in mind that she forwarded this account to The Ontario Intelligencer.

Mrs. Horn, who resides at White Rock, Hill Top P.O., B.C., was a pupil of the late George Kingston, who was well known in this district. Mrs. Horn still considers the east as home though as she writes "having spent most of my life in the prairies I find the west has a fascination all its own."

Following is the first part of her story which began in Belleville and continued to Winnipeg.

"After visiting the eastern cities of Montreal, Quebec, Ottawa, Niagara Falls and Toronto, we left Belleville June 17th for Port McNichol to board the C.P.R. boat Assiniboia for Port William. We had a very enjoyable trip crossing the lake as the weather was ideal and the scenery was lovely. We met and also saw in the distance many other steamers, some were laden with passengers, others were carrying ore from the mines to the large smelters, while others were loaded with grain for the east. As you know Port William and Port Arthur have very large storage elevators to house the western crop.

Arriving in Fort William on the 20th of June, we got our car off the boat and started on our way to Kenora over a very good highway. Just a short distance out of Fort William we came to Kakabeka Falls and we stopped to see and wonder at the awe inspiring sight of the falls and the deep gorge that the river has worn in the rock as it goes on its way. There are many lakes and rivers along the highway also very high rocks and one often sees little streams of water trickling from some small crevice in the rock. Other stretches of the highway have been very heavily timbered but as you go on his way, much or this lumber is finding its way to the lumber and pulp mills of Ontario.

Scenic Grandeur

Many of the lakes were bordered with water lilies in bloom, it is very hard to describe the grandeur of the rocks lowering over the highway or even to the side as the composition of those rocks seem to vary, and I have seen pebbles and pieces of rock from pale pink to deep terra cotta in color, while others shine like silver or precious stones. Then again there are some beautiful shades of turquoise and aquamarine. One has only to spend an hour or two in the museum at Ottawa to see what this Dominion of ours can produce in colors with quartz. Had I picked up all the pretty pebbles and bits of rock I saw in beautiful colors, the car would have been overloaded.

We had lunch at a railroad town by the name of Ignall, where the Y.M.C.A. runs a hotel for the employees of the railroad, and also provides rooms and meals for the travelling public. Arrived in Kenora, a lovely city on the Lake of the Woods, in time for dinner at seven. At one time this beautiful city was called Rat Portage while the neighboring town-ship were called Norma and Keewatin. Some inspired person had the idea of taking the first two letters of the three cities' names and making a new one so that Rat Portage became Kenora.

Many Islands

The Lake of the Woods is dotted with many hundreds of islands, some very small, up to others of several acres in extent. These islands have been, and many still are, very heavily wooded. There is a lot of lumbering throughout the district and large pulp mills are busy all the time. Kenora is built on the hills which are composed mostly of rock and yet it astonishes one to see the grand trees and many varieties of flowers growing in what appears to be just a few inches of soil over the rock surface. Kenora is a real vacationists' paradise as there is good hotel accommodation overlooking the lake and numerous auto camps for those who prefer them. Traffic through this city is very heavy during the summer from east of the line east then, to Winnipeg is only 150 miles westward. A grand highway goes through Kenora to Winnipeg, the gateway to the west.

Many of the islands have lovely summer homes built by wealthy folk from our own cities and towns and by citizens from south of the border. I don't wish you to think that only the wealthy go to Kenora, that is not so, there is a place for everyone who cares to go to Kenora and we found the people most kind and hospitable any time we have been there.

Served by Small Boat

On the lake there is a small boat called the Argyll that acts as a ferry between Coney Island and the mainland as many residents in Kenora have summer homes on Coney and unless they own a motor boat, the ferry is their only means of going to and from the island. As the Argyll can accommodate around seventy-five passengers, for fifty cents one can go on a sight seeing tour around the lake for two hours through what is known as the Devil's Gap, on the right bank is a huge boulder with a most hideous face painted thereon, supposed to be like the devil or some one else of what his Satanic Majesty could look like. The chap in charge points out special points of interest including the two very up-to-date and modern hospitals on one of the islands that is connected to the mainland by a new steel and concrete bridge. There is also the C.P.R. camp, several camps kept by church organizations for their young folk. He will also draw to your attention the many grand summer homes, and tell who lives in which.

I noticed many of the large homes seemed to be built on high points of land surrounded by tall, stately evergreens. As most of them own one or more motor boats or launches, the boat house is at the water's edge, the boats are housed on the water level for those who prefer them. Traffic through this city is very heavy during the summer from east of the line east then, to Winnipeg is only 150 miles westward. A grand highway goes through Kenora to Winnipeg, the gateway to the west.

Many of the islands have lovely summer homes built by wealthy folk from our own cities and towns and by citizens from south of the border. I don't wish you to think that only the wealthy go to Kenora, that is not so, there is a place for everyone who cares to go to Kenora and we found the people most kind and hospitable any time we have been there.

Found 'Soo' Interesting

Of course I don't need to tell the people of Ontario of the beauties of their own province, they already know it is a beautiful province, I was born there so I know where of I speak, but I must hurry on as I wish to tell you of the wonderful things to see in the vast country that lies west of Ontario's boundary. Had I time I would tell you of many interesting things to be seen in Sudbury and Copper Cliff, there is much mining is done, I would like to mention Sault Ste. Marie where the locks are. It is always very interesting to me, watching how the water is raised to allow the boats to pass from one lake to the other.

Going down in 1940 when a good friend would not whisper too close, my husband and I remarked what a vulnerable spot the Soo would be were at the Soo. We take so much for granted, but did you ever stop to think what would happen to the east if the boats could not pass through? If those locks were destroyed, where would you get much of your daily bread and where would you market much of your finished products could they not come west? Of course, you say, we have the railroads. Oh, yes, but when the locks go the railroad may already be gone. We Canadians have inherited a rich and wonderful country and it is up to every one of us to see that nothing happens to this great inheritance of ours.

Leaving Kenora, it is only a few miles to Manitoba boundary and one marvels at the change in the topography. From Kenora to the boundary there are numerous lakes along or near the highway and summer homes and camps with numerous oil stands and cafes, but after entering Manitoba the country becomes more level and has some of the best wheat growing land in the Dominion."

Judgment Reserved In $10,000 Breach Of Promise Suit

Toronto, Nov. 10—(CP)—Judgment was reserved Tuesday in the $10,000 breach of promise suit brought by a Saskatoon stenographer against a 53-year-old physician from Keewatin, Ont.

Dr. William A. Baker testified in civil court Tuesday that at the time he was writing ardent love letters to Miss May Russell, 29, he had "feelings" about their engagement.

In April, 1948—36 days before his proposed wedding—Dr. Baker wrote Miss Russell that "the suspense is killing me. . . love and kisses, Bill." Three months later he was married to Mary Medley, a former Winnipeg nurse.

Dr. Baker could offer cross examination that he delayed breaking his engagement to Miss Russell because he "didn't want to let her down too hard."

Miss Russell claimed Baker broke a promise of marriage only a few days before the wedding date. She said she had bought her trousseau, made hotel reservations, gave notice she was leaving her place of employment and inserted a notice of marriage in a newspaper.

Dr. Baker said he broke off his engagement because he considered Miss Russell mentally unstable to stand the strain of being his wife, as he had a rigid postgraduate training to undergo. In his testimony yesterday, Dr. Baker said Miss Russell could not be militated because of an operation in 1945. Miss Russell said they assured her the operation would not prevent her from having children.

New Book on Bugs Is Boon to Tyros

Toronto (CP)——A new book designed specifically for the beginner or amateur insect collector "introducing the Insect" (Clarke, Irwin), by F. A. Urquhart, director of the Royal Ontario Museum of Zoology, fills a gap on Canadian biological bookshelves.

While most of the book consists of a systematic study of insects, with identification 'keys' used extensively the early chapters are devoted to collecting, with hints on collecting and mounting equipment and ways of improvising such equipment.

Apart from its obvious value to the tyro collector, the book serves as an introduction not only to entomology, but to systematic biology in general. For those who wish to make a more detailed study, a photographic plates of moths and butterflies, which are apparently intended as an added inducement for collectors, who might not be so enthusiastic about collecting bedbugs and fleas.

'Kids Only' Records Educate Painlessly

And it's paying off—both for the companies and the children. quality of children's records has been improving steadily since the war. Unless you've heard some of the late releases, you'd be surprised at the ideas — which used to be classed with castor oil—now being eased down the kiddies.

Virtually every major company has a stable of "for kids only" talent (Capitol, Gilderslevee, Decca, Frank Luther; Victor, Peal Wing), and augments it with children's releases by the regular artists."

More and more, children's records are verging on the educational field, where the Young People's Record club pioneered N.P.R. puts out monthly releases in two age groups, under six and over six years old. Each record is planned to invoke listener participation. Musically, they run the gamut from symphony to jazz. (One release, jazz band, traces the growth of the native American form from New Orleans on up the river, Teddy Wilson leads the musicians).

Written and produced by Howard Grode, the material is tailored well for O'Brien's personality. The six sides—half narration and half song—include the title song (perhaps the most ingratiating), "The Mail Man," "Happy House We Live In," "Ice Cream Man," "The Grocery Clerk," and "Ding Dong Bell." Neely Plumb's sprightly arrangements spruce up the production.

Develop New Cheese For English Market

Toronto, (CP)— Canadian dairy producers are shooting at a lucrative English market for Cheshire cheese, a type never before made commercially in Canada.

And if present research successes, samples of the first Canadian-made Cheshire will go on display at the Royal Winter Fair which opens in Toronto Nov. 13.

Ontario Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy said that before Britain's austerity program went into effect, the people of the Midlands in England were particularly interested in Cheshire cheese. Austerity plans controlled milk so that the cheese was impossible to make.

"It appears therefore that there may be an outlet where Canadian cheese makers might market this type of cheese, if they wish to undertake it," Mr. Kennedy said. "It is marketed at 10 to 12 weeks of age or longer according to the taste of the customer, and is a type of cheese that is quite tart.

"There seems no reason why we cannot develop a good Cheshire cheese for the English market at least. And, of course, we are not neglecting the possibility of developing a taste for it in Canada and the United States."

Samples of the cheese were brought from England and expert at the Ontario Agricultural College Guelph, went to work to break down the samples and produce an Ontario made Cheshire in time for the Royal Winter Fair.

Colombia Declares State of Siege Before Elections

Congress Suspended, Capital is Cordoned Off

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 10. — (AP)— Colombia's Conservative Government has decreed a state of siege and suspended all sessions of the Liberal-dominated Congress in a move climaxing weeks of pre-election clashes in which hundreds were reported to have died.

Censorship of press and radio also was ordered by President Mariano Ospina Perez.

(News of the state of siege was filed Wednesday night by the Associated Press Correspondent in Bogota and was not received in New York until this morning.)

The state of siege was proclaimed Wednesday night after troops cordoned off Colombia's capitol building and stood guard throughout the country to suppress any further outbreaks of the bitter fighting which has raged for the past month between Liberals and Conservatives.

The president also suspended sessions of departmental assemblies and municipal councils.

Widespread rumors of assassination attempts against political leaders were denied officially by the national radio.

Many business places in the centre of the city closed early Wednesday afternoon as troops began moving through the streets.

Earlier Wednesday the government imposed a 9 p.m. to dawn curfew in Bogota and in Cali, Colombia's fourth largest city to keep everyone off the streets at night.

Troops Dispatched

Troops were dispatched to strategic points throughout the country. Government dispatches were let under heavier guard.

Speculation grew that the army might take over power from the civilian government to curb outbreaks between Conservative and Liberal party supporters.

Though Bogota has been free of political violence recently, party newspapers in recent weeks have reported a steadily rising wave of hard fighting between groups of Conservative and Liberal extremists. Each party blames the other for the fighting.

Death Toll Placed at 500

The government has confirmed only a few of the reports. Press accounts put the death toll at more than 500 in the last two weeks of October alone.

The Conservatives so far have appeared determined to hold the election Nov. 27, with Laureano Gomez as their candidate. The Liberals have said they will boycott the voting. The charge the government has not preserved order and any election results will not be a free vote.

In April, 1948, the assassination of a Liberal leader touched off wholesale riots in which 1,200 persons were killed in Bogota and 300 elsewhere in the country.

SAFECRACKERS GET $3,000

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Safecrackers today blasted open the office safe of Seagram-Distillers Ltd., in downtown Toronto, with nitro-glycerine and stole between $2,000 and $3,000 in cash and a number of Victory bonds.

Police said the job was evidently the work of experts. The small safe and some office furniture was wrecked. The theft was discovered when the office manager came to work.

UNION OPERATORS ASKED TO WORK ON PEACE PLAN

Trying to Avert New Mine Strike Now Due on December 1st

Washington, Nov. 10 (AP)— The government today called in John Lewis and coal operators seeking to get them working on a peace plan that would avert a new mine strike now due Dec. 1.

The operators promised to attend the meeting called by federal mediation chief Cyrus S. Ching, but nobody was sure in advance that union leader Lewis would be on hand.

Lewis is reported to have left Chicago Wednesday, where he suddenly called off the 52 - day coal strike.

Lewis and the coal operators have been growling at each other without any evident progress toward a new contract ever since the old one expired July 1.

It was learned the government aid presents is not designed to let a new strike occur without some sort of White House action.

"I don't think we can sit idly by and let them go into a long period of idle negotiations, and force another strike," Ching told reporters.

Meanwhile, the coal mines were being put back into production as fast as the pits could be reached for the miners. Railroad workers were being called back on some lines.

Lewis wants a boost in miners' pay, shorter work hours, and an increase in the present 30-cent-a-ton royalty on coal production for the miners' health and welfare fund.

He is reported to have asked at least one group of owners for a $15 daily wage, seven-hour day and 40-cent-a-ton royalty. Miners now get $14.05 for an 8-hour day.

Lewis' sudden action calling off his strike seemed to be due to a combination of circumstances. His own miners were becoming impatient, the public was being hard hit by lack of fuel with colder weather here, and there was less than normal pressure for a coal settlement on account of the simultaneous steel strike.

Unpardonable — To Delay Train

Tokyo, Nov. 10 (AP)—True 10, 28, was en route to Utsunomiya today for trial in the slaying of her husband.

But a way station she leaped from her police guards, stripped off her clothes and plunged naked into the crowd at the station.

Passengers and police were shocked—not so much by her actions, but by her act.

It is an unpardonable offence in Japan to delay a train.

HEAVY CANADIAN SPENDING IN U.S. REDUCES PROFIT

$21,000,000 Poured Into Purchases of United States Goods

Ottawa, Nov. 10 (CP)—Canadian tourists, taking advantage of increased customs exemptions in force this year, have poured more than $21,000,000 into purchases of United States goods.

W. R. Miller of the bureau of statistics told delegates at the final session of the fourth annual Dominion-Provincial tourist conference Wednesday that this spending would largely offset a marked increase in the amount tourists of other countries spent in the Dominion.

Reflecting the increased spending by Canadians, was an announcement released by the finance department Wednesday that rationing of United States dollars for pleasure travel will continue for at least another year.

The regulations, limiting Canadians to $10 a year in U.S. money for pleasure travel outside the Dominion, first went into effect in November, 1947.

Will Reach New High

Some 45 delegates representing each of the 10 provinces, the federal government and interested travel and transportation agencies, heard Mr. Miller estimate that Canada's tourist trade would reach a new high in 1949. He estimated that during the first six months of 1949, American travellers had spent about eight per cent more than the similar period in 1948.

However, he said, this balance would be cut considerably by an almost 50-per-cent increase in Canadian spending in the U.S. This was largely due to easier customs exemption was limited customs exemption was limited to $ a person. This year the exemption had been increased to $100.

Mr. Miller also said that drastic devaluation of European currencies probably would clip off a chunk of the U.S. tourist trade by Canada next summer. This loss is expected to be more than overcome by Canada's more modest 10-per-cent devaluation.

64-YEAR-OLD WOMAN BEATEN AND ROBBED

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP) — A 64-year-old woman was beaten and robbed of her purse containing $7 early today as she walked alone through a section of suburban York township.

Mrs. Matilda Hall said a youth, aged about 25, hit her on the head with his fist and snatched her purse.

Some Companies Dealing With Parent Union

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10. (AP) — North America's electrical industry today faces a tough problem: Will it deal with the left-wing United Electrical Workers or the new opposition union set up by the C.I.O.?

Half dozen companies already have come to grips with the problem and have met it in one of three ways:

1. General Electric Company has announced it will deal only with the parent U.E. unless the U.S. National Labor Relations Board orders it to do otherwise.

2. Westinghouse Electric Corporation said it will be strictly neutral and deal with both the left and right-wing groups.

3. Employers of four small locals in New York and New Jersey already have signed contracts with the new C.I.O. group.

The situation arose as a result of the expulsion of the U.E. by the National C.I.O. last week. The expulsion was made on the grounds the U.E. had too many left-wing policies. The C.I.O. immediately set up its own counter-organization—the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

The new group, by the score of thousands, have come flocking U.E. locals whose memberships are preponderantly right-wing. A national survey has disclosed more than 100,000 have shown a preference for the C.I.O.—either by bolting outright through membership meetings or by other strong actions.

This was to have been expected: on unofficial estimate, the U.E.'s 600,000 to 450,000 membership, prior to the split, was about half right and half left.

BOYS WERE FLUSH

London, Ont., Nov. 10 — (CP) —Murray M. Dillon, former army brigadier, found the boys flush and generous Wednesday night when he passed around the hat to buy a $350 portable radio for patients at Westminster Veterans Hospital. A total of $310 in cash and $50 in cheques was donated at the soldiers' reunion dinner.

Second Unsolved Slaying Faces Vancouver Police

Vancouver, Nov. 10 (CP) — Two so-far unsolved and similar-ly-ringed Vancouver police today—the two coming within about a month of each other.

Police Wednesday night announced that stricken Ferne Blanche Faber, 45, had been murdered, perhaps criminally assaulted. Her partially - unclothed body was found floating Wednesday morning in False Creek. She disappeared the night before.

Only last Oct. 8, the nude body of Joyce Monasteresk1, 25-year-old former Saskatchewan resident, was discovered on a city beach. She was last seen Sept. 17 when she left fellow employees of a Stanley Park pavilion to catch a bus home.

No arrests have been made yet in either case.

Miss Flaher lived with three brothers and a sister in Vancouver's east end. She was employed as a dress fitter in a department store.

Her killer must have watched and known her habits," her grief-stricken sister said.

She added Miss Flaher always attended movies alone Tuesdays. Only mark of foul play was a skin abrasion on the forehead. No trace of missing underclothes shoes or stockings has been found, police said.

Paralleling the Monasteresk1 case was the fact all hair except that on the victim's head was shaved. In the Monasteresk1 case, there were no signs of violence on the sea-bulleted corpse.

ALL WORKERS BACK.

Galt, Nov. 10—(CP)—The walkout of 150 employees of the H. Paterson Co., which started Tuesday morning has ended, All of the workers were back on the job today.

It was reported the dispute was over the discharge of nine old employees of the company.

There was no immediate clue to reluctance to issue a statement or discussion of settlement stating it was up to steel workers union officials to make any announcement. The organizer of the union has not yet been located for comment.

POPE EXPRESSES APPREHENSION OVER HOLY PLACES

Asks All Christians Pray for Just Solution

Vatican City, Nov. 10 (Reuters) — Pope Pius today sent a message to all Roman Catholic bishops, expressing "apprehension" over the future of the holy places in Palestine.

In a papal exhortation the pope urgently appealed to Christians all over the world to pray for a "just solution" of the problem of the holy places which, he said, was of vital interest to 425,000,000 Roman Catholics and to the entire Christian world.

The pope's message was issued on the eve of the United Nations debate on the future of Jerusalem and other sacred places in Palestine.

In April, the Pope called for an international regime for Jerusalem and its surrounding areas, the safeguarding of all holy places in Palestine, free access for all pilgrims, liberty for all Catholic cultural institutions in the country and conservation of the rights acquired there by Catholics.

MINISTERS AGREE DISMANTLING SHOULD STOP

Industry Should be Given More Freedom

Paris, Nov. 10. (AP) — The West's big three foreign ministers were reported today to have agreed that most dismantling of German industry should stop.

State Secretary Dean Acheson of the United States, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of Britain and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France, also were said by informed sources to have moved closer to allowing the new west German republic to join the Council of Europe.

Conditions for discontinuing the dismanting of German plants had yet to be worked out in the big three talks that opened Wednesday. Britain still insists that such potential war industries as synthetic rubber and synthetic oil should be torn down, one source said.

The ministers reported "satisfactory progress" in Wednesday's talks and expected to wind up tonight or early tomorrow morning with a definite announcement of agreement.

Diplomatic sources said they had reached accord in principle, at least, on ways to give western Germany an international voice for the first time since the war's end, possibly modifying the state of war which still exists between the western Allies and the former enemy country.

Broad policy revisions were being studied, apparently to counter Russia's exchange of diplomats with the Soviet-supported eastern German government and the possibility that Red Army troops might be withdrawn from east Germany.

Informed sources said all three ministers agreed tentatively that the west-sponsored Bonn regime should be admitted as an associate member of the Council of Europe—a 15-country advisory parliament striving toward European unity.

Canberra, Australia (CP) — Magpies have frequently interrupted telephone services in treeless areas by building nests on the cross-arms of the poles. Now maintenance men have put wire mesh frame-works on the ends of the arms and the magpies build there.

Hides $890 In Water Heater, Bills are Charred

Daytona Beach, Fla., Nov. 10 (AP)—A hot bath may cost Fred Blackburn $890.

He hid $890 in an envelope in the water heater at his home while he went fishing. Back from the fishing trip, he lit the heater to take a bath. A few minutes later, he recalled hiding the money. He opened the heater and found only charred remains of the currency.

A bank advised him Wednesday to send the remain to the United States treasury in Washington. Bank officials said government experts might rule in his favor and send him new bills to replace the charred fragments.

Murder Charge Laid Against Child's Father

North Bay, Nov. 10. (CP) — Herbert Douglas Merriman of nearby West Ferris was charged with murder today in the death of his nine-month-old son.

Police said the child, Richard, died Monday night while his mother was visiting at the home of her husband's parents in North Bay. The child was left in the care of his father's charge, Mrs. Merriman said when she returned home the baby was dead.

Crown Attorney E. A. Tilley said that he had not received the coroner's autopsy report, but that the infant's body was nearly half covered with bruises. This substantiated an earlier announcement that the child died as the result of blows.

Merriman was arrested a few hours after the death was reported to police and lodged in North Bay district jail.

A veteran of six years overseas with the Canadian Army, Merriman was employed as a carpenter by a North Bay contractor. He is said to have suffered from shell shock and that one of his fellow workers described him as a cheerful man.

"He was always joking about something," the workman said.

JOHN L. AND CO. IN POLICY POW-WOW

John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers' committee are conferring in Chicago to consider all aspects of the U.S. soft-coal strike that began last Sept. 19 and made idle more than 375,000 miners. There are rumors circulating in Washington that if there is no decision in the strike by next Wednesday, the government may move in to end the dispute. Here Lewis strikes a serious pose with Thomas Kennedy, vice-president of U.M.W., (left), and John Owens of Cambridge, international secretary of U.M.W., as they arrived for the meeting of the 280-man policy committee. Lewis had "no comment" w. en advised of the U.S. supreme court action upholding the $1,420,0 J in contempt fines levied because of U.M.W. refusal to halt the it .S coal strike. — Central Press Canadian.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

Martin did not dare think of the lab. It made him feel weak and sentimental. It was like a lost home to him. He went to bed. As Martin was tall and the bed short he had devised a method of his own for going to sleep. He hung his legs over the foot rail.

Martin had some correspondence these days, even though the letter he was so certain of did not arrive. For example, he received a picture post card of the public gardens at Linz completely covered with signatures, informing him that the water-polo team of the Austria S. and R. Club had beaten the Linz S-S. Mip, hip, hurrah.

Whereupon Martin without delay bought a picture postcard and, in congratulating his friend Hopfner, who was on the committee of the club, told him that he, Martin, was in very good form and training hard, and that his last time for the fifteen hundred meters was 21.36 in open water, please note. Further he had got to know a girl who belonged to the Berlin H.S.C., who was a remarkably fine diver. Hurrah!

Or there came a letter from his mother which little Matz trium-phantly delivered with beaming face. She wrote as mothers are accustomed to write. "My dear boy," it began, "I am glad to hear that you are well and getting to know so many nice people. Perhaps one or other of them may be able to get you into a job. Be careful you don't get a chill swimming and don't jump into cold water when you are hot. I am very well and you need have no anxiety about me. I have paid three schillings to the pawnbroker for your bicycle so that you shan't lose it. I am rather at a standstill for the July rent. However this week I have got some bones-work through the Distressed Ladies Association—making doll's clothes. The cold in my eyes is better, but I have been so clumsy as to break my spectacles. Your very loving mother."

For two days after receiving this letter Martin was silent and absorbed. He made pencil-notes and calculations, and consulted his little account book. Unfortunately too the weather broke; it did not actually rain, but a chill and clinging mist descended from the hills to the lake, and the beach was dry no longer. Martin leaned despondently against the fence and stared across at the tennis courts. He had put on his faded bathing cloak, but all the same he shivered. For two days he had gone without hot food, and eaten nothing but raw eggs, milk, and apples—sour green windfalls that were cheap to buy.

May put a kiss on her racket and sent it over to him from the tennis courts; after that it seemed a bit warmer. Then, in spite of the cold, inclement weather Pampert Mayreder came with his mother and both had lessons.

Yes, Frau Mayreder, too, was now learning to swim, in spite of the fact that she could really swim already, she wanted to improve her style, so she told her husband as well as Herr Hell, and ever since then she had turned up every day and in all weathers.

Poor Frau Mayreder. She really disliked the water. Secretly she feared the wet and cold, and the hostile depths of the lake. Her daily bathe was an act of heroic self-sacrifice. It was torture when Martin had to fetch the widest belt to strap her in. But nothing deterred her. Why did she not stay in peace at her Pension Gerstle on the outskirts of the village at the southern end of the lake

No, something dragged and pulled at her and gave her no rest until she had said: "Come along, Pamperl, we'll go and have our bathe."

So much for Frau Mayreder and the thirty groschen she brought in daily—for Pamperl paid only half and had a child's season ticket, the proceeds of which had long since been spent at the Schwimmschule. It need but be remarked in passing that Frau Mayreder showed no promise at all of improving her deplorable style, particularly as to her other shortcomings as to her sadly turmoil of emotion and scantiness of breath.

On the third day after Martin received the letter from his mother, between the lines of which he could read so much, it rained as continuously that even the tennis courts were deserted. Martin forsook the beach and risked a visit to the lounge of the Big Peternann. Most of the visitors were collected there, standing about or sunk in armchairs, reading old newspapers or playing cards. There was the smell of moist tweeds and freshly greased climbing boots. Martin had put on his rain coat. His hair was wet with the rain, and his tanned face looked a little pale and chilly, as he made for a pair of trim gray woollen ankles there, standing a moment later that these merely belonged to Carla he was about to turn back, when Carla's voice rang through the whole lounge.

"Hello Martin, are you looking for May? Sit down here and talk to me. May has gone out to buy some flins—

Martin hesitated and unwillingly turned around. "I wanted—my case I've got to—" he stammered.

Carla looked at this nice young man who belonged entirely to her sister. "Pity," she said quietly as she let fall the hand that had beckoned him.

Martin retreated. "Excuse me," he added as he made off. At this moment, just as Martin was leaving the lounge, he encountered a woman who was handing in her key to the porter, Eggenhofer. It was a very young lady of exceedingly delicate and dainty figure, who now turned upon Martin a face as finely-decorated and painted as that of a Chinese deity. Her heavy black hair lay like a cap down almost to her finely arched eyebrows, and her bright red lips were parted in astonishment. Martin stopped dead as if he had run his head against a wall.

"Anika . . ." he said. "Anikunchka . . ."

"Good day, noble sir," the lady replied, looking at him with an odd mixture of confusion and laughter.

In the background the porter, Eggenhofer, delivered a message. "The count rang me to tell your ladyship that he would be back from the hairdresser's in an hour's time."

"Very well," said the lady distractedly. "My husband will please wait for me in the lounge. I am going to the post."

"So am I. I am going to the post too," said Martin eagerly, and in a moment they were out in the little square. She put up an umbrella, which Martin immediately took from her hand, and they walked together along beneath it.

"Did you hear, dear?" the lady said. "The count, that's my husband, he's sometimes—that's me. So, be on your best behavior, Bulli, and don't go busting in on Anika Anikunchka's."

"Yes, but—Ani, Anika—Oh, tell me . . . ."

"I felt sure we should run across each other as soon as I saw that photograph of you. It is all over the place, and everyone is buying your picture post cards like mad. I thought to myself: Now for a fine scene when Bulli first meets you. However, we got through it very well, and so let me introduce myself — the countess. And how are things going with you, my Bulli boy? Have you ever thought of me again? Or forgotten me completely? And everything else?"

"Forgotten! What nonsense! What do you think? I was only heart broken and a little bit angry when you dropped me all at once like that, so joke, for after all I had grown very fond . . .

"Oh, Bulli!" said the countess, and she looked down at her brown brogues as they splashed through the puddles. So he had been heartbroken, poor Bulli! "Now-well, it wasn't very nice for me either; a girl like me has got to live, after all, and what could come of two poor devils like us hanging on to each other? As a matter of fact, I went off just time with a man to Paris, after that I got an engagement in Zurich—a very good one—in 'Rouge et noir.' Then finally I was in a revue, a sotten show, I can tell you; I don't want any more of that. Well, and now—.

"You're married to Count Czerenyi? I think he's a horror. I can't stand him!"

"Hy Bulli!"

"Because . . . because he looks like a greyhound—and shouldn't look like that. I'm sorry."

"Oh, rubbish, greyhounds are very nice. I like him looking like a greyhound."

Martin caught hold of Anika's hand and held it fast.

"Let me see your wedding ring," he said.

The countess had a very dainty hand, and her fingers though short were pretty and adorned with many rings. Her little nails were manicured into small, highly polished pink claws, which had a scent of violet cream.

"Aha!" said Martin. "I know that ring. A fake—only for appearances." He laughed with pleasure. Anika attempted a look of injured dignity, and she laughed, too.

"Well, yes—" she said, with an indescribable Viennese air of comic resignation. "But don't make a scandal of it before the good folk here. They'd take their oath that I was a countess born. Here we are at the post office. Shall you be long?"

"No," said Martin, looking grave. "I am only going to see if there's a letter for me, and to send a little money to my mother. I shan't be a moment. Wait for me, Anikunchka; we'll go back together. I am glad we've met again, aren't you?"

It was very stuffy in the little post office, and pools of water ran from the umbrellas of the bored visitors who crowded around the counter. There was no letter for Martin, and for a moment he stood,-agitating with nervous eyes. Then he went to the desk in the corner and made out a money order for fourteen schillings, and then taking the money out of his pockets paid it in at the counter. It was his earnings for a week of fine weather. It was the sum he had designed for the purchase of the tennis shoes. He sent it on its way— a poor little heap of notes and coins.

"Next, please," said the young lady at the post office, and Martin with his eyes fixed on all his disappearing wealth, was pushed aside.

Anika was waiting for him at the door; her eyes shone with suppressed tears and a hanker-chief was screwed up in her hand.

"Something wrong? in a temper? Do you want to fight and scratch?" he asked good-humoredly, and put his own troubles aside.

"Oh, nothing much. We're expecting something by post and it never comes," she said. Her odd little doll-like face could not look serious for long. She distended her nostrils, in each of which there was a dab of red paint, and eagerly sniffed the air. The rain stopped. "How good it smells" she said, and as she laughed five dimples made their appearance at various points in her face.

Memories came back to Martin as he saw them. Each dimple had had a name of its own, like her finger-tips. He saw again the little room with the red table cloth and the bohemian decorations of fans and shawls, and the conventional little canary in its cage, that had always to be covered up in case it began to sing in the middle of the night.

Anika roused him from this sweet trance of memory in which he had lost himself. "Tell me," she said, with a little nudge of her elbow, "what have you been up to all thi while? How are you getting on, Bulli? Did you get your degree?"

BUDGET DEBATE

One veteran political observer said it was difficult to recall a similar incident where an official opposition budget amendment was defeated without a formal vote.

The amendment, moved Oct. 21, by Hon. Earl Rowe (PC — Dufferin-Simcoe) asked that:

"This House regrets that the government has failed to take effective measures to prevent the present decline in our trade with the sterling area and is of the opinion that the government should consider the advisability of inviting the nations of the Commonwealth to a conference in the immediate future for the purpose of working out arrangements to preserve and enlarge those traditional markets on which jobs and opportunities for Canadians very largely depend."

Senate Approves Bill

About a week ago, the Commons voted 169 to 19 against a C.C.F. amendment calling for an immediate reduction of tariffs to encourage imports from the United Kingdom and other sterling areas.

In the Senate Wednesday, approval was given a government move to give Canada the right to amend the constitution in federal matters. An address to the King asking that Canada be given that constitutional right was adopted without a formal vote.

The address, already approved by the Commons, now will be transmitted to the King for presentation to the House of Lords in the United Kingdom parliament, now the sole authority for Canadian constitutional amendments.

In the Commons, among the final speakers in the budget debate were John Diefenbaker (C—Lethbridge); Daniel A. Riley (L—St. John-Albert); P. Ralph Kirk (L—Antigonish - Guysborough); W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West), and T. J. Kickham (L—Kings).

Mr. Blackmore said the federal government should make grants to the provinces to enable them to provide equality of educational opportunities.

Asked to Reconsider

Mr. Hoey asked the government to reconsider a suggestion that a Royal Commission be appointed to investigate housing costs. He says he could not understand why the government had turned down the request which came from A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor. He suggested Mr. Gardiner as a prospective member of such a commission.

Mr. Hoey renewed the oft-repeated appeal for construction of the Chignecto Canal through the 18-mile strip of land joining New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. While the canal was not a condition of Confederation in 1867, the Maritime provinces had been clearly told that its construction would be among the first undertaken by the central government.

Mr. Kickham said he hoped the government will again this year fix a support price for potatoes. The surplus price last year saved farmers from suffering heavy losses on their surplus potato crops.

Londoners Go Arty On Instalment Plan

London. (CP)—Londoners now buy paintings on the deferred-payment plan—and the ranks of the art collectors are being rapidly joined by the lower income groups.

A Leicester Square art dealer started the plan. He charges one-fifth down and the remainder in 12 monthly payments. He deals in unknowns to $2,000 Matisses on the same basis.

Besides placing paintings in homes that otherwise might not have boasted them, the plan helps young artists. The dealer reports that it helps the contemporaries place their work quickly though at prices much cheaper than ultimately they may command if they "click". But this way they watch for more of their production so as to add to their collections.

British Writers Criticize Army's Battle Exercises

By WILLIAM BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London (CP) — Former war correspondents who watched recent British Army manoeuvres in Germany returned to their desks muttering that what they saw was smart by 1945 standards but out of date in an atomic era.

Their criticism was that tactics by the 2nd Infantry and 7th Armored divisions, part of Lt.-Gen. Sir Charles Keightley's British Army of the Rhine, ignored that a Russian invasion would be a mass land-air attack against Western forces vastly inferior numerically. A similar view has been expressed by Western Union's supreme land commander, Gen. de Lattre de Tassigny.

The B.A.O.R. has three jobs: it is an occupation force, it trains Britain's National Servicemen, and it is potentially Britain's Continental commitment to Gen. de Lattre's force.

Western Union Spokesmen have said long since that the organization's projected 23-division army would take to the field as one formation. Units, chains of command, equipment and signals are being standardized.

But of the 23 divisions, it appears likely that no more than 10 would be available on the spot in the first days or weeks. Much would hinge in those early days on their calibre and technique of warfare.

Of the three major powers with armies on the Continent, France and the United States have been exercising their forces in campaigns of movement on extended fronts, sweeping them over hundreds of miles of territory. This is the sort of war experts believe would open a defence against the Russians.

'Luxurious' Warfare

British formations have been concentrating on narrow fronts, with hard-hitting units in solid depth, and air mastery. This, say the critics, is "luxurious" warfare over an inferiorly-equipped and out-numbered enemy.

British spokesmen have said reliance that the exercise was built around the capacities of the division's men—largely 18 and 19 years old in the service 18 months. The Americans and French, they said, could work with regulars who were in the service at least three years.

The comment of the military writers has been that since the B.A.O.R. is for all purposes Britain's continental commitment to Western Union it should be an elite formation. Of the 180,000 regulars in Britain's 406,000-man army, wrote the Manchester Guardian's military correspondent, "it should be possible for the War Office to spare 35,000 regulars for the Rhine Army to create two splendid divisions which might set a standard."

The present staff, they say, is so busy processing National Servicemen that it has no time to keep abreast of war development. As a result "having used one technique with success in North Africa, Sicily, Italy and North-west Europe, they have written it into their textbooks," hoping to adapt it to other situations.

One military writer said, "there is not the remotest chance of the Allies working in that way in the early stages of any coming war." The two Rhine divisions" should become forcing grounds for new ideas, not museums for old ones."

Empire Coffee Dollar Earner

London, (CP)—Britain is trying to pick up a few extra dollars by diverting top-grade Empire coffee from the home market to Canada and the United States.

Allocations of Tanganyika and Jamaica coffee to British dealers have been cut 15 per cent. In its place, home coffee-drinkers will get more of the Brazilian pea-berry.

With tea rationed, Britons are drinking more than twice as much coffee as they did before the war.

BRITONS

T. U. C. leaders said they had arrived at a new policy statement but they refused to make public details until the program first is discussed with Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and Foreign Secretary Bevin.

Observers looked on this sudden secrecy as an indication that T. U. C. leaders have been able to find a precise and detailed way out of their dilemma which was increased by devaluation of the pound.

Desire to Co-operate

This dilemma is a desire to co-operate with the government in its "wage-fre lyzee'o'pci in its "wage-freeze" policy and at the same time keep favor with the many unionists who are clamoring for higher wages.

In his address Wednesday, Attlee, who has ordered government spending trimmed about eight per cent, answered charges that the cuts did not go far enough by saying:

Britons should allow themselves "time to judge the efficacy of our action before crying aloud to the world that disaster is upon us . . .

"We have not the least desire to check the cut and thrust of our democratic political controversies — that is the lifeblood of our democracy — but in such times as these we must surely all of us make certain that no word or action of ours adds to the difficulties or embarrassments of our country."

Stone Cairn Marks Grave Of Tecumseh

Walpole Island, Ont., (CP)— The bones of Chief Tecumseh, famed Shawnee Indian warrior who died near Moravianstown, Ont., in the war of 1813 have at last found a permanent resting place.

After being dug up and reburied an unknown number of times, the remains of the chief now lie in a stone cairn on the Indian reservation here.

Tecumseh was a loyal ally of the British during the war of 1812-14 between the United States and the British in Canada. He and his tribesmen fought a rearguard action for Brig.-Gen. Henry Procter when that general was forced out of Detroit by Colonial troops. Procter withdrew his forces, leaving Tecumseh to right it out with the Colonials and lie-war court-martialled for his action. Tecumseh, along with many of his followers, was killed and was buried in 1813 near the spot where he fell. More than 40 years later the bones were dis-interred and brought to St. Anne's Island by Chief Shane, a faithful follower.

Tommy Gorman

Identified by Fracture

In 1910, Dr. George Mitchell of nearby Wallaceburg got in touch with Ed. Jackson, a grandson of Shane, who knew of the graves' location because his grandfather had requested he be buried seven feet west of his beloved Tecumseh. Dr. Mitchell took the remains to Wallaceburg and discovered, through a healed leg fracture, that the bones were, definitely those of the chief.

Dr. Mitchell had the bones in his possession only two days when two Indians, one a constable, demanded he give them up, claiming they were Indian property. The remains were taken away and buried several times at different places.

About 1934, the soldier's club of Walpole Island decided it was time Tecumseh had a final and fitting burial. Through an old Indian they were able to find Tecumseh's bones in a rusted coffin wrapped in a burlap bag.

Officials of the soldier's club say the Walpole Island grave will be permanent.

That Tired Feeling Mental Says Expert

Edinburgh, (CP)—That tired feeling of which many Britons complains nowadays is due, not to under-feeding, but to the "monotony and frustration of post-war life," says Dr. A. F. Meiklejohn of Edinburgh University.

"The lack of free choice in diet certainly contributes to this monotony," he said, although Britons generally were "better fed than their forbears."

"The average British diet during the war years contained adequate amounts of the better-known vitamins and other nutrients. Since then the national diet has not altered in any important aspect, except that more fruit is now available."

For that reason, he said, the tired feeling was probably mental more than physical.

Scholarship Scheme To Attract Students

Canberra, (CP)—The Australian government has launched an annual $2,250,000, 3,000-scholarship program to attract students to university science faculties and technical colleges.

Defence Minister De-tatan, who also has charge of scientific and industrial research, said the first scholarships would be awarded in 1951. Selection would be by competitive examination and students would be encouraged to enter faculties whose prosocctive entrants did not seem numerous enough to meet the Commonwealth's needs.

The government's present scholarship program cost $730,000 a year.

What to Do About Getting A Skunk Out of the Cellar

By JOHN GOULD
In the Christian Science Monitor

Up to the city the other day a householder telephoned the police department in great excitement and said he had a skunk in his cellar. If I were a policeman on the receiving end of such a telephone call, I would easily emit 7,865 immediate retorts, all different and no two alike, none of which would involve me further.

But I gather the standard of intellectual capacity among the constabulary in the city isn't equal to such ready wit, because the man who answered the call said he'd be right over. The pattern of this incident is nothing to take a prize for, the skunk won, and the policeman and the homeowner lost.

The only reason I mention the matter is to raise the question of why a policeman ever gets the idea that his uniform and brightly burnished badge will cow a poor little skunk. He does think so, because every Fall, about this time, the press of the nation goes out and garners the skunk-meets-cop stories the way the lad and Kathie take a bag and go pick beechnuts.

The reason the crop is harvested about now is because of the habits of Brier Skonk, who is perpetually these nights and is linching in earnest because shorty he will go into hibernation and he doesn't want to wake up at half-past January in a hungry condition. An open cellar window entices him, and people find him there the next morning when they dash down to bring up a jar of marmalade for breakfast.

It is not altogether hilarious to meet a skunk at the foot of your cellar steps. I have done so, and I will admit that I am momentarily taken aback. It isn't a question of fear, Fear, as a definable human reaction, is not the sort of thing you couple with skunks. It is rather respect. You respect a skunk.

So you run around for a few minutes announcing to everybody that you have found a skunk in your cellar, indicating that this will be a piece of information of general interest. If you live in a city, where there is a uniformed police force that will walk into a shower of bullets on the slightest pretext, it is only natural that you should notify them. Then the pattern is repeated, and the neighborhood buzzes you.

But out in the country, where a skunk in the cellar is almost a daily event this time of year, we are not bothered by policemen who think they know what to do for skunks. We either leave the bulkhead open, or arrange a board up to the window, and the skunk goes away when he gets ready. That's the simplest way.

Sometimes the skunk will not go home. He will wander around, taking inventory, and will appear to be happy. When you look in to see how he is doing, he will look over his shoulder at you with his beady little eyes, and he will appear to be very much astonished to see that you are still around. After a few days he will cease to look at you this way, and will keep right on exploring when you are around.

In fact, you can bring in the squashes, dump in the potatoes, line up a few crates of apples, and make use of the cellar right in his presence, and he will appear not to know you are there. A policeman coming in would make him mad, but he doesn't care about you.

Now, what you do is lead him out. You can't drive him, but you can lead him, I am not going to tell how this is done, because like atomic fission is could prove dangerous in the hands of irresponsible persons. A neighbor of ours had a skunk in his cellar three weeks, and finally the skunk thread his head into a jelly tumbler and the man took hold of the tumbler and led him out. He led him off up the line and into the woods and then clipped the jelly tumbler with a stick. The skunk reeled a little, but recovered, and went right to digging under a pine stump for bugs.

It is as simple as that. I think maybe policemen don't appeal to skunks. A farmer knows that a skunk is a good friend, and the skunks know the farmer knows that. But when a policeman comes around, a skunk is resentful. He resents and resounds and makes his presence linger as long as he can. This amazes the policeman, but never seems to teach the police a lesson.

The purpose of this nature discussion is to inform city people that a policeman is almost no good at all in a skunk condition. They think they are wonders, but this is not so. Don't call them. There is no percentage gain in proving they are wrong. Put up a board, or open the bulkhead, and take a chance. Or, if you're real finicky, keep the windows closed this time of year and fool the things. They'll think you're mean, but what do you care?

Brothers Meet After 50 Years

Minitonas, Man., (CP) — Two brothers were reunited for the first time in almost 50 years recently, when 74-year-old Alexander (Sandy) McPhee of Ottawa, arrived in Minitonas about 300 miles northwest of Winnipeg. Mr. McPhee made the trip to visit his 78-year-old brother Donald, a local resident.

The two brothers, natives of Scotland, had last seen each other in Glasgow in 1900. At that time, Sandy was a merchant sailor, and while he was on one of his trips abroad Donald left with his family for Canada. "I was married then," Sandy says, "but I never should have been. For in 18 months with the Donaldson Steamship Line, I was only home three nights."

In 1911 Sandy brought his family to Ottawa, where he worked 20 years as a railway car inspector. Donald, meanwhile, was pioneering the Swan River Valley.

Sandy's recent visit to Minitonas was his first trip to the west. He thinks the farm lands of Manitoba are wonderful. "Down in Ottawa", he said, "people speak of the 'poor' farmer. Well, I have seen him and he's anything but poor."

Reviewer Finds Canadian Radio Holds to Humor

By ALLAN DONNELLY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Are Canadians humorous—or deadly dull, smothered by a blanket of drab sober-sidedness?

That's a question which is often debated, sometimes with more weight than wit, by students of the Canadian character. Like as not they come up with the verdict that the average Canadian is a pretty straight-faced fellow.

Recently, in a search for humor, Edmonton woman took a long look at one section of the Canadian personality—as expressed in the country's radio. Her verdict was more generous.

She is Mrs. Elsie Park Gowan, Scottish-born wife of a University of Alberta professor and, in her own right, the author of quite a few historical plays and radio stage plays. Much of her writing is done for the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and on a recent CBC program, "Critically Speaking," she told of the results of her search for humor in four radio programs.

Admittedly the four were all CBC network programs, but they were fairly representative of Canadian radio in general and ranged from folk comedy to vaudeville.

Her highest humor-rating went to a Tuesday evening show of the cowboy variety called "Alberta Ranch House". Its greatest virtue, she says is that it reaffirms a pleasant belief—that the Old West still lives on, with its "wide-open spaces and its friendliness of uncomplicated people."

The West Can Laugh

The cowboy players are "musicians to their fingertips. The singers do not whine or moan." And when the foreman laughs, "laughter comes up from the grass roots."

Canada's best-known radio vaudeville is the Wayne and Shuster show Mrs. Gowan says of it: "To Canadian ears, the refreshing things about these clowns . . . is the cracks they make about Canadian persons and institutions. I hope they keep up the healthy practice of giving some of our sacred cows a few jumps over the hurdles."

Her chief complaint is that both of these "contest the laurels" leaving listeners with the impression that neither Wayne or Shuster is willing to play straight man to the other.

At first reading, a quiz show doesn't sound like a well of humor. But the Friday night show "Beat the Champ", which takes a page from the book of Its United States forerunner "Information Please", provides "very pleasant entertainment."

Quiz chairman Morley Callaghan, says Mrs. Gowan, "is not only witty in himself but the cause of wit in other men."

Finally our critic-playwright examines the CBC treatment given one of the West's most interesting characters, Bob Edwards, pioneer editor of fearless campaigning Calgary Eye-Opener.

"The Saga of Bob Edwards," presented in series form as a trial of the newspaper man, presented some episodes from his life that were "a delightful piece of foolery." But then the saga began to sag "and somehow the atmosphere of the swaggering town of Calgary in the early 1900s did not come across."

Mrs. Gowan's search for humor may not bring agreement with her findings. But it will be successful if it emphasizes to radio producers that radio should—and can—be entertaining.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight, the Belleville and District Hockey League resumes its merry war. Tuesday night's opener broke all records for attendance. 1,200 cash customers Massive Walter Gerow informed us, went through the turnstiles." All of which is good not only for the teams, fans, executive but the league as well.

The column today is going to be brief. Tonight in Memorial Arena the localized Belleville Juniors Rockets tangle with the triumphant Northern Electric squad. And listen, kiddies, this might prove to be a mighty battle.

For the Northern Electrics team, flushed with their victory over CNE Diesels on Tuesday night, are all out to maintain and sweep clean their schedule, we have so been informed. But the "best laid plans of mice and men" and all that stuff, applies to all teams.

Juniors, me'lads, have been practising but faithfully since they were dunked by the Toronto Dukes (Marlboro "B" Juniors, that is) and two citizens of Hogtown who came here under the guise of referees.

However, that was an exhibition tilt. It was designed perhaps to test the potential strength of the Rockets, the other, shall we say to give the faithful a preview of things (we hope) to come.

So it looks like a good night tonight at Memorial Arena. There might be the slightest possibility that both Belleville and Northern Electric, teams proven in action last Tuesday night, might, we do not hope, treat their enemies with a bit of disdain.

Let's hope they don't. The RCAF Flyers and No. 6 Repair Depot Chaves teams that they nor the fans should be ashamed of. Northern Electric and the CNE Diesels, proud and cocky in potential strength might, send, get their props kicked from out under by these serious, hard-fighting belting lads of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Anyway, me hearties, there is the score tonight. The Rockets are bound and bent, egad sir, to give those cocky upstarts wearing the black and white of the Northern Electric, Diesel conquerors in the first game, a battle for the figurative money. Yep, it looks like a real tussle. Coach McNaught of the Rockets said today, that his team is ready and willing to go. The scores the other night, he said, did not mean a thing.

* * *

"Sure" the Rockets coach said. "We're ready. The fact that Northern Electric defeated the Diesels is so much water under the bridge as far as the Rockets are concerned. We are going out there with the idea to win. It just so happens that the team in front of us happens to be Northern Electric."

"Ho Hum," smiled McNaught, with buxom Bill Cook smiling in the background, "We'll give 'em all we've got."

To digress for a moment, there was a suspicious lump in the cheek of McNaught. And definitely he does not chew tobacco.

TOUGH MARK TO SURPASS

Doug Bentley, captain and centre of Chicago Black Hawks, had a phenomenal scoring week ending October 30. The slim speedster scored two goals and assisted in six others for eight scoring points in the Hawks' four games that week. Eight points in one week is quite a feat and will be tough to shatter by other players.

LONG TIME BETWEEN GOALS

From the time Maurice Richard scored for Montreal Canadiens at 16:30 of the first period on October 22 until Billy Reay tallied for the Habs at 1:55 of the opening canto on October 30, Canadiens went 225 minutes and 50 seconds without scoring a goal. This was through five games and constituted a total of 11 and 2/3 periods.

LONG TIME TO WAIT

Sid Abel, Detroit's veteran captain and ace centre, waited a long time before he turned in his first N. H. L. "Hat Trick". He waited nine seasons to be exact. It was on November 3 playing against Boston Bruins that Sid fired three pucks past Goalie Jack Gelineau. "It was a long time to wait but it sure was worth it", the perspiring Abel said in the dressing room following the game.

RANGERS GETTING ROUGH

New York Rangers have for years been the least penalized club in the N. H. L. This is changed this season, however, as Rangers are making an about face and are determined to be a rough outfit. After their first nine games of the 1949-50 season Rangers had a total of 96 minutes in penalties, and were tied with Canadiens as most penalized team in the League.

Waxwork Worries, Eyes Are All Green

London, (CP)— Any Canadian who can make a good glass eye—preferably in the grey and blue-green shades—would do Madame Tussaud's waxworks a kindness by making himself known.

The celebrated Baker Street gallery is running out of glass eyes for its models and can't find new ones. Before the war the eyes were obtained from German and Czech firms, sources which since have dried up.

The shades of green have been used in 80 per cent of the models added in the last 18 months, including Sir Laurence Olivier, Boxer Freddie Mills, Premier Chifley of Australia and murderer John George Haigh.

Tussaud's say "blessed if we know what we'll do if more grey-blue-green-eyed persons achieve fame."

Richard's Rocketing Keeps Canadiens in N.H.L. Upper Levels; Habitants Tie Rangers

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In the clouds of gloom rolling out from the Montreal Canadiens management, a silver lining must be the way Richard is rocketing again.

The Canadiens top brass has made no bones about a feeling the National Hockey League club is carrying too many (as yet unnamed) "passenger types." But it's certain they aren't putting the finger on the fiery Maurice.

The 28-year-old product of Montreal amateur ranks scored both goals Wednesday night as Canadiens played a 2-2 deadlock with the Rangers at New York. That gives him nine for the season—almost half the strength of the break-scoring Habitants 11-game total of 21.

The draw with the fifth-place Rangers saved the fast-dropping Canucks from being the first to share their third position. In the only other game, Charlie Conacher's rising Chicago Black Hawks whipped the last place Bruins 5-1 at Boston. The Hawks now are one point behind Canadiens.

The Habitants will get a chance to pull away again in the only game tonight before Saturday starts a six-game weekend card.

But their opponents at Montreal are Hap Day's tough Toronto Maple Leafs, two points ahead of Montreal in second place and so many behind the leading Detroit Red Wings.

Drew Slim Crowds

Wednesday night's two mid-week games drew surprisingly slim crowds. There were only 10,074 in the 13,900 capacity Boston Garden. The 11,417 at New York Madison Square Garden's smallest of the season and about 4,000 below capacity.

The Rangers-Canadiens deadlock was the eighth tie in the 32 N.H.L. games so far this season, now almost one-quarter over.

Richard's two tallies, both in the first period at New York, brought the Rocket's lifetime N.H.L. total to 216 in his seventh full season.

It was as well for Canadiens that Richard twice beat goalie Chuck Rayner in the first period at New York. The Rangers sandwiched a goal by rookie defenseman Gus Kyle between these two and finished the scoring at 5:16 of the third period when Jean-Paul Denis and Alex Kaleta helped Edgar Laprade beat Big Bill Durnan.

Conacher Paces Hawks

The victory was the second successive for Chicago goalie Frankie Brimsek over his old mates on the Bruins, who sold him to the Hawks for $25,000 between seasons.

Boston now has gone seven successive games without a victory, their only point in that string coming last Saturday night when they tied Canadiens 3-3 in Montreal.

Barrie Flyers In Second Place Of Junior Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Referee James Crombie had his work cut out for him at a junior hockey game in Barrie Wednesday night.

The Bowmanville official meted out a total of 34 penalties — including four majors and two misconducts — as he toiled through a hectic game between Barrie Flyers and Stratford Kroehlers. The Flyers won the tilt 9-5.

Each team got 14 minor penalties, Barrie got three of the 4 majors.

The victory moved the Flyers into sole possession of second place — two points behind Toronto Marlboros.

In two other games last night, Marlboro galned an 8-0 win over the seventh - place Oshawa Generals and the lowly Windsor Spitfires trounced the fifth-place Galt Black Hawks 12-4.

Regan Scores Four

The Flyers took a 4-3 lead in the first period, tallied three unanswered goals in the second and then split four goals in the final session.

At Oshawa, Larry Regan, came up with a four-goal display to lead his Dukes to their eight victory in 10 starts.

Other Marlboros marksmen were George Armstrong with 2 goals and Jack McKenzie and Murray Grenke with one each.

The Generals stayed with the flying Dukes for the first two periods despite goals by Grenke in the opening session and a pair by Regan and Armstrong in the middle period. In the third period they wilted completely and gave up three goals.

It was the Spitfires' fourth victory in nine starts and gave them possession of eighth place in the nine-team loop.

Paces Spitfires

Eddie Joss, a pint-sized centre from Saskatoon, paced the Spitfires with three goals. Earl Reibel, Ed Stankiewicz and Johnny Bailey snipped two apiece and singles went to Glen Skery, Erwin Grosse and Mike Delich.

Pete Conacher led the Black Hawks with two markers. Others went to Ken Green and Rudy Horvath.

No games are scheduled tonight. Tomorrow five games are carded — one in the senior and four in the junior.

Alouettes Favored to Take Big Four Crown After 22-7 Win Over Ottawa Riders

By VIC MORRIS, JR.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 10 (CP)—The underdog Montreal Alouettes came up with a change of pace Wednesday when they crushed Ottawa Rough Riders 22-7 in the first game of the Big Four football league's two-game, total-point championship series before a chilled Wednesday afternoon crowd of 18,372.

The game, which saw the Riders kick off at 3-5 favorites, was the climax of a bitter controversy between the two clubs over the question of night and day football. Alouettes, bent on collecting a rich gate that 22,000 customers were expected to contribute for the game under floodlights, were forced to play in the daylight after Ottawa appealed to the league executive for a decision.

Saturday's Big Four winners will go on to meet the Ontario Rugby Football Union champion which will either be Hamilton Tigers or Sarnia Imperials. No date has been set for the O.R.F.U.-Big Four playoffs.

It was a near-perfect performance So, the Montrealers, who now have only beaten the Riders twice in five meetings. The statistics proved that the Montrealers were true victors.

Alouettes chalked up 25 first downs against Ottawa's 17, gained 320 yards over the ground as against Rider's 219, and made 93 through the air against 90.

Completed Eight Passes

Montreal attempted 17 forward passes, completing eight and none intercepted while Ottawa tried 16, completed nine and had one interception.

Flinging Frankie Filchock was in good form as he tossed touchdown passes to Ralph Toohy and Tommy Manastersky for two of Montreal's touchdowns. Bobby Cunningham, playing his best game of the season, scored a major when he recovered a fumble and scampered over the goal line. Glen Douglas accounted for the other major.

Douglas' touchdown was the turning point of the game. It put the Alouet in front 11-7 and came when Douglas scooped up the ball after Pete Karpuk fumbled fout outside the goalline

Bisons, Ramblers Share First Place In East Division

(By The Canadian Press)

Once more Buffalo Bisons and New Haven Ramblers find themselves sharing first place in the Eastern Division of the American Hockey League.

The Bisons and Ramblers have been jockeying for that top spot since the season began and have been deadlocked on several occasions.

Buffalo moved into contention again Wednesday night whipping the hapless Cincinnati Mohawks 7-1 in a wild encounter while the Ramblers were idle.

Meanwhile the amazing Springfield Indians moved to within one point of the leaders by edging Hershey Bears 4-3 at Springfield before 2,500 jammed fans. It marked the sixth straight game without a defeat for the Indians.

In the only other game Wednesday night, Pittsburgh Hornets checked a 4-4 tie against St. Louis Flyers.

Al Buffaro, several fist fights commanded more attention than the hockey game.

Johnny Sasaki fiery rearguard Joe Lepine and Paul Meger started things with a first period fight. Both drew major penalties.

Receive Majors.

Then in the third frame Charlie Gagnon tangled with the Bisons' Will Fields. Gagnon received a minor and a major, field a major, minor and a misconduct, Field a major. When they renewed hostilities in the penalty box. Each was given an additional 10-minute misconduct sentence.

Lepine and Meger came to blows again in the closing minutes with the former drawing a major and misconduct and Meger a minor.

Buffalo marksmen were Floyd Curry, Will Fiald, Les Hickey, Gord Pennell, Lloyd Finkbeiner, Murdo Mackay and Ab Demarco. Roger Leger was the only Mohawk player to beat Connie Dion in the Buffalo nets.

Vern Kaiser led the Indians to their victory with two goals while Whitey Prokop and George Defelice tallied one each. Silvio Bettio, Jerry Brown and Herbie Cain did the Hershey scoring.

A third-period goal by Peanuts O'Flaherty enabled Pittsburgh to snap a three-game losing streak. Bob Solinger, Ray Hannigan and Frankie Mathers were the other Hornet scorers.

Fred Kijek's punt.

It was a bad break for Karpuk as fans haven't forgotten how he was the "goat" of last year's east-west final against Calgary when he allowed a loose ball to be picked up by Woody Strode who set up a Calgary touchdown with a 90-yard run.

Ottawa's only touchdown was the result of a Howie Turner effort in the first quarter. His 30-yard heave to Bob Paffrath climazed a strong Rider's drive. Eric Shipper converted.

Ottawa's other point was scored late in the second quarter by Turner who booted to the dead-line.

Ches McCance, suffering from a badly-bruised leg, was able to put the injured limb into operation to convert two of the four Montreal majors.

It was a third down with eight yards to go at the Ottawa 14 when Filel ock fired a bullet pass to Toohy for Montreal's first touchdown that came in the second quarter. McCance converted but shortly after Turner booted his single.

Karpuk Fumbled

In the third quarter the Montrealers were waltzing away from their visitors. Ottawa's Karpuk fumbled a 60-yard boler by Freddy Kijek on the Ottawa goal line and fast-running Douglas marred the ball and dived headfirst across the line for the winning touchdown. In the same quarter Filchock again drilled a pass from the Ottawa 14 and this time Manastersky went over for the major.

In the final quarter, Cunningham went spinning around right end to completethe afternoon's touchdown scoring. McCance converted.

Ottawa was without Tony (Golden Boy) Golab, out with a leg injury, and Montreal was minus Virgil Wagner, the circuit's top scorer. Wagner suffered an infected face shortly before game time and is unlikely to be in action Saturday.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Edgar Laprade of New York, whose third-period tally enabled the Rangers to hold Montreal Canadiens to a 3-3 tie.

Chicago's Roy Conacher, who scored the winning goal in the second period as the Black Hawks downed Boston Bruins 3-1.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By GRAHAM TROTTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Nov. 10 (CP)— Edmonton Eskimos are out of the football picture but there's plenty of discussion about whether Annis Stukus of Toronto will be back at the helm for a second year.

Stan (Edmonton Bulletin) Mokrayss "it's a secret the executive behind the Edmonton entry in the Western Conference is a house divided when it comes to the question of going along with Stukus, or graduating him forthwith to seek a post elsewhere.

"The anti-Stukus faction is running for him, principally because they don't think he got the best out of the U.S. imports."

Blind Spot?

This faction says Stan, maintain that the Toronto-raised grid mentor has a blind spot when it comes to American footballers.

"They'll tell you that because he played with Argos in the days when the all-Canadian Torontonians were Grey Cup holders, Stukus hasn't a great appreciation of the crying need for Americans in the new T-formation-dominated game." They also question whether he did a good job of "selling" football to Edmonton and whether he's a "T" coach. The faction won't forget that big Stukus switched to the single wing formation for the last few games.

The Sunny Side

The men on the other side of the fence point to Stukus' record as a two year coach in which Eskimos won four in 14 tries for third place. They maintain says Stan, that if he didn't "sell" football it was because he was too busy.

"As for the American angle all they ask for Stukus is U.S. imports of the calibre of those who made powerhouses of the Calgary and Regina squads.

"This is the kind of linen that will be dragged out by the middle of the month but in the end Stukus will stay on."

Handlings

Tom (Calgary Albertan) Moore quotes Tommy Gorman on Ottawa's kid-shaped rink which baffled Regina Capitals in the Allan Cup final last season:

"Sure, those egg-shaped ends were designed especially — for Ottawa — to give his great poke check. In that rink, he could practically run board to the other and nobody could get past him."

This Bear Did Not Run Away

Juneau, Alaska, Nov. 10. (AP) —Judge George W. Folta is considered hereabouts as almost as much of an authority on hunting as on law. He has always maintained that 99 times out of a 100 a bear will run when a human shouts at it.

Back from a hunting trip Tuesday, Folta told of a big ahe-bear which came out of the brush toward him as he stood in a clearing. Remembering his "law" the judge yelled. The bear rushed toward him.

When the animal was only 10 feet away, Folta fired once and the bear fell dead at his feet.

"It was a lucky shot and if it hadn't been good, I guess I wouldn't be talking about it," Folta declared, then he mused:

"Wonder if that 99 to one good —or if I got the 100th bear."

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Nov. 10 (AP)— Ther's going to be an all-out effort to dispose of baseball's annoying bonus rule at the December meetings, but it may run into a little opposition... Branch Rickey says he won't vote for the "Pittsburgh amendment" wiping out all bonus restrictions unless the old rule is restored which prohibits a minor league club from getting a player part of the purchase price when he is sold. ...Rickey explains that transfers within a chain generally set player trades involving only nominal sums, as they can't make similar offers...So it would be "murder" to allow independently-owned clubs that privilege... The original purpose of the bonus rule, of course, was to discourage offering ridiculous sums to untried kids. It didn't work... Few, if any, independents can match the bonuses which major league clubs will hand out to boys who will immediately be farmed out...Seems like it would only be giving the independents a fair break to let them make another kind of offer... But Branch, apparently wants all the breaks to favor his side.

Slightly bitter over Jim Gallagher's criticism of Branch Rickey's farm produce, one Dodger employee points out that Branch, Jr., set up the system for Larry MacPhail in 1939 so you can call any player from a Brooklyn farm a Rickey product.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Although I appear to approach the coming subject boldly, it is with fear and trembling. My province is to teach the rules of bridge; not exceptions. And here I go talking about exceptions.

My claim is that a player will do better in the long run if he never uses an exception. Then some guy turns up with a freak that works only after a barrage of cockeyed bids.

A group of stags went wild over this deal:

To be truly rebiddable, a six card suit needs two honor cards. The south heart suit lacks one honor card of being correctly in the rebiddable class. So, his two heart bid was wrong.

He lacks another biddable suit. His heart suit is not rebiddable. Partner has bid no suit for which south can show su port. Here the correct bid by south would have been two no-trump.

But not in the eyes of some players. Give you this agreement that experts will rebid a suit of this kind. It is preferable, they will insist, to a no-trump bid when holding a singleton.

A pair of experts can get away with this sort of thing. They thrive on manoeuvering tactics. But this does not mean their bids are correct.

When bridge players are good, I do not tell them exceptions are wrong. It is a waste of breath. When a player thinks he is good you cannot tell him anything.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 10. (AP)— I am pleased to report today that Esther Williams' figure is even better since she had a baby.

Yep, it's true. What effect this news will have on the national birth rate is a question. It may help push the United States toward the 300,000,000 population mark President Truman has been talking about.

I happened to observe the movie mermaid's figure on the set of "Duchess of Idaho." Strictly from a reporter's viewpoint, you understand. It seemed to me the chassis was as classy as ever. If not classier.

I asked if there hadn't been some improvement in the topography.

Dresses Don't Fit

"It's strange," she admitted, "but I seem to have lost an inch from my hips. None of my dresses fit anymore."

The vital statistics? "I'm still 36," she said, indicating the general vicinity of her bust, "28 1-2 in the waist and 35 in the hips. I used to be 36 in hips and 26 in the waist. I should be able to take off that half inch with no trouble."

But wait a little minute, added Esther. She doesn't want to convey the impression that her frame magically improved after motherhood.

"Other mothers will hate me," she said. "They know it's no trick to gain back your figure after having a child.

It Isn't Easy

"Every mother owes it to herself and her husband to do all she can to get her figure back to normal. Nature needs a little help in this matter, for only exercise and proper diet can tighten the muscles and tone up your general health.

"I was lucky to be able to start swimming a month after my baby was born. I've been concientiously touching my toes and do other exercises for the first time in my life and I do feel wonderful.

"It isn't easy, but it's certainly worth the effort. I'd do it even if I weren't in pictures. After all, any woman likes to be able to step on the scales without shuddering."

MISTAKEN FOR DEER

Little Current, Ont., Nov. 10—(CP)—Avery Parker, 35, railway switchman from Fort Erie, Ont., was shot dead Wednesday on La Cloche Island, three miles east of this Manitoulin Island town, when mistaken for a deer.

Lloyd Smith, also of Fort Erie, told reporters the mistook Parker's faded blue and white trainman's overalls for a deer in the dense bush and fired from 77 feet. Parker died 15 minutes after being shot in the chest.

Provincial Constable Neville Rose said he would confer with the crown attorney regarding the shooting.

KILLED BY TRACTOR

Ste. Theresa De Marionville, Ont., Nov. 10 (CP) — Albert Leroux, 42, father of eight children, was killed Wednesday night when his tractor overturned.

Mr. Leroux was returning to his home here after a day's ploughing o a neighbor's farm when the tractor ran off a 12-foot culvert and overturned about three miles from his home. He was crushed beneath the heavy machine and died almost instantly.

Ste. Theresa De Marionville is near Morewood, some 25 miles s utheast of Ottawa.

Gorman Denies Rift Within Organization

Edmonton, Nov. 10 (CP) — Tommy Gorman, promoter of ice show starring Barbara Ann Scott, denied Wednesday there is any rift between him and the skater's mother, Mrs. Clyde Scott.

"There never was any rift between Mrs. Scott and me," said Mr. Gorman. "She is doing the best she can under very difficult circumstances."

Monday night Mr. Gorman's agent, T. A. Shandro, said in a telephone interview with The Canadian Press there is a definite rift in the organization, with Mrs. Scott and Mr. Gorman differing on whether Miss Scott should make any appearances off the ice." The Edmonton Bulletin Wednesday quoted Mr. Shandro as saying he made no such statement.

The difference of opinion between Mrs. Scott and Mr. Gorman was, reported after Barbara Ann failed to make an advertised appearance at an Edmonton department store on her arrival from Calgary.

47,000 in Women Institutes in The Province

Toronto, Nov. 10 — (CP) — Anna P. Lewis described the strength of Ontario women's rural organizations at the 47th Convention of Central Ontario Area Women's Institutes Wednesday.

Miss Lewis, director of Women's Institute Branch and Home Economics Service of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, said:

"There are more than 47,000 Women's Institutes in Ontario, 90,000 in Canada and about 3½ million in the associated world of women of the world. Just think what a power we are, and what we could accomplish if we work together."

Referring to the growth of Women's Institutes, Miss Lewis said there now are 1,428 in Ontario, a gain of 25 having been made in the last six months as a result of a membership campaign.

Nearly 800 delegates from the 224 Central Ontario Institutes attended the convention.

Eight years ago the show called the Bar-M Jamboree was placed on the NBC network where it has remained. The show has been moved from Hartford to New York City and now comes from Rochester, WHAM.

He will appear at Tobe's County Gardens November 17.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was making a list of people she is thinking of inviting to her birthday party, saying to pop, I just want it to be an intimate little gathering of the people I like best, William, and so far I've decided on 6 couples.

I'll bet I can guess two of them Maud and Yewlace Hews and Sid and Sally Seevers, pop said, and ma said, Well naturally, they lead the list, and I'm afraid there's an obstacle there. I mean I'm very fond of both Maud and Sally, but they're jeills of each other's clothes that their eyes turn to daggers and their voices turn to ice the moment they catch site of each other, she said.

We can't have that, pop said, and ma said, No, I'll have to choose between them I'd choose Maud and Yewslace rite off the flash of the pan, except that Yewslace's policies always seem to rub with Clarence Emery's politics the wrong way, and vice virtue, to the embarrisment of all present, she said.

We don't have that either, pop said, and ma said, No, and yet if we don't invite the Emeries they'll never forgive us, because they've been having 3 invitations rite now, and yet at the same time if Emily Emery and Letty Frensen put their heads together and start talking about cooking, the party will be over as far as general conversation is concerned.

That's the last thing we want pop said, and ma said, Yes, but no party seems complete without Fred Frensen's jokes, although still you always say you cant stand Fred's jokes.

I didn't mind them when they were new, pop said, and ma said, Oh dear, let's celebrate my birthday in the usual way with dinner at the Stile Roof and a good show afterwards. What do you say, William? she said.

Pop saying yes.

Felton Battles To Draw With Toughie Pellone

(By the Canadian Press)

Young Lester Felton of Detroit, whose victory over Kid Gavilan last month touched off a boxing controversy, battled to a draw with tough Tony Pellone of New York at Detroit Wednesday night.

The decision set off a demonstration by an estimated 12,000 fans, most of whom apparently thought Felton had won.

Judges Johnny Webber and Lou Jallos each called it a 50-50 fight while referee Clarence Rosen voted for Felton by a 54-46 margin. Under Michigan's boxing rules it was a draw.

Felton, at 146½, had a one-pound advantage over his short-er foe.

Lady luck smiled on Felton when he won an unpopular decision over Kid Gavilan last Oct. 1 but she was not in his corner Wednesday night.

That Felton - Gavilan fight touched off a series of probes by the boxing commission and police officials who stifled rumors that the fight had been fixed. Some of those inquiries are still under way.

Centre Cliff Simpson, leading scorer for St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League, didn't know it at the time, but he played in four games with a broken leg.

And during that time he scored two goals and was credited with an assist.

He was injured Oct. 7 in a game at New Haven, Conn., and thought he had sprained an ankle. He couldn't understand why the ankle continued to pain him when he removed tape from it after each game.

An X-ray examination after Simpson returned to St. Louis this week cleared up the mystery. He has a bone fracture two inches above the ankle.

Dr. Robert F. Hyland put the leg in a cast, and Simpson is on crutches. He probably will be out of action for three or four weeks.

Calumet Farm is splitting its one-two punch between California and Florida this winter, with Citation heading west to Santa Anita and Coaltown southbound for Hialeah.

In announcing plans for the 80-horse string quartered at Pimlico, trainer Jimmy Jones indicated at Baltimore Wednesday that Citation will be tossed for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap.

A victory in this one would enable the famed son of Bull Lea-hydroplane II to overtake Stymie as the greatest money winner of all time. Before coming up with a leg ailment which kept him out of competition this year, Citation had won $865,150 — $50,000 less than Stymie.

A Dodger official admitted that a flat offer of $200,000 for right-hander Herman Wehmeier was turned down by the Reds' general manager, Warren Giles. Another bid of $100,000 and a couple of unidentified players for veteran left-hander Kenny Raffensberger met the same fate.

A team of industrial league players is being formed to represent Kitchener in the Ontario Hockey Association this season. Officials said a franchise has been granted and they hope the team will operate in the intermediate A division. The team, however, may be given a bailing.

FLYING MAIL VAN.

London, (CP)—The first night delivery of mail by helicopter in Britain began recently. On the initial flight mail bags were flown from the Midlands to the North, a distance of 100 miles. In 45 minutes. This compares with the usual three-hour train journey. The flying night mail van will in future supplement the daytime services.

TWO CENTURIES OLD

The British national anthem, "God Save The King", took its present form about 1740 to 1745 and has been attributed by tradition to Henry Carey.

Accidentally Drowned After Escaping Custody

London, Ont., Nov. 10 (CP)—A coroner's jury Wednesday night decided that Robert Grosbeck, 20-year-old Muncey Reserve Indian, died by accidental drowning after escaping police custody.

Grosbeck drowned in the Thames River near Muncey Oct. 23, the night he threw his clothed and disappeared in mid-stream in his attempt to swim back. The scene was about 14 miles west of St. Thomas.

Dr. John Fiaher, provincial pathologist, said the post-mortem indicated death by drowning. There was a swelling on the left side of the scalp, and a small inverted "U-shaped" fracture of the skull, but "no injury to the brain whatsoever." He said that a skull fracture is not always fatal and that "this one was minute."

Elijah Nisbet, a special constable at Muncey for 19 years, said that on Oct. 23 Mrs. Robert DeLeary of Rodney and Mrs. Helen Snake of Muncey, told him that Grosbeck and another man were driving Mr. DeLeary's car.

With Special Constable Cornelius Day he went to the home of Percy Riley where he found Robert DeLeary "passed out" in his car — without keys.

DeLeary was placed under arrest and put in Day's car. Constable Ninham said when he attempted to start the DeLeary car Grosbeck interfered. Ninham ordered Day to place Grosbeck under arrest and the latter resisted.

Grosbeck began "throwing punches" and Day struck Grosbeck with his blackjack. Grosbeck then fled but was overtaken by Day and thrown back into the car.

When the car reached the road, Ninham said, Grosbeck opened a door and dived out on the road, landing on his face. He got up, ran toward the Thames River and swam across it.

Youth Takes Over Old Regina Jail

Regina (CP)— A few years ago, the occupants of 1933 Hamilton Street were behind bars. Now they come and go as they please.

Formerly, capacity was limited and residents led lonely lives. Now the welcome mat invites crowds and the gregarious soul L in his element.

Entrance requirements used to necessitate a history of misdemeanors, but now the only prerequisite for admission is a young heart and a yearning to learn and have fun.

The familiar red brick building now is the Youth Centre operated by the recreation division of the city parks department. But many Reginans remember it when it was the old city jail.

A few dim reminders of the old cells still remain in the vacated basement, but they are forgotten in the merriment of the craft room the swish of the weaving looms and the laughter in the "teen centre."

Supervised Activities

The purpose of the Youth Centre, at its present location since May 1945, is to give 'teen agers a wholesome, supervised place to meet for recreation and to learn basic crafts.

The centre provides art and every conceivable kind of basic craft for the aesthetically-inclined. There is a woodworking shop for the industrious; there are leather and weaving lasses for adults, grade seven and grade eight students and 'teen-agers; violin classes for aspiring musicians, a model airplane club and the 'teen centre and Peanut Club for social evenings.

Youth has its fling, but adults are not forgotten. Every Monday evening is adult night, and any group which has no facilities for social evenings may obtain the building for this purpose.

In 1948 attendance figures reached 33,796 and 3,185 were enrolled in the Peanut Club.

He Goes to See Mae West In 'Diamond Lil'

(By John Mason Brown in the Saturday Review of Literature)

On my way to "Diamond Lil" at New York's Plymouth Theatre the other night I could not help wondering what Time, Luce, and O'Hara might have done to Mae West. Sixteen years ago when last I saw her (this was when the New Deal was new and other much-needed relief agencies were mushrooming), she had already become a national institution.

Since then, however, the ever-changing world has changed in ways unaccountable and with unprecendented swiftness. The Kinsey Report and the atom bomb have both been dropped. We are supposed to be tougher now — war-toughened and peace-toughened, too. We are franker in our discussion of the pleasant, blushful subjects. Our approach to the facts of life is nothing if not actual. We call a spayed a spayed, or worse. Grandmothers are not uncommonly profane, or always ungiven to the language of GI's.

The small talk of the smoking room, more than having become the conversation of the entire car, has invaded the drawing room. Our eyes have grown accustomed to four-letter words which at least simplify the task of typesetting. Even sex, that three-letter word in which Miss West has always had a rather open interest, is being talked, written, and thought about in terms so different from those of sixteen years ago that naturally I approached "Diamond Lil" in an apprehensive mood.

Suppose — La West possibly be and seem the same, thought I. Might not her boldness have become tame, her lustiness anemic? How could she hope, even granting her superior equipment, to hold her own with the fanciful enlargements of those wind-swept females who are at present plastered across the pages of pictorial novels and the covers of cheap reprints? Wouldn't she seem have run out of her hourglass figure? In short, like certain other pounds, weren't hers bound to have undergone a devaluation?

But my worries, though chivalrous, were absurd. They were the silliest because I had forgotten that, in spite of her dedication to what Percy Hamond used to refer to as "the finer things of life," Miss West has never asked to be taken seriously. Sez itself is for her a cartoon which she delights in animating. If she is a high priestess of desire, she is also its most unabashed and hilarious parodist. When she gets through with the Tenderloin, it is hare—sheer, unadulterated Smithfield.

As an archetype of the predatory female, Miss West is about as shabby as a retrieved copy of the Police Gazette. She remains dateless (I mean this, of course, only in the historical sense. For all her contours, and in spite of the dreamdary dip with which she walks, the incessant pelvic rotations that punctuate her sentences, and the steaming sultriness of her voice, her chief (artistic) is now, as it was in the beginning, to laughter. Had she been only a siren, Puritan America could never have been "had by her. But she is also a farceur and a confidence. And it is these endowments which originally saved her and which continue to endear her.

Her security value has grown with the years, even as she has. Vocally she is still a boothe-koothie artist. Physically she remains as modernistic as a barroom nude. She can still turn the simplest statement into a scorching insinuation. She can still make the most innocent "Hello, boys" sound like a travelling salesman's idea of "The Decameron". Of course she pursues so grandly is still down the midway. Her lack of subtlety remains the most subtle thing about her.

Only the Statue of Liberty has been carrying a torch for a longer time than Mae West. She moreover, seems no more fatigued by maintaining her chosen attitude than does the iron lady down the bay with her eternally uplifted hand. Always and proudly, an armful, Miss West is a bigger girl today than she used to be. But what devotee of the madame could object to there being more of her. She would not have had to come from Tennessee or India to be a grandmother by now. Yet few people could bear a more remote resemblance to Whistler's "Mother" or Grant Wood's "D. A. R." than she does.

No one has ever looked quite like Mae West, or ever will. She fills the eye no less surely than she fills the stage. She is several dreams walking; several nightmares, too. She commands more curves than Christy Mathewson thought of doing. What a power is to Proust she is to Kinsey, in her own flamboyant person. The dictionary assures us that in mathematics a curve is the locus of a moving point continuously deviating from a straight line. A more accurate description of La West has not and could not be written.

She never deviates into Christendom any more than she wanders with in the outskirts of reality. To her, sex is more than an obsession. It is a joke with no primal eldest curse upon it but with the most ancient of blessings. Her voice, like her person and her incredible costumes, disturbs the risibilities far more than it inflames the senses. A test of attacked vipers could not emit hisses more insistent than are all of her conscienceless sentences. She is an actress who seldom reacts but who is always being reacted by a scarlet in a duet world. Accordingly, she seems lonely even in her thickly populated plays.

Although Miss West is credited with having written "Diamond Lil," she can scarcely have bothered to use a pen or pencil. After all these years, it persists in being a greasy charade which still sounds as if it were being improvised. That is, of course, except at those plentiful moments when Lil herself is hard at work, as the professional she magnificently is, rasping and undulating, undulating and rasping. Then the evening becomes the ultimate in calculation, the final word in skilled deliberation.

The truth is that like "The Constant Sinner" and "Sex" before it, "Diamond Lil" is no play at all. It creates a category of its own which can only be defined as a Mae Western. It is a drama, then so is it a trip to Chinatown on a sightseeing bus. Without Mae West it would be nothing. With her it is Mae West. And that is decidely something.

The world may have changed to a terrifying extent, but when it comes to toughness it has not yet caught up with La West. More than being a person or an institution, she entered the language and taken her place in the underworld of the present's mythology. She is the Bobby Clark of the boudoir. She does not bother with the flowers when teaching about the bees. She continues to be what every playgoer young and old and in search of a laugh, ought to know.

END OF AN EXPERIMENTAL PLANE

Still smouldering, the tail and part of the fuselage of a top-secret British jet fighter plane rests in a backyard at Yeovil, England, where it crashed near the airport. Three were killed — the pilot, a woman in the house and a girl, six, riding her cycle. — Central Press Canadian.

Canada May Have To Restrict Trade With the U.S.

New York, Nov. 10 (CP)—Canada may have to restrict her trade with the United States unless there is a better balance of imports and exports between the two countries, L. B. Pearson, Canada's Minister of External Affair told the overseas press club in a luncheon address Wednesday.

The Dominion cannot go on indefinitely buying $2,000,000,000 of goods from the United States and selling $1,000,000,000 to the United States, Pearson said.

"When we must put on restrictions," he said, "you'll become more aware of us. We wish you'd become more aware of us before the restrictions are needed."

Mountain Cinema Attracts Greeks, See Canuck Films

Written for The Canadian Press By PAUL HURMUZES

Arena Peak, Grammos Mountains, Greece, (CP) — It's just possible that Iron Curtain guerrillas in Albania, a mile northward, are so envious of the movie theatre Greek troops have just completed here that they'll be over one of these evenings for another kind of "show".

Word of mouth travels fast in these lonely snow-swept parts and as the rough cinema already is the talk of the Greek Army doubtless the present-inactive guerrillas have heard of it too.

The program, any evening they cared to drop in, would be an eye-opener.

It would be all about the western way of life, the Canadian way of life at that. For the only pictures so far exhibited have been Canadian—lent by the Canadian Embassy in Athens.

The 25-by-100-foot entertainment hut, quarried out of rocky soil and covered with logs, is the 117th Infantry Battalion's recreation headquarters for the long winter ahead. The unit is on the top of 6,600-foot Arena Peak, scene of the bitterest fighting in the recent successful campaign to drive the Communists out of Greece.

Maj. Georgios Tabernarakis, the unit's C.O., conceived the idea of the cinema and its 16-millimetre sound projector, and himself bought the technical equipment while he was on a visit to Athens. A detail of the 700-man battalion, in freezing weather, dug the "auditorium" out of bare rock, while others set up a separate shack for the power unit. The current is provided by a small gasoline engine.

Search For Films

The project, however, nearly missed. They couldn't find films.

"We didn't figure on not having any film to show the men," said the major. "We went for a month trying all over Greece to locate sound-track productions."

The unit's initiative in trying to settle its own recreation problem has been reported. Through division, corps and army headquarters word filtered through to Athens that after all their work the men were stymied.

Georges d'Athènes Theo Monty at the Canadian Embassy heard the story, knew the chancellery to be well stocked with National Film Board documentaries and immediately arranged for a supply of educational and travelogue-type features to be flown in the next Dakota to the front.

At the end of October the first delivery was made. Monty thinks he can keep up a regular delivery.

The route covered by the reels is a long, hard one. From Athens the celluloid goes per Greek Air Force Dakota to Argos Orestikon, 200 miles north. There they are delivered by U.S. Mercator to the Division headquarters. The sleepy, perilous two-hour trip up Arena Peak is made by divisional transport.

Many of the N.F.B.'s new fans are three and four-year veterans of the fight against Communism, and during the winter the snows lie 10 feet and more deep atop their windswept peak.

Says Maj. Tabernarakis of the set-up: "My men did a good job. They deserve it."

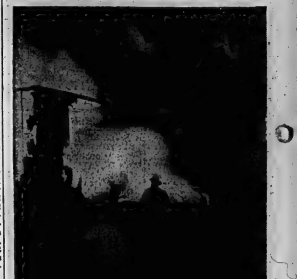
15 YEARS' SAVING OF OSHAWA MAN UP IN SMOKE



Fifteen years' saving, as represented by his home, went up into smoke, when fire destroyed home of Clarence O'Connor of Oshawa, Ont. Mr. O'Connor, who had put all his savings into home, that he had built himself, carried no insurance on it. Cause of the fire, which caused $8,000 loss to General Motors worker, who is out on strike, is, as yet, unknown. — Central Press Canadian.

Aussie Devaluation Is Tourist Magnet

Sydney, Australia. (CP) — With the Australian pound down to the almost fantastic level of $2.24 Canadian dollars, the Australian Government hopes to attract many new tourists here.

Most Costly Steel Strike in U.S. History at End

Steel Corporation Signs Pension-Insurance Pact

Pittsburgh, Nov. 12. (AP) — The most costly steel strike in United States history ended today after the C.I.O. United Steelworkers walked off their jobs last Oct. 1 in support of demands for company paid pensions.

The end of the strike against Big Steel, largest steel producer in the world gave C.I.O. Union-ists the "go back to work" high sign. The agreement covers only 150,000 employees in the major operating subsidiaries but the corporation said the union agreed that all workers should return at once. Formal contracts will be signed later with other subsidiaries.

Union president Philip Murray predicted 90 per cent of basic steel—the plants which produce ingots—will be back at work on the new Bethlehem type contract by Monday morning.

The Bethlehem settlement, signed Oct. 31, provides $100 minimum monthly pension payments to workers aged 65 who have served 25 years. The workers do not have to pay into the fund but they do contribute to federal social security which is added to company pensions to make up the $100 total. Workers with fewer years of service will receive proportionately smaller pensions.

The agreement also provides for a five-cent-an-hour social insurance program. That cost is shared equally by workers and company.

Wages Unchanged

Wages are unchanged for steel-workers except for a minimum an average of $1.65 an hour.

The Bethlehem pact broke the log jam for the four days it took the country's second largest steel company, plus Jones and Laughlin, No. 4 producer, and Republic Steel, third biggest steelmaker, and other firms also signed up on the same formula.

That represented a departure from the past when U. S. Steel customarily acted as the industry's bellwether in contract matters. It was U. S. Steel which set the pace in granting the union an 18½ cent-an-hour wage boost in 1946 to end a 23-day strike.

Throughout the country the strikers lost an estimated $275,000,000 in wages during the six-week effort. Added to that strike loss figure is the $,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons of steel production which would have been produced if the workers had not struck. Nearly four million persons in allied industries were laid off as a result of the steel strike.

The Japanese Maritime Safety Board sent rescue vessels to the scene but in a night-long search only four of the crew and seven passengers were picked up.

The ship capsized and sank near Kobe, Japan's greatest port.

HEAVY FOG AND SMOKE OVER CITY OF DETROIT

Detroit, Nov. 12— (AP) — A heavy cloud of fog and smoke that caused almost continuous coughing settled down briefly over the heavily industrial Delray area in southwest Detroit Friday. Police said they had received about 30 telephoned complaints but that there apparently had been no serious ill effects.

Nudism Booms in Britain; More People Than Ever Walking Around Naked

London, Nov. 12 (AP)—Nudism is booming in Britain. More people are walking around naked t an ever before.

Not in public, of course, but in flourishing "naturalist" camps scattered through the country.

Britain's few hundred timid pre-war nudists have grown into a lusty movement 50,000 strong. Nudist "camps" have become nudist clubs. Now there are 60. Many non-clubs have sprung up, too, in the raw in the privacy of their own homes and gardens.

The British Nudist Bathing Association—biggest nudist group—has just voted to incorporate nudity. It's forming a limited company of 200 shareholders.

Mrs. Sylvia Bassam, 34, pretty Canadian-born secretary of the B.N.B.A., says the association is campaigning for three things:

1. The legal right to bathe in the nude on approved public beaches;

2. More young women to join;

3. To teach skeptics that "naturism" is "a healthy, wholesome way of life followed by intelligent people."

Mrs. Bassam, whose own suntan, she affirms, stretches unbroken from top to toe, says she started three years ago to attend bathing with nudists and nonnudists and found it was natural. They want certain public beaches set aside.

Biggest pain in the neck for British nudist club directors, Mrs. Bassam said, is the problem of sexes. Far more males than female s join, the ratio being about two to one.

"We get many applications from girls who have emerged from the rickti-type girls.

"The B.N.B.A. and some other nudist groups are preparing a black list of undesirable characters who have been trying to muscle into the movement with homosexual motives. But this problem is not acute, Mrs. Bassam said, nudists being a cut above the average in moral and intellegrity. So far the black list contains fewer than 10 names.

PRIME MINISTER REDISTRIBUTES DEPT. FUNCTIONS

Major Cabinet Shuffle Expected to Follow

Ottawa, Nov. 12— (CP) — A major cabinet shuffle is expected to follow redistribution of the functions of the Department of Mines and Resources and the Department of Reconstruction and Supply.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Friday the government will introduce three bills to redistribute the functions and to create a new department of citizenship and immigration, thus raising cabinet membership to 22. The new two departments will be known as mines and technical surveys and resources and development.

The announcement, made while Prime Minister St. Laurent was piloting new legislation the government plans to implement during the drive for price stabilization Dec. 5, engendered immediate speculation as to how the interests of Canada's cabinet is at an all-time high. Even in wartime, when there were three separate departments for the army, navy, and the air force combined, the cabinet never rose beyond 20.

Besides the departmental changes, Mr. St. Laurent announced that bills will be introduced to encourage the production of coal in the Maritimes and construction of Canadian ships.

He gave no details of the measures and did not indicate how he is likely to get the new portfolio of citizenship and immigration.

Some observers believe it may go to David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) a minister without portfolio since 1945 and a former Ontario billionaire. Mr. Croll recently now has no representation in the cabinet while Montreal has three cabinet ministers—Finance Minister Abbott, Defence Minister Claxton and Transport General Rinfret.

There has been speculation in recent weeks that Mr. St. Laurent is seeking an early opportunity to shift some load in the cabinet.

There have been unofficial reports that Mr. St. Laurent plans to appoint Defence Minister Claxton to the bench and Revenue Minister McCann, Fisheries Minister Mayhew and Resources Minister Gibson to the Senate.

Beside the above, several members have been mentioned as soon to be appointed to the Senate. They include Ralph Maybank (L—Winnipeg South Centre), parliamentary assistant to Mr. Resources Minister; George Prudham (L—Edmonton West); A. W. Neville (L—Naught (L—Prince), parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister; Gleason Belzile (L—Rimouski), parliamentary assistant to Public Works Minister Abbott; James Sinclair (L — Coast-Capilano), another of the Fisheries Minister; P. E. Cote (L—Verdun), parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Mitchell and Ralph Campney (L—Vancouver Centre).

Fate to be Settled in Europe, Need Moral Leadership in Pact

LT.-GEN. SIMONDS

Montreal, Nov. 12 — (CP) — Basic world conflict today is between the "ideologies of the Communist doctrine as held by Russia and the ideas of the four freedoms as announced by the late President Roosevelt" of the United States, Lt.-Gen. G. G. Simonds, commandant of the National Defence College, Kingston, said Friday night.

Speaking at the annual officers' mess dinner meeting of the Royal Montreal Regiment (M.G.) here, he said "we cannot afford to be without the manpower and the material of Western Europe if it comes to a showdown ...

"We must realize the danger which oppose us from a power-centralized, ruthless and calculating — and that there is no time limit or factor in the minds of our enemies whose proposed object is the destruction of our way of life."

The Communist powers, led by the U.S.S.R., waged a two-pronged attack — the first was "economic and political" and this the fifth column; the second was "military power" whose might represented a threat, he said.

"In this struggle," Gen. Simonds added, "our fate is to be settled in Western Europe if we isolate ourselves in North America, we cannot survive ... We need today a morals stimulus — a moral leadership — in our Atlantic alliance."

He was received by the men as colonel of all Black Watch regiments throughout the world. Lord Wavell leaves today for Quebec on a week's visit as guest of Viscount Alexander of Tunis. He will also visit the National Defence College at Kingston, and will address a meeting of the United Services Club in Toronto.

Native Shot Dead As 600 Riot At Randfontein

Johannesburg, Nov. 13 — (AP) —One native was shot dead and four natives and two policemen were wounded in a riot in which some 600 natives rioted at Randfontein, about 15 miles west of here. Serious race riots have occurred this year in other parts of South Africa.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP)—Synopsis—Although the cooler air has pushed southward well into the northeastern states the weather has kept minimum temperatures above freezing in Southern Ontario Friday night. Further north where skies were clear temperatures dropped to as low as five above. The future development of a disturbance that was near Nassau City early this morning will be the determining factor in Ontario's weather for the next few days. Present indications are that the storm centre will move northeastward to Lake Michigan and then curve northward toward the Georgian Bay region with unsettled weather to the western half of Ontario on Sunday.

200 Seats Provided Veterans in Hospital

Montreal, Nov. 12—(CP)—Veterans at the Queen Mary Hospital here received a "Remembrance Day present" Friday after being victims of a cruel hoax. Several days ago, a girl who used the name Donna Atwood, offered to supply 200 tickets to an ice show for the hospital veterans. Officials later discovered that "Miss Atwood was a phoney." Friday a substitute show was offered to provide the 200 seats and Frank Selke, Montreal Forum manager, added another 400.

Airport officials said the baby, born to Mrs. H. C. Gibney in Yorkton, was suffering from pneumonia when the flight-type of blood was not available in Yorkton.

PLANS BASED ON OBSOLETE IDEA SAYS OPPOSITION

No Alternative Policy Offered

Ottawa, Nov. 12 — (CP)—The Progressive Conservatives' defence critic charged Friday that Canadian defence plans are based on an obsolete concept of gradual mobilization when war strikes. However, he offered no alternative policy.

Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, B.C. (P.C.—Nanaimo), is a Remembrance Day defence debate he called a "sad- and ironical" coincidence, said there is "much uncertainty" among veterans and he expressed "grave doubts" that the regular forces can fulfil the commitments mapped out for them.

Those are defence of Canada at any time and a role as nucleus for any wartime expansion. They now are 45,000 strong, within 11 per cent of the authorized total.

Defence Minister Claxton, with a 30-page white paper and a statement, pictured Canada's defence against air assault as consisting of a system of early-warning radar stations using a new communications system to alert interceptor fighter squadrons and a "relatively small" mobile army brigade group.

Russia Potential Aggressor

Throughout his address, Mr. Pearkes emphasized that the only potential aggressor is Russia. Another theme was defence against Russia in co-operation with Atlantic-pact Allies.

Canada, he said, is gradually organizing a civil defence skeleton organization on which an expanded version could be built in emergency. To act up a fully-fledged organization now would be to invite lack of interest within a short period.

Any war would be a world war involving all western people as they have to fight for their survival as nations and "their freedom as men," said Mr. Claxton.

Peace Propaganda Offensive Takes Brand New Turn

Red Keynote First Sounded In Red-Controlled Press

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Nov. 12. (AP) — Moscow's peace propaganda offensive has taken a bold step into a new field. But the venture does not stand up well under critical examination, unless Russian scientists know far more than those in the United States know, or have told.

Now, with general acceptance of the report that the Soviet Union has an atom bomb, the peace-propaganda pattern pictures Russia, alone among the big powers, as using atomic energy strictly for peaceline projects.

Unless the Russians have much vaster knowledge of atomic energy and its uses than any scientists in the West, the latest Russian pronouncements on the atom—from Lake Success, from East Germany and from Moscow —must be looked upon primarily as a propaganda manoeuvre.

The keynote first was sounded last week in the communist-controlled press of Eastern Germany. The story was that the Soviet Union was blasting away mountains and diverting rivers and creating a great channel where once there was nothing but wasteland.

This was picked up and elaborated upon before the United Nations at Lake Success by Foreign Minister Vishinsky of Soviet Russia. He said Russia uses the power of the atom to move mountains, to irrigate deserts, to cut through jungles and Arctic wastes, to spread happiness and prosperity.

Expensive Commodity

Let's examine the statements of the Soviet foreign minister and the Communist press.

Atomic explosive is among the most expensive commodities in the world. To use it for blasting would be like using gold powder.

2. If atomic explosive were used in special circumstances for such purposes, the scientific processes radio-active and this condition would persist for years, with annoying hazards to those present.

3. One atom bomb, so far as the published facts in the United States indicate, could not do more than make a small dent in a mountain. How many would be needed to make a mountain or even blast a channel is not known.

Branded Propaganda

Sheffield, England, Nov. 12 — (AP)— Defence Minister A. V. Alexander Friday branded Russian peace propaganda Russian claims of using atomic power for vast engineering projects.

"That kind of propaganda is pretty faked boast," Alexander told the Sheffield Publicity Club. "I have yet to discover a scientist—and I think the scientific nations are a little ahead—who can tell me how to use atomic energy industrially for peace or to large numbers of the human race."

Portable A-Pile, Garbage Can Size, Result of Three Years' Research

Gerrard's Cross, 7 Bucks, England, Nov. 12—(AP)—Robert J. Barker, 26-year-old British scientist, Friday showed newspaper men a portable atomic pile, the size of a garbage can.

Barker claimed the portable pile will produce as much radio-active isotopes as the British government's large atomic pile at Harwell. But the government has refused to say, at least not for "practical use."

(Isotopes are tracer elements, important in medical and other research.)

A group of British scientists studied the invention, demonstrated in a sealed-off basement apartment and said they expressed agreement that the portable pile could be made to produce isotopes effectively and economically.

Experts from the Ministry of Supply, which bosses Britain's atomic energy research, issued a statement after studying Barker's machine. The statement quoted Sir John Cockcroft, head of the Atomic Energy Research Establishment, as saying such small devices as Barker's will not produce radioactive isotopes "for practical use."

The research centre had prepared a large number of such piles for medical and industrial use. It has used a cyclotron and Unp atomic energy piles to make them.

No American atomic experts have seen his development, Barker said. He extended an open invitation to any scientific team from the United States to examine it.

The machine, which produces uranium oxide, Barker said it was the result of three years of research by himself and other physicists at the A.S.P. Chemical Company, Limited.

GENERAL MOTORS WILL NOT BEND TO DEMANDS MADE

Discussions to End Strike at Oshawa Plant in Deadlock

Oshawa, Nov. 12—(CP)—Discussions between Union and company officials in the strike of 5,500 U.A.W. (C.I.O.) workers at the General Motors of Canada Corporation will be resumed next Monday in an effort to end the deadlock prevailing after a week of negotiations.

General Motors of Canada, Ltd., announced Friday it would not bend to demands by the United Autopublic Workers (C.I.O.) for reinstatement of four dismissed employees as a condition of settlement.

The strike began Oct. 26 when the four employees were fired of them stewards—were dismissed when they refused to work at production speedup. It is keeping 5,500 production workers idle.

The company said it would stand by its offer to submit the matter to the Ontario labor arbitration by an impartial arbitrator. But a mass membership meeting attended by union-estimated 1,500 workers rejected the company proposal without discussing vote.

Company Statement

The company statement said that matter of the dismissals must be settled under the provisions of the grievance procedure, which in this case calls for arbitration by the orderly means of resolving the dispute."

Overall the company do otherwise on this occasion, the statement added, "it would reduce the agreement to a useless document."

George Burt, Canadian director of the U.A.W., accused General Motors of embarking on a new policy of "starving out people" by firing them in an effort to intimidate the rest of the working force into accepting a speed-up.

The company claims it has added nothing to the line to take care of the extra production and expected to be a boat from 40 to 47 cars an hour. The union contends the production line cannot accommodate more men without crampede the original speed of the line, and that the higher speed requires greater effort of all the men for the same amount of work.

THE ABC's THAT FEW PEOPLE KNOW

There's a new set of ABC's since you went to school. It's a shorter alphabet, but it is far more difficult to master than the one you learned in first grade. Instead of "A for Apple, B for Boy, and C for Cat," it goes "A for preventing certain eye disorders; B for certain types of loss of appetite, and nervous fatigue; C for certain diseases affecting the teeth and gums; and D for safeguarding against weak bones."

This is the start of the Vitamin Alphabet. With it you can spell better health for yourself and your family if you know which letters to use. It isn't easy, however. The infant, adolescent, the adult, the convalescent, and the woman expecting a baby have different vitamin needs and no one product fits them all.

Few adults know their vitamin ABC's well enough to use them properly . . . and so they depend upon their physician to advise and their pharmacist to supply them with exactly the product they need. Such products can't be bought as you would buy butter and eggs. In vitamins, as in all matters affecting your health and well-being, there is no substitute for professional guidance.

Expect Many Deer Hunters

Several conservation officers have reported seeing fewer deer this fall in the drier parts of the district and attribute it to the recent drought and absence of bruse, according to the weekly report of Lands and Forests for Quinte District.

All indications point to a large number of deer hunters, when the season opens on November 15th many camp operators reporting an increase in reservations over last year. With more hunters in the woods, Wildlife Inspector Bob Sheppard, passes out the timely warning "don't forget the bright colored bush clothes and a little extra care to avoid accidents."

Red Feather Campaign Nears Its Objective

With a total of 2,310 subscriptions mounting to $13,151 the Red Feather drive presses toward the goal of $15,000 which it is recognized that several districts as well as some industries and employees' lists are yet to be reported, the committee of the community chest feels that the balance needed will only be obtained by an open and ready response on the part of all citizens. Workers who have given of their time so willingly in the past several weeks cannot be expected to carry on much longer and with only a few exceptions have made splendid returns. One last effort is urged on every worker for this weekend and replies for a generous outpouring of contributions by the citizens. Every cent is absolutely needed as the minimum objective of $18,000 is far short of the sum which would allow the agencies to carry on a satisfactory work in a time of living costs. It was felt at the outset that the objective of last year should not be increased and when this policy was adopted it was the hope that this amount would be overwhelmingly exceeded.

The prize winning essay by Allan Thom of King George School is the appeal of a seven year old for a worthy enterprise:

Red Feather Essay

We should help the Red Feather because it is a Community Chest. We should help the Y. M. C. A. so it can help children learn how to swim and play games. All children can't do it if it doesn't matter how poor you are.

So please give to the Red Feather."

Torch is Symbol of Freedom Says Brigadier Fulton In Speaking at Legion Banquet

"The torch, symbol of freedom, is the most important subject for consideration in the world today" said Brigadier Fraser Fulton O.B.E. in replying to the toast to our "Fallen Comrades" at the banquet held on Remembrance Day night at the Armouries under the auspices of the Canadian Legion, of this city. The banquet, prepared by the Women's Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion, was attended by more than 300 veterans of all ranks and was one of the finest ever staged in this city. The Legion are trying to make the residents of the city and district conscious of the great part played by veterans of two Great World Wars and their effort of last night will go far to achieve the end.

The tables were most tastefully decorated and they simply groaned with the many good eats and all the trimmings. Major Ed Smith was chairman for the function and after the invocation by Padre, Venerable Archdeacon Arthur Smith, the boys filled into the good things provided. Directly the last piece of bread table was a table prepared with the two chairs reserved for those, who will grace us at the head. Major Ald. Angus Duffy, Regimental Sergeant Major of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, in the absence of Monsigner J. P. Nicholson, O.B.E., who was unavoidably absent due to indisposition, acted as host to the fallen comrades. The lights were dimmed and then a solemn silence fell over the audience as the Last Port and Reveille was sounded by Bugler Wardle.

Speaker Introduced

F/Lt. Les Digby introduced the speaker of the evening and Mayor Wallace Hubbard voiced the thanks of the gathering. During the evening Frank High with Frank Hockaday and Willie McGuire entertained the troops in a most acceptable manner. The speaker stated that we were inclined to avoid serious thought about freedom, until it is threatened and in view of what is happening in the world today it is high time to ask ourselves a few questions. "Freedom seems simple and most of us are inclined to take it for granted yet it bristles with difficulties" said Mr. Fulton.

First Legal Step." .....

The speaker explained that the first legal step to guarantee our freedom was the signing of the Magna Charta. He stated that probably the most important freedom in freedom is tolerance. Friendly tolerance is far more effective in upholding freedom within a state than all the laws that are enacted. Every man who aspires to true freedom will keep in mind three precepts without which there is no effective liberty. These are what we believe is essentially true, what we like is not necessarily good and all opinions are open. It is our responsibility to see that this sacred five, our torch of ancestral freedom, must not die whatever may happen elsewhere in the world under the onslaught of authoritivism and dictatorship," said the speaker, "in the present crisis and disolute of history, the growth and decay of nations, has repeatedly shown that freedom is lost first through bondage to spiritual faith, then emotional faith by courage, then courage to accomplishment, from accomplishment to complacency, from complacency to apathy, from apathy to fear, from fear to dependency and from dependency back to bondage again."

The speaker believed that Canada stands today at the complacency apathetic stage, thus accepting the sacrifice and blood that have been given for our liberty and freedom we so smugly enjoy. We have become so used to abundance, cast off our complacency and apathy, and amongst other things take a real active interest in our educational system, our employment, our family life, our societies such as the Legion, the government of our country, our relations and other of those important elements of our democracy that we may indeed prosper as a nation and hold the torch of freedom high.

Boy Falls into Unused Pit And Saved by His Playmate

Presence of mind on the part of seven-year-old Donald Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jackson, South Front Street, is credited with saving the life of Douglas Morseau, 3, son of Mrs. Irene Moreau, 83 Pinnacle Street.

Friday afternoon the two lads, along with another boy, were playing in the yard of the Morseau gas plant when the Morseau boy fell into a water-filled pit and would have drowned had not the Jackson boy pulled him out. The water and mud in the disused pit was stated to have been over the boy's head.

Ordinarily the yard of the former gas plant is closed, but workmen were stated to have been on the premises Friday and left the gate open. The three small boys got into the yard through the open gate and played.

She said she had told officials of the local public utilities about the danger of the open pit.

Mrs. Ethler gave great credit to the Jackson boy who saved the gas plant yard," stated Mrs. Ed. ward Ethler, 85 Pinnacle Street, "Douglas would be drowned but "but warning of the boys did not seem to do any good."

She said she had told officials of the local public utilities about the danger of the open pit.

Mrs. Ethler gave great credit to the Jackson boy who saved the gas plant yard," stated Mrs. Ed

Life in The Caribbean

By M. HOLLAND COX
(In Canadian National Magazine)

There is a vast difference between keeping house in Canada and in Dominica, that little known island which forms part of the group lying north of Barbados, and which is reached by the Lady Boats of the Canadian National Steamships. Life in the Caribbean is a different from all Canadian experience that it is like being transported to a lovely planet where frost is never known and summer drifts on through the seasons whose coming and going are marked mainly by the appearance of different fruits and blossoms. Except for the hotter months of July, August and September in which hurricanes may occur, temperature changes little.

Roseau, the capital and only real town on the whole island, is very small and has electricity between six p.m. and six a.m. only, so that electrical appliances such as are used in Canada are of no use, and of course gas is non-existent. Practically all cooking in the island over is done outdoors on charcoal braziers or in kitchens quite away from the house proper, and food has to be carried, sometimes through a yard, to the table. The kitchen ranges are built of cement which is laid on over a wooden frame, and have two or more round holes into which metal firepots are inserted. On baking day a weird contraption called a Monsieur oven (a tin-covered wooden box) is placed over one of the firepots and a pan of glowing charcoal sits on top. How the blacks manage to produce such toothsome results with such primitive aids is a mystery.

The Dominican does not take kindly to hot water and every drop has to be specially heated. Dishes are washed usually in cold water with plenty of suds from a strong yellow soap bought in long bars and cut into sections. The dishes, pots and pans, and frequently clothes also, are occasionally turned face up on the ground to be sun-cleansed and brightened. Silver is apt to turn black very quickly from the sulphur which is emitted by the volcano vents in the hills.

Every day is wash day in Dominica, and each little mountain stream and tiny river is alive with women, wide cotton skirts lifted above their knees, busily kneading their clothing on flat rocks or chafing it between their hands, all chatting and singing as they work. The garments are rinsed in the swift flowing water and hung over bushes or boulders in the river bed to dry, so that a stream sometimes looks like a miniature circus ground covered with tents. As the rains are frequent and heavy in the high hills, it sometimes occurs that a sudden swelling of the stream causes pandemonium, and the laundry must be gathered with speed or it is liable to go sailing off to sea on the crest of a flood.

Everything so portable is carried on the head, and the great baskets of smoky laundry are carried by the bonne by a system which would break the Canadian woman's patience into fragments. The clothing is dampened in orthodox manner, and an iron brazier fired with charcoal; when the embers glow cherry red, a set of irons, two, three or four, is placed sideways, flat surface toward the heat, and the pile is under way. How the laundress manages to obtain perfect ironing without burning her hands or smutting the article is another mystery; but you never saw prettier work.

Even a small household, unless it is attached in the very town itself, has some sort of boy messenger or runner who does all the shopping and spends most of her time going and coming with messages. Bread, particularly made, must be carried home in blocks of from ten to twenty-five at thirty pounds, wrapped in cloth and on the head, of course, sometimes in a pan but more often not. Fish must be brought home to be cooked almost as soon as caught, and whether there is an liking for meat — which is not much in demand by foreigners since it is polished off the day it becomes meat — fish, may be served twice daily, involving two trips to the waterfront.

There is no telephoning to the corner grocery, though the island does have a telephone system, very antiquated, and one orders a tin of sardines or a bunch of onions; the runner comes and goes back each night for next day's needs, and the list is made each night and brings them home, usually in very small amounts, a cent's worth of this, penny-worth of that, a gill, quarter pound, pound or two. The gentlewoman would order in gallons, quarts and in ten-pound lots perhaps.

There are no cellars in which to store food, nor could it be kept if there were. Things spoil quickly in southern climates, and there are many insects, particularly ants, to guard against. Surely, the scientist who asserted that in the end the ants and insects rule the earth, was right; anyway, as between the ants and the meek you can give the former big odds. All pantry supplies must be kept in tightly-closed containers on a screened and safe whose feet stand perpetually in tins of water or castoil. This system creats perfect immunity, for the ants, though admittedly clever, have not yet learned to swim. They will, though, some day.

There are unaccounted vendors, both male and female (though not most of th.. Island's work is carried on by the women), who cry their wares abroad in the streets: "Fresh fish, fish!", "Yams, red yams, yellow yams!" "A B C!" "Figs and Pears, pears, pears! Nice pears!" The calls rise stridently above the hum of motorcars, barking of dogs, shrilling of children and the multitudinous sounds of a tropical land. More than half the time the calls are made in a strange, slurred, negro-corrupted French which it is impossible to translate without relearning French — their kind, that is; and you can buy coconuts, wild flowers, potatoes, yams, breadfruit, christophenes, peppers of all kinds, alligator pears and in fact, almost any fruit or vegetable at your door daily. Unless a stop is put to their coming, the yard will be besieged with all kinds and condition of vendors. After a time the housekeeper selects a few and takes only from them. Eggs are not come in cartons, nicely graded and stamped; they are trickled along in cone and twos, and have to be scrutinized closely.

Most imported goods are more expensive than in the north, but the prices of other foodstuffs more than counterbalance, so that the cost of living is pretty much what you wish to make it.

If you feed your servants, though few do, preferring to pay a stated amount and let them "eat themselves," you will buy a few cents' worth of figs (a small banana, never exported but very delicious), salt fish (from Nova Scotia), dasheen (a vegetable not unlike a turnip which, mashed, resembles most unappetizing grey potato). The food uneaten at each meal usually disappears forever; you rarely get leftovers and you do not crave them, either.

The cooking is fashioned of dry palm leaves, split and bound together in bags between which are ingeniously fastened to a bamboo stick. Like the stoves these are offered in the hands of Dominicans only.

Meals are early, late and frequent, since everything makes about six a.m. and goes to bed comparatively early. Dinner for the family is usually served around eight, but the natives seem to have no set hour and may be found walking down a road or squatting in front of a brazier by the sidewalk or in their yards, enjoying their yams, fish or cassava. Their diet is not much variety and is quite starchy since such foods are cheapest.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

LATE LEAVERS

Birds dependent for their existence on Blue must go to a warmer climate than ours before the supply gives out; though required open water for fishing cannot remain here once hard frost has set in; many seed eaters linger only until snow covers their food. Flesh eating birds stay continually. But dried fruits hang from bare branches for months, small fruits hide in bark crevices throughout the winter, and certain weeds show over the top of the snow. And so birds with varied tastes, or those fortunate enough to find their favorite food, are late leavers. However, weather conditions and migration urge which are ingeniously fastened to a bamboo stick. Like the stoves these are offered in the hands of Dominicans only.

For practical purposes it is best to consider Tulips in either of two principal classes—early or late. The former comprise single earlies and double earlies. The late tulips comprise Darwins, Breeders and Cottages.
Darwins are by far the most popular because of their long stems, size of blooms, lasting substance and wide colour range. Principal colors are white, scarlet, red and rose-red, mauve and lilac, purple and deep violet, maroon-black and black and golden yellow.
Darwins bloom in May along with the Breeder and Cottage types. Plant in well prepared and thoroughly drained soil 6 inches deep and 4 inches apart. It is best to put a trowel full of sand below each bulb. Buy good bulbs, as results are determined by their quality.

FATAL ACCIDENTS IN U.S. HOMES

Home is where the heart is — and where the heart of the accident problem is, says a report of the United States National Safety Council. The 1949 edition of Accident Facts, the statistical yearbook of the council, gives the proof that home accident deaths last year led all, making the home the No. 1 accident killer.

There were 35,000 home accident deaths. Falls were the greatest cause of home deaths in the United States resulting in 16,200 fatalities. Second for fatalities were burns, scalds and explosions, claiming the lives of 6,000 Americans. Mechanical suffocation killed 1,800, the third in line.

For closer detail into the home accidents it is proven that more than 25 per cent of fatal home accidents occur in the bedroom. The yard and kitchen are the next most hazardous locations at home, causing 12 and 10 per cent of the deaths respectively.

Such figures as these can teach a lesson of the need of care. The toll in the home has long been proven the heaviest. Total costs of accidents in America in 1948 were $7,400,000,000.

WEATHER PUZZLES

November while it has given that first touch of winter which makes itself felt has lapsed into the milder temperament and is behaving more like a very late October.

There has been frost several times and there has been the first very light snow. With November so far advanced it seems amiss to ask when and if there was Indian Summer.

That elusive season has seemed more elusive than ever this year if it has already come and gone for if it has few have recognized it. It is said to follow a frost and to be marked with haze.

VALUE OF BIRD BANDING

The late Jack Miner of Kingsville, Ont., was the pioneer bird bander, the first to secure a complete record of where a wild waterfowl was banded and where it was killed. This was in 1909. Since then there have been over 30,000 duck and more than 45,000 Canada geese banded at his sanctuary, for the purpose of studying their routes of migration.

On the Jack Miner band were his name and post office address. If the band was put on in the spring, the letter S was stamped on the band; if in the fall, the letter F. To know exactly the day and the hour the bird was banded he put on a serial initial and kept a complete record of when all the A's were banded, then the B's, the C's, and so on. In this way Jack Miner could tell the exact time any bird recaught or reported shot had first been banded.

Jack Miner's bands accomplished what he wanted to do, namely, they told him the percentage of birds shot in each Province of Canada or in each State of the United States. They told him how long the bird had lived. Each bird carried on its band the year it had been caught and released again at the Jack Miner Sanctuary; and the initial gave the exact date. Each year, all records and data subsequently secured, were given to both the Canadian and the United States Governments.

AN OLD STOVE IN MUSEUM

Stoves, of the older and now obsolete types that is, were more than a mass of iron shaped to ornate design by the founder's art. They were genial companions, the centre of family and social life. Their ruddy glow and comforting warmth gave them a personality. Folks became deeply attached to their stoves in a simpled and less hurried age than ours.

Thus it was no more than a perfectly natural and human wish that led the curator of the museum of the University of Western Ontario, in London, to intimate to officials of the Canadian National Railways that one of the station agent's old stoves would be viewed as a acquisition to the museum's department of pioneer archaeology.

Such stoves have become rare and many of them have gone the way to the scrap yards. One was located, though, that had stood for sixty years in the Strathroy station. It was presented to the museum by Mr. J. A. Lomas, Vice-President, Central Region, of the Canadian National Railways.

Known as a "pot belly," this stove was of rugged construction and proportions. It was fashioned to do a real job of heating, and it did so for a long time. And what a lot of human history it must have witnessed in its time! Joy and sorrow, hope and disillusionment, success and failure; for a railway station, whether large or small, is an interesting microcosm. — Hamilton Spectator.

ADVERSITY

He thought adversity his foe,
He stood and fought 'til blow for blow,
And spent his strength and time to be Rewarded by prosperity.

His friends and neighbors used to tell,
He stands to disappointment well.
When he succeeds a man can't be Deserving of prosperity.

But he turned arrogant and proud;
His voice grew over harsh and loud.
The man adversity had made,
Temptations started to degrade.
He stood to blows with courage rare;
Proved heavy burdens he could bear.
But when came ease and luxury,
He couldn't stand prosperity.

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A SOUND PRICE OF ADVICE: Can you remember when asked the older man to advise him on how to become successful. The older man's counsel was: "Jump when the right opportunity comes." But how will I know when the right opportunity comes?" asked the boy. And the older man's reply was: "Keep on jumping."

There are a few opportunities which come but once in life, just as there are certain great events which happen only once or very occasionally in a lifetime. But our daily existence is made up of opportunities, scores, and hundreds of lesser opportunities. Every day we have the opportunity to do some little good or some little evil. Every day in the office, store, mill, or classroom we have opportunities to improve ourselves a little by added and more intelligent effort, or to fall back just a little in our own inner esteem or in the standing we have with our superiors. Although we are frequently not conscious of the significance of each of these little opportunities lead to glorious results, and others of them lead to suffering and shame.

Life consists largely in a continual understanding of our personalities by every kind of opportunity. "Keep on jumping." This is good advice for us all. Appraise every opportunity, select it carefully—and then jump.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Russia has the largest forests in the world. Brazil comes second, Canada's 3,462,103 square miles of solid earth—she has a tremendous share—is only about one-third forest.

If Canada were divided up equally, according to some fancy socialistic theory, among her 13,000,000 people, we would each get about a quarter of a square mile. There is no solitude in that.

But if each of us wanted a nice quiet bit of woods for ourselves, we should have to be content with far less than a quarter of a square mile. It would be a little bit of woodlot about a thirteenth of a square mile per man, woman and child. And some of it would be pretty paltry forest at that: because Canada's forest area of 1,290,960 square miles includes both productive and unproductive treed land.

Canadians are a little inclined to think of their country as a small inhabited fringe, backed up by limitless wilderness. The wilderness is far from limitless and what there is of it is vanishing fast. In the past twenty short years, the proportion of that million and a quarter square miles of land that has been protected by the tourist traffic with its roads, cabins, aircraft depots, must be very large. Just before the last war, some friends of mine were privileged to visit the Esperanse country in the arctic and caught some arctic char—a gorgeous fish closely related to the eastern brook trout. I regretted then that I was a little too old to make so far and hazardous a trip. I think I ticked off that as a list of my ambitions.

Last night, an American friend from Omaha visited my house with two daughters, age 11 and 14, and his wife. They had movies to show me. Arctic char. They had all been up to the Coppermine this past summer, flishing, by plane. The movie showed the children, in hats, hair blown, legged hopping amongst the boulders of the arctic river . . . Ah, wilderness!

Exeter, 'Jewel Of The West' In Midst of Rebuilding Plan

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Exeter, Devonshire, England, Nov. 12, (CP)— Exeter, "Jewel of the West" and one of many once claimed to have destroyed, is to have a new setting.

The rebuilding plan launched recently by Princess Elizabeth, when she set a commemorative plaque, will not aim at reproducing the city as it was before the 1942 blitz. Exeter's most treasured historical features will be preserved, but many improvements will be built around them.

The plan calls for a new belt around the city centre; widening of the bombed part of the High Street; new municipal, public and semi-public buildings; an inner road for local traffic and a bypass.

Two main objectives are restoration of the city as a premier shopping, distributive and tourist centre of Devonshire, and the introduction of light industries to bring in more trade.

"Only the ignorant have consider have outlived their purpose will not be replaced," said C. J. Newman, clerk to Exeter Council, "but those which have real architectural beauty will be preserved irrespective of their age.

"Dwelling houses to replace those which the bombed will be built in the modern manner with modern comforts and conveniences."

The rebuilding of Exeter was planned at the invitation of Exeter Council by Thomas Sharp, principal of the British town planning institute, who also devised a plan for the rebuilding of Durham.

Some of his proposals aroused local contention, but the general plan was adopted by the council with few modifications.

Although Germany's claim to have "destroyed" Exeter was exaggerated, the damage done by explosive and fire bombs on the night of May 4, 1942, was considerable.

Of the city's 20,000 houses, 1,500 were destroyed, 3,700 seriously damaged and 16,000 more rendered temporarily uninhabitable. Many historic buildings including a corner of the famous cathedral, also suffered.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PIONEER COLUMNIST

Few there are now who know that perhaps our earliest newspaper columnist was Lafcadio Hearn who went to New Orleans from Cincinnati in 1877, securing a position on the Daily City Item in 1878. Later he was employed by the Times-Democrat, where, though unknown as a literary figure, he wrote brief pieces that attracted wide attention.

These column pieces were written on a variety of topics, such as "Creole Servant Girls," "Old Fashioned Colour," "Wabrooms," "Furnished Rooms," "The City of dreams," "Ghostseers," "Home," and many a topic of current interest. Most of these articles were illustrated by a wood carving that Hearn did with his pen knife on wood blocks on the backs of cigar-boxes—which had been used for advertisements.

The talent of this remarkable man was not long in being recognized and many friends in New Orleans took an interest in him, giving him encouragement. He was a small, strange looking little man, with but one eye that he could use, one being destroyed while he was in school in England, but even that one eye could have given him only 20/20 cent vision. Yet from that humble beginning Lafcadio Hearn made an fame have become almost worldwide in literature.

Hearn's first book, "Chita," was published while Hearn lived in New Orleans as well as a few other lesser writings and translations. He spent two years in the West Indies, writing a most absorbing book about them. And in 1887 was published his famous book "Chinese Ghosts," an exquisite, though illusive volume, that is probably the rarest of all the Hearn books in a first edition.

Later—about 1890—Hearn left for Japan, married a Japanese woman and became a naturalized citizen of that country. He taught English in the University of Tokyo and was greatly beloved. There he died in 1904. And there is a memorial building to his memory. Many are the literary treasures that Hearn left to the world—a total of some twenty volumes, not to mention the scores of books and articles written about Hearn.

And all this from our earliest American columnist.

Letter to the Editor

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

It is the annual custom of the Minister of Education, through the Superintendent of Elementary Education, to request that all elementary schools in the province arrange for a suitable program of commemoration on the school day preceding that Remembrance Day. On these occasions pupils are the most active participants and the significance of the occasion is the more firmly presented.

It has above regard, special commendation should go to the Belleville Poppy Campaign Committee which has provided for the past two years that poppies be distributed to all schools in numbers sufficient for all children enrolled. I have no doubt, therefore, that the distribution of these poppies has made more certain that children will appreciate the occasion and that the memory will remain more firmly with them.

Hormone Acth Said Effective in Incurable Nephritis Cases

Chicago, Nov. 11 (AP)—The new miracle hormone acth has brought dramatic results in treatment of another disease—incurable nephritis—researchers reported Thursday.

Nephritis, an inflammation of the kidneys, is the fourth major killer among human diseases. It claims 100,000 deaths a year, most of them children of persons in the prime of life.

Dr. Edith Farnsworth of Northwestern University has used the drug on seven patients in the hour and Company, suppliers of acth, selected her to do research in this disease in an effort to learn whether the drug would prove helpful.

"WEAK KIDNEYS"

When a patient makes the statement that he has "weak kidneys" he is wrong on two counts. First, there is no such thing as weak kidneys.

No disease of the kidneys can be ascribed to "weakness." The kidneys are subject to a variety of disorders which interfere with the function of staining or filtering out waste products from the blood. When this function fails, to any extent, the disease responsible for it is a process not related to strength or weakness.

The symptom the patient lays to "weakness" of the kidneys is frequent urination. I wonder what suggests that urinary frequency is related to the degree of "strength" of the kidneys. It may be that the patient fails to distinguish between the kidneys and the bladder. The idea of a muscular organ, such as the bladder, being "weak," is understandable.

Frequent urination may be due to various causes. Obviously, if the bladder is rapidly refilled after being emptied, frequency of urination is inevitable. Rapid filling of the bladder may result from drinking large amounts of fluid, particularly fluids containing substances which are stimulating to the kidneys, such as alcoholic beverages, tea and coffee. Certain drugs cause the kidneys to remove large amounts of fluid from the blood and this fluid must be stored in and discharged by the bladder. Any of this, occurs of course, in the presence of normally functioning kidneys and bladder.

Diabetes may cause an increase in the daily output of urine and thus lead to frequent urination, particularly the "sugarless" type known as diabetes insipidus. Actual disorder of the kidneys or bladder may not be present in these conditions.

Frequent urination in many instances assumes the proportions of a habit, pure and simple. In other instances, organic disease may be present. As a general rule, these are found in the bladder and lower urinary canal rather than in the kidneys.

Aged men may be subject to frequent and annoying urination because of the enlargement of the prostate gland. Surgery prevents the bladder from completely emptying itself. The retained urine undergoes decomposition, the by-products of which irritate the bladder and pave the way for subsequent infection. In these cases, urination is frequent and marked, the total daily output is within normal limits.

Many persons who complain of "nervousness" actually mean that they have acquired the habit of frequent urination. Not realizing that they have a bad habit rather than a physical disorder, they make their own diagnosis of "weak kidneys". It is a simple matter for an intelligent person to overcome this habit.

The average urinary output amounts t about three pints per day. Decrease in fluid intake and perspiration may reduce this amount considerably, without the slightest hearing upon the subject of kidney or bladder disease.

Frequent and unnecessary urination is often a symptom exhibited by neurotic, maladjusted individuals. The habit, while harmless from a physical standpoint, indicates the need of emotional stability. A person who has developed this symptom or habit would do well to secure a physician's services before it becomes too long established. And, while we're at it, everybody would do well to just forget the phrase "weak kidneys."

Film Council Trains Operators For Projectors

The regular monthly meeting of the Belleville and District Film Council was held in the Corby Public Library Thursday evening with the president, Mr. Holmes, presiding.

It is the wish of the executive of the Federation of Film Councils of Eastern Ontario to find out the demand for religious films in the areas served by the 12 councils. If there is a sufficient number of users consideration will be given to the centralized purchasing of such films. These films would then be available for renting through the local councils. A committee of Sister Mary Verda, Mrs. G. C. Sparling and Mr. Jack Wilson was appointed to study the needs and possible support in the Belleville area.

The fiscal year of the local film council will now run from September to September it was decided. This will conform to the pattern in other councils.

Training Class

A training class for operators of film projectors will be started under the leadership of Mr. Holman. Those who complete the course and qualify for the certificate as a qualified operator will be given an Operator's Handbook. This handbook explains the operation of all makes of 16 mm projectors. Those interested should enquire for details from Miss Delaney, librarian, at the Corby Public Library.

Plans are under consideration for holding a film workshop early in the new year. This will be open to all interested and should prove helpful to anyone using films in any way.

Mr. MacGhee, explained the use of preview evaluation forms. These were found helpful in assessing the worth of a film in relation to its use among the various organizations in a community.

Showed Four Films

Mr. Ward, the National Film Board representative, showed 4 films. The first "Par Breaker" was in color and showed the Canadian golf tournament held last summer on the St. George's Course in Toronto. It follows the keen competition during the three days of play, giving closeup shots of the players. "Come to the Fair" was an animated color sing-song. "Canada Calling" tells the story of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation as told by John Fisher. It is a 20 minute black and white film which should prove interesting and educative. This story was purchased by the Belleville and District Film Council and will be available for rental. The "Leslie Bell Singers" were seen and heard in one reel film with excellent sound reproduction This film has been sponsored by the Foxboro Film Council. The necessity of filling in the title and other information on the record cards was stressed by Mr. Ward. Some sound tracks have been omitting some of the needed information.

The local film council will be glad to arrange to have the golf film "Par Breakers" placed in the library at a later date if there are enthusiasts who would like to see it.

INFERNO SUIT PASSES FIRE TEST

A suit designed to keep aircraft crash firemen at 130 degrees of body temperature while they are working in a flaming inferno of gasoline and oil that registers a sizzling 2,000 degrees has just been put through a series of successful tests by the United States air force engineering division at Dayton, Ohio. The gleaming white suit is made of 18 layers of glass fibre materials and silver and aluminum foil arranged to provide the best possible protection against both conductive and radiative heat. Here a volunteer fireman completely engulfed in flames tests the new suit. — Central Press Canadian.

Women's Styles Heading Back To Those of 1920

Toronto, Nov. 11 (CP)—Women's styles are rapidly heading back to those of 1920, Viola Shofer said Thursday.

Here to stage the advance show for the Dress Manufacturers' Guild of Toronto, Miss Shofer said the 1920 vogue was to dress in a shapeless gown which let the waistline several inches below the point where the waistline actually exists.

"I was through this before," she said. "And, believe me, I didn't know where my waistline was until I was 23 years of age."

Mother Should Remain in Bed For Two Weeks

London (CP)—Princess Elizabeth's obstetrician says mothers should stay in bed at least two weeks after their babies are born.

"I am a great believer in people getting up after operations," Sir William Gilliatt told a nursing conference.

"But I consider that there is nothing to be said for getting a normal mother out of bed as soon as has had her baby."

Sir William, who attended Princess Elizabeth when Prince Charles was born, said new mothers should be encouraged to do physical exercises from the second day. But there should not get up for two weeks.

Fix Subtle Aroma To Lingerie

Manchester, England (CP) — Blossom and lingerie will have a perfume "built in" by a woman's clothing company here.

The managing director of Printcess Textiles, who thought of the idea, says:

"At the moment we are using one perfume only. It is worked into the fabric by a special process and present tests show how it lingers after the usual washings, often more, and we are out to double that.

"My wife suggested the design on the fabric, which includes lupids, love birds, and clouds.

"We hope to supply this material in six distinctive perfumes to give the shopper a wide choice."

Drama in Canada is Theme Of Remembrance Day Address To Women's Canadian Club

The Women's Canadian Club was privileged to have, as their guest speaker, at their annual Armistice Day luncheon in Albert College, the noted dramatic critic and president of the Marlow Society of English Literature, Professor Arnold Edinborough, M.C., M.A., professor of English at Queen's University, Kingston, who addressed a capacity audience on "Drama in Canada".

Prior to the luncheon, which preceded the address a half hour of musical enjoyment was provided by Mrs. Mary Deacon at the console of the Hammond wave organ in the college chapel. Several delightful numbers were rendered, including the perpetual favorite "Clair de Lune", Mignon's "Gavotte", and "Festival Toccata", which were beautifully interwoven with the Armistice Day theme "Land of Hope and Glory", filling the air with lovely gradations of coloring, which not only brought out, the full tone of the organ, but the artist's feeling interpretation, as well.

Following the president's, (Mrs. W. J. Doyle), gracious welcome to the out-of-town guests and the introduction of the speaker, a two minute silence, background ed by the quiet reading of a poem in commemoration of that glorious dead, was maintained.

Professor Edinborough prefaced his remarks by saying we should first start by inquiring what 'drama' was, then the answer that drama was a picture representing human life, accommodated to action. An example of which might be, children playing house, with a mother 'dad', and the girl as 'mother'; or by the game of Indians, and various other representations. He then outlined the needs of the drama, which included the play, or thing represented; the place in which to hold it, with the needful background; that is the theatre, or playhouse; the players or actors, those who take part in the play representing some thing or person; and the audience, without which a play or drama could not exist.

Canadian Drama

Contrary to some existing opinions, Canada has several plays, and play writers. Of these, some are good and some are not as good. Many are as good as any produced in foreign countries. Joseph Schull, of Montreal, the writer of "The Bridge", which, though not a Canadian event took one in France, showing the meaning of a bridge blown up by Germans in nevertheless a fine study of collaboration in the last war, and Merrill Denison, with fine movement.

Another Canadian writer Shirley Harkness, of Nova Scotia, who wrote "Devil Take Me" following much the same theme as "Faust". William Digby, of London, Ont., is another writer of Canadian drama with one entitled "Over the Boiler Room", which depicts in three acts, a group of people in a house, in everyday life. This play was accepted at the London Little Theatre, and has a fine atmosphere.

Lester Sinclair, of Toronto, and Morley Callaghan, also of Toronto, are both writers of plays, as well as Robertson Davies of Peterborough, who has written "Fortune, My Foe", "Eros at Breakfast," as well as four other one-act plays. Davies, Sinclair, and Callaghan have all had their plays published, for these it is seen that there are plenty of plays, but the hindrance is lack of professional theatres, which is as shameful as the lack of a national library.

Need of Players and Actors

The next need is players or actors, amateur and professional. Most of the players in Canada are Canadian born, as Mary Pickford, and others. As a rule they form dramatic clubs, as the Hart-... Little Guild, and the Ottawa League of Players, are travel about teaching in the schools.

Without an audience, no play is wanted, and Professor Edinborough cited the play called "Mullock's Red Plush" on theatre itself, had to fold up after six weeks because of lack of support, and the only remedy for this is the amateur players who are taken from the district, to act in the theatres. The people are interested to see their friends know, so they go to the play, and by going lend both encouragement and financial aid to the theatre like the Woman's Canadian Club, which could do much to help the Canadian drama by getting a suitable place to present the play—a little lobbying on the part of the management this part—cast off clothing could be made use of, as really presentable gowns for the actors; lighting effects could be evolved by the management, and a little colored paint; scenery can be produced from old sheets and awning materials.

Incentive

The means to assist in the promotion of Canadian drama, continued the speaker, is to have a given necessary incentive; then get organized, form a club, get a backing and publicity and have the fees paid up, then there will be the financial asset to fall back upon. In Peterborough nine separate groups have entered places in two years.

"No great civilization has ever existed without its plays and dramas. The Greek civilization depended on the Greek drama; Rome kept alive by Greek and by the drama; and even Broadway has its prototype attributes to the ancient drama. In France, Germany and England the drama was an integral part of civilization, and the United States of America has a definite dramatic background. Canadian drama is in a first class position. We should be prepared to experiment and not be hidebound." The one thing a play can do," concluded Professor Edinborough "is to diffuse culture. What no other thing can do as well."

A vote of appreciation was extended to Professor Edinborough by Mrs. W. C. Mikel on behalf of the audience for his most enlightening and interesting talk; and also by Mrs. Doyle, who added her thanks both to Professor Edinborough, for the illuminating light on Canadian drama; to Mary Deacon for her delightful half hour of music and to Dr. Howard students and staff for their great kindness and co-operation in depended on the Green drama; the afternoon.

Right-Hand Women to Holiday King Handles Big Task

BY NORMAN CRIBBENS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP)— It's fun working for Billy Butlin, Britain's holiday camp king, who spent his boyhood in Canada, says Winifred West.

Winifred ought to know. She's his confidential secretary who got the job in a three-minute interview six years ago.

Just outside the office a barrier of three typists and a doorman protects her from casual intruders. When she takes down letters herself—at a speed of 100 to 120 words a minute—it is from a man sitting at the late Joachim von Ribbentrop's desk bought from the German embassy sale.

Her job means reading and answering all private correspondence, supervising the female staff, picking uniforms for camp personnel, engaging staff, dealing with begging letters, knowing all about Butlin camps at home and abroad.

She organizes the entertainment of every celebrity visiting Butlin and his camps, and deals with correspondence in French.

The job has its disadvantages.

Four-Figure Salary

For "When I go on holiday I can choose Butlin hotels in Cannes, Monte Carlo or Paris," Winifred said, "and not pay more than four figures."

Winifred was working as private secretary to a company director when in 1943 she saw an advertisement which specified: Secretary wanted, able to work on own initiative and pleasant looking."

"I talked to Mr. Butlin as briskly as he talked to me and answered all his questions promptly and without hesitation. He likes that."

The amount of entertaining required by her job means working in several evening dresses. For formal occasions Winifred always has one black velvet evening gown in the clothes closet of her two-room Kensington apartment.

To be a successful secretary, she says: "You must know the way your boss' mind works and learn absolute discretion."

The ideal boss should be "understanding, approachable and know exactly what he wants."

Barbara Ann Cuts Down Little As Rib Mends

Edmonton, Nov. 12 (CP)—Barbara Ann Scott is pirouetting about the ice these days with instead of tape around her slender midriff.

But of more immediate concern right now to the petite star of a skating extravaganza here on a country-wide tour is the loss of one of her skaters who fell down a flight of stairs the other night and cracked an ankle.

And her pet dog has the flu.

Barbara Ann laughingly told Friday night how she learned last week in Calgary that the pain she had thought was due to a bad bruise was in fact a cracked rib and a pulled muscle suffered in Ottawa two months ago while practising new routines.

"It's such a bother," she said.

The blonde, 22-year-old girl who has held most of the world's amateur figure skating titles showed no hesitation in the injury Friday as she led her troupe in a free show for Edmonton school children. "With all this tape around me I don't feel a thing when I skate," she said.

While the rib is mending she'll "take it easy" for a few days, possibly cutting down a little in the complicated routines of a figure skater that include graceful double Salchows and difficult figures.

Will her present little troubles affect the growing rumour discussion of rumored friction among the show's principals, since denied by all concerned, between her performances? ...

"I wouldn't think of having anything like this interfere with the show," she said.

Ernie Provokes Ire Of Bandage Experts

London (CP)—The speaker was Ernest Adams, 59, a Notingham iron worker. Out front were 250 factory nurses.

"You simply don't know how to fasten a good bandage," Ernest told them. "They slip and they slide and they never stay put."

"How dare you," muttered someone in the audience.

Ernie went on: "No matter whether it is a finger, an arm, or a leg, bandages always get in the move. Workers in heavy industries get fed up. They have patience for a while and then they swear and rip it off—and get dirt into the wound."

SISTERS ALL

Talking with television people, it seems that the newscasters, announcers and singers who do televised programs are getting thousands of fan letters. All this fan mail is by no means complimentary. Rather, it is critical, personally critical.

John Doe letter-writer, is telling his radio favorite that he should shave before he comes on to broadcast. He tells him his tie is too flashy, his hair is untidy, his collar unclean. He tells him he observes as well as listen to a speaker or a singer, they demand that his grooming and his general appearance be attractive.

The usual laxity in dress and carelessness is grooming by many radio people are in for one drastic change with television . . . It's rather tough on Ole boys and girls of radio, who often must rise at dawn and work long hours in confined studios to whip out the stuff people want to listen to.

A father and his son home from college, were hard at work putting in a new fence on the front lawn. A neighboring fencer passing by with a load of feed stopped to shout: "Does it take a university education to dig post holes?"

Glancing quizzically at his son, the father shouted back: "No . . . But sometimes it takes digging post holes to get a university education."

Something different in traffic lights exists at the corner of Granville and Hastings Streets in Vancouver where an all-way pedestrian signal flashes every 30 seconds. When the green and Christian light snaps on, motor traffic stops dead at all four streets, while pedestrians cross in all directions to cross in any and every direction—even diagonally. And they do.

It seems this particular corner used to chalk up a high pedestrian accident toll. Since installation of the pleasant, all-out light, the accident rate is way, way down.

Another unusual traffic idea is the traditional 'courtesy stop' at the four corners next the Hotel Vancouver. Here, a car from what ever direction, is supposed to stop courteously and wait for the pedestrian . . . Now that motor traffic is becoming more congested, this business of being courteous only confuses the walkers and the tourist drivers. The custom will be stopped and replaced by electric signals.

Across from the Hotel Vancouver is Oscar's Place. It's a small steak house run by young and dapper Oscar Blanck. Every year, 200,000 hungry people nip into Oscar's for a snack or a meal before or after a concert from prize steers in the Western stock shows.

Photos of movie stars and world travellers, paper the walls of this busy eating spot. Interesting thing about Oscar himself, is that he never wears a necktie more than one day. Every night at midnight, Oscar gives a tie to the first customer who asks for it. At his home Oscar prizes what he believes to be the largest tie collection in the world.

Business Woman Helps to Make Business Succeed

Montreal, (CP)—A note to business men: If you want your business to be a success, you need a few women employees.

That was the advice of the only two women delegates attending the sessions of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here.

Mrs. Ruth J. Merriman, secretary treasurer of the Brantford, Ont., Board of Trade and Marriman, Hamilton manager of the Three Rivers, Que., Board of Trade, said they think there are some phases of office work which are better handled by women.

Business men, they said, the two women believe, are beginning to realize the value of women in executive workers to industry.

Mrs. Merriman said she thinks women are capable of getting more co-operation from a man than "he would have anyone but the usual masculine way."

For example, when Mrs. Merriman telephones a busy executive, he seldom bluntly refuses to speak to her but gives her up politely. When he is told by his secretary it is a feminine voice on the telephone, almost without exception, he will take the call.

Savoy's Press Agent Prettiest in London

London (CP)—Jean Nichol, 27-year-old publicity director at London's Savoy Hotel, has been called London's prettiest press agent.

Whether it's a millionaire maharajah wanting to keep his trip Noah-board, or a top-line movie star out to make his visit a front-page event, Jean's done her best for them.

She has a baby of two when she left Perth, Scotland, with her family. At 17 she went to the Savoy as a typist. Today she has three girl assistants and averages a 10-hour working day.

One day a busy London newspaper man, Derek Tangye, called in to talk over a story. They fell in love, married and took a home on the banks of the Thames.

Jean's job has brought her a remarkable collection of signed photographs, distributed all over the walls of her pastel-painted office.

One of the most prized is an autographed photo of Field Marshal Montgomery—a rarity since the field marshal dislikes autographing his portraits.

And there are plenty of them at the Savoy.

Keep Your Hair Well-Groomed

Use a lavender-scented hair tonic to help restore softness and lustre to dry hair. Apply at several partings on scalp and massage well.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Are you doing right by your hair? How your hirsute thatch appears is pretty important. Scrambled hair may be casual, but it does not bring a girl any beauty prizes. Neatness is the rule, no matter whether you are a teen-ager, in your twenties, or your thirties.

If you have short locks, see that they are beautifully cut. It takes a stylist to trim and taper so every strand will stay precisely where it should be, with no little ragtags and bob tails flying about. Even the shoulder length bob requires skilful shearing. One often sees flowing tresses with uneven ends that look anything but tidy.

If you are in the habit of giving yourself a shampoo don't make a hurry-up job of it. You are dealing with a combination of sebaceous oils, perspiration deposits and atmospheric dust.

Start with a vigorous brushing; you will remove some surface dust and the bristles will whisk out dead shafts. A five minute friction should follow to loosen dead matter from the scalp. This ten minute treatment is a good investment of time.

Whether you use a soap shampoo, an oily agent or a cream product you should not be sparing with the materials and you should use plenty of friction so they will be thoroughly distributed. Two applications, each followed by a rousing rinsing with a bath spray and a strong current of water are necessary. If the hair is long there should be another soaping and a final rinsing.

A vinegar rinse gives a nice finishing touch, will impart life and lustre. To a bowlful of warm water add three tablespoonfuls of cider vinegar.

If hair tends to be dry, use a good hair tonic two or three times a week. Apply to several partings and massage thoroughly.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIXSON

Graceful and Mannerly Hands.

Lucky is the woman who has beautifully formed hands, long slender fingers.

Even if the hands are lacking in attractive contour, they can be expressive and a good-looks asset. We spare no time in plying the fragrant lotions and painting the nails like little tulip petals, but that is not the whole story. How one uses one's hands has much to do with their charm.

Famous lovelies of the stage and screen know the value of graceful hand movements. It is a part of their professional training. It is pure joy to watch the hands of ballet dancers, men as well as women. Observe them, when you have the opportunity. Observe and act upon your observations, endeavoring to cultivate grace of motion.

The movements of a woman's hands should be light, like her step. Think of that when you lift a tea cup to your lips when you are at the bridge table. It is well worth while to keep this subject in mind. More than one man has been intrigued by the lovely hands of a striking woman, as many another has been won by a musical, compelling voice.

Hands speak a language, and we fear that some of them talk too much. To wave them about is often emphasis to speech is distracting to other people.

Avoid tight-fistedness. Don't grip arm chairs. Try to have the fingers relaxed, gently posed.

Everything depends upon the flexibility of the wrist. If one is muscle bound, movements are sure to be awkward. A good exercise is to hold the hands in front of you, palms downward. Then fold and loose the fingers. Then, palms upward, bring the fingers slowly into the palms.

Expansive hands are a social asset and every effort should be made to keep them in condition

Every young woman should study her hands.

Every woman should study her hands and get acquainted her from them lie tremendous possibilities for reposeful or dramatic expression for a delightfully flattering feature, for insuring the completeness of a well-groomed personality.

The secret of keeping the hands young lies in the daily care bestowed upon them—in the free use of nourishing cream as well as the soothing lotion that should be used often, especially in the winter season. Even fairly young hands can assume an old, withered appearance if they are neglected. If they are subjected to dust and hard work and have no cosmetic attentions.

Large, dilated veins on the hands are a good-looks liability. Some beauty specialists suggest that the hands should be raised above the head and massaged gently, that this practice tends to contract the blood vessels.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

They Broke Up—Now They're Sorry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two college students 19 years of age who have the same problem.

We have each been engaged and broken up, and in both cases the breakup was caused by our dating other boys. Soon after we broke up, the boys began dating other girls, and we came to college and began dating the boys on the campus.

Just before we came back to college this Fall, however, the boys we had been engaged to began dating us again and we find we really love them. But now the boys act indifferent toward us, though we believe that once they truly loved us.

Could they change so much in 2 years? And please tell us how we can win their trust as well as their affection.

P. & P.

Dear P. & P.:

This is the sort of thing that happens a great deal among young people, and it is one of the reasons why I am against boys and girls becoming engaged before they have dated plenty of other girls and boys so that they are sure of their own minds.

Certainly the boys could change their feelings in a year after you girls had shown that you wanted to go out with other boys. As for how you can make them care for you and trust you again, all you can do about that is to be just as nice to them as you can, let them know you are glad to see them whenever that is possible, and see what happens. You would make a great mistake, however, if you gave them the impression that you were eager to lie yourselves up to them again. In the first place, it might scare them off entirely remembering that you jilted them before, and in the second place, you can't be sure yourselves that you aren't going to see other boys during your college career that you'd like to be friends with, whatever you may think right now.

Bitterly Disappointed in her Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I believe no woman could be more disappointed in marriage than I am.

I am 33 years old and have been married nearly nine years. I have three children whom I love very deeply. But my problem is that my husband and I just don't seem to understand each other. He drinks some but he doesn't mistreat us, although I resent me like a friend instead of a wife. He just doesn't seem interested in what I have to say, never takes anything over with me, never takes me out and doesn't want me to go along with him when he goes. He seems to be ashamed of me although I am very well looking and dress as nicely as a can afford. He never gives me for his family as well as he might either.

I am a good housekeeper, and keep the children as nicely as I can, but I am very unhappy and precate anything I do. My life is almost a misery to me. What can I do?

D.

Dear D.:

It is very and when a girl so young as you are is married with such a burden as you have. With three children to take care of and a husband who is indifferent and shirks his responsibilities besides it is no wonder that you feel life is almost more than you can bear.

I don't think yours is a problem you should keep on trying to work out by yourself. I think you should go to someone who is trained in helping people solve family problems with whom you could talk freely and from whom you could get some useful advice.

Height Of Formality

By PRUNELLA WOOD

The best of the strapless gowns for formal evenings happily miss that sundress look, which is charming in the sun, but a bit unseemly as a bid for after-dark elegance.

The gown above is one of the successes, a pink satin beauty completely stylized, completely unusual, a model to gleam only beneath the evening lights.

All the skirt fullness is to the back, dipping well onto the floor. The bodice is squared over the bosom and slit at the centre to break the squareness gracefully and modestly. The embroidery over the bodice and the jungle peplum is a travesty of crystal beads and bugles classic flower motifs.

How to Introduce Their Step-Father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last week my mother, who was a widow, remarried. I am the oldest married daughter, and I have two other married sisters, and one brother. We would like to know how to introduce our "newly-acquired" stepfather. In the introductions should we mention that he is our "stepfather"? And should we mention his name? Would you please give us a definite example of a correct introduction?

Delia B.

Yes you should mention the relationship in the introductions that he is your "stepfather" And you should also add his name when you are making the introductions. For example, for a formal introduction: "Mrs. Allen, may I present (or 'introduce') my stepfather, Mr. Davidson." Or informally "Mrs. Henderson, this is my stepfather, Mr. Davidson." or "Miss Graham . . . my stepfather, Mr. Davidson."

And remember that you can make these introductions of your mother's husband graciously and "welcoming" by your grace in saying the word "stepfather" and in pronouncing the name.

Prospective Bride and Groom Live in Small Community

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I would be grateful if you will answer these questions for us:

1. We live in a very small community and know practically all the people in the town and we are wondering if it would be considered correct for us to send out invitations to our reception, but let any friends know that all are welcome. This is to be one of our real times here, and I rather like the idea. Of course we would send invitations to out-of-town guests. What do you think about this idea?

2. At the wedding ceremony does the bride wear her engagement ring? If so, on which hand does she wear it?

3. What is the proper way for the groom to respond to the toast proposed to the bride at the reception?

4. When there are two bridesmaids in the wedding party how does the procession go up and come down. Do church aisle?

Dale B.

1. For a semi-formal or informal wedding in your small community, it would be quite proper and very friendly to give your invitations in the informal way they have been given for other weddings . . through the church bulletin, perhaps, or by telephone, and so on. However, since apparently you are sending out invitations to all, you might like to give special honor and compliment to everyone to be invited by sending individual invitations.

Frail Woman Unafraid Of The Jungle

She is about five feet, three inches tall and is thin, pale-faced and grey-haired. But since her first expedition in 1924 she has collected more than 30,000 insect specimens in remote parts of the Pacific archipelago under British, French and Dutch rule.

The two dominant characteristics of this woman scientist, who is a Fellow of the Royal Zoological Society and works for the British Museum of Natural History in London, is summed up in two nick-names given her by administrators of Pacific Islands.

The French call her Mademoiselle Formidable: the Dutch call her Autrouw Breekbar (Miss Fragile).

In New Guinea she stayed for two weeks with a cannibal king.

"He was the most delightful old man," she said afterwards.

Miss Cheesman explained that she was safe from the cookpot because natives didn't eat white people, And she didn't have to follow the native favorite diet, either, because not even native women are permitted to take part in cannibal feasts.

Travelling with native boys, and never around six feet more than six years, altogether, on various expeditions in New Guinea alone.

Miss Cheesman does not speak any native language, but picks up a word or two as she goes along. In the jungle she wears a tunic, bloomers and heavy-soled lacrosse boots.

Early in her career she decided to concentrate on collecting insects and plants in the Pacific area because the British Museum had hardly any specimens from there.

Insects she brought from the New "Hebrides puzzled experts in London. And in New Guinea she found insects that enabled scientists to trace the land bridge that, ages ago, linked Australia and New Guinea to Asia through the Spice Islands and the Philippines.

NOT ALL CANALS

Holland has 1,880 miles of four or six-lane highways and a total highways system of 20,070 miles.

3. The groom may rise and say simply "Thank you", or "Mary and I thank you for your good wishes . . . we appreciate for the happiness you have given us by being with us on this happy day!"

Processional: ushers, two by two; bridesmaids either two by two together or in single file; maid of honor, alone; bride and her father. Recessional: bride and groom; maid of honor either alone or with the best man; bridesmaids, the two together, or in single file, or each with an usher; either two by two, or paired with the bridesmaids.

UNCERTAIN PEACE DESCENDS ON U.S. INDUSTRIAL SCENE

While the U.S. steel strike is rapidly drawing to an end, its full effect on U.S. and Canadian industry has not reached its peak. In the photo, left, are some of the thousands of persons filing jobless claims on social insurance. While miners stream back to work in U. S. coal mines, right, in what U.M.W. Chief John L. Lewis called "an act of good faith designed to contribute to public convenience," the threat of further strikes and unemployment continues with the announcement that the miners walk out again on Nov. 30 if no agreement with management had been reached. — Central Press Canadian.

ROYAL DISPLEASURE

He may have been born to the royal purple, but a flashlight is as intriguing to Crown Prince Alexander of Yugoslavia as it is to any little boy. No king ever felt more proud of his power than did Royal Alex when he succeeded in making a ring of light on the ceiling with the simple pressure of a baby thumb. — Central Press Canadian.

Scout and Guide Activities

Commissioner's notes: We are pleased to report that we have a new Girl Guide Company formed in Belleville. It is called Company and has as its captain, Mrs. F. Hattle, a former division trainer of Montreal, and as its lieutenant, Mrs. Alwyn Geen, who has received guide training in England. This company meets each Tuesday at 4.30 p.m. at St. Thomas Parish House. This will be a splendid company, and if there are any girls, between the ages of 11-16, interested in an afternoon company, please get in touch with the commissioner, Mrs. J. Watson, 1868R. We also have Company No. 2 meeting every Thursday at the St. John Ambulance rooms at 6.30 p.m. and Company No. 3 every Monday evening at the Armories at the same hour.

A meeting of the Brownie leaders was held last Tuesday evening at the home of the commissioner, and it was decided to have the "Flying Up" ceremony Company No. 1 on Tuesday, November 22nd., and all Brownie Packs are invited to come to St. Thomas Parish House at 4.30 p.m. and take part in the ceremony.

At the present time we have a Brownie Packs meeting at the Kiwanis Centre, and many of the Brownies come from Queen Victoria School. With winter coming on we decided to take some action to help these Brownies out, and after consulting Mr. E. Fairman, the principal, we are transferring Pack No. 1 from Queen Victoria School, where they will meet Tuesday immediately after school. At the present time there are 30 Brownies at the school, and if there are other girls interested in Brownie work, they may come to the pack after the New Year. We think the parents of these children will be pleased with the change of meeting place. If further information is required about this pack, please get in touch with Brown Owl, Mrs. J. Booth, 2406J, or Tawny Owl Mrs. F. Fulton, 368.

Pack No. 3 will take in the Brownies from Queen Alexandra and St. Michael's Schools, and will meet every Monday at the Kiwanis Centre after school. Pack No. 2 will meet at Queen Mary School on Tuesday of each week, and Pack No. 4, will meet every Thursday at King George School. We wish to thank Mr. Frederick Hackett of King George School for their co-operation with the Brownies.

An executive meeting of the local Girl Guide Association will be held on Monday evening Nov. 21st and plans will be made for the annual meeting, which will be held early in December. A notice will appear in this paper giving further details.

On 1st Girl Guides—At the district registration of Brownies and Guides held in September, Mrs. Reed of another Guide company in Belleville was appareni. As a result the meeting of the new group to be known as Company 4, was held on September 27th, in St. Thomas Parish House. Mrs. J. W. Ison, District Commissioner, opened the meeting, and introduced the new Guiders, Mrs. R. Settle, captain, and Mrs. A. Geen, lieutenant. Also present was Dianna Lewis, who is company leader. Miss Diana was formerly a guide in Company 2. Eighteen girls were registered, almost all of whom are Golden Eagle patrol. They were divided into three patrols, the Bluebirds, Canary and Kingfisher, with Margaret Arnott, Nancy Kennedy and Beverly Brown, acting as patrol leaders. The company meets from 4.30 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. and those girls along with Josephine Fulton, Helen Gill, Sheila Kells and Barbara Dewsnip, stay until 6 p.m. for further training. The local association has been very kind in assisting us financially, so that we have been able to purchase record books, tenderfoot cards and knotting cord. The company has taken advantage of the nice weather to go out tracking at two meetings, and last week was able to play a lily gamer EVADO. Also to play a lively game on the back lawn. Four of the girls went with Lieutenant on a fire lighting expedition, and hope to be able to go again before winter sets in. A leaf collecting competition was held, and many fine charts resulted. The winner was Nancy Kennedy, with honorable mention to Sheila Kells, Josephine Fulton and Louise Kelsey. Lieutenant has received very realistic Guide doll as the trophy for monthly competitions, the first of which was won by the Bluebirds. The company is looking forward to a big "Flying Up" ceremony in the near future, and soon afterwards the enrolment of the acting leaders and seconds. Then we hope it won't be too long before we are a real Guide company.

SAFETY PATROL READY

Some May Get Four-Day 'Break' At Christmastide

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP)—Some lucky Canadians may get a four-day "break" from office routine this Christmas. But as far as the federal government is concerned it hasn't even "considered the question" yet.

A spokesman for the secretary of state's office said today that the statutory Christmas holiday probably will be observed Monday, Dec. 26.

He said the government has "not yet considered" the question of fixing the official date for the holiday, which this year falls on a Sunday. However, he pointed out that under regulations governing statutory holidays, those falling on a Sunday are officially observed the following Monday.

"I presume that is what will happen this year," he said.

Boxing Day

The spokesman also said that no decision has been reached "yet" on the question of observance of Boxing Day, traditional British holiday on the day following Christmas. It was not officially observed as a holiday by the federal government last year.

The spokesman admitted that the growing observance of Boxing Day throughout Canada was beginning to make it a "contentious point." There was "considerable pressure" to make Boxing Day an official holiday. Once it was mainly observed only in western Canada and in the Maritimes. It now is becoming popular in the two central provinces —Quebec and Ontario.

With Christmas being observed Dec. 26, observance of Boxing Day would fall on Tuesday, Dec. 27.

Declaration of Boxing Day as an official holiday would give Canadians a three-day-break from work—Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. For those fortunate enough to work in offices and plants regularly closed on a Saturday, it would mean a four-day recess from desks and machines.

FOUR FIREMEN DIE IN COLLISION

Arrow points to fire-truck driver Joseph Remeikis who is trapped behind the steering wheel of his hook and ladder, which smashed into a pole after it was in collision with another piece of fire apparatus in Baltimore, Md. He was one of four firemen killed when the vehicles swerved and smashed sidewise while responding to a grass fire alarm. Five firemen were injured, two seriously. A wrecker had to pull the engine and pole apart before Remeikis could be removed.

FOUR CHILDREN OF FAMILY ARE STILL MISSING

London, Ont., Nov. 12 — (CP)— Four London children, reported missing from their home Friday were still missing early this morning. All district police were alerted to be on the lookout for the four children of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Dezan, York Street: Beth 12; Marie 10; Burton 9, and Freddie 6.

Motor Trip to West Described By Former Resident of District

(Second Instalment)

While Kenora has large pulp and paper mills with a payroll of over a million dollars, Keewatin has large flour mills that provide employment to many.

Coming into Kenora on highway 17 we notice that much of the highway has been blasted through the solid rock with towering cliffs on each side, yet shortly after leaving Kenora on No. 17 going west, we cannot help but notice the change in topography, the nearer we come to Manitoba the more level the country becomes. At the boundary our road stops clear color, and our highway becomes No. 1 and we are entering the first of the prairie provinces. We have left behind us the cedar, the sugar maple and many of the more ornamental shrubs that thrive better in Ontario, and we find the poplar, varieties of willow, caragana hedges used around homes and as snow fences in preference to the slated ones seen father east.

Try to Visualize

The prairies to many is just a name, but try to visualize boundless stretches of level land of the best productive soil in the world, stretching as far as the eye can see, with very few stones and no tall cliffs to mar the view. Just after entering Manitoba our highway goes through Whiteshell National Park, virgin territory for campers and fishermen. A land of tumbling streams, clear lakes and cool woodlands. Red and mule deer, moose and caribou are hunted in the northern part of the park.

After two hours driving over the hard surfaced road and we come to the gateway to the west Winnipeg, where the gates of old Fort Garry still stand. Winnipeg, the fourth largest city of the Dominion, is truly a cosmopolitan capital. Through Winnipeg peoples from all over the world have passed to settle the vast country to the west and north. Not all the people that come to Winnipeg leave, there are many races in the city and many different languages are spoken, and much has been gained from these people from other lands.

Noted For Education

Winnipeg is noted for its educational institutions and one of the world's finest musical festivals is held here for two weeks in April. It is a leading sports centre, the scene of Canada's largest curling bonspiel, while hockey and skating are a part of most students' everyday life.

Winnipeg is blest with plenty of good water as two rivers, the Red River and the Assiniboine, are within the boundaries of the city.

Winnipeg has many beautiful parks and in the fall there are many thousands of mums in bloom in one of the large greenhouses in one of these parks, I could tell you much more of Winnipeg but I must hurry on, but always think of how many of the first settlers came to Manitoba by covered wagons, Red River carts and flat bottomed boats on the rivers. What a difference today. Believe me these first settlers were no pansies and they certainly paved the way for the high standard of living we enjoy today.

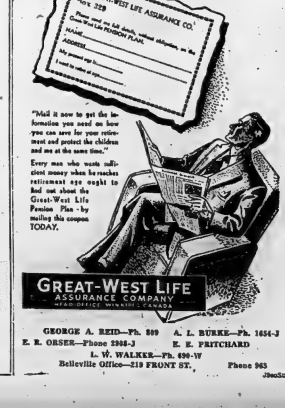
Leaving some of our foliage behind, we also left some of the chain stores behind, but pick up one of the oldest in the Dominion, "The Hudson's Bay Co." Adventurers of England sailing into the Hudson Bay, whose governor came from England to present King George VI with the black beaver skins when Their Majesties visited Canada in 1939.

One of Rare Beauty

The drive from Winnipeg to Portage la Prairie is one of rare beauty this year as the crops were grand and showed all prospects of a bountiful harvest. We decided to spend the night in Portage la Prairie. This is a very pretty city with extra wide streets and many beautiful homes and imposing business blocks. We are back to the country, where every town, large or small, has large storage elevators for the western grain. Portage la Prairie has a very lovely park across the river, which the city fathers have transformed from a piece of waste land into a bird sanctuary. In large wire cages are kept many species of pheasant, peacock, prairie, chickens and partridge.

Geese, Swans on Ponds

Some Canadian geese and swans are on the pond within the park while the wild ducks are so tame they come right up and try to untie your shoe laces. The park has lovely drives, beautiful trees and flowers and it is used as a picnic ground. As there are signs prohibiting shooting, the young ducks around the waters edge become very tame. I will remember the first time we visited the park, we thought that this was a splendid spot to give our Labrador dog a run, we hadn't seen any signs yet but we were not in ignorance for long as a voice shouted "put your dog in the car." What a disappointment to the dog to see so many ducks close by and she had to stay in the car.



CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

OPEN LETTER TO CEC PERDUE, SPORTS EDITOR OF THE PETERBOROUGH EXAMINER

Dear Sergeant Major (Brother do we love that, we ranked the ray in Petawawa, but in the army alone).

You sent a hockey team down here last night. Friday, that is, and of all days Nov. 11. Remember?)

We took 'em to our bosoms, banquets, but we, like the grand-hearted folk that represent this little village, and in due respect to the fact that we like your grand Littlock crowd (are you listening Mazie Swanson, Yv. Wrenth?) were forced by no other reason than sheer necessity to send them back, defeated but, dammit, not disgraced.

It's been a long time, Cec, M'lad that we down here, as you are wont to call us, the Quinte district, since we have had the pleasure of seeing a Peterborough team leave without the fire and the glory of victory.

Off the record, Cec, and please don't publish this. That Peics team of yours might go places. We do not know, nor do we want to know (unless you wire us) the strength of this Peterborough Legion team. But we do know that last night, we saw a grand exhibition of what might perhaps be things to come.

* * *

We, in this neck of the woods, hope for a strong representation in Spinner "B" hockey. And please, Cec, for gawdsake tell that 'public of yours that there will be only one Senior "B" team representing this city, this season. There were, true, the rumor that we, "meaning by we" the hockey fringers of the beautiful Bay of Quinte might produce two senior "B" clubs. Forget it, chum. "She just ain't."

Nope, Cec, we 'opes to field one of the best senior hockey teams to flaunt the banner of Belleville in many years. Last night's game was one of super exhibitionary class. We don't know what Ed. Foley (He wasn't pere) has in mind, but we do know from what we saw, and what it wasn't too much, after all it was Memorial Day and we were too busy marking the statistics) that the Belleville squad with the Northern Canadian and Canadian National Diesels, after they get finished with this city league stuff, will give some team a hockey headache regardless of where they come.

So be a good guy m'lad and tell Ed. Foley et al. and the Peterborough Legion mentors, et al. that Belleville is the place that all you fellows up there on the edge of the line should be playing and practicing for the past six weeks. We went into hockey action.

Last night, m'lem, a friend of ours, "Red" Carson by name, who by the way is the manager of the Diesels, said he is definitely proud of his charges. Last night, mon ami, the Belleville Diesels, (a good name with a built defence), showed they have well, nearly almost everything that is needed to grab the Senior "B" title in this area.

Yep, that's the story, Cec, m'lad. We, in the Bay of Quinte District are all ready to go. We, personally, were on a talking basis with one of the Peterborough mentors in between faceoffs, goals, and the rest of the hockey problem, m'lad, that Peterborough's two teams would like a grouping other than Kingston-Belleville etc. Why?

* * *

We readily understand why Peterborough and Oshawa do not want to go as far east as Belleville, but in the corner is concerned, this city or this city's hockey teams want a better O. H. A. group ing than has been handed out in years before.

* * *

And in closing Cec. we would, officially speaking, say that, if and when youse guys and gals up there in Peterborough start thinking of a Junior "B" group (We hardly stand you have a danged smart Oddfellows team) remember that we, here, have a darned smart team too. Yup, Cec, there is nothing we would like better than a crossing with your three-ringers, Oshawa and Lindsay. It would definitely make for good Junior "B" hockey. And after all, that is what we want. Check? . . .

Calgary Leads Way Into Canadian Football Final; College Football Hits Climax

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

If it wasn't for the skin of Calgary Stampeders' teeth, the honor of finishing in first place during a hard fought football schedule would seem like something to shun.

The Dominion champion Stampeders upheld the status of the top dog when they squeezed out a 22-21 round-score victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders yesterday to lead the way into the Grey Cup final. But match this against the current playoff positions of the regular season leaders in the east's two big leagues.

1. Ottawa Rough Riders, who lost only one scheduled game, (and that by a single point to Montreal Alouettes), face the big job at Ottawa today of overcoming Montreal's 22-7 lead in the final game of their total-points series for the Big Four title.

2. Hamilton Tigers, who finished first handily in the Ontario Union, meantime meet Sarnia Imperials at Hamilton and must overcome their 13-8 edge that the Imps built yesterday in the opener of their total-points series at Sarnia.

In other words, the erstwhile favorites at one another found themselves underdogs to advance into the Eastern Canada finals. That's the series which will decide Calgary's opponent in the Dominion final at Toronto Nov. 28.

Western Must Beat McGill

With the East's Intercollegiate Union schedule winding up today perhaps the league-leading Western Mustangs should take a tip from the fate of their fellow-Easterners. A loss to McGill Redmen at Montreal would see them finish second and, for the first time, forcing a post-season title playoff between clubs.

On the other hand, Western would be better off playing an exact tie with McGill. That's the only way they can be sure of winning without a playoff, no matter what University of Toronto does in the other game against Queen's at Kingston, Ont.

While the East talks about those playoff possibilities, Calgarians are waving their 10-gallon hats and cheering for that one little point. The Stampeders lost the second game of their total-points final to Regina's Roughriders but salvaged the Western Canada crown by virtue of their 18-12 victory in Regina last Saturday.

As Coach Les Lear said afterwards, the one-point difference was as good as a million. But the loss was a heartbreaker for the Riders.

Trailing 4-3 with seven minutes left, Regina staged a thrilling rally that left the crowd of 14,000 at Calgary breathless. Import quarterback Doug Belden tossed a 40-yard forward to Johnny (Red) Bell and the Toronto-born end raced another 10 for a touchdown. When Pat Sanucci missed the convert, Regina still trailed 22-20 on the round.

Big Surprise

The big surprise of the Ontario Union playoff at Sarnia was the inability of the powerful Hamilton machine to get rolling. The Red Caps outscored Imps, only all-Canadian team left in the Grey Cup running, charged and tackled like furies.

The hard-hitting Imperials forced Tiger coach Merle Hapes, formerly one of the best running halves in United Church ranks, to fumble at their 12-yard line. Then, after his glue was nullified by a Sarnia offside, on the very next play they hit Jackie Iwasyk so hard he fumbled and Imps recovered on their five.

Led by quarterback George Curtis, who played with Tigers last season, after starring with Western Mustangs, Sarnia sprang into an early lead. Johnny Cricelich took a forward from Curtis for their first major and Bill Weiss broke 40 yards through centre for another before seven minutes of the first. Dutch Davey converted both.

Hapes Hurts Leg

Weiss punted two singles and Davey added another to make it 15-0 for Sarnia in the fourth quarter.

Tigers finally started marching in a manner that showed they could still come back in today's game, even though Hapes aggravated his knee injury and may miss it. Stewart tossed a forward to Rube Ainsworth for a touchdown, converted by Joe Caprioiti, and the Tigers rolled downfield again to the Sarnia 19 when time ran out on them.

Ottawa prepared for its playoff game against Alouettes with more of the despair that their 13-point handicap would indicate. Said Howie (Touchdown) Turner: "Don't count us out yet . . . it's going to be tough to beat them by 13 points but there's more than a small chance we can do it."

The Riders may be meeting even a stronger team than in the first game, with Virgil Wagner likely to see some action.

Marlies Leading In Both Leagues Of the O.H.A.

(By the Canadian Press)

Although Toronto Marlboros of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" loop retained first place in the league, other standings came in for a bit of re-arranging after four league games last night.

Guelph Biltmores, in a home game, defeated Toronto St. Michael's college, 5-3 to jump into sole possession of fourth spot in the league and leave the Irish in a fifth-place tie with Oshawa Generals, Windsor Spitfires and Galt Black Hawks. Stratford Kroehlers still are in the league cellar.

The Duke defeated Stratford 6-4; Windsor upset Barrie Flyers 7-2 and the Generals defeated St. Catharines 5-3 in other games last night. Teepees still hold on to their first place position, one point behind Barrie Flyers.

In the only senior game, Toronto Marlboros lengthened their first-place lead by defeating Hamilton Tigers 7-4 on Marlies, with 19 points, are seven ahead of the second-place Oshawa Sound Mercurys.

The Junior Dukes had to battle for their victory over the Kroehlers. The Stratford team went into the second frame with a 3-2 lead and battled goal-for-goal with the Toronto squad until Bill Gardiner put the Toronto Club ahead 3-2 near the end of that frame. Marlies kept adding scoring Ormsby and Mc-Kenzie led the Dukes with two goals apiece, while Larry Cahan and Lorne Pirie each scored once. Moe Galand, Roy Leckie, Doug Ross and Jack Ferguson scored the Stratford Goals.

Bills Had Little Trouble

Billiomores had little trouble in defeating St. Michael's Irish club. Only little Lorne Howe's cool efforts in the first period kept the collegians from a worse beating. Bills took a two-goal lead in the first frame, added to it in the second when the Irish defence stiffened and trainer Ted Warby, have been suspended and two minutes of the period remaining.

Mlocinovich gave Hamilton the equalizer early in the final stanza, but an Al Sutherland goal on Scotty Mair's last-minute effort.

Paul Mlocinovich, with two goals, was best man for Tigers while Clare Shillington and Bill Dinning each scored once.

The same game scheduled for the Junior loop today, Guelph plays St. Michael's and Stratford meets Marlboros at an afternoon doubleheader at Toronto. In the evening, St. Catharines plays at Oshawa and Windsor moves to Galt.

In the Senior League Owen Sound plays at Kitchener. The Greys, former Junior team, defeated Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen two years ago, leading the circuit with 38 goals and is expected to strengthen the weakening Kitchener-Waterloo club.

Toronto Varsity Will Not Protest Football Game

(By the Canadian Press)

Prof. Nelson Hart, president of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union, said today at London, Ont, that it is up to University of Toronto whether it wants to protest the football game in which McGill used an ineligible player. He added that he thinks it unlikely Toronto will protest the game, won 12-9 by McGill last Saturday. It was since determined that Roy Dobbinde, who played only four minutes in his first game in the league, was ineligible.

Prof. Hart termed the position of Vic Obeck, McGill coach, "purely accidental and said he believed Obeck did not realize Dobbinde was ineligible.

Warren Stevens, athletic director of the University of Toronto, said previously the University had no plans to protest.

Frank Selke, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, announced today that Roger Leger, former Hockey League, Leger went to Cincinnati about three weeks ago as a replacement for Jacques Deslauries, who was injured.

Britain will make its 39th challenge for the Davis Cup next summer, the Lawn Tennis Association announced Friday. Britain has won the trophy three times since the United States now holds the cup.

Will Slykhius Netherlands' Olympic runner who competed in the United States last winter, said Friday he was giving up track competition for players.

The sixth doping case of the 1949 Chicago racing season was reported Friday at Chicago. Stewards of Sportsman's Park reported that the urinalysis of Mimy Ruiz mare showed the presence of procaine. Misty Eight, ridden by Jockey Gene Peterson, finished third in the 5½ furlong D. J. Higgins, owner of the thoroughbred, and trainer T. F.

The Pacific Coast Baseball League's 200-game schedule for 1950 could be trimmed a bit if agreement can be reached with the International League and American Association for a post-season three-league Little World Series PCL's President Clarence Rowland said Friday at Los Angeles. He suggested that the proposed intersectional series is still purely in the discussion state.

A man identified as Nicholas Barbaro, 31, of Syracuse, N.Y., an apprentice jockey, Friday was booked by police in Derry, N.H., on charges of attempted malicious interference with a race horse. Lou Smith, head of Rockingham Park, first reported the arrest after informing reporters "a member on the thoroughbred racing protective bureau had surprised a man attempting to stimulate Mrs. Irving Gushen's King Erich."

King Eric finished fourth in Friday's third race after coming from last in a 10-horse field.

Charlie Fusari, blond Irving, N.J., welter, proved his Stamtober knockout loss to Rocky Castellani was a serious dent in his cerr ir by flattening tough Terry Young Friday night. In 12 of the eight round of a scheduled 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden, Fusari weighed 146, Young 141. Referee Eddie Joseph stopped the bout with Young on the mat cold on the floor with his face down.

Leading from wire to wire, Martha Dodge Friday won the $14,250 western trot for three-year olds at Hollywood Park race track. Vic Shield in the sulky, the roan filly outstepped other stars in the grand Circuit harness feature. Martha Doyle trotted the mile in 2:03 3/5 and returned $6.80, $3.80, $2.10.

A boycott vote by jockeys, owners and trainers against purse reductions left uncertain today the future of racing in Manitoba, California's oldest track. The executive board Friday that "there will definitely be racing Monday at Tanforan," but declined further comment on reports the current meeting might be cancelled.

J. L. Gregg of Wingham has been re-elected president of the Western Ontario Athletic Association.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)— Whilst most sports-minded Canadians speculate on the outcome of the football season and others watch the young National Hockey League, (Dan Kelly—Kitchener Record) Odette is content to talk golf.

Dan has good reasons. He is beating the drums for a youthful linksman by name of Jerry Kisseloving who he figures is a good bet, for the Lou Marsh Memorial Trophy.

The trophy, awarded annually to Canada's outstanding athlete, couldn't go to a more deserving amateur, writes Dan. He outlines the 20-year-old Kesselring's achievements:

Canadian junior golf champion for 1947-48, Ontario Amateur champion this year as well as a member of the Ontario team that won the Willingdon Cup, low amateur on the Canadian open, and he tied Gil Walker in the London Hunt Club Invitation.

Besides says Odette, last summer he won out in practically every match he entered and he holds two course records.

Some Form

An out-and-out campaign against the National Hockey League's form is has been launched by Chick (Stratford Beacon-Herald) Appel who calls it a "vicious circle."

Appel, who saw Danny Lewicki lead the Armstrong Cup loons from the Stratford Kroehlers of the Ontario Hockey Association junior league to Memorial Marlboros through enforcement of the option, this week produced it in a two-column spread. Nine words, "Don't be Hockey 'Slaves' Boys, Don't Sign This Form," headed the layout.

He said the only reason for reproducing the form was so "unsuspecting" young hockey players would be acquainted with its contents and not find themselves "slaves" to professional hockey leaders.

Belleville Seniors Defeat Peterborough 'Petes' 12-7 In Free-Scoring Exhibition

In a free-wheeling exhibition battle that was productive of no less than 19 goals, the Belleville Seniors trounced down the Peterborough "Petes" here last night to the tune of a 12-7 score.

It was purely an exhibition game in the truest sense of the word. Both teams with the exception of flashes were out there to get a conditioning phase and that is just what happened.

The Belleville senior "B" squad, wearing the sweaters of the Diesels and Northern Electric had a definite edge on the visiting Petes throughout the game with the exception of the first half of the third period when the local defence forgot Memorial Day, perhaps remembered it and let the crafty Petes forwards race in for a couple of goals.

Don Barrett, Keith MacDonald and Doug Dye had a field day at the expense of the Peterborough squad. It was definitely the best line out there and that goes for both squads. They scored five goals and were credited with as many assists.

But right behind them was the other line of Dougie Free, Dougie Bastedo and Jackie Wardhaugh. Wardhaugh played an outstanding game running home two goals in quick succession on passes from Vern Goyer and Mulvihill early in the first period after Barrett had made the scoring.

The Belleville team lost no time in scoring first "blood." Scarcely had the game got kicked on the clock than the local ladies had two up. Jackie Wardhaugh took the first with two smart goals after Vern Goyer and Mulvihill had fed him the necessary passes.

Yup, it was 3-0 at the 14-minute period and then McMaster fired home the lone first period goal for Peterboro.

It had the phases of a more or less rout when Belleville in the first minutes of the second period rammed home three quick goals to give them a 6-1 margin. Barrett and MacDonald with their pals were on a scoring spree. They each home two goals and then the second line took over. Goalie Mal Holway fired another Belleville goal and then the boys got over the hump. Fullerton road back with a goal from Garvey and West, but right on the heels of that, Doug Free fed Doug Bastedo a perfect pass and the lad made no mistake.

From that point on it was a definite scoring spree. There were nine goals scored on the second period and six in the third chukker.

Peterborough, perhaps born of desperation, although it was an exhibition game, went all out in the third session. They scored two quick goals to narrow the margin, but the Diesels roared back with goal for goal and had a definite edge in the play.

Maurice Lefort was hurt in the second period and was replaced by Alf. Plumley. Both goalies did a swell job and Ray Harding, Pete's veteran netminder, stood out with an excellent performance.

Don Barrett, Keith MacDonald, Doug Dye, Doug Free, were outstanding performers for the Diesels with Maurice Lefort and Plumley doing a good job. Clare Williamson and Vern Goyer also stood out not forgetting Jackie Wardaugh who raced in to grab two needed goals.

West (Junior) Fyfe and Garvey looked the best for the Petes with the old "never" Ray Harding standing out between pipes. Honey Tompkins either was not in condition, or Old Man Time has caught up with him. He, while though effective at times, lacked the old fire and pep that he had "years" ago. His scored a couple for the Petes and with Garvey and West were bad men to have around from the Belleville point of view.

The teams:

Peterborough— Goal, Harding; defence, Horton, Leonard; centre, Garvey; wings, Goyer, Creighton; subs: McMaster Collins, Legrow London, Fyfe, Wasson, Tompkins, Cousins, Marshall, Lovelace, Mortimer, Griffin, Quigley, Fyfe.

Juniors Ready For Playoff Series for Title

(By The Canadian Press)

A powerful band of Hamilton Wildcats, Eastern Canada Junior football champions, and their unbeaten Kingston counterparts, Vancouver Blue Bombers, today await an official go-ahead for a clash for the Dominion title.

Venue and dates of the series have been tentatively set for Vancouver Nov. 26 and 30. But it all depends on the Hamilton executive, who planned to meet today to discuss the necessary arrangements.

The Wildcats romped to the eastern title Friday night by overpowering Montreal Notre Dame de Grace 31-0 at Hamilton, while a touchdown in the last minute of play gave Vancouver a 16-12 decision over the Saskatoon hilltops at Vancouver.

At Hamilton, the Wildcats rolled to a 7-0 lead in the first period made it 14-0 in the second and added another two points with a touchdown in the third.

Malyon was backed up by Walter Bashak, Brian Timms, Bill Brady, Frank Dilks and Ollie Harris. Bashak accounted for two of the touchdowns and Glen Dennison added the other. Singles were scored by Timmis, Bill Swal and Bob MacDonald.

The Wildcats decided to move from the opening kick off, by scoring three times in three consecutive first downs. They got their first major when Bashak recovered a fumble on the Montreal goal line after Timmis kicked deep.

Twice during the game Montreal threatened from distance. They came up with two consecutive five first downs in the first half but failed to get the ball into action 40. Jim Ambrose attempted a field goal but it fell short.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

New York, Nov. 12—(AP)—The Indian State Reformatory "Red Raiders" have won six football games in a row one by 101-0 . . . several of its players are due to graduate soon. . . .

Scoop Latimer reports southern football teams are so weak this year that the only time the offensive platoons see the ball is when they pump it up. . . .

Tongue in Cheek Item

You can believe this or not, but Cagata Gonzaga Coach "Don Prick" says it was reported by halfback Alan Egler..while Colgate was holding a pre-game scrimmage against an un-named college, Egler who had been hurt, was told to exercise by jogging around the field . . . he happened to come behind the rival's bench just long enough to overhear this conversation: Coach: "You see what's happening in there Moronski. They're pushing us all around. Now I want you to go in there and get vicious." . . . Player: "OK, Coach, I get you. But who's vicious? What number is he wearing?"

Sportsgraphs

10. Do not mix gasoline and alcohol.

Too Excitable

Even though they know it...so rules, some men should not handle guns. Shooting is exciting business and some people's nervous systems simply can't stand the high pressure that goes with big game hunting.

Hysteria, of sorts, sets in and, for the moment at least, they are not responsible or conscious of the possible damage that careless shooting can do. Even with compulsory examinations when the hunting licences are bought, it would be difficult, if not impossible, to weed out those unfortunates.

Things are, I believe, going to improve rather than become worse, regardless of the increased army of hunters. Youngsters today are being taught proper gun handling and rules of safety, and that is a long way to minimize the hazard of having untaught beginners in the field. For the present, however, about all we can do is hope for the best.

Even with experienced gunners, however, accidents sometimes happen. Brush seldom often creates tricky illusion. Seen through a screen of underbrush a man, who is not behaving like a man and walking erect, can easily be mistaken for a deer.

Personal Safety Rules

With this in mind a resident of Wisconsin has made public his personal safety rules for deer hunting. Here they are, and they surely do make sense.

1. Don't deer. Walk around a tree, not under it.
2. Don't deer. If you can't walk up a log, stay off.
3. Don't spout, unless you're in an open spot where you can be plainly seen.
4. Don't spout. Walk naturally.
5. Don't show a flash of white. Carry a red bankerchief, not a white one.
6. Never come into camp with a loaded gun—and count your shells when unloading.

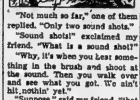
Shooting Accidents and Safety Rules

One day last deer season a friend of mine encountered two young men on one of our mountain roads. They were carrying modern deer rifles and equipment and clothing were raw. Obviously they were beginners.

My friend stopped to pass the time of day and inquire as to their luck.



"Not much so far," one of them replied. "Only two sound shots."

"Sound shots?" exclaimed my friend. "What is a sound shot?"

"Why, it's when you hear something in the brush and shoot at the sound. Then you run over and see what you got. We ain't hit nothin' yet."

"Suppose," said my friend, "that the sound happens to be a man. What then?"

The youngster scratched his head and said, "Mister, we hadn't thought of that."

Close Call

While I had not heard this type of irresponsible shooting thus described before I knew the dangers lurked in it, there is no doubt but what "sound shooting" is responsible for many accidents each year. A young friend of mine had a close call only a few years ago.

He was after grouse at the time. It pays to walk slowly and quietly when bird hunting and he was doing just that when a load of No. 4 shot mowed a path through the brush not inches from his foot.

He shouted and charged through the brush in the direction of the shot in time to see a badly frightened man standing pop-eyed beside a large tree.

The boy is pretty handy with his fists and he was boiling mad. He snatched the gun out of the man's hands, opened it and removed the unfired shell. He he threw into the stream beside them.

At this the man protested, whereupon the youngster handed him by the front of his shooting coat. "One more word out of you and I'll knock your front teeth down your throat. Now take off and beat it."

The man did so and the young man went through his pockets. Every one of those high-speed No. 4 shells followed the first one into the deep waters of the stream.

Then he dismounted the gun and handed the three parts to the man. "Now get out of here," he said, "while you're all in one piece. Next time maybe you'll find out what you're shooting at before you pull the trigger."

Need Public Education

There have been all manner of remedies suggested for cases dimming the appalling list of hunting accidents that are part and parcel of each shooting season. Some have have been passed but we are still far from the solution.

Boiling it down, the matter seems to resolve itself into one of public education. We need to legislate common sense into a man but you can't teach him the fundamental rules of gun handling.

Just to remind you that a gun is a lethal weapon, here are the ten commandments of safety. If every hunter kept these in mind there would be far less grief each fall and winter. They are:

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun.
2. This is the golden rule of gun safety.
3. Carry only empty guns taken down or with the action open, into your automobile, camp and home.
4. Be always sure that the barrel and action are free of obstructions.
5. Always carry your gun so that you can control the muzzel direction, even if you stumble.
6. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger.
7. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot.
8. Never leave your gun unattended unless you unload it first.
9. Never climb a tree or fence with a loaded gun.
10. Never shoot at a flat, hard surface or the surface of water.

Sport Shorts From Britain

London (CP)—The Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals wants to "re-educate" retired racing greyhounds.

It has suggested that a levy should be placed upon track gate receipts to raise a fund for this purpose.

When greyhounds are no longer able to run at racing speed, the society said, they are in danger of becoming "social outcasts," having a natural temptation to chase moving animals. As they have been trained to do on the track, they might spend their time chasing cats and rabbits.

Some form of re-education was necessary "if the dogs are to enjoy a happy retirement."

The greyhound ran been made until for canine society men who sought profit or entertainment and it was pointed out that responsibility of the industry to foot the bill for making cast-off racers into "good dog citizens."

A new form of plastic protection was tested by Jack Grainger, Rotherham United outside right, in a Third Division North soccer match at Gateshead.

He wore it on a fractured wrist instead of a plaster cast which would have been heavy and dangerous to his opponents.

The new plastic casing is described as a "form of liquid glass which sets with iron-like firmness within minutes and has practically no weight."

An outstanding Australian jockey, J. Thompson, will come to Britain for next year's flat-racing season. He has been retained by trainer P. J. Prendergast of Rossmore Lodge, Kildare, Ireland.

Thompson will join such well-known riding compatriots on British tracks as Edgar Britt, Billie (Last Race) Cook, T. F. Burn and Rae (Snapper) Johnstons.

He recovered, waved his colleagues away, mounted the odd-by-named Keepsmiling and rode him to victory in the Thirsk Handicap, in the course record time of 58.4 seconds for five furlongs.

He had dieted rigidly—even forsaking tea—to make the handicap weight of 112 pounds.

New York Rangers Ready To Hand it Back if Montreal Canadiens Want Rough Stuff

By JIM BASTABLE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York's once-gentlemanly Rangers may have to double-up on that soft-and-easy-does-it hockey style if they expect a victory tonight.

The Rangers, who started "handing it out" this season under the wing of Coach Lynn Patrick, will need a little extra muscle-power. They clash with the bustling Montreal Canadiens, who have proved to be one of the toughest clubs in the National League.

In two other games tonight the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks meet Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto and the leading Detroit Red Wings take on the last-place Boston Bruins at Boston.

Patrick's charges haven't been doing so well even under the new system, however. They've won only two games and tied four in 11 starts — for fifth place in the six-team league.

Last season they split with Lester and officials said it was time the Rangers started roughing it up.

Their pre-season prediction: " . . . Things are going to be different this year. If we've got to take it we might as well hand it out."

Rangers have Weight

The Rangers have weight, in six rugged defencemen headed by the former Boston boxer — Fat Egan, a 200-pound product of Blackie, Alta. And on the forward line Egan will be matched individually as Ed Slowinski and Frank Eaton, two of the busiest players in the league.

But the Habitants have power, too. And if it's matched power by Maurice (Rocket) Richard and Elmer Lach—a team pace in individual scoring race with 11 goals in 12 games — five more Canadiens are tied for 11th in the scoring race.

The Canadiens displayed their power Thursday night when they overpowered the Leafs 4-2 in a hectic game riddled with 11 penalties — four of them majors — and featured a last - minute melee in the third period.

Cal Gardiner of the Leafs — one of two players injured during the game — was admitted to hospital in Toronto last night suffering a fractured jaw. He's expected to be out of action for at least four weeks.

He was injured in collision with burly Kenny Reardon in the second period. It is expected that Bob Dawes, who just returned to the Leaf lineup Thursday, will take over Gardiner's centre-ice duties between Bill Ezinicki and Harry Watson. Reardon suffered a bruised shoulder.

Hollywood, Nov. 12. —(AP)— "May I sell you some records?"

The scene was not a local department store but the Sunset Strip Saloon, Ciro's. The saleswoman was Sophie Tucker, who had just finished singing her sentimental and risque songs for a packed house of tourists and filmsters.

"Would you like to buy my autobiography?"

She addressed the patrons as they filed out the door. Sale of the book and records, she explained after her act, had thus far contributed $401,000 to Sophie's charities. She hustled her wares with the zeal of a sidewalk pitchman, and it was no small chore to interview her.

"Where do you go next?" I asked.

"I'm due in San Francisco, then up to Seattle and Vancouver. Then to Florida, where I'll play the winter . . . would you like me to autograph an album for you?"

She signed the album for a tourist who said she had last seen Sophie in London. After three more signings, I tried again.

"Do you think you'll ever quit singing?"

"Me quit?" she scowled. "Just see me singing in there and ask if I'll ever quit. I've been singing for 45 years and I'll keep it up until I drop . . . how about you? Buy an album. It's $6 for the funny songs, $5 for the little album."

"I hear you might sell your autobiography to the films."

"They're talking about it, but they want to get it cheap. won't sell it cheap. It's too good a story."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Bike waving a red flag to a bullwich is an obvious sacrifice bid in bridge. The other side goes into a rage. It is torn between doubling for penalties and trying to make a higher bid.

Look some more at this deal:

	♥ 7 9 2
	♦ 8 4 3
	♣ 8 4 3
WEST		EAST
♠ 8 7 6 5 2		♠ K Q J 10
♥ K 10 5		♥ None
♦ 6 5 2		♦ K J 10 9
♣ 7 5		♣ K J 10 9 6
	♥ Q 7 6 5 4 3
	♦ A Q 7
	♣ A Q 2

Bids kept going like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	Pass	1 NT	2 C
4 H	Pass	3 H	3 S
5 D	Pass	Pass	5 D
6 H	Pass	Pass	7 S
7 S

South could not know that north had stretched his hand to show heart support. Based upon north having what he said, south had the values for going to the game bid of four hearts.

South had a trick count of seven. His two aces and three queens are five tricks, cards for five tricks. With his two short cards in the spade suit, he has the mechanical count of seven.

There is no way for south to know that north did not have the three tricks promised there. A good player may make one bid without enough values. But not two. Not usually, that is.

It may be assured that east expected defeat at a bid of five. So what, says he to himself. If game can be made by south, it would pay east and west to take a sacrifice of less than game worth.

Reluctant to be frustrated, south went to five hearts. If he can take ten tricks, south thought, he may manage to pick up an 11th. If it does not come from a lucky break, a clever play may work.

Hope springs eternal in the breasts of most bridge players. Neither defeat nor criticism nor loss of points discourages them. The next deal will always be different.

Distinct Canada Flavor In Productions On Broadway

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Nov. 12 (CP) — There's a distinct Canada flavor in current production plans for the Broadway stage.

Hume Cronyn, stage and screen actor who was born in London, Ont., is to make his debut as director of a Manhattan performance with "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep". This is a dramatization of Ludwig Bemelmans' novel of the same name. Frederic March and his wife, Florence Eldridge, have been signed to co-star in the production, due on Broadway in February. Cronyn is well known in Hollywood as a writer as well as an actor. He was responsible for the scripts of two Alfred Hitchcock movies.

Robert Whitehead, Montreal-born producer, has his hands full there days with preparations for "The Member of the Wedding" and with three other scripts on the way for future production. He and Oliver Rea are producing way late in January.

"The Member of the Wedding," a dramatization by Carson McCullers of her novel of the same name. The Whitehead-Rea team has postponed until late next year their projected presentation of "Antigone" (The Heiress), a play by Albert Camus. Also on the Whitehead-Rea list for future attention are "The Magistrate," a play by Arthur Pinero, and "Uh no Awakening," an adaptation by Ben Edwards and Virginia Bolen of Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard."

Eva Gabor, Hungarian movie actress, hopes to make her New York stage debut, in "The Happy Time," an adaptation of Robert Fontaine's novel about life in Ottawa. She will play the part of a French girl who comes to live with the French-Canadian family who are the principal characters in the book. Robert Lewis is slated to direct "The Happy Time." Rehearsals are due to start next month and the production is expected on Broadway early in January.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking out to the Park with Percy Stanley, and all of a sudden Pude said, Oh boy, talk a about something to find up in a tree.

Meening a football stuck in the branches about 10 feet up, and Pude said, That proves my father's wrong telling me I aren't to walk along always looking up in the air.

He claiming it was half mine by law to being with him, and Pude boosted me to the lowest branch and I climbed up and necked the football down, Pude saying, Oh boy, the heck with the Park, let's go ste back and start kicking it on our own street.

Which we started to do, arguing whether each one should keep it in their house for a week at a time, or whether we should exchange it every other day, and I said I who cares walking up but Shorty Judge with a long fishing pole, saying, Hay, that's my football.

Like heck it is, we got it down from a tree, I said, and Shorty said, Yes and I got it up there. You know darn well my cousin lives in this block, he said.

Well if it's youre why didn't you clime up and get it? Pude said, and Shorty said, Because I'm too heavy for him to boost, and he's too little to clime. That's why I went home and got this pole. I'll prove it's mine, I'll identify the marks on it, he said.

[illegible] Shorty said. Okay, [illegible] proof is, if you dont hand it rite over, neither one of you is ever going to kick it again, he said.

The result being we gave it to him, proving actions are stronger than proofs.

TWO DIE IN TRAIN-CAR COLLISION

Fog over Southern Ontario is blamed for a train-car collision at Mount Dennis, Ont., in which Robert Platt, 23, of Schomberg and Eddie Lamb, Toronto, were killed. Here, witnesses to the crash assist one of the fatally injured men. Those who were near crossing say the train "must have been doing 50 miles per hour as it came through the level crossing." The wig-wag was signalling and the train's whistle was sounding, but the driver was not aware of the train's proximity. — Central Press Canadian.

PROTESTS FROM A SAFE DISTANCE

Gerhard Eisler, chief of the information department of the Soviet Zone government in Germany, addressed a Communist meeting in the Soviet sector of Berlin recently, as a protest against the conviction of America's 11 top Communists. Eisler fled the U.S. in the Polish ship Batory while being investigated by U.S. authorities. — Central Press Canadian.

Many Get Lost in The Woods Precautions May Mean Safety

(Port Arthur News-Chronicle)

Being lost in the woods is a common thing. It happens numerous times each season and the duration runs from a few minutes to permanent. It is most common to hunters who, sometimes in the eagerness of their chase, neglect the usual precautions, particularly in respect to direction. It is also known to fishermen who get away from their streams or waterways which should normally be their guide to home or safety.

It is also true that some people are more susceptible than others. It is dependent largely on the sense of direction possessed by the individual. Some possess this sense in large degree and are able to estimate directions and locations with accuracy whether the surrounding conditions are good or bad, sunshine or cloudy. Others, sometimes, are almost entirely lacking in this sense and are, therefore, more susceptible to lose themselves.

They say, too, that it is a moment of utmost dismay and panic when one first realizes that he is lost and has no idea which way to turn in order to reach companion, home or headquarters.

At the same time there are certain precautions which everyone going into the woods for hunting, fishing or hiking should observe. The first is to take definite note of direction, whether using the sun or a compass, regarding the line of travel to the nearest roadway. The compass is always a good thing to have but it will not do anyone much good unless he has also equipped himself with a general knowledge of directions. If, for instance, he doesn't know whether he has left a roadway to the north side of the south. Sometimes more important is a small supply of emergency food, but above all is a waterproof container.

The matches are likely to be the best means to safety.

When one realizes he is lost, first thing to do is to overcome the immediate panic and the best way to do that is to stay put. Stand or find a good resting place and depend on friends, without whom, of cougse, no hunting trip would be commenced. The matches will provide for a fire, which is highly important. It will keep one warm and will dry out wet clothing. Above all it will serve as a guide to the inevitable search parties, whether on foot or in the air. Holding to one location will not only assist the search parties but it will mean conservation of strength.

If there is a hill nearby and the weather has become clear an ascent to the top may help one to locate himself against, general-ly, it is of little use to walk about unless one has a definite idea of direction or location.

The main thing in going into the woods is, as said before, to go prepared for emergency, being careful of direction from the first having some emergency food in pocket and above all, the matches protected against moisture. Then, don't become panic stricken or lose your head. Give the search parties a chance.

Veteran Soccer Stars Wish They Were Cricketers

By MICHAEL O'HARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 1—(CP)—Sometimes veteran soccer stars think they're playing the wrong game; they wish they were cricketers.

Why? Because cricketers draw far more generous "benefits". A benefit is the testimony from a "benefit match" turned over by a grateful club to a deserving player to augment his routine earnings from the game.

Denis Compton, the country's ace cricketer, got £12,000 ($37,-800) in benefit money this year—tax free—in addition to his normal income from playing for Middlesex and England.

Frank Swift, for 17 years Englkeeper, drew £750 in benefit money last year before he retired —and then the tax-collector snatched about £300.

Nobody begrudges glamorous Denis a cent of his haul. But many sports fans would like to see football players get a fairer deal.

The law thinks it's fair enough. Here's the legal reasoning:

Under regulations of the football league "clubs may enter into agreements with players after three playing seasons continuous service providing for a benefit after five seasons' continuous service."

There is no such clause in the laws of cricket.

Therefore, says the law, a footballer's benefit is contracted for and therefore taxable; a cricketer's benefit is a gratuity and therefore tax-free.

Soccer players for years have been trying to reverse the legal ruling—so far without success. The case is that they won't drop good old recreation £1 altogether or, they believe, many players who deserve benefits would never get them at all.

There are other reasons why cricketers do better out of their benefits than do soccer players. Soccer admission prices are lower than cricket tickets, and a cricket match goes on for three days with a separate charge each day.

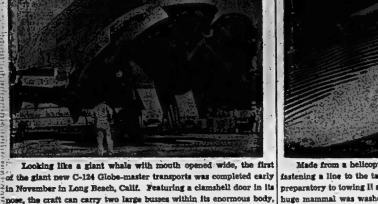
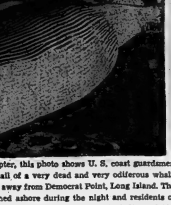
LARGEST U. S. MILITARY AIR TRANSPORT



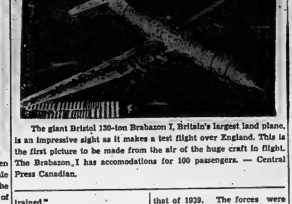
Looking like a giant whale with mouth opened wide, the first of the giant new C-124 Globe-master transports was completed early in November in Long Beach, Calif. Featuring a clamshell door in its nose, the craft can carry two large busses within its enormous body, or troops, trucks, tanks, and field-guns in combat use. Globe-master can transport a 80,000-pound payload 880 miles and return, or longer flights with less cargo aboard. Built-in ramps seen in the above photo permit vehicles to drive right into the plane. The four-engined craft is the largest production transport ever built. Powered by 3500 horsepower engines and weighs 175,000 pounds gross. When converted into troop carrier with double decks, the plane will carry 200 men. — Central Press Canadian.

DEAD WHALE ATTACKS LONG ISLAND



Made from a helicopter, this photo shows U. S. coast guardsmen fastening a line to the tail of a very dead and very odiferous whale preparatory to towing it away from Democrat Point, Long Island. The huge mammal was washed ashore during the night and residents of the vicinity awakened with evidence that no flood of Channel No. Five was in the air. The whale is about 100 feet long and weighs an estimated 100 tons. — Central Press Canadian.

LORD OF THE AIR IN TEST FLIGHT



The giant Bristol 130-ton Brabazon I, Britain's largest land plane, is an impressive sight as it makes a test flight over England. This is the first picture to be made from the air of the huge craft in flight. The Brabazon I has accomodations for 100 passengers. — Central Press Canadian.

PICTURE OF ROYAL CONCENTRATION

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

They all sat at a long table and were very merry, and enjoyed themselves immensely, May said so far away from Martin that he could not even see her. She had a strange gentleness about her. Herr Direktor Wucherpfennig, a business friend of Herr Lyssenhop Herr Lyssenhop took in the Countess Creveny and conversed with her in an extremely knightly and gallant manner. Martin had by his side the wife of a high official, a Frau Geheimrat, who could not help nodding her head in a threatening way sometimes meant "Yes, yes, yes," and sometimes "No, no, no." She could not keep it still, but apart from this she was agreeable enough.

On the other side he had a very powerful young girl who kept her mouth open and uttered not a word. She merely stared at all that went on with importunate and devouring eyes, and now and again pronounced a deep, throaty and terrifying laugh.

"The poor child is deaf and dumb," the Frau Geheimrat explained. "But never mind. She is my granddaughter, and she enjoys it so much. She is glad to be sitting next to you. She is a little crazy about you. You know what young girls are, yes, yes, yes, no, no, no, no . . ."

Martin relaxed into silence. When the dishes came round he took shamelessly large helpings in his rage and despondency. Once someone as she passed stroked his fair head in consolation. But it was only Carla.

"Yes, Fraulein, here we sit, but what are we here for ", he said to the deaf and dumb girl.

She had been gazing at his lips and now it seemed that she understood him. Her face took on a sad and regretful expression, and she nodded over and over her cheek with a strange air. Martin who had got on well with animals and children, felt a fleeting warmth of tenderness for this poor defective creature. He stuck two rolls on two forks and made them perform a dance as he had seen Charley Chaplin do in a film. The girl broke into such a roar of laughter that the whole table was silent for a moment and looked stern reproof at the deaf-and-dumb girl and the swimming instructor in his wretched blue suit.

Soon after, Martin got up and went miserably away. The deaf and dumb girl pressed his hand in farewell with an eager tremulous pressure. The Frau Geheimrat agitatedly wagged her head. Martin went down to the water and swam out to the middle of the lake. He wanted to cool himself down, and succeeded all right.

Next day the proprietor of the Peiermann told Eggenhofer, the porter, and the porter told Herr Birndl, who passed it on to Martin, that it was not customary for the Big Peiermann, nor was it very desirable that the swimming instructor should always be in and out of the hotel. The Peiermann was an exclusive hotel, and three had been talk about this, and to preserve the tone of the hotel only gentlemen in dinner jackets would be admitted to the public dinners. For this reason, and to exclude undesirable persons, the tickets would henceforth be ten schillings.

This communication threw Martin into a fury. His lips went so white that he looked quite gastly. "Take the stop-watch and get into the boat," he said hoarsely to May. "I feel like making a record." May who looked frightened clambered into the old tub with the stop-watch. Little Matz rowed. Martin started and did the fifteen hundred metres straight across the lake in 20.13. The boat with May in it dancing up and down with excitement could not keep pace with him. Martin had beaten the record for Austria. He had beaten the record for Germany. He was three seconds behind the world record. When May reached the farther shore he was lying breathless and almost unconscious on the landing plage of the boathouse. But what was the use of an unofficial record?

He raged around the whole day and gave his pupils a very thin time of it. Frau Mayreder swallowed far more water than she liked. At night on the Zirbitzplatte he squeezed May in his arms till she nearly went to pieces. He tore at her in a rage of love, and bestowed all the delicate attentions of an untamed young lion.

May returned to her virginal bedroom, with its pink wallpaper and its scent of lavender and Odol, bruised and shaken by this athletic display of the passion.

"Well?" asked Carla, who sat in front of the looking glass rubbing cream into her face.

"He wouldn't be like that with me for Carla darling," said May, and turned out the light.

Martin went with a scowl to the Big Peiermann and in a loud voice abruptly demanded a ticket to the assembly dance. Herr Birndl, who happened to be there while Herr Peiermann stood by with a wooden face, took out a little put ten schillings on the table; he still had enough money left in that it was not customary in the Big Peiermann, nor was it very desirable that the swimming instructor should always be in and out of the hotel. The Peiermann was an exclusive hotel, and three had been talk about this, and to preserve the tone of the hotel only gentlemen in dinner jackets would be admitted to the public dinners. For this reason, and to exclude undesirable persons, the tickets would henceforth be ten schillings.

This communication threw Martin into a fury. His lips went so white that he looked quite gastly. "Take the stop-watch and get into the boat," he said hoarsely to May. "I feel like making a record." But what was the use of an unofficial record?

PLANS BASED

"The best way to prevent war is to confront the forces of communism with such strength as to deter them from attack. To provide such strength requires the co-operative efforts of the western nations, including the United States and Canada."

For that reason, Canada welcomes the Atlantic pact.

None of the speakers questioned the record $383,000,000 peacetime defence budget Mr. Claxton is piloting. Gen. Pearkes said the Canadian people are quite willing to bear an immense burden as long as they think the forces are designed to prevent another war and not merely to win another after years of struggle. The retired army officer said the emphasis now should be on the air force.

C.C.F. Supports Budget

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, supported the budget but argued that it should be complemented by efforts to raise world living standards and to remove the misery and want which breed wars. Canada herself, he said could do more to improve the standards of its people.

John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge) stressed the vulnerability of Canada's concentration of industry and contended that a smart enemy, by seizing parts of Ontario and Quebec, could control the country. He urged industrial decentralization and a regional defence setup which would allow enemy-isolated areas to fight alone.

Other speakers were:

Lt.-Col. D. S. Harkness (PC-Calgary East); George Weaver (L-Churchill); Percy Wright (CCF-Rosetown-Biggar); Maj. D. Fullon (PC-Kamloops).

Gen. Pearkes said that the last century and a half Canada has relied on a shield of British forces to allow her time to mobilize for war. In 1940 he had to address his 1st Canadian Division in England tell them they would fight "gallantly . . . but not skillfully" against any German invaders because "you are not well trained."

Canada was "relying upon exactly the same policy which has stood this country in its stead for 150 years but which . . . now is out of date." The emphasis was on small compact regular units and "a period of time in which the reserve forces may be built up" on outbreak of war.

There was "much uncertainty, much contestation" as to whether this is a sound policy." The report of a commission on the navy "drives home the fact that our resources are too jbin and have been stretched too far to do all the tasks they are being called on to do."

Stretched Too Thin

This applied to the other forces. All of them were stretched too thin and too far "to be able to provide those mobile forces and the nucleus for expansion. . ."

Gen. Pearkes said that the air force "is designed to prevent another war and not merely to win another after years of struggle. The retired army officer said the emphasis now should be on the air force.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

They all sat at a long table and were very merry, and enjoyed themselves immensely, May said so far away from Martin that he could not even see her. She had a strange gentleness about her. Herr Direktor Wucherpfennig, a business friend of Herr Lyssenhop Herr Lyssenhop took in the Countess Creveny and conversed with her in an extremely knightly and gallant manner. Martin had by his side the wife of a high official, a Frau Geheimrat, who could not help nodding her head in a threatening way sometimes meant "Yes, yes, yes," and sometimes "No, no, no." She could not keep it still, but apart from this she was agreeable enough.

On the other side he had a very powerful young girl who kept her mouth open and uttered not a word. She merely stared at all that went on with importunate and devouring eyes, and now and again pronounced a deep, throaty and terrifying laugh.

"The poor child is deaf and dumb," the Frau Geheimrat explained. "But never mind. She is my granddaughter, and she enjoys it so much. She is glad to be sitting next to you. She is a little crazy about you. You know what young girls are, yes, yes, yes, no, no, no, no . . ."

Martin relaxed into silence. When the dishes came round he took shamelessly large helpings in his rage and despondency. Once someone as she passed stroked his fair head in consolation. But it was only Carla.

"Yes, Fraulein, here we sit, but what are we here for ", he said to the deaf and dumb girl.

She had been gazing at his lips and now it seemed that she understood him. Her face took on a sad and regretful expression, and she nodded over and over her cheek with a strange air. Martin who had got on well with animals and children, felt a fleeting warmth of tenderness for this poor defective creature. He stuck two rolls on two forks and made them perform a dance as he had seen Charley Chaplin do in a film. The girl broke into such a roar of laughter that the whole table was silent for a moment and looked stern reproof at the deaf-and-dumb girl and the swimming instructor in his wretched blue suit.

Soon after, Martin got up and went miserably away. The deaf and dumb girl pressed his hand in farewell with an eager tremulous pressure. The Frau Geheimrat agitatedly wagged her head. Martin went down to the water and swam out to the middle of the lake. He wanted to cool himself down, and succeeded all right.

Next day the proprietor of the Peiermann told Eggenhofer, the porter, and the porter told Herr Birndl, who passed it on to Martin, that it was not customary for the Big Peiermann, nor was it very desirable that the swimming instructor should always be in and out of the hotel. The Peiermann was an exclusive hotel, and three had been talk about this, and to preserve the tone of the hotel only gentlemen in dinner jackets would be admitted to the public dinners. For this reason, and to exclude undesirable persons, the tickets would henceforth be ten schillings.

This communication threw Martin into a fury. His lips went so white that he looked quite gastly. "Take the stop-watch and get into the boat," he said hoarsely to May. "I feel like making a record." May who looked frightened clambered into the old tub with the stop-watch. Little Matz rowed. Martin started and did the fifteen hundred metres straight across the lake in 20.13. The boat with May in it dancing up and down with excitement could not keep pace with him. Martin had beaten the record for Austria. He had beaten the record for Germany. He was three seconds behind the world record. When May reached the farther shore he was lying breathless and almost unconscious on the landing plage of the boathouse. But what was the use of an unofficial record?

He raged around the whole

$5 MILLION TAX GRANT FOR MUNICIPALITIES

100 Cities, Towns Will Receive Federal Payments

Grants Will Take Place of Taxes on Federal Property

Ottawa, Nov. 14 — (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott today in the Commons disclosed the government's plan to pay approximately 100 of Canada's municipalities about $5,000,000 a year as federal grants in lieu of taxation.

The plan, based on three assessment principles, will be incorporated in government legislation to be introduced during the current session and expected to be brought into effect next Jan. 1.

Based on the philosophy that establishment of federal property helps local business, the government's payments generally will amount to 75 per cent of the municipal tax, less four per cent.

The four per cent is what the government considers is the "national average" of federal property to total local assessment.

Towns and cities where federal property is less than four per cent of total assessment will get tapering off grants for three years, and then will get no federal grants.

Ottawa An Exception

Ottawa — an exception to the plan—will receive grants which will total $40,000 in 1949—an increase of $100,000 from last year's payments. Future grants will be based on national capital development expenditures.

Crown companies, defence establishments, parks and the C.N.R. are exempt from the plan. But these organizations, Mr. Abbott said, in a 6,000-word statement, can work out a "system of payments with the municipalities.

If any of the municipalities want, they can ask that the "formula ground" be given to them instead of making independent agreements with the crown companies and others.

In these cases the municipalities will have to demonstrate "a good case for its inclusion."

Assessment Principles

The three assessment principles on which the payments formula is based:

1. Federal assessors will survey the property field and make final decision whether the municipal assessment is "fair". Their assessment decision on federal property will be final.

2. The government believes that establishment of federal property in any municipality is a benefit to stimulate local business. This stimulation is believed by the government to be worth 25 per cent of local assessment.

3. Heavy concentration of federal property alone would compensate for non-payment of taxes, because it increased local personal incomes and business activity, Mr. Abbott said. The test, then, was to pay for property in excess of average concentration. The national average is computed at four per cent. This figure may be changed at some future date.

New Nerve Control Drug Used To Heal Ulcerating Peptic Ulcers

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Cincinnati, Nov. 14. —(AP)— Banthine, a new, nerve control drug, is healing bad peptic ulcers.

This way of controlling stomach and intestinal nerves is the first long search for ulcer remedies. The gratifying results are reported for the action of a surgeon's knife on the stomach's control nerves, in 80 cases all apparently healed. Some ulcers were perforating, that is eating holes, but X-rays show that these too healed.

Eighteen patients were suffering severe ulcer pain. In these cases pain stopped a few minutes after the drug was given. It is taken by mouth every few hours.

The results were shown to the Southern Medical Association meeting by Doctors Keith S. Grimson, professor of surgery, and Frank H. Longino and C. Keith Lyons, U.S. Public Health Service Fellows.

Banthine is one of a score of new drugs tried at Duke University for effects in blocking the nerves that control high blood pressure and stomach action. But it is not a blood pressure remedy. It is made by G. D. Searle and Company, Chicago.

The cause of ulcers is not known. Doctors agree that controlling conditions are essential. Stomach acid, rapid stomach movements and probably overactive nerves.

Banthine slows down stomach movements. It may be that by a block of the same nerves which are severed in stomach ulcer surgery. After the drug, food just settles itself more slowly.

Pain and duke cases acid also dropped. But in a few, the acid rose after banthine. Yet these ulcers healed.

The Duke researchers point to results of 135 surgical operations as a sign that the drug is on the right track. In none of these nerve-cutting cases have the ulcers recurred.

Whether ulcers will recur with the drug is unknown because it has been used only about five months to date it has shown no bad effects.

TWO HOUSE FIRES CAUSE 5 DEATHS IN EAST CANADA

Altogether 12 Fatalities Reported in Ontario During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

The death of three persons in a fire in Ottawa, including father and son, were among the 12 fatalities recorded in Ontario during the weekend.

Besides these deaths by fire, a brother and a sister—Raymond Poirier, five, and Rose Marie Poirier two— lost their lives in a blaze that destroyed their isolated farmhouse at Fieldrich, Que.

The dead in the Ottawa fire are Patrick Conlon, 40, his son, James, five, and Jack O'Neil, 49. They died when Conlon's tin-covered shack burnt down after, it is believed, an oil-lamp overturned.

Altogether there were 18 other fatalities in Eastern Canada besides the five who died in the two fires. Ontario had the highest toll with 12, while Quebec had five, Nova Scotia two and New Brunswick two.

Ten fatalities were attributed to traffic accidents, two persons were drowned, one died from a fall, another was crushed, a girl was killed by a hurled stone, and police are investigating the death of a boy found in a ditch.

At St. Catharines, the body of Josep B. Purcell was recovered from the Welland Canal, and Dawson Reid, 54, of Coe Hill, near Bancroft in Hastinburn County, was found drowned in a small creek near his home.

Mrs. Violet Sinclair, 53, of Lindsay, 69 miles northeast of Toronto, was killed at Oakwood, near Lindsay, when a transport truck collided with a car.

Crushed by Truck

Ralph Di Paolo, 48, of South Porcupine, was crushed between a wrecking truck and a car in the Northern Ontario gold-mining community of Kirkland Lake.

U.S. Will Support Effort Of Germans for Liberty While They Strive for it

By TOM REEDY

Berlin, Nov. 14. (AP)— State Secretary Dean Acheson told the Germans today the United States would support their battle for liberty just as long as they continue fighting for it.

The United States Secretary delivered this message to Soviet-surrounded Berlin at a press conference held soon after he arrived by air plane from Frankfurt. Tonight Acheson concludes his four-day visit to Germany and returns by plane to Washington.

Acheson called the people of Western Berlin the "living symbol of continual effort to nurture and develop liberty."

He also told the press conference he had been "constantly irritated" by expressions of opinion in America that U.S. policy had failed in China.

Failure of Chinese Policy in China

"It was not a failure of American policy" the top U.S. diplomat said. "It was a failure of Chinese policy in China."

But of both the Chinese and German problems, Acheson said:

"All the help in the world from the United States will not help those who will not help themselves."

Grant No More Second Mortgage Loans After 1949

Toronto, Nov. 14. (CP)— The Ontario government is suspending its plan of granting second-mortgage loans on new houses, a planning department official announced today.

The official said a letter has been sent to lending institutions and builders telling them no applications for second-mortgage loans will be accepted after Dec. 31.

The plan was started some 18 months ago to enable individuals to obtain sufficient money to make downpayments on new homes. The official said under the federal government's new housing policy, announced recently, down payments required under the National Housing Act are expected to be reduced, eliminating the necessity of loans from the provinces.

German Scientist Turns up Another Potential Weapon Against TB

Atlanta, Nov. 14 — (AP) — Two doctors Saturday reported a top-flight German scientist has turned up another potential weapon against tuberculosis.

It's a new synthetic drug, derived from coal tar, known as TB-1 for short and thio-semicarbazones for long.

The doctors, Geoffrey Rake of New Brunswick, N. J., and Dr. Corwin Hanshaw of San Francisco, said large-scale tests of the new agent abroad have shown "encouraging results."

Shortly after the two doctors' reports were delivered to the Chemotherapeutics Symposium sponsored by the United States veterans' administration, two pharmaceutical houses said the coupons will be made available to certain government and research agencies for clinical study.

The therapeutic (curative or arresting) action of the formula was discovered by Dr. Gerhard Domagk of Elberfield, Germany, winner of the Nobel Prize for his development of sulfa drugs.

Hinshaw, Clinical Professor of Medicine at Stanford University and a top authority on streptomycin, said the results obtained in 300 German hospitals "appear big promising."

The tests, he continued, were conducted on "several thousand" patients.

Rake, director of the Squibb Institute, reported he had already undertaken preliminary work with TB-1 and that the results of studies in mice suggested the compound might be effective in man.

The drug, he added, can be taken through the mouth and is administered in small doses.

Both doctors were careful not to raise great hopes among the 500,000 tuberculosis victims in the United States, one of whom dies every 11 minutes on the average.

MEDIATOR PLANS ANOTHER TRIP TO WHITE HOUSE

Ching Will Report On Coal Deadlock

Washington, Nov. 14—(AP) — Federal conciliator Cyrus S. Ching scheduled another trip to the White House today to report to President Truman on weekend developments over lack of theirs in the coal deadlock.

The new suggestion of John L. Lewis that soft coal operators drop in and talk contract when he returned to the capital today got no rush of acceptance from the mine owners.

The National Coal Association said in a weekend statement that another coal strike June 1 is "unthinkable."

Ching and his associates were understood to be against delaying potential action beyond this week. What Ching was recommending to President Truman, however, was his own secret.

Most observers thought Ching favored the appointment of a fact-finding board with power to recommend a settlement of the six-month coal deadlock.

Appointment of any such board would be accompanied likely by an appeal by President Truman to the miners to stay on the job and the walk out Dec. 1, when their present three-week armistice expires, may have set.

As an alternative, the president may invoke the Taft-Hartley Labor Act which also provides for a fact-finding board, but one without power to make recommendations. The big factor in favor of using the law's emergency disputes provisions is that it also calls for seeking an 80-day injunction which would keep the miners in the pits until late January under court order.

Lewis has made only general demands for a new pact, the 20-cent-per-ton welfare royalty, a shorter work day and higher pay. He says that would add 30 to 35 cents to the cost of a ton of coal, but that the operators could absorb it out of profits.

The conferences offered Lewis an 18-month extention of his present contract, but with tighter controls on expenditures from the welfare fund, plus guarantees that the "able and willing to work" and "memorial period" clauses would not be used for national strikes.

Charge Murder In Death Of 'Frat' Brother

Columbus, O., Nov. 14 — (AP) — A first degree murder charge was filed today against James H. Heer, an Ohio State University freshman, in the death of his fraternity brother after a homecoming party.

The 20-year-old student pleaded innocent and was held for the Grand Jury without bail.

Detective Lowell V. Sheets, who filed the charge, said the shooting followed an argument with a gun fight and a demand from fraternity brothers.

The girl friend, Joyce Cratton, of Cleveland, was held originally as a material witness and her bond was continued, police said.

James T. McKeown, 21, a senior and managing editor of the university's student daily, died shot to death early Saturday when he tried to take a 45-calibre automatic pistol from her.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP) Synopsis: Snowflurries in Northern Ontario are adding slight to the snow already there which in places reaches a depth of 2 inches. Winds are strong over most of the province and storm warnings are up on the northern lakes.

TARGET-SEEKING MISSILE

San Diego, Calif., Nov. 14—(AP) — The "Firebird," a rocket-powered, target-seeking missile with a proximity fuse for launching from one plane against another, has been developed successfully by the United States Air Force.

Coalition Party Has Over-All House Majority

Winnipeg, Nov. 14. —(CP)— Weekend vote counting reduced the number of doubting seats in the two Manitoba Legislatures to two, and increased the Coalition Government's strength in the House.

Two more Coalition supporters came up to their quota in the Winnipeg North and Winnipeg Centre ridings, bringing the total to 42; three opposition candidates came through to make the opposition strength 15. Both ridings have four seats and use the proportional representation system in counting votes.

Morris and Iberville, the doubtful ridings, will have a second count this week under the single transferable vote system used in one-seat constituencies.

Morris, with two candidates supporting Coalition, both far ahead of the C.C.F. candidates, will be a Coalition seat. Harry Sherman an Independent, or Provincial Treasurer J. C. Dryden will be the government's 43rd supporter.

The opposition seems likely to win Iberville. John McDowell, an Independent Progressive Conservative who broke with Coalition during the last session of the Legislature, leads Raoul Allard, Coalition liberal-Progressive, by 158 votes on Thursday's indecisive count. The C.C.F. candidate, H. Robertson, is another 638 votes behind.

In addition to the two doubtful seats, one riding still has to hold an election. In Portage-la-Prairie's Land, where pre-freeze-up conditions cripple election machinery, the late last member in the 57-seat House Dec. 14.

The weekend returns gave Premier Douglas L. Campbell's Liberal Progressive party an overall C.C.F. seats appeared to put the party back in the role of official opposition.

Wife Accused Of Using Knife On Her Husband

Hamilton, Nov. 14 — (CP)—A 32-year-old wife accused of plunging a paring knife into the neck of her husband, John LaForme, 40, will appear in court today on a charge of wounding. Police said Mrs. Enid LaForme, 32, admitted the stabbing.

In a written statement to police after her arrest Sunday, the woman, Mrs. Annie LaForme, is said to have claimed that her husband had struck her and bit her for the last five years. She left the home on Barton street.

The husband was treated at hospital for a neck wound and released after his neck and permitted to return home. His condition on Sunday was described as "satisfactory."

Police said they were told the incident climaxed a family quarrel at 4 a. m. Sunday in the apartment in which the LaFormes and their three-year-old daughter, Penny, were living. They said the little girl was awakened by the commotion, a scuffle and saw the closing stages of the fight.

Detective officers, cruising in the area, also were attracted by the fight. They said they rushed into the house and found the husband lying in a small pool of blood in the front hall, while in the kitchen, they said, they discovered Mrs. LaForme standing with her hands under a tap.

John Tolchard, a neighbor in the house, said he saw Mrs. LaForme struggling with her husband. He said she had a knife in her hand, a face which broke her spectacles and that she was thrown to the floor.

Police said they were called to the house earlier in the night to quieten LaForme who, they said, had been drinking.

UNEASY HOUNDS UPSET SKIFF, MAN NEARLY DROWNS

A. McGarvey, Marmora, Revived at Hospital

The start of the current deer hunting season ended rather abruptly Sunday afternoon for Allan McGarvey, 44 of Marmora, who was nearly drowned in Beaver Creek, 15 miles north of Marmora when uneasy hounds upset his skiff and dumped him into the water.

Other members of the party managed to rescue McGarvey from the water in an unconscious condition and he was rushed back to Marmora and on to Belleville where he was placed under an oxygen tent. He did not recover consciousness until four hours after the mishap.

Mr. McGarvey with a number of other hunters were on their way to open their hunting camp on Beaver Creek. They had driven 15 miles to Shanick where they had taken to boats to proceed on to the camp. The dogs upset the boat and McGarvey and Herbert Wright were dumped into the water.

Clung to Boat

McGarvey went under two or three times before he was pulled ashore, while Wright managed to cling to the side of a boat operated by Hiram Revoy.

Artificial respiration was given on Monday all the way back to Marmora in the truck where an emergency call was put through to Belleville Fire Department for a pulmotor. This was rushed to Marmora in the 20-Ambulance and the still unconscious patient was given oxygen on the way to Belleville. Dr. W. J. Donevon attended the man at Marmora, and later, him directly to Belleville.

Dr. G. S. Creak of Belleville stated McGarvey had a very close call with death. Fire Chief Gerald Mace stated that when McGarvey failed to respond quickly to artificial respiration, an inhalator was ordered and when he again failed to respond his was ordered him to the hospital.

FINED FOR JACK-LIGHTING

Little Current, Nov. 14 — (CP) — Jack lighting in the Sault Ste. Marie area on Manitoulin Island this year for the Manitoulin-Sault Ste. Marie-Mount Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., steelworker, was fined $100 and costs Saturday after a gun was confiscated. In jack-lighting a spotlight is used to attract deer and results in the animal "freeze" while the hunter shoots. Harold Walker, described as Mount's companion, was fined $10 and costs and his dog seized for carrying a loaded firearm in a motor vehicle.

Wrigley Buys Catalina Island

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 — (AP) — William Wrigley, Jr., chewing gum manufacturer, has purchased Santa Catalina Island, 22 miles off the California coast, from the Santa Catalina Island Company, it was announced today.

The deal, which includes the island's famous Avalon resort, was completed Saturday, the announcement said.

Wrigley, who has owned a controlling interest in the company since 1919, bought the remaining stock held by the Banning estate.

STEEL INDUSTRY ROARS TOWARD FULL PRODUCTION

Five New Agreements Reached With Workers During Weekend

Pittsburgh, Nov. 14 — (AP)— Little steel companies are falling in line with strike-ending contracts as the steel industry's 1949 United States roars toward full production.

During the weekend at least five new agreements were reached with the United Steelworkers (C.I.O.).

Less than 100,000 unionists remain on strike. More agreements are expected momentarily with the holdout companies.

Major holdouts are Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corporation, Crucible Steel, Pittsburgh Steel, and Sharon (Pa.) Steel.

The new agreements, without exception, are following the general pattern of the contract signed with Bethlehem Steel Company. The United States Steel Corporation which signed for its 170,000 steelworkers, virtually ended the walkout when it capitulated last Friday.

Within a week to 10 days, it's expected virtually 95 per cent of nearly 50,000 steelworkers who went on strike for free pensions will be back on the job.

Steel magazine predicts the steel supply will be short through next April and possibly longer. The magazine says rationing, at least in the case of normal, nature, appears a certainty.

The agreement which Murray won from Bethlehem and most of the other companies is for the six-week strike call for $100 monthly pensions, including social security, and a five-cent hourly insurance program. The insurance will be paid jointly by company and worker.

Big Steel says the pension program will cost industry, to a certain extent. It explains that both industry and workers make social security payments.

THREE AIRMEN ESCAPE INJURY

Three R.C.A.F. airmen escaped injury late Saturday night when their car skidded 100 feet before overturning onto its top.

Trenton police stated that a car driven by Cecil Tripp, 28, of Frankford, carrying as passengers Lac. Weldon Glavin and Lac. Wilson, both of No. 6 R.D., had overturned on a double set of railway tracks. The driver swerved sharply to miss a sewer excavation and overturned. None of the trio was injured.

DRIVER BLINDED BY LIGHTS, CAR OVERTURNS IN DITCH

Overturning in the ditch when they were blinded by the lights of an approaching car, Gerald Brennan, 83 Division Street, Trenton, and Charles Dever, Front Street, Belleville, narrowly escaped serious injury Saturday night.

The two men with Brennan at the wheel were driving north on the Foxboro highway in a truck when a short distance south of Foxboro the driver was blinded by lights. The truck went out of control and turned over in the ditch.

3-47 Battery, LAA Holds Reunion In Armouries on Saturday, Sunday

Well over 100 members of the 3/47 Battery, unit of the 5th Canadian Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment attended the annual reunion held in the Bridge Street Armories on Saturday and Sunday. Other units of the regiment from the 31st Battery, Cobourg, and the 58th Battery of Dartmouth, N.S.

From all parts of the district came these "ack-ack" gunners to once again gather and see one another and relive the days when they fought Germany's air serial might in the battle-scarred skies of Italy, France, Belgium and Holland, as well as those over the "light little island."

Following a general get-together and registration, the gunners were served a buffet lunch and the re-union got under to entertainment and general reminiscences.

Drizzling rain greeted them on Sunday morning, but it did not deter a parade of the unit preceding to the Station Street Cenotaph where a short memorial service to their glorious dead was held.

There was a brief get-together following the parade and another 3/47 Battery reunion was history.

History of the Unit

In 1940 when the Luftwaffe paraded the skies in strength, Canada did not possess a single anti-aircraft gun. Under guns were possibly known by the men who were later destined to fight them but, if at all, in a barrel or a rare piece of ordinance, Urgent necessity demanded the hasty methods of recruiting and of training, and though the country's establishment of field artillery was by no means adequate, imperative steps were needed to have field batteries be converted into light anti-aircraft.

From Simcoe and Dundas, Ontario, came 41 Battery, from Cobourg and Port Hope came 31 Battery, and from Dartmouth in Nova Scotia came 58 Battery, all under Lt.-Col. Reg't.

The 3/47 Field Battery was similarly descended from veteran units of the First Great War. Prior to 1936 the predecessor of the 47th Field Battery of today, the 47 Field Battery and the Prince Consort Regiment of Infantry of World War I fame, were disbanded and to that year the 47th Battery was formed from personnel drawn from these disbanded units. The HQ of this Battery was established at Napanee, Ontario. 3 Field Battery, in World War I was a unit from Gananoque, Ontario, and was attached to the 47 Field Battery at Napanee in July 1940, to form 3/47 Field Battery under command of Major W. S. VanSlenburgh. 3/47 Battery immediately proceeded to mobilize in the Napanee, Cobourg and Belleville.

The reinforcements were drawn mainly from three N.P.A.M. units, the 34 Field Battery and the 43rd Light Infantry of Belleville and 22 Medium Regiment, which from 1915-1918, fought in France as the 22nd Canadian 2nd Heavy Regiment. In August, 1940, the 3/47 Battery moved to Kingston to be quartered in the Old Cereal Building. Commanding was Major Van Slenburgh with Capt. Manning as second in command, Capts' Bird, King and Sills as troop commanders and Lt. Fred Symons as Battery QM. The senior NCO's were the RSM Keenan, BQMS Ewart and Troop Sergeant Majors Holway, Howie and Sergeant.

Equipment presented a major problem but despite desperate demands by personnel such as Gnr. Hitchon with feet of the size-eleven variety, a complete uniform was soon made available to the Battery by the QM ably assisted by BQMS Ewart, known as "Skunk" Ewart, by his voters, and he had for many years been Mayor of Cobourg.

Used 18 Pounders

Again 18 pounders were drafted from their uneasy retirement and drill with them and basic training fully occupied the enthusiastic gunners. "Acks" were trained under Lt. Plummer, signallers under Sgt. Swan and a bugle band, which later enlivened route marches, was formed under Sgt. Mitchell. Schemes were carried out, sometimes as far away from the home base as Gananoque. One exercise prophetically involved two troops in an infantry role and even at that time the role was distasteful to the gunners as exemplified by the mobile-minded Sgt. Healy who arrived for the battle in a taxi and on the occasion the battery escorted 300 German PWs from Fort Frontenac in the camp at Fort Henry, this provided training for a task of similar nature that was completed in Holland five years later. Church parades in Cobourg and Napanee, a street parade in Belleville on one of its fair days, and entertainment and sports contributed towards the all-round health of the unit. The hockey team that was formed entered the city league and won the first four games at which time the combination of the lock at the amply stocked sergeants' mess became general knowledge with unhappy consequences to the hockey record.

Six months moved by quickly and energetically, and in February 1941, the battery left Kingston for Petawawa to join 41/102 Battery in the 18 Field Regiment and 57-58 Battery of the 12 Field Regiment, and then overseas.

Army, Navy Vets Protest Govt. Action on Rents

At the regular monthly meeting of the Army, Navy Veterans in Canada, Branch 201, a resolution was unanimously passed by the general body to the effect that a strong protest should be forwarded to the local member of parliament protesting the current government action with regard to lifting rent control controls.

It was the general feeling that the action on the part of the government will create hardship to a great many veterans who lived in rented homes.

Five new members were officially installed during the business part of the meeting. One of the largest turnouts of the year was in attendance and all enjoyed entertainment and refreshments at the end of the monthly session.

POLICE BLOTTER

Although the main doors of the hotel were still open, many youths ch e a kitchen window in an effort to make entry into the Hotel 'Julnte Saturday evening.

One of the hotel maids saw the two youths trying to raise the window but when they saw they had been seen they disappeared around the rear of the hotel. On investigation police were unable to find any suspicious persons in the neighborhood.

A report from the James Street area that young boys were throwing out street lamps with B.B. guns was proven without foundation. No street lights in that area were found broken. Police stated, however, that a number of lights had been broken in the South John Street area.

Parcels of groceries left at a local chain grocery store were stolen on Saturday. It was reported. Police apprehended a man who they say admitted taking the grocery parcels but the store manager declined to press charges.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 14. (CP)—Golds continued sliding downwards as selling pressure remained steady. Losses were general on the gold board following last Thursday's sharp setback. Industrials also sagged and base metals and western oils settled into easier ground.

Volume for the first four hours was 651,000 shares.

The gold decline was a continuation of Thursday's sharp break following President Truman's statement that the United States would not increase the price of gold while he remains president. The heaviest selling since September pushed the exchange's gold index down four points on Thursday.

Seniors were down on losses ranging from fractions to a full point and juniors sagged on declines up to five cents.

Many Gifts for Prince Charles On Birthday

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 14. (CP)—Birthday greetings and gifts from all parts of Canada reached Prince Charles in his cream-walled nursery at Clarence House today, his first birthday.

Were the infant Prince, playing merrily with bricks, toys and furry animals, old enough to identify them he would know that Canadians in every walk of life —from fur-western school children to Ontario father foils — were thinking of him.

Prince Charles, who recently embarked on the toddling stage, was literally bombarded with gifts all morning. They were screened in the presence of Princess Elizabeth by his nurse, Miss Helen Lightbody.

There was a family party — with a one-candle cake — tonight twice the Prince's $4 pounds. Among the guests were Prince Charles' three-year-old cousin, Prince Richard, son of the Duke of Gloucester, and some little girls whose families have palace connections.

One "very special" parcel arrived by air from Malta. It was sent by Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, whose naval service prevented him from enjoying a birthday with his first-born Prince Charles.

"Canada certainly is well represented among the thousands of telegrams, letters and gifts arriving here for several days now," said a Clarence House official.

A crowd of more than 100 people, including women, servicemen and children, gathered outside the main gates at Clarence as on duty told them the Princess and baby would not be going out today.

Princess Elizabeth says goodbye to Prince Charles Saturday. She will then fly to Malta to spend her wedding anniversary Sunday with Prince Philip.

Mother Killed, Child in Arms Is Saved

Bridgeport, O., Nov. 12—(AP) —A 30-year-old mother was killed instantly in a freak traffic accident Friday, but she saved the life of the baby daughter she carried in her arms. Mrs. Dorothy Reichenbach died when pinned by a stone retaining wall by a run-away truck. Just before the truck hit her she sheltered her one-year-old daughter in her arms. The child escaped with a broken left arm.

Half Moon Bay, Calif., Nov. 14 (AP) — Hand-in-hand, a man and woman walked into the surf Sunday night and were drowned. Deputy Sheriff James Beatty said it appeared certain it was a suicide pact. He gave the names as Myrtle M. Porter, 47, and Ted Yelle, 50, both of Belmont, Calif.

FISHERMEN DEMAND BREAKWATER

Fort Erie, Nov. 14 — (CP) — A breakwater to keep the Niagara River from undermining Strawberry Island is demanded by fishermen in this area. 100 CITIES, TOWNS

The government's tax payments will cover, partially, general municipal and school assessment, but not business taxes.

In addition the government will pay water rates for its property and charges for local improvements against federal real property in any municipality.

To municipalities in which federal property is less than four per cent of the total local assessment, the government will pay full taxes for the year in which a piece of property is acquired, plus full taxes for the succeeding year and then three years of grants at 75, 50 and 25 per cent of full taxation.

"At the end of this period no further grants will be paid," Mr. Abbott said.

These temporary grants are intended to permit the municipalities to adjust themselves to the loss of specific tax revenue on the acquisition of property by the crown."

A departmental spokesman later said the grant to those in the below-maximum average level will generally get the tapering-off payments during 1950, 1951, and 1952.

Replies to Member

Replying to Howard Green (PC-Vancouver - Quadra), Mr. Abbott said he could not at this time enumerate the areas which will get the payments, but said they would include Halifax, Esquimalt and Ottawa—the municipalities which now receive federal grants-in-lieu.

"It is proposed to institute the program in the future outlined as of Jan. 1, 1950", Mr. Abbott said in his statement "Actual payments in some cases may be delayed but they will be made retroactive."

The delay will be in the cases where the municipalities come close to the four-per-cent mark. Payments to these areas will be delayed "until the actual certification of the figures has been completed."

In other cases where the government is confident that the federal contribution in the area is well above four per cent, payments will go out—with the exception of the item which must be withheld until the final determination of figures has been completed."

"Adjustments will be made retroactively."

The "formula" plan supersedes the present municipal tax-payment agreements, including the one with Ottawa.

But in the case of Ottawa, said Mr. Abbott, the situation was complicated by the proposed development of the national capital plans.

Agreement Lapsed in June

The $300,000-a-year agreement with Ottawa lapsed last June. To cover the June-December period, the government will grant the city $250,000, which, in addition to the $150,000 was applicable to the first six months of the year, made a total payment of $400,000 in 1949.

Generally in future years payments in the capital will be similar to those with other cities where there was an unusually heavy concentration of federal property.

Other payments would be made for national capital development. Mr. Abbott recalled that $2,500,000 was voted last year and a similar sum this year for developing the "master plan" of the capital.

He said the government was prepared to make grants from this fund for assisting in building a new city hall for Ottawa, if the municipality complies with the "architectural requirements" of the "master plan" and erects the hall on a spot suitable to the national planners.

Will Make Other Grants

Other grants will be made to the capital for extension of sewage disposal and water supply systems, for zoning and completion of national-capital surveys, for housing by crown corporations paying taxes were "considered," Mr. Abbott said, but in general the policy of the government will be to authorize the crown corporations to work out fair and equitable agreements with the municipalities in which their properties are situated."

He added:

"In the case of the government-owned railways operated by the C.N.R. agreements have been entered into with the cities of Halifax and Saint John for the payment of reasonable amounts in lieu of taxes.

"I understand that the C.N.R. will endeavor to work out similar arrangements with other municipalities through which the government-owned railway runs."

Certain Exceptions

Mr. Abbott lumped these property categories as being outside the bounds of "formula" payments, but for which the administrators can enter into agreements with the cities:

All service establishments; harbors, canals and adjacent lands; irrigation areas; forest conservation property; penitentiaries, veterans hospitals; parks and historical sites; property owned by Crown corporations, including the CBC; government-owned railways; and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation property.

All other property is exempt, for some of this property. If the municipality can show "a good case," it can ask that it get the "formula" plan and not an independent agreement.

The property on which the "formula" payments plan can be made include service establishments, harbors, canals and adjacent land, forestation, irrigation and rehabilitation land, penitentiaries and hospitals.

To Speed Plan

To get the tax payments scheme into action, Mr. Abbott told the House that the government proposes to introduce "a special estimates item" during the current session.

"I believe only a modest appropriation of funds at this session over and above the amount of the interim grant to Ottawa will be necessary."

This will permit establishing the federal assessment unit "and provide for such initial grants as may have to be made before the close of the present fiscal year."

"At the next session it would be out intention to introduce a bill to provide permanent statutory authorization of the program as a whole."

Mr. Abbott said he wanted it made clear that although the government is proposing to make payments, this did not eliminate the principal that the federal government had constitutional protection not to pay local taxation.

"Consequently the federal grants in lieu of municipal taxes are made in the main as a matter of grace and are to be subject to discretionary determination by an agency of the federal government."

themselves. The United States is determined to help those who help themselves.

The U.S. Secretary said he was looking forward to renewing an old acquaintance with Gen. Vassily Chuikov, the chief of the Soviet Control Commission. But in response to a question, Acheson said he saw no immediate prospect of four-power meetings on the unification of Germany.

World diplomatic problems today fall into two general categories, Acheson said:

1. Those problems created by various Soviet-led "threats" which seek to interfere with the course of events in other lands.

2. Those problems, such as economic ills, which would exist regardless of the Soviet Union.

Soviet Threats 'Must Be Met'

Soviet threats, Acheson commented, "must be met". He did not elaborate further.

Meanwhile at Bonn, top political leaders of the West German state whom Acheson visited Sunday waited to hear from McCloy and the two other Allied high commissioners about changes the Paris Foreign Ministers Conference had decided on in Allied policy toward the western state.

The high commission is to meet tomorrow at Petersberg, near Bonn, with West Germany's Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, to discuss the Paris Conference decisions. Possibly the meeting will mark the start of Allied negotiations with the German which may lead to new policy on dismantling of German industry, guarantees against future German rearmament and other crucial questions.

At three points in Europe Sunday the three principals in the Paris Foreign Ministers conference gave more indications but no concrete details—of what they had decided.

Hope for 'Beginning of End'

Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin of British told a Labor party rally in Bournemouth England, "we can only hope the results of these conferences will be the beginning of the ending of the age-long feud between the West Germans and French.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman told a rally in Metz said Germany should have a place in Europe but "nothing more than a place."

At Bonn, Acheson told reporters the Soviet Union's decisions should "contribute mightily" to German recovery. He said the conferences had ended dismantling of German industry—a point the Germans want to hop —but not the possible formation of a German army to help defend Western Europe.

IMPROVING FORESTRY

Boys' and Girls' Farm Forestry Clubs of Ontario were organized last year and are now on a solid basis with 227 young people enrolled in thirteen clubs throughout the Province, says Woodland World. The project aims to promote the principle of conservation of existing woodlots on farms and to encourage the planting of trees as windbreaks and shelter belts, and coverage of small waste-land areas on farms, according to A. M. Barr, Associate Director of Extension, Ontario Department of Agriculture.

These clubs have been organized by the county agricultural representatives in co-operation with some foresters. They are sponsored by organizations interested in the improvement of woodland conservation and reforestation.

This province is the only one where junior farm forestry clubs are organized, although machinery has been established by the Canadian Council on Boys' and Girls' Club work to line up all efforts along this line.

THE WEST AND RUSSIA

The manner in which the Berlin incident was handled by the Western Powers appears to have won him. Hector McNeil, United Kingdom Minister of State, as expressed in an address delivered in Canada recently, to be responsible for the growth of optimism over the differences between the Western Powers and Russia. He said "to many people this demonstrated that if the Western powers could show the license, the skill and fortitude the Russians could be dissuaded from even their most frightening and dangerous exploits. And so the feeling is growing more and more that somehow or other the two great systems of the Western World and the Stalinist world can somehow shake down to living reasonably side by side without open war for many years to come."

Mr. McNeil said he did not think this was too optimistic an estimate and noted that Secretary of State Bevin had expressed that view and also that Secretary Acheson had said that the issue must "get out of each other's hair." Mr. McNeil expressed the view that this was far from the world-wide co-operation the world desires "but it would not be an unreasonable second best." It did not mean condoning what good men behind the Iron Curtain which every democrat would view with apprehension but that it did mean that for a time both sides would turn to their own difficulties and "it is to be hoped that these will absorb them so much that in due course they would get used to living together and learn to help each other."

On Friday an Ottawa Government white paper on defence expressed the reassuring view that the threat and fear of immediate war have been "materially reduced" in the past eighteen months. Defence Minister Claxton was giving a review on the preparedness picture and was presenting long-term plans for defence.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

People of the British world are much interested in the news that parts of London's world famous cathedral of St. Paul's, which have hitherto been inaccessible to the public, can now be seen by visitors. Not long ago the Lord Mayor opened the nucleus of a permanent exhibition in the cathedral illustrating the history of the various churches which have successfully occupied this historic site. Exhibits are being shown in rooms and corridors which can themselves be considered part of the display and the exhibit is approached by one of the most beautiful staircases in the world — a classical example of Wren's ingenuity. It is a unique spiral stair built in the southwest corner of the cathedral and makes two complete revolutions between the ground floor and the gallery. It ranks among the most beautiful geometric architectural forms ever conceived by man.

In her buildings as in her laws Britain has shown her soul. Her great men have fought spheres of authority and have helped to build that spirit which is the mark of the Briton and which sets him apart from the rest of the world.

England's history is rich in the lore it contains of the full-hearted spirit of the people of the British Isles.

Method is like packing things in a box; a good packer will get in half as much again as a bad one.—Cecil.

CHILD'S THOUGHTS OF SITTERS

When my father and my mother to a party have to go,
There is always someone sitting in the easy chair below.

And although I should be sleeping, I start calling just to see
If a neighbor or a stranger will come up to care for me.

When my grandpa is the sitter he forgets what mother said,
And, though he shouldn't do it, he will take me out of bed.

Others say: "I'll tell a story if you'll quiet try to be."
Others think they've done their duty when they mutter: "Go to sleep!"

I have every one of sitter, some whose names I've never told,
But you must all kinds of people when you're only four years old.

At night if I am thirsty and I shout: "I want a drink!"
I never know who's coming up with water from the sink.

Sometimes it is a lady I have never seen before,
Or my grandpa or my grandma or the girl who lives next door.

At bedtime when my mother kisses me and says: "Good bye,"
I lie away and wonder who will answer when I cry.

I lie awake and wonder who the sitter on the case?
Will she be a total stranger who will take my mother's place?

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

Actors Equity Association has released many figures on the earnings of its members during the season of 1948-49, and even to one familiar with the economic facts of Broadway life they come as something of a surprise. According to the report, almost half of the members in this country made a grand $14.61 a week or less, and of the "lean" one out of every four made as little as $2.50.

This, of course, isn't a pretty picture if you like the people in your pictures to be fat — but from long and lachrymose experience I've learned that nothing is to be gained by warning young performers of the assorted kicks in the slats waiting for them in the New York theatre. Trying to reason with them is about as successful with a Norwegian lemming.

Since time out of mind, enough plaudits and pesetas for everybody, actors are ofttimes obliged to do scut and scab temperament by scrounging to round out their incomes and buffets. The immortal one of the would-be Bernhardts is currently inciting the eating public to ham by boning up on statistics in the library and winning prizes on quiz shows. And if that weren't enough, she has dispensed with her real name and adopted a monicker guaranteed to make any casting agent turn up his hearing aid — Mercedes de Acosta.

Then there's the good-looker who goes from agent to agent, from one who got herself a brush and polish, and became the town's first chambermaid, to the fat old dame she hasn't landed a job in a show in yet, but who has collected plenty of four-bit tips and, what's even more important, plenty of intention for the future and day-to-day supplements.

Blowpots, the strangest case of mass-meal manoeuvring was related to me the other day by a publicity man. He's a subscriber who came to my office to see if I had a spot for one of his clients. When she told me she had been working in a year, I got curious.

"What have you been doing about calories?" I asked.

"Not enough," she said, "except feeling nostalgic about them. That is, until I met Igor a few months back."

"Boy friend?" I guessed.

The scribbler wrote: "At the time I met him, he was a meat carver in a rotisserie on Seventh Avenue, and every night on the way to my fifth-floor-rear I'd see him in the window, slicing juicy chunks of cow and pig.

"One night when I was feeling particularly lonely, I went into my Orphan-Annie routine — you know, nose against the plate-glass and eyes sad and pathetic. And I must have been in good form for Igor mentioned for me to come in, and when I told him I was broke he fed me four turkey sandwiches and all the French fries I could handle.

"From then on, every time I passed he'd wave for me to come in and have a free meal, and after a couple of weeks he asked if I'd go out with him on a date. Naturally, I accepted.

"Well, Igor — his second name is Gargantua — turned out to be a nice enough fellow, even though he did have Rodgers from Hammerstein. He'd take me to a movie or we'd sit on a bench in the park, and not wanting him to think I was a stray cat I told him all about my family and friends back in Altoona. And I guess I was pretty convincing about what a fine town Altoona was, because I much I missed it.

"One night, the big boob got the frogs out of his throat and asked me to marry him, and I thought I'd be the biggest hitched to Boo-boo, the skating bear, I didn't say yes right off the bat, afraid it would mean the end of the free delicatessen.

"Then, a few days when I passed the restaurant, he wasn't at his usual station. He'd been fired the night after. But the following morning he knocked on my door at 6:30 a.m. with a big grin and a legal document in his hand.

Sisters Teach Household Science

As early as the 17 century, certain household practices were taught by the Ursuline Sisters to girls of Quebec.

Canadian women will recall that it was Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless, of Hamilton, a homemaker with a vision, who was the guiding spirit in Homemaking Education in Canada.

Not only did she found Women's Institutes in Ontario, she also used her influence to establish the first course of homemaking in the Hamilton public schools in 1897. Two years earlier in 1895 classes had been established at Macdonald Institute and this was sponsored by the Y.W.C.A. Household Science, U. of T.

Mrs. Massey Treble founded the Household Science Dept., of the University of Toronto, that same year. These pioneer schools blazed the trail for developing "Home Economics courses" across Canada.

Homemakers' Creed

Lita Bane has written this creed for homemakers—

"To make the home, economically sound, mechanically convenient, morally wholesome, mentally stimulating, artistically satisfying, physically healthful, socially responsible, spiritually inspiring, and founded upon mutual affection and respect."

The real business in the words of "home economics" is to increase the satisfaction and decrease the dissatisfaction in home life by giving thought to the purposes and methods of homemaking.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a humorous reading using the names of nearby everyones present which provided fun for all.

Miss Evelyn Bailey of Springbrook sang two solos, Mrs. Ross Jones, who gave a full description of "How to Smock a Child's Dress", explaining, re material pattern, threads, etc. She then explained "How to make leather gloves and leather belts" and gave a demonstration on belt making after which several of the ladies did some practising with her materials. She also had various articles on display, all of which was greatly admired. At the close of her talk Miss Bailey was tendered a vote of thanks.

In 1936 the world's first television program was put on the air and England held the field for three years. She also stated that there are no commercial programs in England. The studios rely on licence fees to finance programs.

Mrs. Tanner served as an assistant in the director of the studio and told of many interesting experiences. She assisted in the production of jazz bands, one-act plays, ballets, orchestral work and going on to larger plays.

Mildred Stanton graciously thanked Mrs. Tanner for her splendid talk.

Women's Activities

CHATTERTON W. I.

Chatterton — The November meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Soider with the president, Mrs. B. Bleecker, presiding. The program was along the lines of "Historical Research." The roll call, "Do you know me?" was interesting and consisted of guessing each other's photos of earlier years.

Mrs. Fox rose led in a lively sing song. Several items of business were dealt with. It was decided that delegates' expenses to Area Convention be paid. Several ill members were to be remembered with either flowers or fruit and the gifts for new brides be purchased. It was unanimously agreed that the December gift exchange be dispensed with and instead, give the money towards buying Christmas toys for underprivileged children in the Kingston General Hospital.

Mrs. B. Mills, convener, was in charge of the following numbers: two poem, "Carl" and "Light of the Years" were given by Miss Evelyn Bleecker and Mrs. C. Irving; Mrs. Mitts gave a reading "The Wars We Make;" Mrs. D. Rose favored with a piano selection.

The topic, in the form of a debate, "Resolved that the times of 50 years ago were better than the present" was ably taken by Mrs. L. Frost and Mrs. B. Finkle. Each brought out many important factors and the real interpretation could be summed up this: The times 50 years ago had more contentment perhaps but that this age should be even more contented as it has so many more conveniences to lighten one's giving more time for happy hours.

The hostess served refreshments assisted by Mrs. Rose and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Chatham, Nov. 14. —(CP) — Ontario Provincial Police are holding a 23-year-old Tilbury man for questioning in connection with the beating of a Detroit man found semi-conscious in an automobile trunk.

Police said William Marchand of Tilbury, 20 miles southwest of here, gave himself up at the Tilbury home of Provincial Constable Ben Mulholland, Leitr he was brought here.

The injured man, identified as Adelard Rivard, was reported early today in critical condition. Doctors said he had multiple skull fractures. He is in hospital here.

Investigators established that Rivard, between 25 and 30 years old, left nearby Romney township for Detroit about six years ago.

Rivard's car was abandoned in front of the James Foster farm on a sideroad a mile north of Coatsworth in Romney township. Foster said that, with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. William Armstrong he saw the car plunge from the roadway into a deep ditch. He said the driver got out of the car, walked a short distance along the road and then headed across a field. When Foster and his companion called to the man, he started to run.

Hearing moans from the direction of the car trunk, the Fosters and the Armstrongs found Rivard jammed sideways in the trunk and bleeding about the head.

Billy Goat Charges, Routs 50 Riflemen

Wanaque, N.J., Nov. 14—(AP)— A charging billy goat Sunday routed 50 rifle enthusiasts—all of them armed.

The group, assembled on a private shooting range for target practice, ran for cover when the goat rushed from the woods.

The angry animal held them at bay for about five minutes, until one brave rifleman chased him off with a barrage of rocks.

Why didn't anyone shoot?

Bob Elwood or Paterson, who was there, said someone knew the goat belonged to a neighbor and requested that they "hold fire."

Standardization Of Equipment May Be Discussed

London, Nov. 14. (CP)— The Conservative Daily Telegraph speculates today in a front-page news story that there is more than coincidence behind the invitation to Field Marshal Sir William Chief of the Imperial General Staff, to visit Ottawa and Washington at the same time that Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, Sir William's predecessor, will be in the United States capital.

The newspaper's military correspondent says it has been suggested that the invitation from the chief of the Canadian General Staff, Lt. Gen. Charles Foulkes stems from a desire to discuss standardization of equipment.

"More likely, the Field Marshal's visits are to be regarded as the culmination of a world tour undertaken with an eye to impending defence cuts," the Telegraph says. Sir William recently returned from Hong Kong, Malaya and other British strategic centres.

British has immediate military commitments in the current cold war and counter ones which would come from mobilization under terms of the Brussels and Atlantic Pacts.

"Field Marshal Slim may take the opportunity to discuss with the Canadian and United States Chief of Staff, and the standing group of the Atlantic Military Committee, ways and means to meet the situation which would be created if Britain were unable to implement undertakings entered into under these two pacts," the Telegraph says.

The newspaper's correspondent is the usually-well-informed Lt.-Gen. H. G. Martin.

Sunday Milk Delivery in Toronto to End

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)—Sunday milk delivery is about to end in Toronto and suburbs.

An agreement providing for six-day delivery and a five-day week week for 3,000 dairy employees in Toronto was announced Friday night by the Toronto Milk Distributors Association. The agreement has been ratified by the Milk Drivers' Union (A.F.L.).

Drivers will make what amounts to a double delivery on Saturdays. As compensation for them, the practice of giving credit will be eliminated, so they will not be delayed by making collections. All deliveries will be on a ticket or cash basis.

Ottawa and Windsor have had six-day-a-week milk delivery for several years. Montreal since September. The system was introduced recently in the Ontario cities of Guelph, Kitchener, Waterloo and Stratford.

J. E. Houck, association secretary-manager, said that a survey of 390 United States cities showed that only two of them have milk deliveries every day. In 274 cities, milk is delivered every second day and in 18 there is a six-day delivery.

Mr. Houck said the dropping of Sunday deliveries was an alternative to raising the retail price of milk, now 19 cents a quart.

Hockey Player Convicted of Manslaughter

Sherbrooke, Que., Nov. 14 — (CP) — Convicted of manslaughter after a five-day trial, hockey player Tony Demers will be sentenced Nov. 22 for fatal beating of his 32-year-old girl friend, Mrs. Anita Robert.

The stocky, dark-haired right-winger — formerly with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League — was originally charged with murder, but a jury took only 10 minutes Saturday to return verdict on the lesser count with a recommendation for clemency.

In his charge to the jury, Mr. Justice Cesaire Gervais suggested that Demers was a "good actor" and tried to impress the jurors.

He said he thought Demers knew what was in the signed statement he gave police after the Coaticook, Que., woman died in a Magog hospital Sept. 16 following a drinking party. Earlier in the trial, Demers claimed he wasn't aware of all the things he told police because he was "emotionally" upset at the time.

No Substantiation

Defence Counsel Paul Emile Bruneau told the jury there was no substantiation for a murder charge without any evidence of premeditation. Throughout the trial, he maintained that Mrs. Robert had fallen from Demers' car during a drive from Coaticook to Magog, and the woman's death resulted from shock.

The 32-year-old hockey player, who last year was voted the "most gentlemanly" in the Quebec Senior League, had testified that Mrs. Robert was upset during the drive because she felt he would "no longer love her after meeting her family." "Her family was poor," he said, "and she always told me they were rich."

Crown Counsel Henri Monty attempted to establish criminal intent on Demers' part in attempting to destroy blood-stained clothing. He charged that Mrs. Robert died as the result of "the frantic action of a man who, repenting his crime, seized upon a chance that the victim might recover by hurrying her to the hospital."

The 600 courtroom spectators applauded when the jury returned the manslaughter verdict.

Shinwell Critical Remarks Passed At Banquet

London, Nov. 14 (CP)—London's ancient City, citadel of Britain's big business, took it on the chin during the weekend.

Antagonism between Socialists and so-called captains of industry, who eye edifice in the square mile of London known as the City, reached a new level of bitterness with a speech by War Minister Emanuel Shinwell.

Speaking Saturday at Gateshead, Durham, Shinwell referred to the annual Lord Mayor's banquet held last Wednesday at Guildhall.

"I attended the banquet as a member of the government — I should not have been invited if I had not been a member of the government," said Shinwell.

"Well, if that was a banquet—perhaps they ladled out the austerity deliberately—give me good old fish and chips wrapped in paper and if it is going to be wrapped up in paper let it be wrapped up in clean news like the Daily Herald . . ."

The Daily Herald is a pro-government newspaper.

Shinwell said that Prime Minister Attlee spoke at the dinner as guest of honor, "I heard sneers and disrespectful remarks, not on the part of everybody present —I would not say that—but on the part of many of them associated with the City of London."

Keenly Flared Open

"When I hear remarks passed about praising the integrity of the City of London, what happened on that occasion is, in my judgment, an ample demonstration of their desire not so much to improve the economic situation as to improve their own situation and to get rid as rapidly as possible of this Labor government."

Ill wind between the government and the City first flared openly after the announcement of sterling devaluation. The trading in shares that followed in the City was described by the government as "obscene plundering."

The Conservative Daily Mail, first newspaper to reply, accused Shinwell of attempting to excite class hatred.

London's Lord Mayor, Sir Frederick Rowland, denied Shinwell's assertions. "It is simply not true that there were sneers and disrespectful remarks," he said.

"In a company of over 800 there may be a few fanatics. But if they did make any remarks, they could not be heard at the head table."

This I Remember

"We entertain the King and Queen"

by Eleanor Roosevelt

Many distinguished guests have stayed at the White House . . . but none caused so much excitement as King George and Queen Elizabeth in 1939!

"There were many difficult moments and many amusing ones", recalls Eleanor Roosevelt. There was the butler with the stop watch who wanted to make sure the King was served exactly 30 seconds ahead of the Queen . . . or the servant who tripped and fell with a loaded tray.

She remembers how she was briefed about the exact furniture to be used in the rooms used by the King and Queen . . . the traditional hot water bottles in the Royal beds, despite the unbearable Washington heat . . . how the comforter on the bed was to be folded . . . how her mother-in-law criticized the President for offering cocktails, instead of tea, to the King.

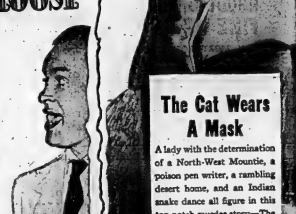
She reveals, too, how the President sought a firm basis of friendship with such notables as Winston Churchill, Mackenzie King and Russian leaders. And she tells it all, in great length and detail this week in "This I Remember", now appearing in The Standard in an EXTRA 8-page rotogravure section.

They Battle Outlaw Fishermen

Federal fisheries officers in fast patrol cutters have been battling an organized ring of lobster poachers for many years off the New Brunswick coast. Maritime Staff Writer Cyril Robinson gives a thrilling eye-witness account of what happens when Federal men tangle with these outlaws — in The Standard Magazine.

FOOTLOOSE in HOLLYWOOD

Staff writer, Gerald Clark, recently spent six weeks in Hollywood . . . and he came back with a notebook crammed full of observations about the so-called glamour of the film capital and its stars. His story will surprise you, and other movie fans. It starts in The Standard Magazine section this week!



The Cat Wears A Mask

A lady with the determination of a North-West Mountie, a poison pen writer, a rambling desert home, and an Indian snake dance all figure in this top-notch murder story—The Standard's Book of the Week — in rotogravure!

Wild Bill Won't Reform

Toronto's "Beloved Assassin", Bill Ezinicki, spent almost 3 hours on hockey penalty benches last season. Ezinicki's body-checking has been no abrupt development. Montreal, Hamilton Advance To Eastern Football Final; Playoff Forced in College Loop

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Second-guessing the Canadian football scene, you can't help wondering at the tiny margin of merit that separates a loser from a winner in the tense playoff atmosphere.

Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tigers turned in inspired triumphs Saturday to advance to the Eastern Canada final, with Calgary Stampeders eager to defend their Grey Cup against the winner. McGill upset Western and forced a sudden-death playoff for the east's intercollegiate crown.

But—looking at the "if"—it might easily have been Ottawa Rough Riders, Sarnia Imperials and Regina's Roughriders in the Grey Cup division, with Queen's still in the title hunt in the intercollegiate.

The final scores weren't as close as their chances. Alouettes won Montreal's first big four title in 18 years by beating back Ottawa 14-13 for a 36-20 round-score triumph. Hamilton Tigers fought a gallant uphill battle to capture their second successive Ontario union crown, wiping out Sarnia's 15-6 first game lead with a 30-3 triumph that gave them the total-points series 36-18.

McGill finished in first place in the intercollegiate union with an 18-10 victory over Western before 18,500 fans at Montreal. The two teams will play off for the title, given up by University of Toronto at Toronto's Varsity Stadium next Saturday.

A costly Draw

The intercollegiate heartbreaker came for Queen's against Varsity before a sell-out crowd at Kingston, Ont. The tricolor won the game 8-6. But that just meant they finished third ahead of Toronto. It emphasizes the costliness of their 18-18 draw the previous Saturday with Western.

A victory in that game would have seen Queen's finish tied for second with Western and the two would have played off for the right to meet McGill. They might have won it — but the tricolor elected to run the ball in the last minute instead of kicking an almost-certain point. They fumbled.

Alouettes had to battle all the way to clinch their eastern Canada final date with Hamilton—a sudden death game at Montreal next Saturday.

Before an Ottawa crowd of nearly 17,000, the Riders at one stage came within three points of overcoming the 22-7 margin Alouettes built in their first game. They might have forged ahead—but they missed a touchdown on the Montreal two-yard line after a 90-yard march.

Riders built up a 7-1 lead in the first half on a touchdown by Steve Karpy, converted by Eric Chapper, plus Howie Turner's single. Bob Cunningham punted Montreal's point.

The Riders rolled their 90-yards downfield on seven successive first downs in the third quarter. Stopped on the one, quarterback Andy Gordon tried a short goal-zone pass. Cunningham batted it down and Montreal was awarded possession on their own 25. The Riders were still good enough to come back for another major when Bill Lewchenko raced an end for 29 yards. Again Chipper converted to leave them three points down.

Filchock Broke Up Game

In the final quarter, Filchock broke up the series with a 10-yard forward to Cunningham, who scooted 55 yards for a touchdown. Ches McCance, who converted it, added insurance with two placements and Fred Kljek won the contest with a rouge.

It was Montreal's first Big Four title since 1931.

Tigers were full value for their sure-footed triumph in raw damp weather before a Hamilton crowd of less than 5,000. But Sarnia might have stayed ahead by a different strategy—if they had played the same wide-open game that won them a 15-6 victory at Sarnia the previous day.

Instead they elected to play it close to the vest. After Dutch Davey punted three singles to increase the Imps series lead to 12 points, it was a case of Tigers slowly forging closer until they went ahead to stay on Jim Caley's 18-yard touchdown in the third quarter.

Before that score, Jackie Stewart scored a touchdown and Joe Caprioli kicked two singles — both on attempted placements — to put Hamilton within two points on the round-score. Vic Spencer plunged for an insurance major in the final quarter.

Tigers chances against Montreal suffered a blow when it was learned playing coach Merle Hapes suffered a shoulder separation in the Sarnia game. He's out for the season. But Spencer, big blonde plunging star from Vancouver, raised their hopes with a sensational plunging exhibition in Hapes' fullback spot.

McGill on Top

McGill finished on top of the Intercollegiate League for the first time since 1938.

Don McFarlane gave Western a 5-1 lead in the second quarter after Rocky Robillard's first-quarter single. But Robillard scored and converted a touchdown to put McGill ahead 7-3 at halftime Shorty Fairhead took Harry Irving's forward for a McGill third-quarter touch which George Arnott got back for Western.

The Redmen pulled ahead in the final frame when Irving tossed another payoff forward to Dave Hackett and Robillard again converted.

Queen's undefeated in the last half of their schedule after losing the first three, looked much better over Varsity. They built up their points on a first-quarter touchdown by Tip Logan who took a sleeper forward from Dave Bryan, plus Al Leonard's convert and single and a last-half safety touch.

Ferry Forced To Suspend Runs

Watertown, N. Y., Nov. 14 (AP) — Winds up to 60 miles an hour lashed the northeastern end of Lake Ontario and the lower St. Lawrence River Sunday.

The strong winds and heavy seas forced the ferry which runs between Morristown, N. Y., and Brockville, Ont., to shut down operations.

Attendants at the Watertown airport here said the wind velocity was recorded at an average of 47 miles an hour with gusts up to 60.

The United States Coast Guard reported heavy seas running but said they had no reports of vessels in trouble.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By Jack Tracy

Montreal, Nov. 14 — (CP) — There's a lot of ways of playing hockey among the experts, even if the results in the end are the same.

Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson finds that true after examining "How We Play Hockey," a technical book by a group of National Hockey League players.

"For instance," says Fergy, "engineer Roy Conacher and Maurice Richard differ on the question of high-speed passing as well as how to dodge a persistent cover. Sid Abel comes up with comment to the effect that it's wrong to regard today's centre as primarily a playmaker.

"Defencemen Quackenbush and Stewart have their own definite views on the effects of body-checking, from the angle of the giver; and goaling has far more science and much less luck than is usually imagined, says Bill Durnan."

Fergy takes Durnan's case as an example. Durnan, Montreal Canadiens' star, goalie, says he was taught the habit of shifting his stick while playing with the Westmoreland church team in Toronto and he owes his N.H.L. career to the old coach, Steve Faulkner.

Most young goalies regard the stick as something to shoot with but Durnan says it should be looked on primarily as something to steer pucks aside into the corner. Even as a stopper of shots it's of doubtful value because it invites too many rapid rebounds.

Old Style

Al (Montreal Herald) Parsley comes up with a lament for the disappearing habit of tagging names on the forward lines of hockey teams. He recalls the Kraut Line of the Bruins, the Kid Line of the Leafs and the Dynamite Line at Boston.

"The custom of pinning nicknames on hockey forward lines in those days," says Al, "added a lot of appeal and novelty to the game, and many fans would, of course, wish to see it revived."

A distant hum and a flashing streak in the outer sky announce another exciting Canadian achievement—a new jet plane designed and built by Canadians—one more example of the meteoric advances made by Canadian skills and manufacturing abilities.
In Canada, too, giant airliners, which have won international recognition, are now being built for the world's air routes of today and tomorrow.
Today our production—both in extent and variety—has attained heights undreamt of even ten years ago, creating new opportunities in every field of activity for the talents and enterprise of young Canadians.
"Countless New Opportunities..."
"I sometimes find it hard to realize the extent and rapidity of my client's growth. It has all been ahead of the Canadian industry in expansion of production in general, which has created countless new opportunities for every embodiment of initiative and energy."

The development of Schl Engineering is a typical Canadian success story. Only 16 years ago, Mr. Schl and his wife, with one assistant, began operating a small machine shop in Kitchener. Its expansion has been spectacular, with three times of production added, new departments established and new plants built. Today the company, with 90 employees, is fast becoming one of the leading metal producing concerns in the country.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

The Ontario Minor Hockey Association Rules Forum here last night when coaches, managers, referees etc. of local minor hockeydom gather at the Kiwanis Centre. The Forum will get under way at 8 o'clock. It is being held under the chairmanship of Sam Curry, OMHA executive member of Tweed, with "Squnk" Morrison of Oshawa here to the role of chief instructor, Secretary Jack L. Christie, of Toronto is also expected to be on hand. The Rules Forum has been held in various parts of the province during the past two weeks and has been meeting with tremendous success. Fifteen meetings in all are programmed. It will be well worth the while of those interested in minor hockey, or for any type as far as that is concerned to attend tonight's conclave. There will be a lot of useful information passed around — and after all, we can always learn something new.

The undefeated Northern Electric hockey team swings into its third game of the District Hockey League here tomorrow night when it takes on the hard-fighting C. R. D. team from Trenton. Northern received a jolt last Thursday night when the high-stepping Junior Rockets, pre-game underdogs by heavy odds, threw them back on their heels and were edged by a 5-1 score. Northern, however, are not taking any chances tomorrow night, and with J. D. Improving by leaps and bounds the tilt should be worth seeing.

Rockets, too, are victory-hungry and will go all out in their attempt to snatch a win in the first game of the twin bill at the expense of Trenton Flyers. The kids surprised even their most ardent supporters by the improvement of their game, and conditions in the final tussle tomorrow night's doubleer with the high-stepping Flyers should be productive of some neat pastiming.

Montreal Takes Over Second Place; Boston Bruins Win First Game in Nine Starts

By VIC MORRIS, JR.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Big Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens has proven again that he's just about the "hottest" goalie ever to don pads in the National Hockey League.

The big, six-foot amblidextrous Durnan, who has captured the Vezina Trophy hockey's highest award for netminders—five times during the six seasons he has played in the National Hockey League stopped the high-scoring Chicago Black Hawks dead in their tracks Sunday night.

Canadiens battled to a scoreless tie with the fourth-place Hawks.

At the other end of the ice Frankie (Mr. Zero) Brimsek came through with his best performance of the season to capture his second shutout, Durnan, who has three goose-eggs, was called upon to stop 26 shots while Brimsek handled 22.

Saturday night at New York Canadiens came from behind a two-goal deficit to defeat the fifth place Rangers 5-3.

Walter (Turk) Broda was handed his second shutout of the season, Saturday night as Toronto Maple Leafs practically walloped to a 4-0 victory over Black Hawks before a capacity crowd of 13,048.

The league-leading Detroit Red Wings Saturday pinned a 7-5 defeat on Boston Bruins before 11,-113 customers.

But Bruins bounced back Sunday to trip Maple Leafs 4-2 after overcoming a first period 2-0 deficit.

Disputed Goal

At New York Sunday a disputed goal by Don Raleigh midway through the third period enabled Rangers to come from behind and tie Red Wings 1-1.

Montreal Canadiens gained their victory over Rangers in the last four minutes of play on goals by Norm Dussault and Ken Mosdell. Montreal came from behind in the second period to tie the count at 2-2 and all but skated the hankies flangers off their feet in the third period with a three-goal rally. Rip Rimoelle scored two of Canadiens goals while Maurice Richard rapped home his 17th of the season in 11 games. Bill Juckes, Frankie Eddols and Pentti Lund were the New York snipers.

George Gee and Doug Howe with two goals each led the Detroit assault against Boston. Ted Lindsay, Jerry Couture and Jimmy Peters notched the other. Dave Creighton tallied twice for Bruins while Ken Smith, Jack Crawford and Pete Horeck notched the other Boston counters.

Kennedy Big Gun

Ted Kennedy was the big gun for Leafs as they blanked Hawks Kennedy hit the mark twice and Fleming Mackell and Bob Dawes connieted the scoring. Broda had a fairly easy night in picking up his goose-egg, halting 26 shots to Brimsek's 24.

But Leafs were unable to halt the victory hungry Bruins Sunday night. Boston spotted Leafs two goals in the first four minutes and then took over command for the remaining 56 minutes. Bill Ezinicki and Ray Timgren notched for the Leafs goals. Then, impressive style, rookie Phil Maloney and Johnny Peirson pulled the Bruins into a tie. Dave Creighton broke the deadlock early in the middle session and Woody Dumart clinched the contest in the final period.

A crowd of 14,442 New Yorkers watched Rangers, winless in their last seven games take bruising punishment for two periods before they put on a blazing show in the third period to eke out a dead-tight, 5-4 decision. Red Sullivan's marker while Raleigh rapped home New York's equalizer.

Saints Wallop Omaha by 8-1

(By The Associated Press)

Saint Paul Saints, leaders of the United States Hockey League, finally have broken their habit of winning games by a single goal

They walloped Omaha Lancers 8-1. Of their seven victories this season, that was the first gained by more than one marker.

Joe Levandowski hit two goals for St. Paul. One major and two misconduct penalties were among 14 called in the rough game. At one point in the third period they were three St. Paul men and two Omaha players in the penalty box.

Minneapolis stayed within a point of St. Paul in the standings by bouncing Kansas City 8-3 last night. The score was 2-2 at the end of two periods, then the Millers cut loose with five goals in the last session.

Three of the Minneapolis tallies in that flurry were solo affairs by George Agar, Walter Hergesheimer and Billy Warwick.

In Saturday games St. Paul edged Minneapolis 4-3, while Tulsa beat Louisville 7-3, and Omaha defeated Kansas City 4-1.

Primeau, Apps Showing Prowess In Coaching Jobs

(By The Canadian Press)

Two former National Hockey League stars—Joe Primeau and Syl Apps—are coaching on their hockey prowess with devastating effect as coaches in the Ontario Hockey Association.

Primeau and Appa, who both starred in their professional hockey years with Toronto Maple Leafs, now are guiding the Leaf farm clubs—Toronto Marlboros Seniors, and Juniors—in a comfortable first-place slot in their respective leagues.

Primeau, a product of Lindsay, Ont., has coached his seniors to nine victories and two ties in 12 games while Apps, from Paris, Ont., has guided the juniors to 10 wins and one tie against but one loss in 12 starts.

The seniors were idle this week, but Bobby Apps' charges made no mistake as they defeated the last-place Hartford Knoblers 4-2 and took a six-point lead over the second-place St. Catharines Tecumsehs.

In three other junior games, the Teepees edged out Oshawa Generals 7-6, Windsor Spitfires moved into a four-place tie by beating Galt Black Hawks 7-4 and Toronto St. Michael's College gained a 4-3 win over Guelph Biltmores.

In the only senior game, the third-place Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen trounced the second-place Owen Sound Mercurys 7-3 in Owen Sound.

Demonstrated Ability

At Toronto, the Marlies demonstrated why they are in first place. Although Stratford threatened on several occasions the Marlies broke up the drives and then carried play onto enemy territory.

Clever playmaker, George Armstrong a former Stratford forward, picked up three assists in the game, while Ron Stuart took goal-scoring honors with two goals. Other tallies went to George Aiken and Larry Regan. Gerry Williams and Dinny Flanagan were the Stratford marksmen.

In the other game, Bob Sabourin and William Marshall paced the Irish with two goals. Guelph scores were chalked up by Andy Bathgate with two and Joe Shaw with the other.

Guelph jumped into an early lead in the first period, but goals by Sabourin and Marshall put the Majors ahead 3-1. Then the Biltmores tied up the game on a goal by Bathgate. Toronto went ahead minutes later when Marshall tallied and Sabourin followed up with his second of the game. Bathgate got Guelph's last goal with a minute left in the game.

At Galt, the Spitfires moved into a tie with St. Michael's and St. Catharines, with the victory. Eddie Sankiewicz led the Spitfires with three goals while Erwin Grosse, John Bailey, Earl Riebel and Ross Johnstone each got singles. George Ford tallied two goals for the losers. Bruce Sims and John Godfrey got the others.

O'Brien Scores Four

At Oshawa, Obie O'Brien came up with four timely goals to lead his Teepees to victory. Other St. Catharines scorers were Tom Buck, Jack McIntyre and Bill Alfoft. Marcel Clements paced the Generals with three goals in the losing cause. The others went to Louis Jankowski, Ed O'Connor and Frank Hooper.

The Dutchmen, holding a 3-2 edge at the midway mark of the second period, took advantage of a penalty to Owen Sound and rapped home three goals to settle the issue. Their second marker came in the last period.

Art Hurst garnered two goals for the winners while Bill Walsh, Ted Grasser Mike Dulra and Bobby Bauer picked up singles. Tony Bukcheski and Jack Ingoldsby were the Owen Sound marksmen.

Fleet Mickey Roth of Kitchener had to be carried from the ice in the third period when he was accidentally hit on the head by Pat McEnery's stick.

No games are scheduled tonight. Tomorrow night three junior games and two senior tilts are carded.

In the junior loop its St. Michael's at Marlboros, Oshawa at Galt and Stratford at St. Catharines. In the senior league the Dutchmen play Hamilton Tigers and the Dukes meet the Mercurys.

Providence Reds Top E. Division For First Time

(By The Canadian Press)

It took Providence Reds about two weeks to get started but today would seem that last year's American Hockey League champions are rolling again.

The Reds find themselves atop the league's eastern division today for the first time this season as the result of a 4-1 victory over Pittsburgh Hornets Saturday and a 5-3 verdict against Cincinnati Mohawks Sunday.

The double weekend victory enabled them to take a one point lead over New Haven Ramblers and Buffalo Bisons who now are deadlocked for second place.

Meanwhile in the league's western section Cleveland Barons made it six in a row with a pair of wins against Buffalo and New Haven.

The Bisons fell victims to goalie Johnny Bower Saturday by a 5-0 count. It was his first shut-out of the year. The Ramblers went down 3-2.

The Barons now lead the runners-up St. Louis Flyers by six points.

It was a dismal weekend for New Haven who dropped a 4-3 decision to the lowly Hershey Bears in addition to their defeat by Cleveland.

The Bisons didn't fare quite as badly as they whipped Pittsburgh 4-2 Sunday after their shut-out loss to the Barons.

Indianapolis Capitals also split their weekend encounters. The Caps were edged 3-2 by St. Louis Saturday but snapped their five game losing streak Sunday with a 4-2 victory over Hershey.

In the only other game, Springfield Indians smothered the western division cellar-dwelling Cincinnati Mohawks 4-1.

Science Invades Gridiron With Talking Football

Los Angeles, Nov. 14 — (CP)— Science has invaded the gridiron with a talking football, of all things.

All you do is fill the pigskin with ammonium gas, install a transmitter under the coach's overcoat and your quarterback becomes more of a robot than he is already.

This monster is the work of Dr. W. D. Hershberger, atomic engineer at the University of California at Los Angeles.

It enables the coach to maintain continuous communication with the ball handler — without the benefit of wires or the free substitution rule. Worse, the rule book doesn't cope with the situation.

Hershberger says the gadget works via the absorption of microwave radio signals by the ammonia molecules. An earpiece filled with the gas may be placed in the quarterback's helmet. Better yet, simply pump the gas into the football.

Then, when the ball carrier fades back to pitch one, he hears his coach scream:

"Szalubrity, you idiot! Run through that hole at right tackle!"

—The tringuing system wouldn't get far in Canadian football—unless the coach pulled it under cover. Ralph Adams, veteran Toronto official, pointed out the rule book specifically says: "Coaching from the sidelines is prohibited in the rules because it is considered unfair practice."

Wildcats Leave For Vancouver To Defend Title

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Wildcats will leave tonight for Vancouver to defend their Canadian junior football championship against Vancouver Blue Bombers there next Saturday. The official green light for the trip was received by club officials Sunday night. It was announced that 35 players and officials will make the trip. Wildcats won the Eastern Canada junior title by defeating Montreal Notre Dame de Grace 31-0 in a sudden death playoff. Bombers beat Saskatoon Hilltops 16-13 in the Western Canada final.

Wildcats have a remarkable record over the season. Unbeaten, they amassed a total of 368 points while having only 38 scored against them.

Tanforan's horse race meeting will continue with a $2,000 minimum purse. The track owners and spokesmen for the California Thoroughbred owners and the Jockey's Guild reached that agreement, Saturday. The track wanted to cut the minimum purse to $1,700 and horse owners and jockeys protested.

Wanders, Toronto's new rugger club, qualified for the McTier Cup final played Saturday when they battled to an 8-5 win over McGill University at Montreal. The cup is awarded to the best club team in Eastern Canada. The Wanderers now are scheduled to play St. Francis Xavier University of Antigonish, N.S., at Sydney, N.S., next Saturday. But the problem of financing the trip has cropped up. Cost of travelling to Sydney would be approximately $2,500. If Wanderers can't make the trip, McGill will take their place by default.

Cyril Hanover, owned by the Fahl Stock Farms of Sherbrooke, Que., Saturday took top honors in the featured open pace A class as the Winter Harness Racing season at Toronto got under way. Driven by jockey Ivan Fraits, Cyril Hanover placed first in the initial heat by covering the mile route in 2.17 4-5 and then came second to director of the Morry MacDonald Stables, Detroit, in the second heat.

The touring Hull Volants whipped Amsterdam (The Netherlands) Ivycoeds 12-3 Saturday night in the first game of their continental hockey schedule. A near capacity crowd watched the Canadian club use their superior speed to advantage in piling up the big score. The Volants led 5-0 at the end of the first period and increased the margin to 9-1 in the second. Fast stepping Marcel Legris led the Hull attack with four goals.

D. J. Higgins and L. F. Warby were indefinitely suspended Saturday by the Illinois Racing Board, in the Misty Eight doping case. Misty Eight, owned by Higgins and trained by Warby, won the sixth race at Sportsman's Park last Wednesday and paid $43.40. A urinalysis showed the presence of procaine, a drug used to "freeze" legs of horses.

Twenty one year old apprentice jockey Nicholas Restivo of Brooklyn, N.Y., pleaded innocent Saturday to a charge of attempted malicious interference with horse entered in Friday's third race at Rockingham Park, Salem, N.H. Unable to raise $2,500 bail, Restivo was taken to jail to await a hearing next Friday.

Ezzard Charles, heavyweight boxing champion, and his manager, Jake Mintz, laughed Saturday over the "firing" of Mintz by two Cincinnati men.

"Jake is the only manager I'll ever be boxing for," Charles remarked, adding that he signed a managerial contract with Mintz last August 5.

The two Cincinnati men, Charles Dyer and Gene Klaus, claiming to be Charles' co-managers, said they fired Mintz because he was usurping the powers of the managers.

Jerry the First clipped a full second off the track record Saturday in outstaying 12 others to win the $50,000-added Golden West pace at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif. With his co-owner, Eddie Cobb, in the sulky, the five-year old chestnut stallion got up in the final strides and outlasted the hard-charging Brother Harmony who finished second ahead of Gratian Makiva.

Jerry the First paced the 1¼ miles in 2.31 and collected $25,000 for its owners. He returned $8.20, $4.00 and $3.40 in the mutuels.

Ray (Sugar) Robinson, world welterweight champ, knocked out Vera Lester of San Francisco in the fifth round of their scheduled 10-round non-title bout at the Colliseum arena at New Orleans Sunday.

Centre Eddie Sandford of Boston Bruins was operated on Sunday night in Somerville Hospital, Boston, after he suffered a severed achilles tendon in the Bruins-Toronto National Hockey League game. The 21-year-old pivot man will be out at least until February. Dr. Thomas Kelly, team physician said. Sandford was hurt in the opening period when he collided with Bill Barilko in centre ice.

4 H	Pass	Pass	5 D
5 H	S Pass	Pass	Pass
6 S	Pass	7 S	Pass
Pass	Pass	7 H	Dbl.

The order in which east bid his three suits asked west did the choice. By bidding the lower rank before either higher rank, it told west his clubs were longer. This he showed five, four, four.

Considering this, the west five spade bid was not unreasonable. The manner of the east showing was an urgent request for west to pick the suit that would be best for their pair. This west did.

Nor was the east six spade bid as unreasonable as it may seem. Lacking any ace, east decided that he would be defeated. But it is a worthwhile sacrifice if south can make slam.

The six heart bid by south was not based on logic. It was pure cussedness. And over six spades, the seven heart bid was also not good bridge. It was downright pigheadedness.

What south and north should have done was double five spades or six spades. This they knew could be defeated without question.

Having said my say about the bidding, what does that make me? West let a club and south made a grand slam. Could you?

Movie Column

(By BOB THOMAS)

Hollywood, Nov. 14 — (AP)— This may be news to you, but Jeanne Crain claims that the important item for movie success is brains, not beauty.

Miss Crain, who has a good share of both, begs to correct the notion that all you need to be a movie star is a handsome kisser and a classy shape.

"I admit beauty will make it easier," she admitted on the "cheaper by the dozen" set. "An actress with a pretty face has a better chance of being noticed than one without it.

"But if a beautiful girl lacks the personality and talent to go with her looks, she will soon find herself out in the cold.

Beauty Not Enough

"People soon tire of looking at just a pretty face. The really attractive women who remain in the public favor for years aren't necessarily beautiful women. They have a certain individuality which makes them charming and attractive.

"The great ladies of the screen are universally considered to be beauties. They really aren't at all. Joan Crawford, for example, is the first to admit that she isn't a beauty. Yet she has been considered one for years—because of her personality."

Crawford Advice

Speaking of Joan Crawford brings to some addicts, the film veteran handed out to newcomers some advice. Especially to ladies out advice it's well to listen.

"The screen welcomes newcomers," she said in a confidential tone. "The studios want new faces. In fact, they'll be easier for an unknown to become a star than it was 15 years ago.

"But it is also harder. The cost of movie making has gone up. Producers must make pictures as quickly and economically as possible. They look for dependable people to work with.

"If a newcomer doesn't prove himself to be fast co-operative and dependable, he'll find himself not called upon for another job."

Probe Methods Used to Sign Young Players

Toronto, Nov. 14 — (CP) — An inquiry is being sought into methods used to sign Jimmy Shore's Springfield Hockey Club of the American Hockey League in signing Eddie Crouch of Toronto.

The request for an investigation originated with the Canadian Hockey Association and is being asked through the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to the A. H. L.

An A. H. A. sub-committee Sunday night decided to press the inquiry at conference hearing from Eddie Crouch of Toronto, a goalie suspended Nov. 1 by the C. A. H. A. upon request of Shore, who claimed Crouch had signed with Springfield as an "A" form Crouch is said to have signed with Springfield. Crouch appealed the suspension.

Present at the committee meeting was Carl Voss, representing N. L. president, who sat in at the invitation of J. J. McFadyen of Galt, O. H. A. head.

Crouch told the O. H. A. committee, consisting of McFadyen, George Dudley, W. A. Hewitt, George Foster and Dinty Moore, that an "A" form he said he signed while at the Springfield training camp last year was presented to him as "a form of insurance" to protect him from injury during workouts.

Attended Two Workouts

He said the tryout camp was held only four days, that he attended two workouts and was excused by Shore from the last two. Later, he said, he signed a "C" form with Springfield and received $100.

"I wish I hadn't," Crouch said Sunday, "But I wanted to play hockey and nothing was being done about my suspension. Hap Emms' (Barrie Flyers coach) talked to Shore, but told me the only way Shore would lift my suspension would be for me to sign a 'C' form. I was told that if I signed it in time, I would play (for Barrie) against Windsor Nov. 2. I signed. But I still haven't been reinstated."

Crouch Sunday turned over to George Foster, O. H. A. assistant secretary, the $100 he said he got for signing the "C" form. Panter will hold the money until the investigation is completed.

Belleville C.I. Seniors Win But Lose Round to Peterborough; Juniors Lose to Peterborough Kids

(By DON ROSE)

Belleville junior gridironer's bowed it a much larger and heavier Peterborough junior team in the first of the doubleheader of C.O.S.S. championship games at Nichol Memorial Park in Peterboro on Friday. In the second game B.C.I.'s Seniors took the senior Petes (11-8) in the second of a "two games—points to count series." This was a real win but was not sufficient enough to take the semi-finals as Peterborough had won by seven points in the first game. If ever high school spirit was exhibited at an interschool game then Friday was the time Peterborough also challenged Belleville to a cheering bout in the stands and the results were terrific. Referee G. Young, Ump. D. Duncan and Headlines man J. McMabb had their hands full with the ruling of the games because feeling was running high and a championship was at stake. All in all a real day of good sport was the net result, the opinions of the spectators were very divided. It was one of the best played games of senior high school rugby ever played in this district", Belleville was robbed of the series by the officials" and "Peterborough were very lucky in winning by only four points. But what's four points among friends" were a few of the outspoken opinions.

School Spirit Yes

At nine-thirty in front of the school four bus loads of faithful B.C.I. ers set off for Peterborough. School songs, spicy yells and cheers filled the air on the trip up, plus the rattles, horns and other noisy makers (definitely not forgetting the females). The first game, started at one o'clock with a cold breeze blowing over the stands, but these kids seemed warm enough for they really gave out with the voice. Very honorable mention should be given the cheer leaders who were very active in their delicate uniforms in spite of the cold. The rooters really set an example of what Belleville's spirit is like and conducted themselves in a very orderly manner.

Juniors, Peterborough 32, BCI 6

The B.C.I. juniors, undefeated in the Bay of Quinte district met with their first defeat in "the sudden death game," but should definitely not feel put out as the Peterborough line average 170 pounds, to their 130 pound line. In spite of the score McKay, Soules, Barclay and Lewis were outstanding for the Collegiate. Mr. Townsend deserves credit for coaching and managing the team and taking them as far as they went this year. The score at quarter was 7-4, at half 17-0, at three quarter 27-0 and final. Our boys played hard all the way and were real sports about losing. Congratulations B.C.I. Juniors, Belleville should be proud of you.

Senior 11, Peterborough 8.

The senior game was decidedly different as Peterborough bowed to Belleville for the first time in a number of years.

Peterborough kicked to the Collegiate. In the opening and light ball followed for the remainder of the game, Peterborough came close to making major scores but were close for each time did nothing but play hard and lucky good a spirit in the playing team. First quarter was scoreless.

The second quarter was another of real tight playing but the ball managed to kick for two singles, 2-0.

The third quarter proved more interesting to the Belleville spectators for J. Burley on a middle kick scored a Belleville first major. There was no convert point made. Fumbles and interception of forwards followed but no further score was credited, 5-2.

Peterborough opened the fourth quarter came through with a major on a buck and successfully converted. The kick-off was played followed and the stands went wild when L. Faulkner was on the receiving end of a long pass from Dowsett for a badly-needed touchdown with only two minutes of play remaining. Buchanan kicked for a counting convert 11-8. Tension again took over, use slip by Peterborough meant the game and the C.O.S.S.A championship. Our locals played hard but were nevertheless no more scoring was made, Belleville won the game but unfortunately lose the right to play

Calgary Stamps Leave Thursday To Defend Title

Calgary, Nov. 14—(CP)—Calgary Stampeders will leave for Toronto Thursday night to repeat the same workouting training in eastern Canada that helped cap their Grey Cup quest with success last football season.

Coach Les Lear's Stampeders predict, announced Sunday night the team will arrive in Toronto Sunday morning. They will pitch camp again at Appleby College in Oakville, 20 miles west of Toronto, where they tapered off the training last season that helped upset Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7, Dec. 4, for the Canadian title defending their Dominion crown at Toronto, Nov. 28, against either Montreal Alouettes or Hamilton Tigers, who meet for the eastern Canada title in Montreal Sunday Nov. 20

Coach Les Lear said he is taking the same setup that won the western Canada championship over Edmonton Eskimos here by a two-game score of 22-21.

All the United States imports with the Stamps will see action. They are quarterback Keith Spaith, end Under Strode and Ezzrell (Sugarfood) Anderson, tackle Bobby Marlow and guard Riley (Rattler) Matheson.

Spaith Is Star

Spaith is the Stamps' triple threat offensive star. In his two seasons here the 195-pound quarterback won the Jeff Nicklin Trophy both times as the most valuable player to his team in the league. Before joining Stamps he played two years with the professional Honolulu Warriors.

Strode and Anderson also are second-year men. A former pro Los Angeles Ram, 223-pound Strode uses his six feet four-inches to advantage as a pass-catcher par excellence. Anulree 28 and 227 pounds, came with Spaith from Honolulu Warriors.

Sunarfoot Anderson, six foot four inch end and like Strode a Negro, was All-American end in 1938 and 1939 while at Kentucky State College. He played pro football on the Pacific coast for five years, the last three with San Francisco 49'ers.

Matheson, 31, also was with the 49'ers last year and member of the Los Angeles Dons previous to vious seasons. He was named to the U.S. National Professional Football League All-Star team for five straight years.

Toronto. Mr. Townsend was proud of his boys and they are proud to work under him as B.C.I'ers. This ended the rugby season for this year which has been quite successful.

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)—It was a trifle startling to hear that Brooklyn Dodgers, baseball's biggest farm operations, had topped five clubs off their minor-league total. But Mickey Mc-Cormick, who knows about such things, has a ready explanation: "Our scouts have concentrated on championship teams. Last year the material was spread a little too thin. Some clubs were slipping into the second division."

Brooklyn's farm system, besides being bigger than any other, is unique in many respects...the top teams, Montreal, St. Paul and Forth Worth, are money-makers and can absorb the losses further down the list...each team has more veterans and good minor leaguers who won't go higher than it has big league prospects ...they are steadying influences and as teachers...So when the kids finally are ready, they're ready to play on championship teams at Brooklyn—or get sold to other clubs when they're sold to other clubs.

Little Benny's Note Book

Today in school Miss Kitty was telling us about fables, saying a Fables deel with imaginerry incidents in the life of animals, but every fable has an instructive moral for human beings, in other werds a useful lesson to help us in our daily life. Now for instants there is the famous fable of the fox and the grapes. The grapes hung high on the vine, out of the fox's reach, and after jumping and pumping for them without success, the fox walked away disklusted, remarking that the grapes.. were sour and not fit to eat. Now who can tell us the moral of that fable?

Miss Kitty said.

Which Sam Pollard waved and said, The moral is, whatever goes up must come down.

I'd hardly call that very instructive or helpful as a guide to good living, Miss Kitty said. The moral is, it is wise to distrust the motives of people who are unduly given to criticizing. Now we'll try once more. We'll take the fable of the ox who came to drink at the frog pond, and some of the frogs boasted loudly that he was just as big as the ox. Of course the other frogs all laffed, so the vain little frog tried to make his boast good by puffing and puffing till he swelled to sutch a size that he burst and exploded. Now who knows the moral? Well, Arthur? she said.

Meaning Artie Bromfield way-log, and Artie said, The moral is, it's better to save than be extravagant, because if the frog had saved his breth, wouldn't of happened.

Oh dear, the moral is to always be satisfied with our natural lot in life, and I wish this class would be a little more helpful in making me satisfied with mine, Kitty said.

Being sourcastic.

One-Third Of U.S. Families, Individuals Earned Less Than $2,000 in 1948

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Nov. 14 — (CP) — One-third of all the families and individuals in the United States received incomes of less than $2,000 in 1948, a congressional committee was told during the weekend.

The totals were disclosed in a report drafted by the staff of a joint congressional sub-committee on low-income families in preparation for public hearings next month on the general subject of low-income families and their relation to economic stability.

The report showed:

1. There were 9,000,000 families and 2,200,000 single individuals with incomes under $2,000 last year. These constituted one-third of all families and individuals in the United States. The family groups represented $2,000,000 persons and included one-fifth of the country's children.

2. Some 8,000,000 of the families and individuals dealt with received incomes of less than $1,000.

3. Of the 9,900,000 low-income families, 6,300,000 were in cities and 3,300,000 on farms.

Lack of Education Main Factor

4. Lack of education generally was one of the most important factors responsible for low income.

The report suggested that "not all the families and certainly not all of the individuals having incomes under $2,000 can be considered as being in financial distress."

"Many farm families could have got along quite comfortably on $2,000 cash income, whereas a family living in a high-cost city like Washington, D.C., nor New York, and having the same income might have felt the pinch severely."

The report noted that the U.S. Bureau of Labor estimated that in 1947 the minimum budget necessary for a family of four persons to maintain an adequate standard of living ranged from a low of $3,004 a year in New Orleans to a high of $3,435 in Washington, in 34 cities studied.

No Prescription for Improvement

Those who prepared the report emphasized that they endorsed "no prescription" for improving the lot of low-income groups. That was for the sub-committee to decide after hearings.

The report said "some low-income families live at levels below even the most conservative estimate of the minimum necessary for health and decency.

It was found that "non-white families" made up a significant group of the low-income families Of the non-farm families with incomes below $2,000, about 800,000—or one-eighth—were headed by non-white men.

"This proportion of non-whites in the low-income group is considerably greater than the proportion of non-whites in the general population," said the report, "and indicates that broadening educational and vocational opportunities for the Negro may be a constructive method of attacking the low-income problem."

Few people can kill it singlehanded!

THIS IS THE PUT-OFF BIRD.

He usually appears just when you're deciding to do something that should be done without delay. Then he tries to talk you out of it.

When you're planning a trip, he'll tell you not to bother making reservations. Or when you have a slight toothache, he'll say: "Don't worry, pal — it'll soon go away. Besides, you're too busy to go to the dentist today!"

Oh, he's a sly one, this Put-Off Bird! And such a trouble-maker that he even tries to get fathers to neglect their family's financial security. But fortunately a deadly enemy of this bird often appears at such critical moments — and saves the day.

This enemy of the bird — and friend of fathers — is the life insurance representative. Aiming a few realistic facts at the mischievous creature, he kills it deader than its cousin, the Dodo. Its dangerous propagandа is silenced. And always the father then realizes why he should act to protect his family immediately.

Thus the life insurance representative helps prevent countless people from having to depend on charity or relatives for their support in years to come.

Life underwriters help people in other ways, too. They are trained to analyze all the facts related to the family's future needs . . . then build a sound life insurance plan that meets those needs exactly.

More than a million Canadian families have benefited by the services of the modern life underwriter. And he's always glad to help you!

'Doctor 2108' Will Give Addresses In U.S. on Britain's Health Service

Tunbridge Wells, Nov. 14. — (AP)—"Doctor 2108," who revolted against methods of diagnosis and treatment under Britain's health service, announces today, he has accepted an invitation to tell the Missouri Medical Association about socialized medicine.

Dr. E. F. St. John Lyburn yesterday substituted his health service number for his name on the shingle outside his office and quit the organization under which Britain's program of socialized medicine administered.

"The invitation was given in the ventures of a trans-Atlantic telephone call that got me out of bed at 8 o'clock this morning," Dr. Lyburn said. "I first thought it was a patient with a pain.

"The man calling, and seemingly a good many persons in America, are intensely interested in the operation of our health scheme and I was urged to come over right away—today—to deliver some lectures.

"I can't get just like that, but I agreed to make the trip to Missouri next January.

"Because of a hum in the phone I didn't get my caller's name, but he told me he is writing details. He offered to pay the travelling expenses for me and my wife, and I told him I would be overjoyed.

"America, now thinking about adopting some form of socialized medicine, needs to be told how to avoid some of the horrible mistakes we made."

Dr. Lyburn, vigorous, outspoken man of 42, believes the crying need in all lands is the establishment of diagnostic clinics.

Dr. Lyburn decided to break away from the British health service after seeing a document-ary film extolling methods of diagnosis and treatment in Britain.

"I revolt against the antiquerian methods of medicine as practised in this country," he said in his statement yesterday.

He said the British system, under which physicians and hospitals' fees are paid by the government, had made overworked doctors superficial and has wasted millions of pounds on useless pills and bottles of medicine.

There was a tragic waste of money and time, he insisted, because inadequate and, incorrect diagnosis. The weakness could be corrected, he said, by setting up a sufficient number of capably administered national diagnostic clinics.

Dr. Lyburn has been at odds with the Ministry of Health and its administration of the health scheme for a long time. He said he was the first doctor in England to join the service. But when he found himself being "messed up" in bureaucracy he took his name plate from his surgery and substituted the term: "Dr. 2108." It was the number by which he was identified in the health service.

Bull and Four Tiny Heifers Shown at Fair

Toronto, Nov. 14—(CP) — A giant-size bull and four tiny heifers—born on a ranch in the environs of a mysterious lost canyon—will be on display at the Royal Winter Fair which opens here tomorrow.

The cattle, owned by a North Dakota rancher, were the subject of a sensational hoax. The rancher, who operates a sideshow on the side, announced he found the tiny cattle in a lost canyon. He later turned out he bought them from a Montana breeder who specializes in dwarf cattle.

They weigh only between 160 and 210 pounds and stand about 28 inches in height—small enough to fit under a card table. All five, however, are fully developed Hereford cattle.

The pygmies will provide a freak contrast with the more than 2,000 blue-blooded beef and dairy cattle that will vie for ribbons until the Fair ends Nov. 23. In all, six-thousand animals from guinea pigs to Belgian stallions—have been entered for competition.

Lowing of cattle and snorting of swine will mingle with the squawking and whistling of more than 8,000 birds in the Coliseum building at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds. To offset some of the less agreeable characteristics of the swine are more than 19,000 roses and chrysanthemums.

Open to U.S. Exhibitors

Entries have been received from all the Canadian provinces except Newfoundland and from 18 of the United States. The Fair offers world championships in six competitions — wheat, barley, rye, oats, potatoes and corn. For the first time all divisions of the seed show are open to United States' entries.

Social event of the fair is the top-hat, mink-coat horse show highlighted by military jumping teams of Canada, Chile, Mexico, and the Republic of Ireland.

Miss Canada IV—and the girl but the speedboat that recently set the North American record—will also be on display at the Fair. Harold Wilson of Ingersoll, owner and driver, will be able to attend the Fair only Nov. 18 but during the rest of the week his mechanic Walter Harvey will be on hand to show visitors the craft's finer points.

Nine Persons Forced Out Of Dwellings

Streetsville, Nov. 14 (CP) — Fire forced nine persons out of their dwellings in night attire early today when a restaurant building was destroyed. A family of four, who lived in the building, fled and roused neighbors in adjoining structures.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Blake and sons Robert, 12, and Gordon, 12, climbed down a ladder left at the rear of the building when the roof was repaired last week.

Volunteer firemen saved the blaze from spreading to adjoining buildings.

REMANDED WEEK

Cobourg, Nov. 14—(CP)—Ralph Kilbon, 58-year-old farmer from nearby Baillieboro, was remanded one week in magistrate's court today on a charge of murdering his invalid wife, Irene, Nov. 1.

Neighbors said Kilbon told them he shot the 54-year-old woman to end her pain after she had shot herself in the abdomen. Police found her body at the couple's breakfast table.

Born in Marquette, Mich., Mr. Payne joined the U.S. foreign service in 1920 as vice-consul and was first posted to Fort William. Other posts to London, Ont., and Sarnia followed and this spring he came here to take over consular duties. He gave up his post a few months ago due to illness.

Says Five Decide If Denture Loser Gets New Free Teeth

London, Nov. 14—(CP) — It takes five people to decide whether a person who loses his false teeth can get a new pair free under the Health Service.

That's what a Conservative Party policy was told by K. Glenny, Essex county councillor.

Glenny said he was asked "in all seriousness" to serve on a five-member dentures replacement committee. Its job would be to decide whether teeth were lost "legitimately," or through carelessness.

He turned the job down.

Safecrackers Open Two Safes, Steal $1,000

Toronto, Nov. 14 (CP)—Safecrackers smashed open two safes at a west-end office during the weekend and stole $1,000. Police said it is believed to be the same gang of experts which blew open the safe at Seagram Distilleries, Ltd., last week and stole $3,000.

A second break-in over the weekend was reported when a west-end lingerie firm was robbed of hundreds of dollars of women's apparel. This is the second large-scale burglary of women's clothing in the last three days. Police believe the same gang is responsible for both.

Better Diagnosis In Heart Cases

San Francisco, Nov. 14 — (AP) — A medical discovery destined to help doctors make better diagnoses of heart diseases was reported Sunday by the University of California researchers. They found that heart murmurs travel through the veins and arteries 100 times slower than the speed of sound. Physicians long had believed that the murmurs travelled at sound speed. The difference can be of great significance in locating heart ailments.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

"Listen to me, Herr Birndl," said Martin, "On the average, taking good weather with bad, I have earned two schillings thirteen groschen a day. There are about forty days of my agreement still to run. Pay me a lump sum in advance of sixty schillings, and we're quits. At the lowest reckoning you will gain more than twenty schillings by it. The weather is good, the glass has gone up again, Herr Birndl.."

"Yes," said Herr Birndl, "and suppose it rained for the forty days, I should be done in. I'll take no risks; that was our agreement."

"Fifty-five schillings for the whole time, Herr Birndl."

"I'm taking no risks; that was the agreement."

"Fifty-three schillings," Martin said weakly, "it's a sheer profit for you."

"Yes and if it rained? I'm taking no risks," he answered Herr Birndl with a bovine stupidity, as he swun his great belly into the office. Martin went away. He wandered despondently to and fro, looking for Anika, Anikuschka, Countess Czerezy. It was not easy to speak to her alone; either she was accompanied by her greyhound friend and pseudo-husband, with his extremely distinguished and gallant air, or else Herr Lyssenhop's spruce iron-gray head was seen at her side, not to speak of all the various Bobbys and Dicks and Freds who paraded their Anglicized names and manners as they danced attendance on Anika at the exclusive Big Potermann. In spite of this Anika now and then escaped by herself to the beach all lay down on the sand beneath a large Japanese sunshade. On these occasions she wore a sort of soubrette costume with taffeta flounces, and bathing shoes with crossed tapes. Never yet had a drop of lake water come near her.

"Here you are, thank the Lord, Anika, my darling Anikuschka, my dear first love," said Martin as he found her there after lunch lazily and very seductively lying at full length on the sand. "I've been looking for you, you must help me, it would be a mere nothing for you"—and then he put the whole situation frankly before her, telling her how he had pawned his dinner jacket and finally asking for a loan of fifty-two schillings.

Anika became excessively grave almost sad. All the dimples vanished from her face. Lost in thought she licked abstractedly the sugar from her lips.

"And so Bulli's in trouble. Poor Bulli," she said as she laid a hand caressingly on his ankle. Martin moved a little away from her. Anika sought every opportunity to touch him and to get close to him—probably without knowing herself that she did so, the little minx. And whenever she did touch him, a glow like warm sand ran down his spine, pleasant, but forbidden. For Martin now belonged to Mary, and was pledged to her body and soul, and it seemed to him a treachery to allow his emotions to be sidetracked. So he drew away, and Anika's hand fell to the ground and begun drawing letters in the sand.

"No . . ." Anika said she could not lend Martin anything, she hadn't three schillings herself in her little bag. To show him she shook it out into her lap, powder-box, pencils and a little crumpled silk handkerchief. When had Anika ever had any money, little vagabond as she always was! Surely Bulli knew that she was a scatterbrain who could never keep money even when she had it?

Poor Bulli sighed, He ground his teeth in a portentous and alarming manner.

"Then get the money from your count. Please, Anikuschka, be a dear and do this for me," he implored her, feeling the ignominy of it in his very soul. He allowed Anika's shoulder to rest against him, and their knees to approach close together, since there was nothing else for it. "Anikuschka help me. It would be nothing for your count to lend me a trifle like that," he begged, and he thought to himself—Cad, sponger, that I am.

"No," Anika replied, sad but obstinate. It was impossible utterly and absolutely impossible. Things weren't as he imagined them. It would not be a trifle for the count either. The count had his money troubles too, oh yes, and everything did not go as smoothly as it ought to do. Life in general was often rather funny and Bulli was not to plague her and give her no peace, otherwise she would bore him terrib . . .

At this she erased drawing letters in the sand and took out her little handkerchief, and Martin drew back in astonishment and alarm. Before he could prevent her, Anika at once horrified and delighted him by kissing his bare arm where the little fair down showed on the tanned skin. In the sand in crazy letters could be read: "I love my Bulli!"

Martin lay down under the planks of the high diving platform, the only spot after lunch that afforded a little shade, and wondered who could lend him the fifty-two schillings. Among men he had only one friend, and that was Mats; the rest stood aloof, if they were not either arrogantly envious or violently jealous. They all had daughters, or fiancees, or wives or girls or some feminine adjunct all of whom were apparently disturbed and endangered by the mere fact of Martin's existence.

Herr Lyssenhop, it is true, sometimes displayed a friendly cordiality. His might clap him on the shoulder and ask: "Well and how goes business? Plenty of customers ?" But this sociability scarcely encouraged Martin to ask for a loan.

A sense of pride that smarted at the idea forbade Martin to have recourse to Bobby or Herr Direktor Wucherpfennig, or others who were attentive to May. He even had a passing notion of Vesi the waitress at the Schwoishacket, a buxom wench who made eyes at him, brought him big helpings and had a well-filled purse attached to her waist. But the thought of borrowing money from the strapping Vesi always hot and in a hurry, was for some obscure reason unwelcome too. There was nothing left for it but to try the Mayreders. Dr. Mayreder looked good-natured and prosperous.

The next morning Martin strolled among the deck chairs and sat down beside Dr. Mayreder.

"Pamperl can now swim without assistance," Martin said by way of a beginning. He flattered himself that he was this time making a skilful and diplomatic approach. "Pamperl can now swim without assistance . . ."

"Yes, that's splendid," Mayreder replied.

"He only needs a little practice in diving and then he will be quite proficient . . ."

"Yes, that's fine. Splendid," said Mayreder.

A pause.

"It wasn't too easy to get Pamperl to swim. Quite a job I had with him," said Martin. "Your wife too has a lot of difficulty with swimming."

"Indeed, you think so?"

"Yes, I do. Altogether it's no joke teaching swimming. It may look it, but it's nothing of the sort.

"No. I suppose not."

"Gives you a devilish appetite, standing on that gangway all day long. No one thinks of that."

"No, to be sure."

"Very poor pay too, very poor Herr Mayreder."

"Indeed? I'm sorry to hear that."

"Very poor and after all it takes some doing, but no one thinks of that . . ."

"Excuse me—pardon me—" said Herr Mayreder, as he looked uneasily round.

Martin drew nearer to the matter in hand. "Puts one in a tight corner very often, but I'm a born optimist, here are always such lots of nice people about, Herr Mayreder. . ."

"Undoubtedly. Of course. But excuse me—auf Wiederse'en!" Herr Mayreder replied, as he hurriedly got up and went away. Martin sat a moment longer on the sand whistling loudly and cheerfully to drown his disappointment. After that he swam the thirty-meter course five times without achieving anything remarkable.

Herr Mayreder meanwhile had an urgent talk with his wife Pauline.

"Pauline," he said to her, "we have quite forgotten to give the swimming instructor a tip, now that Pamperl can swim by herself. We ought to, though. It's very awkward. He's just been giving me the hint now."

"The swimming instructor How do you mean?" asked Frau Mayreder going red. "But you can't give him a tip; it's out of the question. He's a university man, a doctor he would be insulted. He is a man of particularly fine and sensitive feelings. What on earth are you thinking of? A tip, indeed!"

"But I tell you he expects something from us. I know what I'm talking about. He stuttered and stammered and then he hinted at it. It seems he's hard up. He doesn't look very fit, sithar."

"Yes, well, we must find the right way of doing it, some polite attention, something to give him pleasure—but not as if to an inferior, but as between equals."

Europe Must Lower Prices to Compete In U.S. Market

- - Truman

President Sends New Marshall Plan Report to Congress

Washington, Nov. 15. (AP)—President Truman today sent to Congress a Marshall Plan report declaring that Europe must lower its prices to compete in the United States market for the American consumer's dollar.

"The United States, of course, must be willing to accept greater competition from European suppliers in order to help Europe pay its way," he said in a message prepared by the economic co-operation administration.

Even if European sales in the United States were doubled — thus increasing Europe's two-per-cent share of this market—the volume would represent less than one per cent of the total U.S. output and "would only be scratching the surface of the American market," Congress was told.

"The participating countries must intensify their export drive to the dollar areas if they are to attain independence without extraordinary outside assistance," the report said.

"This will require on the part of many European business men a reorientation of their thinking, methods, installation of new and more efficient machinery in order to reduce costs and greater attention to merchandising and advertising. Governments can assist in encouraging to suit American preferences, and a determination to serve American customers with the care and attention they require from American producers."

Barriers To Trade

The report covered ECA operations up to July 1 of this year. It also emphasized the warnings voiced E.C.A. administrator Paul G. Hoffman two weeks ago before the council of Marshall Plan countries in Paris: that recovery is imperiled by import controls and exchange restrictions which act as barriers to trade.

It repeated Hoffman's plea for economic integration of Europe, noting some steps in that direction but declaring that progress "on the whole has been slow."

On the more favorable side the report said:

Industrial production in the Marshall Plan countries reached a new peak in the second-quarter of the year; the farm outlook indicates probable record post-war production; foreign trade expanded well within the direction of the United States; inflation continued to abate.

"Against these improvements, however, must be set the inability of the participating countries to improve their dollar position. Despite the fact that increased exports in the second quarter of 1949 reached a post-war peak, adjustments to the United States declined and the dollar gap widened.

"The problem is to convert their growing national output and increased volume of trade into a reduction of the dollar gap on a basic problem of the participating countries.

Govt. Payments Will be Below Normal Tax

Complicated Formula Given by Abbott in the House of Commons

Ottawa, Nov. 15. (CP)—The outline of the government's long-range plan to make annual payments to municipalities in lieu of taxes was disclosed Monday in the Commons.

Finance Minister Abbott announced a complicated formula for making the payments, which generally will be below the normal tax paid by other ratepayers in the municipality.

Effective next Jan. 1, the formula rules out payments to municipalities where the concentration of federal property is less than three per cent of the total local assessment.

Payments will be made on the basis of 75 per cent of the municipal and school tax—but not the business tax—on all assessments over and above the four per cent, designated for taxation purposes as the "national average."

Payments likely will be made to about 100 municipalities which can meet the requirements, Minister, Mr. Abbott said the grants may cost the government about $5,000,000 a year.

Opposition Raps Govt. During Heated Debate

Anti-Price-Fixing Bill Roughly Treated

Ottawa, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Charges of deliberate law-breaking and suppression of facts with "lame" excuses were hurled at the government Monday as the Commons argued for ½ hours on the principle of a bill to plug loopholes in Canada's anti-price-fixing legislation.

The debate heavily weighted by opposition speakers — 10 took part as against two Liberals — on the government was variously rapped for withholding from the people for 10 months the report of alleged price-fixing in the flour-milling industry.

Opposition forces adjournment by Dec. 3, the Commons for the first time this session added a two-hour morning sitting to the normal three-hour sittings in the afternoon and evening.

But even eight hours wasn't enough to consolidate the opposition attack on the way the government handled the McGregor flour-milling report.

Mr. McGregor recently resigned as combines investigation commissioner. He gave the delay by the government in releasing the report on the flour-milling report as one reason.

The law specifies that combines reports must be made public by the fifth day within the session by the minister. The report was placed in the hands of the government last Dec. 29. It was not made public until last week.

Government Blamed

George Drew, Progressive Conservative ex-premier, said the matter was clearly a case of the government breaking the law.

He said there were indications that the legislation now before the Commons was not all that the government planned to do. Mr. McGregor had suggested the government was considering a complete overhaul of combines legislation at the next session.

In view of this uncertainty, Mr. Drew said, the government had better study and investigation before the house was asked to approve this bill in principle.

Govt. Willing to Assist Provinces in Building More Housing Projects

Ottawa, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Reconstruction Minister Winters said today in the Commons that the provision of serviced land for new housing was among the projects that could be undertaken by the Dominion and the Provinces under new federal legislation.

The Legislation, providing for amendments to the National Housing Act, also would authorize the government to enter into agreements with the provinces for the construction of modest homes for sale and of low-rental or subsidized housing projects.

The federal legislation is enabling in character and most of the provinces will have to pass complementary legislation before any housing agreements are concluded, Mr. Winters said he did not know how many provinces would enter agreements and he could not forecast how much new housing is likely to result from such agreements.

Various Types

There were various types of arrangements which might be undertaken by the Dominion and the provinces, he said. For instance, in certain areas there were no builders and individuals anxious to build houses but who found ways do so because serviced land was not available.

In such areas, the Dominion and the province might buy the land and sell it to the builder at costs on a 75-25 percent basis, the builder would be sold to builders and individuals.

The Dominion and a province might buy and develop a large area and use it for the erection of modest houses for sale. The land might be turned over to private builders who would undertake to build homes and sell them at a price guaranteed by the government.

Mr. Winters, who opened debate on second hearing of the housing bill, said that the federal government alone will produce by approximately half the down payment required of potential home owners. Steps will be taken to increase and facilitate loans to co-operatives undertaking housing projects.

Calls For Committee

Donald Fleming, (PC-Toronto-Eglinton), housing spokesman for the Progressive Conservatives, followed Mr. Winters and called for the establishment of a committee to study the housing problem.

At the outset, Mr. Winters said an estimated 96,000 housing units will be completed this year, the first in which some reduction will be made in the backlog of housing needs. He reported that building costs are levelling off and said an estimated 68,000 new houses will be started this year.

"Complete figures up to the end of August and partial figures during September indicate that 62,500 new housing units were completed in the first nine months of 1949", said Mr. Winters. "This is 9,000 or 24 per cent over the corresponding period of 1948. The type of dwelling unit built follows the pattern of the last quarter of 1948. Approximately 40 per cent units will amount to approximately 92,000. Adding conversions of all kinds for 1949 completions of all kinds for 1949 would be over three thousand, for a total order of 96,000.

"Starts in the first nine months of 1949 were about 71,000, almost the same as in 1948. Units under construction at the end of September, 1949, amount to 85,800, as compared with 74,000 a year ago. Projecting new starts for the balance of the year on the same basis, a total of 96,000 might be expected."

British Govt. Proposes Delay In Steel Nationalization Until After General Election

London, Nov. 15 — (CP) — The government of Britain Monday ward a parliamentary resolution postponing the effective date for nationalization of the iron and steel industry until Oct. 1, 1950 — six months after general which must take place by next July.

A Labor party caucus accepted the resolution without strong protest in the debate in the House of Commons tomorrow.

The resolution was the result of a conference between the full cabinet Monday with the Conservative opposition in the House Lords, which demanded that the voters be allowed to give their verdict first.

The compromise probably has paved the way for an early general election — possibly in early March.

The government postponed the bill's operation by providing that nationalization of the Iron and Steel Corporation will be applied to October next October. The Lords were expected to accept the government resolutions and end their protracted opposition to the bill, which they have fought more fiercely than any other Socialist measure.

Operation Only After Election

The effect will be that the government can make the bill law as soon as it likes — but with operation only after the election provided Labor is returned in 1950.

Under the New Lords Reform Bill, given third and final reading by the Commons Monday night, the Lords will gain new law next February.

By a vote of 340 to 187 the Commons approved the reform bill which cut the Lords' delaying powers from the present proposed legislation from two years to one. The measure automatically becomes law next month.

The steel bill has already been passed once by the Commons and can become law over the Lords' objections if the Lower House approves it again next February, a year after it first was passed.

Danube Control Commission Invalid U.S. Tells Russia And Five Soviet-Bloc States

Washington, Nov. 15.—(CP)—The United States served notice on Russia and five Soviet-bloc states today that it considers invalid their new commission to control shipping on the Danube River.

The commission was set up Nov. 11 at Galatz, Romania, to replace the commission dating back to 1921 which while five western countries were represented.

An American note today said that the new arrangement, coupled with the device of Soviet-controlled joint shipping companies on the river is "clearly designed to enable the Soviet Union to maintain a monopoly of river transportation."

The Soviet-bloc commission, it up was charged violates the peace treaties signed with Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania and "violates the principle of freedom of navigation on international waterways which has been recognized in Europe for more than 130 years."

CHARGED WITH WOUNDING

Toronto, Nov. 15 (CP)—Allen Bright, 32, also known as Allen Sheppard, was charged with wounding Monday night after police said he struck Mrs. Dora Krupa with a jackknife during an argument. Mrs. Krupa was treated for minor wounds to the arm and hip.

Seventy Killed As Train Hurtles Over High Bridge

Crash Occurs in Wilds Of the Upper Transvaal

Pretoria, South Africa, Nov. 15 (AP)—A passenger train hurtled off a bridge today into the Crocodil River 50 feet below, killing at least 70 natives and a European, it was reported here.

Another 100 natives are said to be seriously injured in the crash which occurred at Waterval Boven in the wilds of the Upper Transvaal.

Casualty figures given out later by P. W. Sauer, South African Minister of Transport, and the railroad conflicted.

Sauer said that 64 bodies so far have been recovered, 85 natives were seriously injured and 90 were missing. It was feared that many of the missing had perished.

The railroad in a statement said 70 were killed and one European were killed, and 106 natives were severely injured.

C.P. McTague Heads Board Of Conciliation

Toronto, Nov. 15 — C. P. McTague of Toronto, a former Justice of the Ontario Appeal Court, will head the Board of Conciliation established in connection with the negotiations between Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., and the United Automobile Workers of America (C.I.O.). This was announced today by Labor Minister Mitchell.

Other members of the board are J. Gordon McClelland, Central Ontario Industrial Relations Institute and Drummond Wren, of the Canadian Educational Association.

Mr. Wren will act for the union and Mr. Adams for the company. The date of the meeting has not affected.

Local 200, which represents approximately 11,000 workers, included in its new contract a pension plan that calls for the payment by it of $100 a month to employees on retiring at the age of 65, as well as other social security measures.

The company balked at the plan entered the parties and await a conciliation board's report.

Mussolini, Hitler Were Just 'Pikers'

Toronto, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Senator Robert S. Kerr, Oklahoma oilman, told the Canadian Club Monday that Communism "makes Mussolini look like a muddler and Hitler like a piker." Communist aggression in the Near East, the Far East, the Far East, the explosion of the atom bomb, and unceasing campaigns of propaganda, continuous vetoes in the United Nations Security Council and World War dictators take a back seat by comparison.

2 Brothers Escape Collins Bay 'Pen' Are Recaptured

Men Believed to Have Used Ladder to Make Get-Away

Kingston, Nov. 15. (CP)—Two brothers who escaped from Collin's Bay Penitentiary early this morning were recaptured by provincial officers before 11 a.m. They were seized near Cartier's Hill on the Division Street Road, three miles north of Kingston city.

They did not put up any struggle.

The escapees were Russell John Hobday, 19, Toronto, serving five years for armed robbery and car theft, and Ronald Hobday, 18, Toronto, under sentence of three years for armed robbery. Russell Hobday was sentenced last September, and his brother, last January.

Working in the penitentiary kitchen, they reported for duty at 6:30 a.m. as usual but at seven o'clock their absence was discovered.

A search immediately spread out over the district and all cars on the highways were stopped for inspection.

Wearing White Kitchen Garments

The brothers escaped by the clad in the white garments worn by kitchen help. They were believed to have scaled a wall, under construction on the south side of the penitentiary, which is some distance from the federal penitentiary for Portsmouth. Apparently they left the kitchen and used a ladder to gain the roof from where they crossed the prison yard and went over the wall.

A railway sectionman at Catarraqui reported seeing the convicts on the march when he concentrated in that area.

The Collins Bay penitentiary has about 800 prisoners, being smaller than the Portsmouth penitentiary.

London Fog Blackout Season's Worst

London, Nov. 15 — (CP) —The worst fog blackout of the season, with visibility nil in many parts, hit the London area early today about their business.

In a run November "pea-soupers" buses, trains, automobiles, ships, and aircraft were slowed down or were brought to a halt.

Conductors walked in front of buses and lorry buses, guiding them with flares made from newspapers. Cars followed each other in the parade — nose and some got lost at road junctions.

Suburban commuter trains were delayed more than one hour. Derailments caused suspension of suburban trains on two lines.

All shipping in the Thames Estuary stopped moving at midnight. Channel shipping was also held up.

Visibility was down to 30 yards at London airport and outgoing planes were delayed.

The weather bureau predicted more of the same tonight, but said the blacked area might be somewhat smaller.

Air travelers figured in a series of collisions in murky Liverpool. Eighteen persons were taken to hospital.

At Kirkburn, Yorkshire, an R.A.F. plane was reported to have crashed in the dense fog, killing the pilot.

GANDHI'S SLAYER MAN WHO ADVISED HIM ARE EXECUTED

Hindu Journalists Walk to Death With Smile on Faces

Ambala, India, Nov. 15—(AP) — The young editor who assassinated Mohandas K. Gandhi and the man who told him to do it were spread simultaneously through a gallows trap at the Ambala central jail today. Their bodies were cremated immediately afterward.

Narayan V. Godse and Narayan D. Apte, two Hindu journalists, walked to their death with smiles on their faces. Their shaved heads were painted with sacred marks. Each man carried a small Hindu prayer book and a holy scriptures, which they were allowed to hold as their hands were tied behind them.

A moment before the trap was sprung the two men were shouted in unison "May the unification of Hindustan be brought about by the Holy Motherland."

Those were the Nationalist slogans that had inflamed them to take the life of the sainted Hindu spirit of leader who hated violence so much he tried to end Moslem-Hindu enmity.

A witness to the execution, which ended a two-year legal battle following Gandhi's murder in a New Delhi garden Jan. 30, 1948, said the two men thanked their jailors for their kindness and told them they "finish the business quickly."

Ladies Club or Truckers Gang, Fall Is Oyster Time in Quebec

Quebec, Nov. 15. (CP)— When the fall leaves and the first snow falls in Quebec, it comes the banquets-aux-huitres season.

This oyster-dinner time is right now and nearly all month. Except for the noise traffic makes on Quebec hills, a keen ear might pick up the clatter of these banquets.

Everybody goes to them. They're held in basement dining places on ground floor restaurants; and in upper-story halls. Some are in elaborate establishments that put on massive multi-level feeds with a different kind of oyster dish at each floor.

The oyster rallies are held to celebrate any kind of occasion—a pre-wedding stag party, a school old boys' meeting, or a political anniversary.

The oysters are served raw, then they come piping hot in shells and finally in fritters and fried.

Down-town fish merchants who supply the New Brunswick oysters, by the crate of 250 to 300 for $7 to $13, figure banquet parties average a dozen oysters per person.

There are various stages to the dinners.

The first is a rough-and-ready banquet with oysters served in the shell. A guest's only equipment is a waist high plastic stand which he can move about, a beer, a muddy oysters supply which hustling waiters keep serving in, and a nail with a towel hanging from it.

The towel is not to throw in when you've had enough but to wipe your hands.

Standing, the guest works with the oysters and a neighbor's advice: "Attention a tes doigts; (watch your fingers with that thing)."

Another stage of the banquet is oyster soup, usually in another room where there are chairs which everybody needs by then, and finally the oysters fried and fried.

By the time the oyster, patties are brought in, most guests wouldn't mind if New Brunswick had fewer oyster beds.

Western Powers Agree to Go Slow On Dismantling German Industries

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 15 — (AP) — West-German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer announced today that Britain, France and the United States have agreed to slow down the dismantling of German industries.

His announcement came as he began negotiations with the Western high commissioners in the hope of relaxing occupation restrictions as well.

In a foreign policy speech to the West-German Parliament Adenauer also disclosed these other results of the Paris foreign ministers' conference:

1. Britain, the United States and France have agreed to invite West Germany to "many international organizations."

2. The Allies are considering how to alleviate the "consequences of the division of Germany" as the result of the cold war between Germany and the Western governments.

3. The Allies have agreed to allow Germany to build a bigger and faster merchant shipping fleet.

4. The Allies have agreed to allow Germany to set up trade consulates in foreign countries.

Adenauer said that the Allies had refused to stop dismantling of former major armament industries.

BOY BICYCLIST FRACTURES WRIST

Riding his bicycle directly into the path of an oncoming vehicle, Harold Lee, 11, of 18 Frank Street, suffered a fractured left wrist yesterday.

VOTERS' LISTS NOW COMPLETED

Voters' lists for the forthcoming municipal election have been completed by members of the city hall staff and tenants in the city are urged to visit the city hall to check if their names are on the lists.

Members of council feel that there may be many families in the city renting upstairs quarters whose names have not been given to the assessor during his rounds. Under these circumstances the assessor will not have a vote in the municipal election next month.

Residents Want Type of Building Restricted

A suggestion that the 20 lots set aside for commercial purposes in the Parkwood Heights area be restricted as to the type of business which may be established, was made to members of city council Monday evening by Dennis Swan, resident of that area.

At the request of residents of Parkwood Heights council set aside an area of 20 lots for a business area, restricting the balance of the sub-division to residential construction.

It was felt by Mr. Swan that the 20 lots should be restricted to retail outlets and possibly a theatre. At the present time he said it was understood there was nothing to prevent a factory or other undesirable business to be erected in the area.

Members of council pointed out that in any event a permit for the construction of any building in the area would have to be sanctioned by council.

Before any action was taken by council the matter will be held until the final passing of the by-law covering building restrictions in the Parkwood Heights area which is now before the municipal board. The board will sit Wednesday in this city.

Hunting Licences Show Increase Over Last Year

While the experts predict in other parts of the provinces that governmental coffers will bulge with hunting licence fees, the number of licences sold here will be comparable with and perhaps show a slight increase over last year, Issuer Ed. Thomas said today.

While sales of licences to local and district hunters is up, a decrease is noted in the sale of American nimrods. This is attributed to the curtailment of the season, which, actually ends a week from tomorrow.

The shortness of the season, it is stated, has prevented the "last minute" hunters from going to the woods. A lot of them who cannot get away the early days will stay at home due to the nine-day season.

Details of Proposed Plan To Develop Zwick's Island Placed Before City Council

Additional details of the proposed plan to develop Zwick's Island as a recreational area and park, were placed before council last night by Councils-sloner Arthur Keegan who told how the park board had dealt with the matter.

Two weeks ago council voted to hold a joint meeting with the parks board to go into detail on the proposal for development of the park. This meeting is still to be held.

Mr. Keegan expressed his appreciation to council for this appointment to the parks board for a period of three years and stated he had been made chairman of small parks.

During the past year four small parks for the use of small children had been erected and it was stated it was the intention of the board to erect at least three more for use next year. Tentative sites for these parks were Cannifton Road, the Holloway Street district and the Parkwood Heights.

Not All Facts Given

Mr. Keegan then turned directly to the Zwick's Island project stating there was talk about the city negotiating for development of the island but city council as yet had not received all the facts.

He said the Island had been surveyed and it was found that three building lots and a beach could be developed. Later in the year, Mr. McFarland of Picton, and from a Mr. Kezios in Chicago.

The respective proposals of these interested parties have been considered at a meeting of the commission. The offer of Mr. McFarland was the most acceptable as he wanted to charge a fee for the use of the Island. However, Mr. McFarland was not agreeable to signing the lease which the city required.

Only One Offer Left

This left the offer of Mr. Kezios in Chicago. Mr. Keegan said the plan submitted by Mr. Kezios was accepted by the parks commission, pending receipt of a financial statement from his bankers. Mr. Keegan went on to say that if the financial statement was satisfactory, Mr. Kezios' offer was to be accepted.

The statement from the banker had shown Mr. Kezios' financial affairs in good order.

Considerable discussion took place with the members with some board members suggesting that citizens be asked at the forthcoming election to grant an additional mill to the parks commission in order that Zwick's Island might be developed by the city. Alderman Mills had made a motion to this effect.

Opposed Proposal

Mr. Keegan refuted he was opposed to this proposal on the grounds that the present parks in the city should be put in good condition before any attempt was made by the city to develop the Island.

He said he had made an endeavor in the above motion to lease the Island to the Chicago man. Under Mr. Kezios' proposal he would spend possibly had a million dollars in developing the Island.

"I say let Mr. Kezios become a taxpayer" stated Mr. Keegan. "The city would receive in the neighborhood of $5,000 taxes."

Mr. Keegan said the amendment to accept Mr. Kezios' offer was defeated by the vote of both Alderman Armstrong and himself voting for the amendment.

Development Without Cost Claim

Mr. Keegan again referred to the request to be made to the electorate for an additional one mill grant to the parks board. He pointed out, however, that the board was not indicating the money was to be used for the development of the Island. He said acceptance of Mr. Kezios' offer was defeated by the fact that the Island would be developed without cost to the city.

He felt that the parks board should have another mill to place the parks board in a better position," he went on. "But the board was going to ask for another mill without telling the people the motion to defeat the Island project."

Later in the meeting Alderman Hyde introduced a recommendation that the offer of Mr. Kezios be accepted, stating that this was the best offer and would cost the city no money.

Alderman Lloyd demurred, however, stating that council should get all the facts first. "I'm in favor of the Island being developed, but not by the city," he said.

Should be Meeting

Alderman Armstrong noted that council at its last meeting had voted to hold a joint meeting with the parks board to discuss the Island project. "I am in favor of someone developing the Island but in commission courtesy to the parks board there should be a meeting held.

Alderman Duffy pointed out that the parks board had been instructed to attend a meeting which was to be held last Thursday but only one member showed up. In reply parks board chairman W. Harry Rollins stated he was not present because of illness.

No date was set for the joint meeting.

Assessment System Antiquated Claim of Parkwood Heights Owner

A claim that the assessment system in this city is antiquated and that an immediate reassessment was needed, was made before members of city council Monday evening by a resident of Parkwood Heights who said that some home owners in that area were not getting a fair deal.

Mr. S. Sillitoe, Parkwood Heights home owner, said that under the present system of assessment owners of bungalows in his sub-division were being called upon to pay more taxes than their neighbors, who had a storey-and-a-half house costing $1,500 more.

The assessment of bungalows was in some cases as much as 10 to 15 per cent more than which storey and-a-half residences were assessed for," he said.

Continuing Mr. Sillitoe stated the assessment in Belleville was that of a 1939 level and that based on a square foot plan. "For some unknown reason it was considered at that time more costly to build a bungalow than a storey-and-a-half house," he said.

Mr. Sillitoe also had a beef against the 1949 zoning by-law. Parkwood residents learning of their assessment and tax rate. He pointed out that new businesses coming to the city must certainly did not come under such terms and conditions. "It was not fair," he said.

"I think that a complete reassessment of the city is due," he concluded, "and if not a complete re-assessment, then everything should be on an equitable basis."

He said that in most other municipalities the basis for assessment was the cubic area of a dwelling, and not on a square foot basis.

There was no discussion in council on the matter.

Assistance of Doctors to Secure Graduate Nurses For Hospital Staff Requested by Mayor

The assistance of doctors in the Belleville district in securing graduate nurses for the staff of the Belleville General Hospital has been asked, it was stated to council Monday evening by Mayor D. L. Storey.

Mayor Storey said that although the shortage of graduate nurses at the hospital was serious it had not yet necessitated a reduction of bed capacity.

"However," he said "that is under the improved nursing hours of attention to patients an effort was being made to secure additional nurses. Salary for general duty nurses was $145 per month with $5 additional for night duty. A deduction of $30 per month is made for room, board and laundry if the nurse elected to live in residence.

The Mayor went on to say that he had heard no recent criticisms of the sur-charge being made by the hospital for out-of-town patients. He pointed out that debentures for over $260,000 had been issued for the hospital and it was only fair that non-residents assist in paying some of the carrying charges."

The council meeting was one of the shortest this year with business being conducted in short order.

It was recommended that a night shift be instituted in the traffic works department to take care of sidewalk snowplowing and that Mayor Storey be purchased for the three jeeps.

Approve Payment

Although present hydro regulations will not permit lighting of the colored lights strung across the street in the business section, permission was given approving of paying the annual insurance charge of $53. Council members pointed out that the lights were taken down in all probability they would never be replaced.

The city solicitor was given authorization to collect from the White Lumber Company the purchase price of two lots in the Reynold Crescent housing sub-division which were used as a road right of way. Original agreement with the city was for the company to purchase 28 lots at $200 per lot. Twenty four of these lots were built on with the other two being used for a roadway.

A committee of Alderman Lloyd, Tree and Armstrong was named to investigate the request of Sam Wannamaker to construct a garage on Lingham Street.

Council voted to take an option on the purchase of the A. C. Barlow property at the corner of Victoria and Macdonald Avenue, for use as a public park.

Below Street Level

Alderman Clarke said that council should get the opinion of the city engineer on the cost of developing the area as a park. He said it was below street level and had previously turned down by the city parks commission.

"I have to take up the time of council by going into this matter again," returned Alderman Duffy. "But is not required that a park be the same level as a roadway. Also the attractive way developing the area as a park will be no greater than for any other area."

Under inquiries Alderman Hyde wanted to know the full cost of the injunction which had been issued against the city in an effort to hold up construction of the veterans rental homes.

Cost Was $918

He was told by Alderman Clarke the cost had been $928.

I understand that some of the councillors are acquainted with facts concerning the origination of the injunction" said Alderman Lloyd. "If so I think they should pass the information along to council."

It turned out, however, that any information council members had was only hearsay."

Alderman Liddle asked on behalf of the board of health what progress was being made in connection with plans for the erection of an incinerator in the city. Mayor Storey stated the question would be answered next council meeting.

'Busy Bee' Lazy Not Too Bright

Toronto, Nov 15—(CP)—The "busy bee" theory is lazy and not too bright, according to W. R. Agar of Brooklin, Ont., an apiarist for 35 years.

Mr. Agar, in charge of the honey exhibit at the Royal Winter Fair opening today, said "the bee only works three or four trips a day, carrying nectar to the comb. Between trips he sleeps. And a trip probably lasts only half an hour or so."

But he's seen bees fly away and have to go back for honey behind, swarming somewhere else when they didn't have a chance or building a new reserve for the winter food.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 15, (CP)— Industrials were pushed slowly downwards in one of the dullest sessions in recent weeks on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Golds steadied from two days of steady decline and base metals also firmed. Western oils showed a slightly easier tone.

Volume for the first four hours was 450,000 shares.

Losses ranging from fractions to a full point were widely scattered on the Industrial Board. Bell Telephone was under brisk selling, slipping 1-2 at 41 on a slipping Utilities list.

Canadian Celanese continued against the trend for a gain of 3-8 at a new high at 27.

Small gains in key golds pulled the list slightly upwards in a mild recovery attempt of recent sharp losses.

Quemont led a few base metals into higher ground on a gain of a full point at 20. Pacific Petroleum lost 10 cents at 9.50 in a weaker Western Oils list.

Hubby Brought Home the Bacon But No Bread, So He's in Doghouse

He'd been in the doghouse for the past few days, and was intent on moving out to his own quarters.

So he smiled benignly and said, "Yes, dear," to the little woman last Saturday when leaving for work, after she had requested him to bring home the bacon, bread and eggs, with perhaps a roast for Sunday.

Came noon and he rushed about town doing his shopping. Loaded with parcels, including the bread and eggs, he hurried to the bus stop only to find he had just missed the vehicle.

"Dang it," he groaned, "may as well move back into the pooch-palace. The little woman will never believe this."

So he started to trudge, and half-fret up the West Hill towards home.

Entering the house he was met by a smiling spouse. "I hope you didn't forget the bread, dear," she said.

His chest swelled. "No, I've got everything. Here they are" and he laid the parcels on the table.

Then his eyes opened wide in amazement.

The bacon, eggs and roast were there, but all that remained of the 1lb loaf of sliced bread were two or three pitiful slices.

What he did not know at the moment was that he had left a trail of sliced bread behind him. The end of the package had become unsealed.

Hands on hips, the little woman glared at him. "What have you got to say for yourself now? And no alibis."

He said nothing. He didn't have the crust.

P.S. The doghouse is now re-occupied.

Labor Council Issues Ultimatum To Affiliate

Toronto, Nov. 15—(CP)—Toronto Labor Council Monday night issued an ultimatum to one of its affiliates, the United Electrical Workers, either to join the new Electrical Union established by the Congress of Industrial Organizations or to stand alone.

Expelled recently from the C.I.O., the U.E.W., now is being criticized by the right wing of its own membership and the Canadian Congress of Labor, with which it is affiliated.

Ellis Blair, an official of the U.E.W., said Monday night the council was engaging in a policy of raiding, splitting and disruption of his union.

The U.E.W. had no intention of voluntarily leaving the C.C.L., he said.

"U.E.W. h' f made great gains through their union and we have no intention of allowing anyone to undermine the union," he added.

REUTHER TO HEAD DELEGATION

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP)—Walter P. Reuther, C.I.O. United Automobile Workers President, has been chosen to head a C.I.O. delegation to an international conference of trade unions in London starting Nov. 28. Second Course In Effective Speaking Planned

The Y. M. C. A. Effective Speaking Workshop has exceeded all expectations with 30 members and in individual enthusiasm. The class has grown so large that new members can no longer be accepted for this session. The Y. M. C. A. invites all interested people to put their names on a waiting list for a somewhat similar course that will commence in January.

Already several people have signed their intention of taking this course which gives effective speaking course. Others who would like to take advantage of this educational opportunity, or would like further information should get in touch with Mr. Ingram Bell Pope at the Y. M. C. A.

It is intended that these effective speaking classes will be kept comparatively small, so that all class members may gain a maximum benefit from individual and individual participation. To those interested in this January course one must take out a basic membership in the Y. M. C. A. at a cost of two dollars, and it entitles the member to all the social and educational features in the association for one year.

The January Effective Speaking class will include the following topics: developing poise and confidence, creating your audience, selecting a topic, increasing your vocal range, thinking on your feet, what to do with hecklers, meeting the audience awake, how to get effective speech into every day use. The course will also include three lively competitions: a correct English and pronunciation test, an impromptu contest, and a prepared speech competition.

NEED MORE MONEY

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP)—The economic cooperation administration needs at least $3,000,000,000 more to complete its program, Administrator Paul G. Hoffman said Monday. "It cost $350,000,000,000 to [illegible] 000 to win the war," he said. "If $15,000,000,000 will help win the peace it will be a bargain."

'Gull Island' in Moira River Guarded by Bird Sentries

'Gull Island' in the centre of the Moira River just north of the Canadian National Railway bridge is a busy place these days.

The island which rises above the water at certain times is also one of the fabled Phantom Islands of the south seas, has plenty of housing space for its feathered tenants.

It is bordered on the south by the railway bridge, the north by the lower city bridge, the east by submerged tin cans, bottles, waterlogged timber, and on the west by old tires, rusty wire, pieces of old iron, all surrounded continuously by murky, soupy water.

But the gulls do not seem to mind this.

Raucous Conclave

Every morning they hold a raucous conclave among the miniature mountains of refuse on their island home, and then comes what seems to be a period of gull prayer. They crouch on the slaty rock terrain of their river home, and remain almost motionless for hours.

Occasionally what must be a piece of edible substance comes floating down river. Scouts rise hurriedly and take off, under the watching eyes of their feathered colleagues. If the scouts give sign that the substance is fit for gull consumption, there's a flurry of wings, a honking chorus (or does a gull honk?) and gray wings flash down forming a living island in the vicinity of the food.

The island is well guarded. Lone sentries perch on isolated rocks a few feet from the shore. They are placed at fairly consistent intervals around the island.

Others crouch on feathered bellies on other parts of the "mainland". But there is always this ceaseless visit.

But they appear to be a happy lot. After all, why shouldn't they. They get free rent; the cost of living doesn't bother them and income tax inspectors are just other humans.

Soon they will rise majestically from their island home, and take off in a southerly direction to wherever gulls go in the winter time.

Stickles also has a short criminal record with short terms in jails and in a reformatory.

The two men were arrested by Detective J. C. Hayes, with Det. Doug Ellis and Constable Wareing when they were found in the Arnott store. Entry had been rifled the cash register and had been broken open, the cigarette dispensing machine. They were remanded until Friday for sentence.

ROUTING ENEMIES OF MAN

Diseases which have been waging war tn man for ages have been finding their match in the discoveries of scientists. Scarcely one day passes without news of something new in the realm of weapons man is having put at his disposal to route the microbes and germs which have preyed on humanity. Yesterday the newspapers carried the report of two new "finds" in the war of man vs. germ.

The relentless pursuit by science of the goal to make man healthier and longer-lived in a healthier world has been piling up results which by their multitude are nothing but amazing.

A few days ago there was a suggestion that the forces at work on the mystery of cancer are meeting success as discovery is piled on discovery.

Fortunately today there are many skilled men who find in research opportunity for service to mankind. To them goes the honor of extending life and to the medical practitioner comes too the privilege of being a help in the great cause of foiling diseases that enervate and lessen the effectiveness of living. To these thousands with their vision and to the agencies and governments which support research must go a debt of gratitude from overflowing hearts.

TOOLS OF 10,000 YEARS AGO

Relics of great interest which date back 10,000 years have just been discovered in Britain. They were announced recently by the prehistoric Society as the archaeological expert Dr. Grahame Clark who described these finds as thrilling. He said that what is believed to be the richest mesolithic sites in Northwest Europe has been unearthed in Britain. It has revealed valuable information on that period of time when Great Britain first became separated from Europe, some 10,000 years ago. Barbed points like harpoons, shaped from deer antlers, and many other relics of the primitive life of that time have been found. During the past quarter century isolated and scattered traces of those who lived in Britain in the years following the great Ice Age have been found. But no such complete collection of relics had yet been discovered there. Six feet below the surface a layer of branches and brushwood was first uncovered which had evidently formed the rough flooring for a primitive hut. Arrow points, amber ornaments and stone beads were unearthed in addition to the harpoons. All were in a remarkable state of preservation although they had been buried for 10,000 years. Much research still remains to be done. But it is considered by experts that these finds will do much to extend the world's knowledge of how life was lived by the original British Islanders.

Archaeology is making amazing studies throwing open to the light of this twentieth century the tools and implements of the people who ten thousand or more years ago lived in the British Isles.

Prehistoric people who lived in Britain have left behind them memorials and relics of this long-since past era, when the modern world as men know it did not exist. How different the world was is indicated by the latest find and by the fact which has been established that they were left behind by people who lived in Britain before or just after the time that Britain became separated from the continent.

The fact that the find was just six feet below the surface is something that may be expected to spur archaeologists to new endeavor in many parts of Britain and the Continent of Europe.

It was not so many decades ago that men had little or no thought of the discoveries which the excavator scientist was some day to make, opening what had been to modern man and to man as far back as ten millenniums of time a closed book as if that era had never been.

These discoveries are coming at a time in which other discoveries are being made in this part of the world where civilization is thought to have first developed, in the Middle East, these including the discovery of sacred Hebrew scriptures hidden from the eye or man for at least two thousand or more years. These sacred writings believed to be the oldest extant in manuscript antedate the Christian era and at least long centuries of years of what might be called modern history, or rather actually ancient, mediaeval and modern history. Man has gone into the caves of Palestine and underground in Britain and elsewhere to find vestiges of civilization which knew few no inventions and when the ways of life were different from what they are today.

All these discoveries of prehistoric days and the discoveries which invention and research are achieving and have been achieving have made this earth a place of very intriguing history of far wider range than Gibbon or Green ever thought of.

LOST DIGESTION

Time was at midnight I could take
A wedge of pie or chocolate cake,
Cold meats or ravelst golden hue
And soundly sleep the night-time through.

Time was when I was moved to eat,
Green apples were a juicy treat,
Being just a lad of nine or ten,
I really had a stomach then.

At twenty, food was my delight,
I owned a gifted appetite.
One helping never would suffice;
I always passed my plate up twice.

I always passed my plate up thrice.

Eat a green apple now!
Not I.
Those midnight snacks- I pass them by.
That stomach which time was
Won't do the work it used to do.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

A good five to ten minutes before a railway train reaches a terminal big city station, everybody in the coaches rises, puts on hat and coat seizes baggage and forms line, waiting at the door.

Minute after minute as the train slacks and jerks its way through the yards, these travelers stand humbly to a queer swaying and jolting. It is the same in the Pullman coaches as in the day coaches. In fact, in the Pullman coaches it is a stiffer situation, because the porter has collected all the baggage and piled it in the vestibule. Not until he has opened the coach door and handed down all that luggage — a matter of another three or four minutes— can the littlings of prosperous passengers start to move. In the day coaches, where they handle their own bags, the line-up has to stand until the trainman has opened the vestibule door.

It is interesting to speculate on the reasons for this curious behavior on the part of close to one hundred per cent of travelers. Why did we all rise comfortably in their seats, those last few bumpetty minutes? The only people who ever do, appear to be elderly ladies and men and again a gentleman asleep who has to be roused by the porter.

Among the prosperous gentry who ride Pullman, it may be the natural instinct of prosperous people not to let others get ahead of them in getting off a train. The competitive spirit, once a man becomes thoroughly indoctrinated with it, becomes second nature. A businessman does many things unconsciously, and automatically. Jumping up and getting in line, when he sees his fellow-passengers doing so, is a sample of it And it is absurd.

But in street cars and buses, why do the rank and file of humanity do the same thing? When the next stop is ours, why do we leap up and struggle our way for the exit, where we wait uncomfortably and uncomfortable?

Possibly the whole business is part of the twentieth century spirit of cooperation: with our mainspring of speed and efficiency. The machine must never be kept waiting.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ANOTHER NEED FOR MATRIMONY

We have all heard the story of the burgdenearers in a cravan in Africa who every day to get away farther, saying: "We have been traveling entirely too fast, until our bodies have caught up of our souls and we are going to wait here for a day or two until our souls catch up with us."

Some time ago I saw a man rush down the steps of a New York subway, stumbling the last four or five and over by a policeman lying on his feet at the bottom. Then rushing to the fast-closing door of the subway, he pried it open and tucked himself into an already overcrowded car. What was then part of the rush about? Well, of course nobody who was watching him knew. But we all suspected that he didn't know either. It had become a habit for him to keep rushing at full pace. He assumed that nothing made him more frantic than to see a subway door closed if he were within a hundred feet of it, or a bus starting off if he was within a block away.

Composure is rare, and when we see it in face and demeanor we behold it with awe. Some people, however, envy it, even in these frantic days in which we live, and they have it because their bodies and souls have decided to live together till death do them part.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WATCHING

I went into a broker's office the other day and while I watched the tape go by on the big screen in front. I studied the faces of those who were sitting idly, silent, and wondering. I speculated upon what was going on in each mind, but left not knowing.

The foolish matter interest—and profit as well—in watching people in the crowded streets. I went like a book shop and saw eager faces bent, each feed their minds, gaining sure profit, without waiting for the turn of events to bring about that profit. Then I looked out of the windows and studied the faces of people who stood beside me, jewelry stores, windows with beautiful garments in them attractively displayed and those advertising shops about the world.

I watched young people ice skating in a manufactured ice arena, with laughter going on, and with beauty of motion that is fascinated by the sight. A few blocks away I also viewed a new building, unique in design-windows continuing around the corners, and the advertisement stating that the entire building of nearly forty stories would be "air conditioned." New things and wonders are all about if you look for them.

Then I went to a florist shop and saw some flowers in a vase, but not until I had spent many a moment there in the midst of wonders of Nature's creation. Every flower a miracle! What joy the florist must get, never give pause merely by watching. I have discovered a little blind man inquired about the grounds of my home, and loss peanuts to him to catch the fragrance of roses appreciated. Day by day he becomes more friendly.

I have learned more than I can tell here concerning flowers by watching how others do things. To many a carpenter and mechanic, I'm sure, I still look like never be paid simply because I whicked and I did not know it. I first ran a Ford Motor Company used to advertise a line that said: "Watch the Ford and the Ford will watch you." I meditated upon the years that it took for the creator of that car to make such a line possible.

FIBROID TUMOR NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

A lady undergoing a physical examination was told that she had a fibroid tumor of the uterus. Noting the look of alarm upon the patient's face, her physician hastened to assure her that the tumor was benign, and no small dist. surgical operation would not be required. Nevertheless, the patient's distress was such that she scarcely heard the physician's words and went forth with the deep seated conviction that she had cancer and that the physician's assurances were actually nothing more than words of condolence.

A year later, during which time she had been examined by several more physicians, each of whom agreed with the original physician, she finally "got up her nerve" and consulted a nightmarish depression. Even she had to admit that if she actually had cancer, she would not be as well as she was after a year.

For the benefit of those who are eternally suspicious that a physician's statements do not mark for the truth, understand here and now that a fibroid tumor is not cancer. A fibroid never "turns into" a cancer. A cancer never "starts from" a fibroid tumor. A woman with a fibroid tumor is not more liable to develop cancer than anyone else.

A fibroid tumor of the uterus is extremely common after the period of middle age and beyond. It consists of a fibrous overgrowth in the wall of the uterus, or womb, and is definitely classified as a benign tumor. Benign tumors do not recur when completely removed. They do not "spread" to other parts, and except for pressure and sometimes bleeding, are not a great hazard to life.

A fibroid tumor of the uterus may reach quite an appreciable size and still give its bearer no reason to suspect its existence. A sensation of weight, or of pressure into the pelvic outlet is often the first indication of its presence, but this symptom may be present when no tumor exists. Profuse and frequent menstrual bleeding or discomfort from pressure upon adjacent organs, are the chief symptoms that give evidence of its presence, until pressure upon physical examination.

A uterine fibroid large enough to cause discomfort, or one which is the source of prolonged bleeding should be removed. The necessity for removal, fortunately, does not often occur during the child-bearing age. Once this period is passed, there would seem to be very little reason for not removing it, when the slight surgical hazard is compared to the continuous annoyance of putting up with it.

A great many fibroids do not require surgical treatment. The mere presence of a small fibroid is not an indication for its removal.

Regardless of whether the surgical hazard is slight or great, no one relishes a surgical operation. The more understandable attitude is the notion that "nervousness" or some other undesirable side-effect follows removal of a fibroid. If the fibroid is removed during the menopause, when "nervous" symptoms are plaguing the patient, there is no reason for adverse effect upon these symptoms.

The chances are good that no operation will be required at all. Let the fibroid be the point and stop worrying about it.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Is the use of novocaine by the dentist dangerous in case of rheumatic heart disease or other ailment? (K. D.)

Answer—No.

Restless Legs

Husband, 56, is kept awake many nights by restless twitching of his legs. He has no cramps but just a "jitter feeling in the muscles" that keeps him awake. Is there anything to help? (Mrs. F. C.)

Answer—Nitroglycerin is the remedy, but I'm sorry to disappoint your husband and can get a dozen tablets (say 1/300th of a grain in each tablet) to try, unless his physician will give him the tablets or prescribe them for him. He should sip one tablet under his tongue upon retiring and repeat the dose in an hour if necessary.

Fifteen Miners Uninjured After Being Trapped

Mahanoy City, Pa., Nov. 15 (AP) — Fifteen miners emerged uninjured Monday night after being trapped more than six hours behind a fall of rock at the bottom of the Maple Hill colliery of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company. The men were down some 900 feet and 3,000 feet inside the slant.

Edward Fox, general manager, said the men were trapped when a mine car jumped the track, knocked down supporting timbers and sending tons of rocks cascading down the passageway. The entrance to the shaft was blocked.

A crew of some 25 fellow miners with picks, shovels and any other digging tools they could get their hands on started on the rescue.

Fox and George A. Roos, a company vice-president, said rescue workers were able to communicate with the miners by tapping the rail leading into the buried section. The rescuers tapped on the outside and received an answering echo from the rock trapped miners.

After emerging from the chamber where they had been trapped, the men were taken in a small donkey engine to a shaft elevator and then to the surface.

Prince Charles Passes Initial Milestone of Life

(By DEWITT MACKENZIE)
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Britain's bonnie Prince Charlie Monday celebrated his first birthday, thereby passing the initial milepost of a life journey which very likely will end as the flag of day was dedicated to the interests of the public.

The tiny Prince as son of Princess Elizabeth, heir presumptive to the British throne, is next in line to his mother. In normal course he one day will be King.

So he never will be "his own man." He won't be able to slip away to the old swimmin' hole when he wants to. He can't play hooky from his job of being heir to the world's greatest throne.

You likely are familiar with some of his position in the fact that while the British people like to refer to him as "bonnie Prince Charlie," he always is called "Charles" in his royal home. He has no nickname, like most little fellers.

By the way, one of the stories tells me that when the irrepressible Princess Margaret was informed of his birth she asked what he would be called. She was told that his name would be Charles she wisecracked:

"Then I suppose he shall be known as 'Charlie's aunt.'"

There are few more exacting jobs in the world than that of being King or Queen of England. And next is that of being heir to the throne. Younger brothers and sisters have more freedom, but the heir must start training for his part the almost as soon as he can talk.

As soon as he is old enough he will be turned over to tutors who will prepare him for his life as English colleges. As a matter of fact by the time he is ready for the University he already will be a highly educated young man, among other accomplishments speaking one or more foreign languages fluently.

But that is only part of his training. He must know his empire in the minutest detail. He must know all the intricate ins and outs of government. He must learn the ways of Kingship.

Wartime Nazi Radio Speaker Out of Position

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP)—A wartime Nazi radio compentator, ousted last week as a professor at Michigan Tech College, said Monday he has no prospects of a job at any other college in the United States and he may hunt for one in Canada, South Africa or India.

Professor Edward V. Sittler, 52, father of six children, was fired last week from his $4,000-a-year job as a teacher of German at Michigan College of Mining and Technology.

The ouster came after representative John Bergedi (Rep. Mich.) called for deportation of Sittler. Bennett said, and Sittler confirms, that Sittler, a native of Delaware, Ohio, gave up his American citizenship in 1939 while a student in Germany, became a German citizen and a Nazi party member, and broadcast as a German radio commentator during the last two years of the war.

Sittler left the college Sunday and came to Chicago to look for a new job and talk to lawyers about the severance pay Michigan Tech contract, which was to have expired in June. He says his firing was illegal.

Sittler, in an interview, said the Angerton College Bureau, a college job-finding agency in Chicago, told him his employment chances are "nil" because it knows of no college "willing to take the publicity risk."

He said he plans to continue looking. He is in the United States on a temporary permit. His wife has a British passport. Two of his six children, aged 9% months to nine years, were born in the United States, and he thinks that may bar his deportation.

Ontario Drops Plans to Finance Second Mortgages

Toronto, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Ontario Monday dropped its plan for financing second mortgages on new homes in view of amendments to the Federal Housing Act whereby the Dominion has taken over the field.

The second mortgage loan plan of the Ontario government will be suspended as of Jan. 1. Until then applications for new loans will be accepted by the province, but only in cases where a first mortgage has been registered up to Nov. 15.

The Ontario Planning Department announced Monday that notices to this effect have gone to most builders and lending institutions in the province.

Since the Ontario government started the plan it has advanced more than $13,000,000 on second mortgages, from a fund which began with $10,000,000 and was increased to $15,000,000 only a few months ago. The Ontario government has advanced amounts up to $1,500 towards down payments on new homes, taking a second mortgage in return.

The department said that the extensions to the Federal Housing Act removed the need for these provincial second mortgage loans.

King George Has Last Word On Princess' Hats

London, Nov. 15. (AP) —The King has the last word on Princess Margaret's choice of hats.

That fashion item comes from the designer of the newest bonnet worn by the King's youngest daughter. She wore it to a millinery show Monday.

Aage Thaarup, Danish-born milliner who whipped up the exclusive model, said the King liked it.

"He always has to see her hats before she wears them in public," Thaarup added.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASPIC"

English tenacity won the battle of green peas.

For years Englishmen insisted upon eating green peas and eating them with a knife. It was a long hard struggle until finally the pea knife was invented—a long boat-shaped affair that not only permitted diners to scoop in greater quantities but that kept every pea in its place.

Like most English victories, it lasted only a short time and the status quo was restored. Nothing of much moment happened in the green world until the recent announcement that Scandinavian scientists were growing bigger and better peas through the use of X-rays.

Fresh or frozen peas should be bright green. If they are yellowish, grey or dull, they've been off the vine too long or in the pot too long. During the fall and winter, the quick-freeze variety are of uniformly high quality.

Use only several inches of water to cook them. If your heat is too high or your pot too wide, the water will evaporate quickly and the peas may burn. Use a small pot with a tight lid. If the water evaporates too quickly, replace it. To save moisture, cover the pesse with a few outside leaves of lettuce during cooking, or use a saucepan with a heavy tight fitting lid.

Salmon and Green Pea Casserole

Place 1 package of frozen peas in a saucepan with 2 inches of boiling water and 1-4 teaspoon salt. Simmer covered until tender, Drain. Season with salt, pepper and sugar to taste.

Place 1 cup cooked rice in top part of a double boiler with 2 cups hot water and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Bring water to a boil over direct flame. Place over bottom part of double boiler. Cook covered over simmering water until rice is tender, about 15 minutes. Do not stir rice during cooking. Remove rice to a baking dish.

Add 1 cup canned pimientos cut in 1-2 inch dice. Add 2 tablespoons grated onion and 1-2 cup grated process type American cheese. Toss ingredients lightly with fork. Place in a moderate oven 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

Irish News Letter:

Cloud of Trouble Between Republic, North Ireland Looms

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dublin, Nov. 15 (CP)—Another cloud of trouble between the Republic of Ireland and Northern Ireland is on the horizon—this time over a postage stamp.

Remember the cliche about "no bigger than a man's hand?" that's what the quarrel will be about—a man's hand.

The hand originally belonged to Red Hugh O'Neill who led one of the invasions of Ireland in that country's pre-Viking past. His men didn't relish the idea of fighting the Irish—who even then had quite a reputation for rough-and-ready scrapping.

O'Neill took a look at their pale faces, strode to the bow of his boat, chopped off his left hand and hurled it onto the shore, shouting "follow the red hand!"

Blood-Stained Hand

Eventually a blood-stained hand became the provincial symbol of Ulster. Now, as every Irishman in the north and in the south knows, the Ulster counties form northern Ireland. Which sets the scene for the postage-stamp squabble.

The Republican government here has announced that it will issue Nov. 21 a stamp to commemorate international recognition of itself. In each corner will appear the symbol of one of the four ancient provinces of Ireland—Inclu "ing the red hand of Ulster — "thus symbolically asserting Ireland's claim to the whole of its territory without division."

When Belfast officialdom heard of this impending impertinence its spokesmen were "quite shocked." A formal statement of protest is expected when the stamp appears.

And just imagine the wigs of the green when a letter bearing one of those stamps arrives in Belfast from Dublin.

Around Ireland

Aer Lingus, state-owned airline made a profit of £38,000 (£24,880) during the first six months of 1949—its first profit since nationalization. The black ink came into use largely through a £ 112,000 slash in expenditures.

Three hydro-electric stations on the 82-mile-long river Liffey will be in full operation this winter for the first time and will help to light the streets, shops and houses of Dublin. The stations are at Leixlip, Golden Falls and Poulaphuca.

Southern Irish emigrants in 1948 totalled 40,075, all but 9,785 of whom went to Great Britain. Most of the rest went to the United States.

PRINCE ONE YEAR OLD

London, Nov. 14. —(AP) — Prince Charles, who will be one-year-old today will not have a birthday cake almost twice as heavy as he is—but he won't get a bite of it.

He will look at it, and he may be permitted to blow out the flame of the single candle which will be its chief ornament.

The cake, which will be the centre of a little party at Clarence House, weighs 40 pounds. Prince himself weighs 24 pounds, eight ounces.

And why shouldn't he have at least a tiny taste? Because it's baked with rum, and rum is not for year-old princes.

Man Who Died Was Her Father Says Actress

Hollywood, Nov. 15 — (AP) — Actress Ann Rutherford said Monday night that an elderly man who died Nov. 5 in Seattle was her father.

"My mother was able to verify that he was her former husband," Miss Rutherford said.

The elderly man penned a death-bed note for hospital attendants in which he identified himself as John Dufferin Rutherford, 68, a former Metropolitan Opera singer and father of the film actress. Rutherford was formed to write a note because a cancer had made him mute.

When first informed, Miss Rutherford, a native of Toronto, discounted the statement, saying her father would have been about 55 years old. She added that her parents separated when she was a child and that she toured with her mother, Mrs. Lucille Mansfield, before entering the movies

Site is Chosen For $20,000 Home For Quadruplets

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Hargreaves, parents of the quadruplets born here recently, have chosen a site for the building of a $20,000 home for the quads, engineer A. H. Russell said today.

The home will be built with monies of the Community Quadruplet Fund and gifts of material and volunteer labor.

Tentative plans for the new home call for a 10-room residence with special arrangements for the accommodation of the four baby girls.

City council was told Monday night that the babies will be leaving the incubators shortly in which they have been confined since birth and will be taken to Hargreaves small house about two miles from the city.

The site of the proposed new home overlooks the city's Bellevue Park.

Fire Destroys Business Centre Of Bengal City

Dacca, East Pakistan, Nov. 15 (Reuters) — A disastrous fire which broke out during the night destroyed the business centre of this Bengal city Monday.

The blaze caused widespread damage in the Chowk Bazaar estimated at between $5,000,000 and $14,000,000.

More than 900 stores were gutted.

The fire, lasting three hours, reduced 30,000 square yards of the Bazaar to charcoal and rubble. Bamboo buildings helped to spread the flames.

Police reinforcements were summoned to prevent large crowds of shopkeepers from bursting into the bazaar to save their property.

Baby Girl Born Halfway Across Atlantic Ocean

Prestwick, Scotland, Nov. 15—(AP)— If this keeps up, Trans-Atlantic Airlines are going to have to start carrying bassinets and regular accommodations.

A baby girl was born—halfway across the Atlantic between Prestwick and Gander, Nfld.—to a Polish woman today aboard a Scandinavian Air Lines plane carrying 60 displaced persons to New York.

The mother of the girl was Mrs. Leokadia Rolbiecki, already a mother of three.

She began feeling labor pains about 1,000 miles out to sea.

Norwegian pilot T. Stenurud radioed back to Prestwick for medical advice. The airport doctor was hustled out of bed to rush to the radio to give the instructions.

Next message from the plane was "baby born 0555 hours (NGT) 2,003 miles out to passenger No. 15. Mother and child doing nicely —it's a girl."

Passenger "No. 15" was Mrs. Rolbiecki. She, her husband and 2 children were with 58 other displaced persons who had left Bremen, Germany, bound for the United States. The plane was due in New York later today.

The plane was the veritable flying nursery anyhow. There were 11 children of two years or over and 13—whoops, 14—babies.

ALMOST HUMAN

Trenton Station Exempt From Assessment

Ottawa, Nov. 15 (CP)—Big "federal property" areas, such as Halifax and Esquimalt, B.C., likely will receive extensive benefits under the grants-in-lieu-of-taxation plan, a government spokesman said Monday night.

While details have not been worked out, he said he believed municipalities with big federal defence installations likely would be able to place assessments against this property under the payments scheme.

If a municipality can show that services, for instance, roads, schools or electricity, are required by the installations to "some degree" then the government likely would allow it to assess the property for payment purposes, the spokesman said.

He "reasonably" expected federal defence installations are exempt from assessment. These include such establishments as Camp Borden, and Trenton, the spokesman indicated.

OPPOSITION RAPS

He promptly moved an amendment proposing that the Bill be sent to "the standing committee on banking and commerce with instructions that they have power to send for persons, papers and records and that . . . they shall also have the power to report upon the extent to which the effective administration or legislation relating to restrictive trade practices has, or is being, prejudiced by the action of the government in failing to carry out the mandatory requirements of the existing law."

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said his party will support the Drew amendment. He regretted, however, that the terms of the motion did not call for a vote of censure or the government for breach of the law.

Nothing in Report

Mr. Coldwell said there was nothing in the McGregor report to support the government contention that price-fixing by flour-mills during the war was the result of government and price-board direction.

Mr. Coldwell said the government excuses for not releasing the report on time were as "lame" as its reasons for not prosecuting the flour-millers.

Solon Low, Social Credit Leader, also placed his party's support behind the amendment. The vote, he said, could be interpreted as censure of the government action.

Both Mr. Low and Mrs. Cooper well indicated their parties support the principle of the government bill as well as the amendment.

The torrent of criticism was unleashed in a debate on principle of a bill to make it easier for the government to win convictions against companies charged with price-fixing.

Weakness Bared

Mr. Carson, leading off the debate, said chief weakness of the Combines Investigation Act had been bared in the unsuccessful case in 1947 against alleged dental combines.

The judge ruled that the Crown must prove any letters entered as evidence were written with knowledge of someone in authority in the accused company.

If this isn't changed, Mr. Carson said, the government will rarely win a case against companies suspected of conspiring to eliminate fair price competition.

The amending bill places the onus on defending companies to prove that any incriminating document, were sent without knowledge or authority of responsible heads of companies.

Tried Without Jury

Another change in the bill is directed at the difficulty of explaining all the legal entanglements to people who are not lawyers. It provides that in combines prosecutions, the corporations are to be tried by judge without jury.

One other change allows the Minister of Justice to present an indictment against a corporation. Heretofore, only the Provincial Attorneys-General have had such right.

John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) aimed his attack at the fact that the report had been made public more than two years after the date of the last breach of the law mentioned in report.

Since there was a two-year limitation on instituting prosecution, the government could not now take action against flour-mills even if it wanted.

Diefenbaker suggested the government suppression of the report was deliberate on this account.

W. J. Browne (PC-St. John's East) said the two-year limitation should be changed. It was necessary to prevent the spread of socialism in Canada that the people be protected against unscrupulous practices by large corporations and combines.

T. L. Church (PC-Toronto Eglinton) accused the government of hiding from the people something it never had paid for something they had a fundamental right to see.

J. W. Noseworthy (CCF-York South) said it was difficult to describe the government action without using Parliamentary language. The whole affair had produced a "very unpleasant odor."

Asked to Mention Names

Jean Francoeur Jeanlot (L-Temiscouata, the only other Liberal in the debate besides Mr. Garson, read to the House the names of the directors of flour-milling companies accused in the McGregor report. He twitted the opposition for dealing in generalities and asked them why they didn't mention names in their discussions of combines.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-Mac-Leod) said that if big business is not regulated so as to assure fair practices and free competition, Canada might be driven to Socialism. It was responsibility of the government to see that competition was maintained through the Combines Investigation Act.

Angus MacInnis (CCF-Vancouver East) said the government should have known. If the whole Cabinet wanted to keep the report from the public it should have told Parliament last spring that it wanted to keep the report until the Combines Act was strengthened.

A. L. Smith (PC-Calgary West) took issue with the amendment putting odus on the companies in cases of evidence. He did not think the government should depart so far from the principle of law which recognizes a man is innocent until he is proven guilty.

GOVT. PAYMENTS

Another 1,000 or more municipalities, where the federal property value is below four per cent, will receive no payments. These include places where one federal property may consist of merely a post office or a customs house.

A municipality may have a total tax assessment of $100,000,000 of which $10,000,000 is federal property. First step is to deduct the National average—four per cent or $4,000,000—from the $10,000,000.

Take Months to Clarify

This leaves $6,000,000 or six per cent of the federal assessment subject to tax. If the total tax levy is, say, $5,000,000, the normal payment would be six per cent, or $300,000. But the government will pay only 75 per cent of the tax and thus the total payment would be $225,000.

A government spokesman said the whole scheme will take "months" to clarify. It entails payments for water rates and for local improvements to federal property.

Payments also will be made when the government acquires a new piece of property in the municipality. These grants apply to those above and below the four-per-cent-level.

In cases of those municipalities getting the "formula" payments, the new-property grants will cover the full amount of taxes in the year the government takes over the property.

Grants also will be made to cover full taxes in the following year and one-half the taxes in the year after that.

Will be Included

"At the end of this period," said Mr. Abbott, "the assessed value of such property will be included in the total of federal assessment of the municipality — with a commensurate effect on the regular grant."

Municipalities below the four-per-cent level — those which would not get the annual payments — will receive payments to cover full taxes for the year in which the government takes over property.

Grants for full taxes also will be paid for the following year and then the grants will taper off in the following three years to 75, 50 and 25 per cent of full taxes.

At the end of this period, no further grants will be paid this category.

Crown corporations and other government property, not included in the "federal property" category, are authorized to make their own tax agreements with the municipalities.

Some of these, such as Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation and Wartime Housing Limited, already have completed agreements.

SEVENTY KILLED

Seven coaches of the train plunged into the river about 100 miles north of here when the bridge collapsed. It had been undermined by the flood-swollen waters.

Two South African air force DC-4s were dispatched to take out the injured.

Drawn by Two Engines

The train, carrying 500 natives, was drawn by two locomotives. Both locomotives crashed into the river. The engineer of the first locomotive was killed.

The grim thought of the injured was for their possessions, representing months of comfort and comparative luxury for their families. They made constant appeals for their luggage to be dug out of the wreckage.

Rescue workers struggled for hours to release those trapped in the wrecked coaches. Doctors, nurses and ambulances rushed to the scene from nearby towns and an ambulance train was sent from Johannesburg, 17 miles away.

VOTE BOOSTERS

Winnipeg — (CP) — If Winnipeg's municipal voting was heavier this year it is due to some 175 pupils of Gordon Bell high school. They canvassed a large section of the city, urging people to get out and vote.

POINT-TRAVERSE

Lake Freighters Seek Shelter Due to Blow

Point Traverse — A southwest blow sent lake freighters seeking shelter behind this point today, which at times was accompanied by driving rain squalls, placing visibility over the lake at a minimum.

It is sixteen years ago today that the tug Florence, with eight men aboard, sank off here during a snow storm.

Commercial fishing operations have been hampered by the blow, and fishermen are taking no chances with their gear at this time of the season, as high winds each fall cause considerable damage to nets which are placed in shoal waters for the annual run of whitefish.

'Political Bias' Shown Says War Minister

London, Nov. 14. (AP)— War Minister Shinwell told Saturday night said England's second-ranking churchman, the Archbishop of York, should find out the "real facts" before criticizing the Labor Government.

Shinwell accused the Archbishop, Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, and other Anglican churchmen showing "political bias" in recent speeches on Britain's economic and political situation.

The speeches by the church dignitaries, while avoiding direct attack on the Labor Government, have aroused Labor party fears that the archbishops and bishops are preparing for formation of a Coalition Government.

Shinwell, at a Labor party rally in Newcastle, castigated Dr. Garbett for a recent address in which the archbishop said "profits is unavoidable" unless British industry cuts the prices of its exports.

In the same speech the archbishop called on leaders of all political parties to join in a "agreed downright statement of the extreme gravity" of Britain's economic situation.

"It might do infinite good, to put it mildly," Shinwell said Sunday night, "if gentlemen like Dr. Garbett—and there are others—endeavored to ascertain the real facts of the situation before they embark on criticism of the government or venture into the field of public opinion."

Critical of Archbishop

Shinwell called the Archbishop's speech an "most deplorable example." He added:

"I have great respect for Dr. Garbett as a high church dignitary, but I decline to follow that gentleman, however exalted, when he embarks on a disquisition relating either to economic or political policy."

Shinwell's attack was the first reply from a government member to recent comments by church leaders on the British economic crisis and the political situation by church leaders.

A labor party spokesman earlier said the party does not intend to take any action against the churchmen immediately. "But," he added, if the church gets much farther into politics the matter will be brought to the attention of the primate."

But the primate himself, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the Archbishop of Canterbury, also has spoken in a way that could be interpreted as a veiled call for a coalition government.

Dr. Fisher, England's high church official, has referred publicly to the elections as a "gathering shadow." He said in a recent speech there was a "need for united effort to overcome our economic plight."

In addition, several bishops have expressed concern publicly over economic conditions in Britain.

Would Remove Voter's Poll Number On Federal Ballot

Ottawa, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Nelson Castonguay, the chief electoral officer, today recommended that poll numbers of voters in federal elections should no longer be written on the back of ballot counterfoils.

He made the recommendation to prevent any violation of secrecy of the ballot following a report by Chief Justice J. T. Brown of Saskatchewan Kings Bench Court, tabled today in the house of Commons.

Chief Justice Brown, who investigated the voting in Regina city constituency in the federal election in June, reported that it would have been possible to tell how 20 per cent of the voters in eight polls cast their ballots.

Police said John Kowalyk, 28, and Thomas Waterfield, 23, were charged with breaking and entering and will be returned to Brantford today.

Power Project Half Year Ahead Of Schedule

Dan Joachims, Que., Nov. 15— (CP)—Construction work on the giant new Dan Joachims power plant of the Ontario Hydro Commission is six months ahead of schedule, Angus Richardson, project manager, said during a weekend inspection visit by newspaper reporters.

Total cost of the plant is between $70,000,000 and $75,000,000 and it is expected to have half its eight units pouring energy to Hydro's southern Ontario circuit next July, with the remaining six in operation by the spring of 1951. The plant is being built to supply 480,000 horsepower, compared with 500,000 horsepower at the main Queenston plant on the Niagara River.

The logging hamlet of Mackey, 60 of its families and a Catholic Church, will be completely submerged and parts of three others also will be under water when a new 80-mile long lake is created on the Ottawa River by the main dam. Owners of all buildings are being compensated by the Ontario Hydro.

A new stone church is being built and the excavated communities will be re-established on higher ground.

Stole Clients' Savings, Salesman Given 5 Years

Toronto, Nov. 15 — (CP) — James Varley Bell, 65-year-old securities salesman, whose malpractices were unknown even to his wife, was today sentenced to five years for stealing $50,000 mostly from widows and elderly persons.

Chief Investigator Arthur Varley of the Ontario Securities Commission discovered Bell had been stealing from his clients for the last 17 years, while leading an apparently exemplary life.

His method, it was disclosed, was to write to clients on letterhead stolen from the stock brokerage firm which employed him. He would arrange for these customers to turn over to him for safekeeping" their securities. He sold the stock but continued to make dividend payments.

Last July suspicions were aroused when Bell had no money for dividends. He was arrested in Lindsay on Oct. 13.

Among the victims were Miss Edna McKim of Orangeville, who lost $21,800 and Mrs. Mary Reid of Everett, Ont., who at 75 lost her life's savings of $7,500.

English Girl, Aged 3, Youngest in Britain To Wear Dentures

London, Nov. 15—(AP) — A three-year-old girl has been fitted with a set of false teeth under Britain's National Health Plan.

Dentists say the child, Anne Smith of Birtley, is the youngest person in Britain wearing dentures.

"Anne's own teeth came through all discolored and caused her much ill-health," her mother. "Doctors said they had to be taken out."

Anne will have to wear the false teeth, adjusted about every six months to fit her growing jaws, for seven years. By that time, say her dentist, she will have her own second set of teeth.

Legion Observes Remembrance Day

Marmora—The annual church parade of Marmora, Branch No. 257, Canadian Legion, for the Remembrance Day service, took place on Sunday evening to St. Andrew's United Church. Rev. G D. Young, pastor officiated. Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Robert Henderson, and the two minutes silence being observed.

The depositing of colors was carried out by Comrades Clayton Bateman and George Osborne. The scripture lesson from Hebrews 11th and 12th chapters was read by Rural Dean J. M. Brownlie, chaplain of the branch. Beverly Young recited "In Flanders Field." The junior choir sang "For all the Saints."

Refers to Picture

In his impressive address Rev. G. D. Young referred to the picture in the Legion home of the Legionary of the trek towards the sunset under the caption of "For Services Rendered." He would have his hearers take notice of that picture and then turn from it and its significance to the marker of distinction, the Cross, that on this and other days of remembrance spoke of sacrifice.

He considered that while the poppy had been worn with a certain amount of indifference as to its real meaning, the time is at hand, when it will increasingly be worn as a badge of honor.

Like Sword of Steel

The preacher also referred to the marker in the book of remembrance in Ottawa—a sword. Comrades were like the sword of steel clear and blade shining. The fight for freedom must go on every day. Freedom will say to you "Life is a goblet to be drained". I say "No, it is a measure to be filled." Every seek to preserve that freedom for which so many gave and died until a new morn marks their place. The benediction was pronounced by Rural Dean J. M Brownlie.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Tonight the District League hops away on its second week of action as the Royal Canadian Air Force Flyers take on the up-and-coming Rockets Juniors in the first set of the twin bill at Memorial Arena. The follower-upper is the clash between 6 R. D. and Northern Electric with the latter all out to retain their undefeated streak at the expense of the air laddies. However the Repairmen may have something to say about that, and, anxious to notch their first win, will be out there to give right lusty battle.

* * *

Rockets, after their close tilt with the Electrics last week feel it's about time something was done about a mark on the win side of the ledger, and not being fussy at whose expense the points are made, will do their durndest to ground the Men o' McLeod in tonight's tiff. As far as can be ascertained all squads will be at full strength. Flyers won their start against their fellows of the RCAF by a 4-1 score, but Juniors, showing a remarkable improvement last Friday, are stepping at high speed and the tussle should well be worth the price of admission.

"A mighty tight fit for the senior PCI-ers at the Oval Friday aft. A big and scrappy Belleville squad earned an 11-8 victory, but the Garnet and Gray drew on their savings of a week ago to declare a 26-22 balance on the COSSA semi-final round. Galbraith, Doucett, Locke, Walmsley and Moore starred for the Quinte crew. The local line deserves much credit for a gallant display, taking quite a pounding all through. Backfielders labored lustily, too, and Bey Goulding's team did right well, injuries having side-lined a few of their aces. So, now they sit tight for a week ere hitting into the COSSA finals here next Saturday 'gainst Orillia or St. Kitts."

Tomorrow the CNR Diesels take off for Peterborough where they tilt with the Peterborough Seniors in the second game of their home and home exhibition series. The Trainmen sunk the Petes by a 12-7 score on the occasion of their firse meeting here and the Liftlock laddies will be out to avenge that setback, especially in their own backyard. We understand Diesels will be at full strength without perhaps Maurice Lefort, their first-string goalie who suffered a painful injury in a game last week.

* * *

And while on this exhibition game subject, there is a strong possibility that Varsity junior "B's" will be here on Friday night to cross hockey rapiers with the Rockets. Negotiations were under way yesterday to bring either Upper Canada College, St. Michael's Buzzers or Varsity. However, it was learned that the first two squads had commitments so it will be the college kids or nothing. Word should be received some time today. On the other hand we are reliably informed that Northern Electrics are dickering with the Toronto Meteors Senior "B" team which is operating out of Lindsay this year, for an exhibition game Friday in the event the juniors cannot make the proper arrangements with Varsity.

* * *

Referees, coaches and managers of minor hockey leagues and teams in this district got a grand insight into interpretation of rules, duties and many other important phases of the moppet game at Kiwanis Centre when the Ontario Minor Hockey Association held its Referees Forum last night.

* * *

Executive member Sam. Curry of Tweed, one of the bulwarks of minor hockey in this part of Ontario was in the chair. With him were Bert Hick, Lindsay, chief convener for the district; Irv. Downey, Port Hope, OHA executive member, Redmond Kinchele r, Whitby, OMHA executive member and Bill "Squeak" Morrison, Oshawa, well-known junior and senior OHA official and recently appointed to the staff of referees of the National Hockey League.

Some excellent advice as to deportment, dress, habits etc. of referees was handed out by Morrison who later took over the most extensive part of the agenda, that of interpretation of rules. Some sixty-nine questions were answered at the meeting which lasted until near midnight.

Duties of the referees were outlined in an informative manner by Messrs. Downey and Hick who also defined the duties and clarified instructions to coaches and managers. Mr. Kincheler further dealt with the duties of the coach. Many questions interspersed the talks, indicating enthusiasm and interest on the part of the guests who hailed from practically every part of the district.

The Forum was one of fifteen sponsored by the Ontario Minor Hockey Association which have met with tremendous success in the various centres of the province where they have, and are being conducted. As Convener, Sam Curry pointed out, minor hockey is making tremendous strides in this part of Ontario. This is indicated in the fact that a number of teams of the district went through to the provincial finals, quarter finals and finals last season. Teams are springing up everywhere and the future of the boys' game in this neck of the woods seems assured.

* * *

And the OMHA made no mistake when they inaugurated the Referees Forum. Not only are its representatives, and professional and other referees giving of their time and effort, but the step itself is one in the right direction. The Forums have been responsible for the imparting of some much-needed information and instruction for coaches, managers and referees, and judging from the attendance here, last night's session was greatly appreciated.

* * *

Not only will minor hockey officials benefit by the results of the Forum efforts, but so will the game and the players. There is a right way and a wrong way to do everything, and the OMHA is doing its best to start not only the youngsters off on the right foot but potential and present officials as well. Much was learned from the useful information imparted last night and the benefits of the Forum will be seen when the youngsters take to the ice this season.

Alouettes Loss of Two Import Stars for Eastern Football Finals Makes the Tigers Happy

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The news of the two United States imports that Montreal Alouettes must drop for the Eastern Canada football final hasn't done anything to lower Hamilton Tigers' confidence of pulling an upset.

Alouettes disclosed Monday night that Chuck Anderson, big Negro end, and block-buster Bronco Reese are through under Canadian Rugby Union rules allowing only five American imports from here in. The news was welcomed by Jack McGill, Tigers president.

"I'm glad that big fellow (Reese) won't be hammering at us," he said. "That Anderson is a great football player too."

Alouettes still have a full house of imports to throw at the Tigers in the sudden-death clash at Montreal Sunday for the right to meet Calgary Stampeders for the Grey Cup. Eligible are Frank Filchock, Virgil Wagner, Herb Trawick, Eagle Keys and Chet Cladchuk.

Under C.R.U., rules only five imports can be registered and they must be declared by the Sept. 1 residence deadline. The other two are permitted to play in the Big Four under league rules permitting seven.

Anderson was one of the standouts of Calgary's 12-7 cup triumph over Ottawa Rough Riders last season. He was the only import who didn't return to Stamps.

An In and Outer

A consistent ground-gainer this season, Reese was an in-and-outer with the Alouettes last year. That might explain why he wasn't chosen by Sept. 1 as one of the quota of five.

Coach Lew Hayman explained in Montreal that he based his nominations in relation to possible home-bred replacements as the situation looked at that time.

The Tiger's haven't any of Hayman's worries about replacing imports. They only used four throughout their Ontario union campaign. One was playing coach Merle Hapes, the former New York Giants running back who is on the sidelines for the season from a shoulder separation suffered against Sarnia Imperials Saturday.

The other three, all ready to play Sunday, are: Bill Damiano, 185-pound end who played with Hamilton Wildcats last season; Rube Ainsworth, 19-year-old, 203 pound end whom Hapes brought from his Mississippi high school team of last season, and Jim Caine 25, former Oregon State backfielder.

Nor do Les Lear's Stampeders have to worry about ineligible imports. They only used their quota of five in winning the Western Canada crown—quarterback Keith Spaith, ends Woody Strode and Ezzrett (Sugarfoot) Anderson, tackle Johnny Aguirre and inside Riley (Rattler) Matheson.

Matheson and Sugarfoot Anderson are the only two who didn't play with last year's champions. The six-foot-four Sugarfoot was all American in 1938-39 with Kentucky State and played last season with the professional San Francisco 49'ers. Matheson also played with 49'ers last season and was five times on the U. S. National Professional Football League all star team.

Lindsay Takes Over Top Spot In Scoring Race

Montreal, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Detroit Red Wings' Ted Lindsay has taken over the top spot in the National Hockey League scoring race.

The 24-year-old native of Renfrew, Ont., scored one goal and assisted in three others to bring his point total to 15. He has tallied seven goals and eight assists. One point behind, in the runner up spot is Lindsay's teammate Gordie Howe with 14 points made up of five markers and nine assists.

Montreal Canadiens' Maurice Richard, who leads the league in goals with 12 in 14 games, is grouped in a four-way split for third place with Detroit's Sid Abel, Boston's Paul Ronty and Chicago's Doug Bentley. Each have 13 points.

Four players are grouped for the lead in the assist department. They are Toronto's Cal Gardner, Chicago's Roy Conacher, Doug Bentley and Gordie Howe, each with nine.

Big Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens is the top netminder with a total of three shutouts and a goals-against average of 1.57 in 14 games. Two of Durnan's goose-eggs were registered in scoreless deadlocks, one against Boston and the other against Chicago Black Hawks.

Detroit's Harry Lumley is in second place for goal-tending honors with a 2.25 goals-against average and two goose-eggs.

Defenceman Butch Bouchard of Canadiens is the league's "bad man" with a total of 29 minutes spent in penalties.

Red Wings, who haven't lost a game in their last five starts are in first place in the league standing with 18 points, two ahead of the second-place Montreal Canadiens. Toronto Maple Leafs are third with 15 and Chicago Black Hawks fourth with 11. Boston Bruins and New York Rangers are tied for the cellar spot with nine points each.

SPORTS RECORD

Place Laval, Que. — (CP)—A sports association formed in this small resort town north of Montreal little over a year ago does things in high gear. It has already a new $25,000 sports centre and last Christmas distributed $500 worth of food and gifts to needy families.

Two are Sharing Scoring Lead in American Loop

New York, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Two long-time veterans, Les Douglas of Cleveland Barons and Ab DeMarco of Buffalo Bisons, shared the scoring lead in the American Hockey League this week with 22 points each.

DeMarco, in 17 games this season, has scored 12 goals and 10 assists. Douglas, who has played in 14, has eight goals and 14 assists. Next in the scoring column is Jack McGill of Providence Reds with four goals and 17 assists for 21 points.

The Barons, with 11 victories and one tie in 14 games, continued to set the pace in the standing, leading the western division by six points over St. Louis Flyers. In the eastern division Providence was on top with a one-point bulge over Buffalo and New Haven Ramblers. Springfield Indians, rapidly becoming the dark horse of the pennant race, were just one point behind Buffalo and New Haven.

In penalties, Joe Lepine of Cincinnati Mohawks has the dubious distinction of leading the league with a total of 53 minutes, including two majors and two misconducts.

A new goal-tending leader appeared, with Johnny Bower of Cleveland having allowed 26 goals in 11 games for a 2.36 percentage. Terry Sawchuk of Indianapolis still leads in shutouts with two.

The News says Veeck is selling the Indians for $2,200,000.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Nov. 15. (CP)—Montreal's football Alouettes now are "only 120 minutes away from the Grey Cup."

Bursting with civic pride, Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson came up with that flat statement Monday in commenting on the Als winning the Big Four championship Saturday over Ottawa Rough Riders.

Anticipating the howls of Hamilton and Calgary supporters, Fergie adds:

"If the Alouettes win from Hamilton Tigers here next Sunday and down Calgary Stampeders a week from Saturday in Toronto, they are home with the title. These are two big assignments, of course, but they are not beyond the scope of the larks, providing there is no let-down in the morale of the team."

Local grid fans can be pardoned any over-enthusiasm about the football picture this year. Not since the winged Wheelers won in 1931 has a Montreal grid squad grabbed the Big Four title.

And at the same time, McGill University's Redmen finished on top of the intercollegiate league for the first time since 1938.

As Ferguson writes:

"(We defy) even the oldest inhabitant to recall any such a weekend of sports success in our town. Things broke so well for our frequently-down-trodden forces that, under pressure, we might be goaded into a shrill 'whoopee'. Although this is a boisterous form of celebration to which we're not addicted."

Besides the weekend's football triumphs, Fergie draws attention to the showing of the National Hockey League Canadiens. The Canucks played two games, winning one and playing a scoreless tie against Chicago in the other.

Promoter Tells Why Wrestling Is so Popular

Newark N.J., Nov. 15—(AP)—How can a wrestling show draw 8,300 persons in the same town where 300-400 was a normal crowd at an international league baseball game?

For the answer to that one, consult Willie Gilzenberg, onetime boxing manager, boxing promoter and now a pillar of the wrestling business.

Gilzenberg, who is almost never at a loss for words, advances several reasons why his match pitting Gene (Mr. America) Stanlee against Antonio Rocco drew more than 8,000 last Oct. 28, while Newark's Bears had crowds in the hundreds.

"If you have what the customers want, you have to turn them away," he said. "Guys come to the ticket window at my wrestling match and say, 'what the - - - am I doing here? My wife (or girl friend) wants to see these bums—so give me two tickets.' "

"Another thing is showmanship," Willie continued. "One time I'm in Boston with my wrestler, Tony Galento. The bout is a little dull, so I jump into the ring and take a poke at one of the biggest gorillas in the wrestling business. Of course I don't actually hit him, because I'm not crazy, but the crowd thought it was wonderful."

A native of this industrial-shopping centre city just across the meadows from New York, Willie claims that his formula includes an ability to "feel the pulse of the people in Newark." He pointed out that Parke Carroll, Newark's Bears' general manager, was greatly handicapped in his efforts to get out patrons because of his newness here. Carroll was transferred from Kansas City to Newark by the parent New York Yankees.

"Newark people don't want to see a farm club, when they get in a car and drive over to New York for the big team," he said.

How about boxing?

This query brought a look of dismay to Gilzenberg, who gave up trying to promote boxing here because, he says, "you can't make a living from losing money."

O.M.H.A. Referees' Forum Attracts Large Crowd of District Officials

The do's and don'ts of officiating at hockey games; instructions to officials and an informative interpretation of a large number of rules, old and new, featured the Referees Forum held at Kiwanis Centre last night.

The Forum was sponsored by the Ontario Minor Hockey Association in an effort to give its officials a better understanding of their duties, to enlighten coaches and managers on the subject of their duties, and to iron out wrinkles in some of the tougher, hard-to understand rules of the game.

Convener Sam Curry, Tweed, was in charge of the Forum. Accompanying him were Bert Hick, district convener of Lindsay, Redmond Kincheler, Whitby; OMHA executive member Irvine Downey OHA executive Port Hope, and Bill "Squeak" Morrison, Oshawa, now a National Hockey League referee.

Rapid Growth Stressed

Emphasizing the growth of minor hockey in Ontario and this part of the province in particular Convener Curry pointed out the best strides being made in its development in Eastern Ontario. Trenna, here, he said, are beginning to "go places." He mentioned the midget bantam and other teams of this district that made playoffs last year, some going to the provincial finals. "But there is lots of room for more teams," he said.

Requisites of a Referee

Before going into a lengthy discussion of the rules, Mr. Morrison defined the characteristics required of a hockey referee. He stressed the fact that he should be a better than average skater who can proceed as fast backwards as forwards. He should have above average intelligence be well dressed, have a good character background, be polite but firm to team officials, and players and be dignified as a representative of his organization.

Backhadaical referees, he said will not be tolerated. He pointed out that the game is as important to the fellow in the small town as is a Stanley Cup tussle to National Hockey League teams. "Remember the participants in the game are important" he added, urging no fraternization with players or spectators during or after the game.

"And," he said, "remember, don't argue with players after you have imposed a penalty. Give it them and skate away."

Mr. Downey told the referees it is wise to stay out of brawls if the fans rush the ice. By his conduct is a referee judged, But enforce the rules at all times.

Boss at All Times

The referee is the boss at all times, Mr. Hick said. "You are in full control until the final whistle is blown. And remember penalties can be given between periods."

Managers should be sportsmen at all times, it was pointed out. They should have a good knowledge of rules and give courteous treatment to visiting teams especially if a player of that team is injured. They should set a good example of character and leadership.

Curtail Rough Play

Mr. Kincheler stressed the point that managers should curtail rough play, profanity and arguments on the ice. If these are permitted, it reflects greatly on the team officials. "A lot of it can be stopped in the dressing room before the game," he said. The OMHA is determined to curb rough play for it believed in playing according to rules. It stands solidly behind its referees.

Mr. Morrison read and discussed some 60 rules in a lengthy discussion of the "book." His thorough knowledge and ability to interpret the regulations was greatly appreciated, and many questions were asked during this part of the meeting. Much information was gleaned from this discussion by the district officials present, all of whom were given rule books during the meeting.

The district was well represented with minor league team representatives present from as far west as Port Hope and east as Gananoque.

Alan McFater Wins First Fight As Professional

Toronto, Nov. 15 (CP)—Alan McFater of Toronto, making his first professional start, Monday night knocked out Juan Manuel of Cleveland in the fourth round of a scheduled eight-bound lightweight boxing bout.

McFater weighed 132 pounds, Manuel scaled 132.

The Toronto boy put Manuel away before a crowd of 2,000 at 1.39 of the fourth with two left hooks to the stomach followed by a smash to the head. Manuel was down for seven in the third round after winding the first two rounds on points.

In a catchweight semi-final, Billy Fifield, 160 pounds, of Toronto, won an eight-round decision over Ed Zastre, 172½ pounds, of Winnipeg, winner of the recent heavyweight tournament in the same ring.

The way-ins was not unanimous. One of the judges created a split decision by giving the nod to the Zastre corner.

District Senior 'B' Grouping Is Announced

According to a report from Secretary Lorne Scott of the OHA executive announced Belleville Diesels, Belleville Hockey Club, Peterborough Lecionnaires, Peterborough Hockey Club, Kingston Nylons and possibly Gananoque will form the No. 1 Group in the senior "B" race.

Just where Mr. Cook gets the "Belleville Hockey Club" is whatever that is, into the picture is hard to understand. There will definitely be but one Belleville entry this district and that is the Diesels. At an Arena Commission meeting recently it was announced a Northern Electric to operate a senior and intermediate club was turned down.

New York, Nov. 15. (AP) — George Sauer, the navy coach, figures the Army-Navy game—Army squeaked through 14-13—turned out exactly the way Earl Blaik, Army coach, wanted it. The Cadets made enough mistakes and had a close enough call that Blaik can "needle" them down to the Navy game Saturday.

Story is that a football broadcaster had an injured player spotting for him during a game and the kid became rather tired of listening to unimaginative descriptions of plays . . . Seeking to be helpful when the quarterback faked a handoff, concealed the ball behind his hip and sneaked around end, the spotter scribbled "bootleg" on a scrap of paper and handed it to the word jockey . . . Like Rubber Toy Was Deadly Snake

Chipings, South Africa, (CP)—"Look what I got, mama," said three-year-old Thea Coetzer to her mother. But Mrs. Coetzer, busy with her ironing, merely answered, "Yes, dear," and didn't turn around.

"Look at my insect," insisted Thea, and when her mother didn't respond, added "Nice Gogga."

Her mother turned and found the child grasping a deadly yellow snake in her chubby fist.

When it had been killed by a native, Thea told her mother that she thought it was "just like the rubber one grandpa gave me."

The child was unhurt.

Greene is Given Unanimous Vote Of Confidence

(By The Canadian Press)

An open revolt against Commissioner Abe J. Greene of the National Boxing Association faded Monday and Greene was given a unanimous vote of confidence.

The shouldering internal dissension burst into the open after Greene completed his commissioner's report to the opening session of the N.B.A.'s annual convention at Miami Beach, Fla. Spearheaded by the Illinois and Colorado delegations, Greene was accused of "grabbing too much publicity" and conducting N.B.A. business without the consent of other organization officers.

Greene offered to resign. He told the convention he had heard seven states would withdraw from the N.B.A. if he was re-elected commissioner.

"I'm not going to be the cause of the N.B.A. breaking up," Greene said.

As tempers flared, reporters were asked to leave the meeting. After adjournment, the reporters were told by executive secretary Harvey Harman of Washington, D.C., that Greene was given a unanimous rising vote of confidence.

More than 33 entries are expected for the 1950 edition of Ontario schoolboy's bonspiel, to be held at the Galt and Guelph curling clubs, Feb. 2-3.

Bob Sutherland of Guelph told a meeting of the executive Monday that letters will go out to all high schools in the province this week with information about the bonspiel.

Norm Himes of Galt and Whitey Fiddes of Guelph, presiding, said it is expected that the winner of the Ontario meet will not accept an invitation to compete in the Dominion-Canada final, Brith Himes and Fields. Among the outstanding junior velloy curling, felt Ontario entries are not yet ready for the Dominion event.

Last year's winners from Sault Ste. Marie, skipped by Red Sagle will probably be back, accompanied by first-time entries from Kitchener, Guelph, Gravenhurst and Fergus.

Joe Louis, retired heavyweight boxing champion, dropped aggressive Johnny Shkor of Boston for three nine-count during lively 10-round no-decision boxing exhibition Monday night before a cheering 8,471 crowd at Boston Garden.

The 35-year-old Louis weighing 229½ pounds, had the 220-pound Shkor, six years his junior, down once in the second round and twice in the third. Shkor dropped under two-fisted barrages to the head and body but never appeared in dire distress when the bell intervened before Louis could resume his savage attack.

But after the sixth round, during which Louis suffered a slight scrape near his right eye, the retired titlist started slowing down. From then until the 10th, Shkor landed frequently and several of his blows to the head appeared to pack plenty of steam.

Several changes in baseball rules will be up for acceptance or rejection here by organized baseball's rules committee at Cincinnati Wednesday.

One provides that a base runner shall not be automatically out if he is hit by a batted ball while standing on a base. Warren Giles, general manager of the Cincinati Reds said the rule still would hold if the player were running.

Another recommendation would do away with the so-called new few slow about not standing an inning in a night game after 12.50 a.m.

the 1 1-8 mile race for Canadian bred three-year-olds the richest in Canada. The annual event is the oldest continuously run classic in North America.

The Jockey Club also ruled that horses entered in the race will no longer be permitted to train in the United States on three-year-olds. Since this rule was relaxed five years ago, four of the five winners were trained under better winter conditions in the U.S.

Horses entered in the race must still be Canadian-owned and bred in Canada. They are not permitted to race as three-year-olds until the Plate trial.

The condition of Eddie Sandford, Boston Bruins centre, was described as "very good" Monday night at Boston's Somerville Hospital where he was operated on for a severed achilles tendon suffered Sunday night in the Bruins-Toronto hockey game.

Dr. Thomas Kelly, Bruins team physician, said Monday, that the 21-year-old pivot man "might conceivably be out for the rest of the season."

Sandford was hurt in the opening period when he collided with Bill Barilko in the centre zone. The injury was located above his left heel between the shin guard and heel plate.

At Antwerp, Belgium, the touring Hull Volanta Monday night defeated an all-star Antwerp hockey team 13-4, dominating the Belgians before a crowd of 6,000 who cared with the exception at the brand of hockey served up by the Canadians.

It was the Hull squad's second straight victory on the continent. During their tour in the United Kingdom they won one game and lost three.

Engineer Loses Upper Plate When He Sneezes

Palmerston, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP) The Owen Sound-London passenger train ground to a halt in the middle of nowhere. Startled passengers rushed out to see what was wrong.

Engineer William Balliff gave it to them straight. Going intently back over the unending miles of track, he said:

"I lost my uppers when I sneezed."

The train backed up to the point Balliff pointed out. Passengers and train crew alike lined to the search.

Passenger H. R. Ford of Owen Sound pounced on an object lying on the road bed. The teeth!

Engineer Balliff washed off some bits of grass and cinders and slipped them back in his mouth.

Two tools of the whistle and the train was away to complete the last half of its 110-mile southwestern Ontario run to London.

SPORTSMANSHIP IN CANADA UNLIMITED

North American Football owes its life to a visiting Canadian University!

It was 1874 . . . McGill University were guest opponents of Harvard in Boston. During the warm-up period, the Harvard team noticed to their amazement that McGill were kicking and carrying the ball.

The two captains got together and discovered they were playing different games. McGill had come to play rugger. Harvard was ready for a soccer match. But the Harvard captain, with true Bostonian courtesy, offered to play McGill's game. The result was the first "football" game ever played in the United States . . . ending in a scoreless tie.

Good sportsmanship has won many world friends for Canada . . . just as the spirit of working together has made us one of the world's great nations. These two—sportsmanship and team spirit—keep your opportunities for work and play in Canada . . . unlimited.

Canada's Eastwest feud for the Dominion Football Championship and the Grey Cup began in 1921 when Toronto Argonauts defeating Edmonton Eskimos 23—0.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 15 (AP)—"I'm feeling fine," says Robert Walker, now working on his second film since his mental treatment at the Menninger Clinic in Wichita, Kans.

"I plan to go back to the clinic," he remarked. "Perhaps when I finish 'The Skipper Surprises His Wife.' That would be in about two months."

Walker said his return doesn't mean a "refresher course" because he is officially well. "I just want to go back and see everybody, it's a wonderful place. It's like taking a university course. They work on you, but you work, too."

Tuesday Topics

Fred Zinnemann is reviving his plans to make a film in Israel after he directs "The Men." The director, who first scored with "The Search," spent three months in Israel during the Arab-Jewish fighting.

They're calling Columbia studios the west coast branch of the Mayo clinic. "No Sad Songs" concerns a woman with cancer; "The Killer that Stalked New York" is about a smallpox epidemic; and scenes "The Undercover" about leprosy. Instead of "quiet" the directors are shouting "scalpel!"

Joan Leslie reasons that she wants four children: "One wouldn't be enough, two would fight, three would be confusing, but four would be right." The only thing holding her back is her husband, whom she hasn't found yet.

Capsule Review

"All the King's Men" (Col.) is a thinly disguised life of Huey Long. It's a good tale, filled with hard people; there is not a pleasant character in the lot. This may make the film unpalatable for some movie goers, but many may be fascinated with the sordid story of demagoguery. Broderick Crawford makes a powerful and realistic demagogue, supported by John Ireland, Joanne Dru and John Derek. Strong stuff, aided by great photography.

Brighteners

Detroit — Robert Brown, 32, showed up at police station and said:

"I'm drunk. Lock me up. I don't want to take any chances driving my car."

Sgt. Maurice La Lond obliged.

Soon there were two drunks in the cell.

Sgt. La Lond got this explanation from Brown:

Brown's wife had told him Troia had made passes at her. In an angry mood, Brown went hunting for Troia. He heard that Troia had been locked up for speeding. Brown got himself locked up by feigning drunkenness so he could get at Troia.

Police threw Brown out of jail after taking down his complaint against Troia.

Atlanta, Ga.—The eighth commandment, "Thou shall not steal," brought up with a couple of thieves at church Monday.

Police, looking for the pair who had robbed the Sardis Church of $1,200 in furnishings, nabbed the two as they returned to the church with a truck.

They had come back for the piano.

Chicago—Richard Crockett, 20, discovered his light alarm over a football field and opted to call the spectators, "what's the score."

That was nine days ago. Crockett got the answer Monday from Judge Joseph Burke, hearing the low-flying charge.

"The score is $200 and costs," Judge Corcoran ruled.

Sex Teaching By Film Advocated In Britain

London, Nov. 15. (CP)— Sex teaching by films has an advocate in Education Minister George Tomlinson.

He told the House of Commons that sex-instruction movies are being shown in most parts of Britain "with benefit" to children,

In reply to Sir Waldron Smithers, Conservative Member for Orpington, Tomlinson said the showing of such instructional films is strictly up to local authorities. The government did not intervene.

Willie Gallacher, Communist member, asked the minister if he would make certain no British children were allowed to see the play known as "Desire or Something."

Tennessee Williams' play, "A Streetcar Named Desire," has been playing to standing-room-only audiences here despite mixed reception by critics.

GANDHI'S SLAYER

Godse, the 26-year-old editor of the Poona Daily, had fired the shots that killed Gandhi as he walked to prayer in front of hundreds of his followers. Apte, the publisher of the newspaper, was executed for leading the plot. Four other men received sentences of life imprisonment for participation in the plot while a fifth was acquitted.

An eyewitness said four Brahmin priests attended the cremation, reciting the scriptures and pouring ghee and "ghee" (clarified butter) on the burning pyres.

The bones and ashes will be immersed in the Holy River Indus at some later date, in compliance with the requests of the youths' relatives.

To avoid demonstrations and possibly violence, even the closest relatives were not told that the burnings were to take place.

Police held two men — apparently friends of Godse's — who attempted during the night to scale the 20-foot walls of the jail. Otherwise no disturbances were reported.

At his trial Godse testified that he felt Gandhi was a traitor convinced that the spiritual leader's defence of Moslems in Pakistan was blocking the dream of a united India.

Y's Men's Club Completes Plans For Auction

The executive of the Y's Men's Club at a meeting held Monday night completed the planning committees for Radio Auction, the project of the club taking place on Tuesday, November 15th, commencing at 7.30 p.m.

General Chairman, Gerald B. Hyde; Publicity and Services, Larry Buck; Solicitations, Al. J. Davis; Auctioneer, Les Reid and Finance and Audit, Byron Leslie.

Persons immediately responsible for various phases of the work are as follows:-Publicity, Fred Barton; Radio Station, Max Dorsett; Telephones, Al. Davis; Accommodation, Joseph Mason; Equipment and Supplies, Gerald Hyde; Deliveries, Don Amos; Board Room, Joseph Mason, and Personnel, Ross Booth.

The various committees report that everything is now in readiness for this unique program and the Y's Men's Club expect a tremendous interest in homes over a wide area of the Belleville district last year. Response by merchants and manufacturers has exceeded all expectations, not only have they sensed an opportunity to assist in a worthy enterprise for the youth of the community, but they have coupled with it an opportunity for publicity for their merchandise in this area through a new and highly tremendous public appeal and drawing power.

Each detail of the project is so arranged that, except for outlying districts, all merchandise will be paid for by the personal solicitation of Y's Men, 15 minutes after it has been purchased over the telephone as result of radio broadcast. Merchandise can be picked up within 24 hours after buying from the various stores or warehouses in the city.

Extra telephone and operators have been secured to endeavor to cope with the rush of calls which will undoubtedly pour into the radio studio all evening. Much of the merchandise can be seen in advance by watching for the radio auction programs on the window.

Bind Porter, Blow Safe and Grab $1,000

Hamilton, Nov. 15 — (CP) — Thieves who bound the night porter at Roberts' Restaurant on King Street East early today escaped with $1,000 after wrecking the safe.

Frank Seal, the night porter, told police he was surprised by five men while polishing floors and a sixth man, believed to have been on the lookout outside. One of the five was armed and Seal was bound and gagged while the gang worked on the safe.

It was the third criminal attempt in Hamilton overnight. Monday night a lone hold-up man escaped with $80 from the cashier of the Palace Theatre. Later a taxi owner, William Kosluck, fended off an armed bandit with his flashlight. The bandit fled.

SHIP HAULED TO SAFETY

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 15 — (CP) — The ocean-going tug Foundation Josephine hauled the wallowing freighter Scottish Prince into St. John's harbor Monday after a five-day tow through a seething Atlantic. The 561-mile haul began early last Thursday when the Josephine reached the 7,000-ton British merchantman following a rescue dash from a point off northern New Brunswick.

Coalition Party Has Over-All House Majority

Winnipeg, Nov. 15 — (CP)— Weekend vote counting reduced the number of doubting seats in the new Manitoba Legislature to two, and increased the Coalition Government's strength in the House.

Two more Coalition supporters came up to the House with the Winnipeg North and Winnipeg Centre ridings, bringing the total to 42; three opposition candidates came through to make the opposition strength 12. Two ridings have four seats and use the proportional representation system in counting votes.

Morris and Iberville, the doubtful ridings, will have a second count this week under the single transferable vote system used in one-seat constituencies.

Morris, with two candidates supporting Coalition, both far ahead of the, C.C.F. candidates, will be a Coalition seat, Harry Shewman an Independent, and Provincial Treasurer J. C. Dryden will be the government's floor supporter.

The opposition seems likely to win Iberville. John McDowell, an Independent Progressive Conservative who broke with Coalition during the last session of the Legislature, leads Raoul Allard, Coalition Liberal-Progressive, by 158 votes on Thursday's unofficial count. A spokesman for the Tory Drivers Union (A.F.L.), which has contracts with the 10 companies in the association though not with the association itself, said the strike came as a surprise to union officers.

Quick, Simple Test For Newcastle Disease

Chicago, Nov. 15. (AP)— A quick and simple new test for Newcastle disease, one of the most widespread poultry maladies — was announced today.

An article in the journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association said the test can be given to chickens on the farm. It requires only a drop of blood from each bird tested. Results can be obtained in two to five minutes.

Formerly, laboratory tests have been necessary to identify the disease.

The disease is highly contagious. It causes many poultry deaths and heavy losses in egg production.

If the test "fulfills its promise," the journal said, poultry raisers will have an important weapon start in fighting this virus infection.

Ma was in the kitchen getting supper reddy, saying. Oh dear, this is the last day for Singing Stars on the Narrowdale. I wish your father took more intrist in the movies, not whats a use of talking, it's like feeding a horse to watch, she said.

And pop came home and we started to eat supper, being lam stew without dumplings, and ma said, Goodness, William, it's been ages since we've seen a picture, it must be at least a week.

It's ages are getting shorter, I must i e the influence of the atomic era, pop said. But frankly, my dear, I wish we could take in a movie tonight, he said, and ma said, Oh, really, William, I mean really! Then why cant we? she said.

Because I expect a fone call, pop said, and ma said, Oh, you and your fone calls. I suppose bizness is bizness, and of course it is, but for land sakes why cant the man call you at your office tomorrow? she said.

That might be a little late, but oh well, I'm a man of weak character but all I need is a little immorial support, so if you back me up I wont wait for the call, he said, and ma said, Is it very important?

Well, it was Larry Loftus, pop said. He and Sara want to come over for bridge tonight, but they're not quite positive about their plans, so he's going to call and let us know for sure, he said, and ma said. Well that's different, you silly thing, I just cant come I'll have to go to the movies,

Which she always does, and pop said, Now I've put myself on the spot. If they come I'll have to play bridge, and if they feel like a little bridge.

First Battle of Next War Will be in Air Rotarians Told by Vice Air Marshall

While urging community and national interest in all the armed services, Air Vice Marshal, C. R. Slemon, C.B., C.B.E., yesterday warned the Rotary Club that the first battle of the next war, if it comes will be in the air.

"And we must win it" the high-ranking R.C.A.F. officer who is associated with the Central Air Command, Trenton said. "If we do not, the land and sea forces will not have time to organize and build sufficient strength to win their battles."

And in order to win, the air services must have the fullest support of the community and nation. "You people," he said, "are the greatest support for the services, and we depend upon your intelligent interest voiced through your elected representatives.

No Controversy

There is no controversy in Canada between the armed services because of splendid leadership at Ottawa. "We are guiding closer all the time to a realistic apportionment of resources to the armed services. Only last year the RCAF received the largest allotment of the fighting services, because of the growing realization that first things must come first, and that is to win that all-important first air battle."

Reviewing the Royal Canadian Air Force and its connections here, Air Vice Marshal Slemon said the service has made many friends and associations in this city. It is important to the well-being of the service that it live in close understanding with the community.

"Before the last war, many of us in the service felt we were a group of hand-picked superior beings. We felt we were 'hot stuff.' Came the war and we discovered how wrong we were. We were utterly inadequate, by ourselves, to carry the tremendous load of building a strong air force. We were submerged, inundated under a flood of eager and capable civilian volunteers and reservists. And in no time at all we were taking orders from such people."

"We realize the community fills an important place as far as the service goes. Our associations with you, I hope, will grow and prosper."

The end of the war saw an R.C.A.F. strength of 240,000 personnel, in a few months, demobilization shrank it to 8,000. Commands were reduced from six to two, one at Trenton and the other at Edmonton. Modern air force activities divide themselves roughly into seven specialties, air defence, bomber force, maritime operations, tactical air force, maintenance and supply, air transport and training.

"We have gone a long way to build ourselves into a functional air force," the speaker said. "We now are building up from the two post war commands to specialist formations.

"Perhaps the most important of these specialist formations 'to Belleville and district is air defence, Air Vice Marshal Slemon pointed out, because Belleville lies in the chief line of approach to main enemy targets in America. That is the reason the RCAF is putting fighter squadrons on these lines of defence."

Training since the war, has been given number one priority in the air force," he said. "We would have been a much shorter force if he had formed a number of squadrons for operational shows as do some air forces, but we have concentrated on training and the soundness of this policy is now making itself evident.

"If we go about it we can have a lasting peace, but the only way to get it is to be as strong as we can afford to be, bearing in mind other things necessary to life."

"If another war comes, it will be a total war," the speaker predicted. "Every man and woman and a lot of children will be required to make a full-time contribution, if we are to get by."

Not Advocating Large Force

The job of the RCAF is to pull a force together strong enough and of sufficient size so it will be able to stand the initial shock, then expand and do the job required.

He did not advocate an unjustifiably large air force in peace time, it would be tremendously costly. If "we had too large a force, we might have to forego a standard of living. But we should make sure the force we have is large enough, efficient and properly equipped to survive and win the opening air battle and to expand quickly thereafter."

The speaker likened the air force to a fire department. One brigade can take care of a small fire, but if a half dozen break out then every citizen would be called out to help extinguish them.

"His duty," he said "was to help plan, organize and train the

Slightly Amorous When He Said Goodnight to Girl

Columbus, O., Nov. 15 (AP)—James E. Heer was "slightly amorous" when he said goodnight to Joyce Crafton a few minutes before he shot and killed Jack T. McKeown, an active member of the Ohio State University fraternity.

That was Miss Crafton's reply Monday to the statement to a Columbus detective that the shooting was an aftermath of a rebuff she had given to the admitted slayer's improper advances.

Said Miss Crafton, 22, of Cleveland, through her lawyer:

"There were no improper advances. There was no violent argument either at the dance or after it. He became slightly amorous while saying goodnight. That is all."

In her statement, she denied that Heer was even angry when he left her.

A grand jury, probably next week, will consider a first-degree murder charge against Heer.

Heer, 20, a handsome, curly-haired freshman from Euclid, O., is charged with fatally shooting Mc'Keown, 21, a journalism senior, after a homecoming dance early Saturday.

Detective Sgt. Lowell V. Sheets said Monday Heer's action was a result of a combination of factors, including intoxication, a rebuff by Miss Crafton of his "improper advances" and criticism of him by fraternity members. Heer was a pledge in the fraternity, Delta Tau Delta.

McKeown was shot while he

JAMES D. HEER

and several other Delta Tau Delta members attempted to get the gun away from the berserk pledge.

Sheets said Heer admitted he was "mad at a group of six or eight fraternity members, who had criticized him for dancing with other girls," and that he intended to get a pistol and "start on a criminal orgy."

force so if the time comes, something effective can be done with it. It was the duty of the communities to acquaint themselves with the RCAF, take an interest in it and see that it does the job."

"We ask for the things we need he went on. "It is your job to take sufficient interest to make sure we get these things so the nation will have the sort of air force it needs should the emergency arise."

Air Vice Marshal Slemon, in closing extended a cordial invitation to the citizens to visit the Trenton station, and any other station. "These stations belong to the people of Canada and it is as important to you as to us, that you visit them."

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian "Bill" Morral with the club appreciation expressed by Rotarian Percy McGuire. Rotarian Grant Gunning was the chair in the absence of President Fred Deacon. Rotarian Jack Deacon was in the relief with his solo "Rule Britania."

Terrorists Blast Homes of Two A.F.L. Teamsters

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 15—AP—Terrorists set off dynamite blasts at the homes of two A.F.L. teamsters union officials Monday night.

No one was hurt, police said the intent apparently was to frighten and not kill anyone.

Initial investigation failed to disclose any motive.

The blasts were set off at the homes of Dan Keating, 46, business manager of Local 614 of the Teamsters Union, and Louis Linteau, 35, secretary-treasurer.

Lineau said there had been "no trouble from left-wing elements" and that he had received "no threats."

Local 614 is currently taking part in the midwest A.F.L.'s interstate truck driver's strikes vote.

Police said there was no evidence to link the incidents here with the attempted assassinations in Detroit of Walter and Victor Reuther of the C.I.O. United Automobile Workers.

Pontiac, an auto factory city, is 30 miles north of Detroit.

BRITISH GOVT.

The main reason why the Lords wish the delay is to give the Conservatives, if they win, a chance to repeal the law before it takes effect.

The Labor government wants the nationalization program passed so it can call the election without breaking any of its last campaign promises. One of these was steel and iron nationalization.

Conservatives said Monday night that although the arrangement would be presented to the Labor party as a compromise, it was actually a victory for the Conservative Peers, who have resisted the bill more fiercely than any other socialistic measure. They threw it out in a previous session.

Many parliamentarians think the decision a tactical triumph for Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison, who is said to have favored delay.

Meanwhile, the powerful Trades Union Congress urged its 8,000,000 members to postpone negotiations for any wage increases until it discloses its new wage policy.

T. U. C. leaders met Monday with Foreign Secretary Bevin; Sir Stafford Cripps, Chancellor of the Exchequer, Health Minister Bevan and Labor Minister George Isaacs.

The T. U. C., backbone of the Labor government's support, submitted a formula meant, to protect living standards in the face of inflation and not start an upward spiral of wages and prices.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

That evening Martin found in the darkness of his hut a large basket containing brandy and cigars. By way of decoration a few flowers were tied to it—also a card on which was written: "With greetings to his revered instructor from Pampel Meyer-reder."

Martin never drank brandy, and he loathed cigars. There were still just eight days till the assembly. The dinner jacket was still in pawn.

* * *

It was evening. Martin was crossing the glassy lake in the motorboat, with a pink sky mirrored straight beneath. Once across in Wurmtal he took the footpath, and went on to Dobbersberg. In the cour of the summer he had become pretty much at home over these. Tiger came bounding to meet him with barks of joy. It was all so quiet there, so different. It was "the other shore."

Here he landed on all the bad evenings when hunger became intolerable, when May had to dance with other man, or when a trip in the car took her far away—also when he fell into despondency and despaired of a certain letter from a certain patient agent ever arriving.

Puck came running through the park in her peasant smock.

"Your hands are cold; what is the matter?" she asked at once. She herself was warm and in high spirits. "We have been bringing in the hay today from the upper meadow. It was lovely "she told him. "I'm crazy about haying—the smell of the hay and the way you can lie in it."

Tiger licked Martin's hand with a hot tongue. Martin, who was pale and very tired, asked if he might enter the baron.

"Papa has the fever badly today. But come along," said Puck; "he is always glad when you come to see us. So we all are, aren't we, Tiger? I'll tell papa at once."

Martin swallowed twice before cautiously entering Baron Dobbersberg's room. "I'll wait outside," said Puck. "Papa can only stand people one at a time when he has his bad days."

Dobbersberg was in bed. He was writing at a table placed straight across the bed. His head elongated Et Greco head was in the shadow, and a small lamp threw its light on the manuscript upon which he was working.

"When I have a fever I always observe that my thoughts come with an unwonted fluency," he said without prelude, speaking rapidly, while his lips trembled and his teeth made a faint chattering. "I can follow four and five trains of thought at one time. It is like a first stage of death. I conclude that at the point of death a hundred currents of thought are at one's disposal and one thinks all that in life one demand of thinking. Presumably at the moment of death these waste altogether. One is released from the fiction of time and space. The second of death may be longer than the whole of the rest of one's life. Do you know my book: The Limits of Consciousness?"

"No. I'm sorry to say I don't," Martin said in embarrassment. In vain he sought for some means of transition from the sword-ridden metaphyics of the baron to his pawned dinner jacket.

"You come very seldom now to Tulip Land. You have settled down on the other side, in the realm of banality. It's a pity. Puck is very sad about you-poor little defenceless woman."

He was an unmistakable accent of fever in what he said just then, and his eyes had an unnatural gleam.

"I have been moaning for a long while to ask you what you mean by Tulip Land," Martin asked in response.

"Oh nothing. It is only childish expression of Puck's. It is the opposite of the Banal. Banal. These two realms are always in conflict. But the Banal conquers all along the line, it seems and we of Tulip Land withdraw to our 'native reserve.' Do you hear the music from the Big Peternmann?"

"Yes, that is the Honolulu Shimmy," said Martin, and his feet began to move to the tune that came faintly through the window.

"Indeed. Honululu Shimmy. Indeed," said the baron. He moved his head from side to side on the pillow, and his wry smile hollowed his thin cheeks.

Martin took a header into the topic that would him there. "I'm passionately fond of dancing to tell you the truth. When I hear real jazz I go quite crazy. In eight days there is an assembly dance at the Big Peternann, a swell affair. If I couldn't go I should be in a terrible way."

The baron was brought up short by Martin's ingenuous and eager conviction. He opened wide his gleaming and yet wistful eyes, and looked closely at the young man's face.

"Is that so?" he murmured, and his teeth began to chatter violently.

"Can I do anything—Shall I—" Martin asked in alarm eager to be of help. But the baron only motioned him away.

"Thank you..nothing," said with difficulty. "Just an attack. We'll talk it all over presently. Now...I am tired out.."

Martin slipped out of the door. He was exasperated. It had now become a fixed idea with him that he must have fifty-two schillings and he went in pursuit of them with a blind and reckless obstinacy. He found Puck in the orchard, where in the last moments of dusk she was crouching and busily picking carnations.

"Puck. I've got something serious to say to you," Martin said as he led her to a seat, "Are we friends, you and I?"

"Yes," Puck said, and she put her hands expectantly in her lap.

"You would be glad to help me if I wanted anything wouldn't you, Puck? Otherwise I wouldn't ask you. It isn't at all easy" Martin said. He picked up a glowworm out of the grass and put it on his hand, where it shone like a delicate green miniature lantern.

"Just tell me," Puck whispered. Martin could hear her breath come and go.

"I'm in great trouble, you see, Puck."

"Yes," said Puck, in a dry little voice. She waited a moment longer, and then with both hands in front of her face she began to cry. She cried in a way the astonished Martin had never seen before—softly and quietly and unceasingly the tears streamed and streamed into her hands like a summer rain, with no apparent pain or effort. When she took her hands from her face she was already smiling again, as Martin saw in the glowworm's light.

"It's because you're fond of another girl," Puck said finally, in a barely audible voice.

"Why do you say another girl?" asked Martin. Puck touched his heart; she was very dear to him as she sat there. He drew her to him and laying both hands on her shoulders showered light, sole tender kisses on her face, while at sat nolicuses with wide-open eyes Martin was touched and softened. But there was nothing to be gained from all that. He put Puck beside him again and said outright: "I want money, Puck."

"How much?" asked Puck simply.

"Fifty-two schillings—or even fifty-five," Martin answered, and his chest expanded as he took in a full deep breath.

"You shall have it at once," said Puck, and she jumped up and ran into the house. Martin hurried after her. His heart was beating now. Overhead there was a murmur of voices. Then Puck came running down the stairs.

"It's very kind mother," she announced delightedly. "I haven't any money. Mother will give you some with pleasure, only you must go and see her yourself."

The devil, thought Martin, and he bit his lips in painful embarrassment.

"Be very quiet; mamma's got a cold," Puck said at the door, as she pushed him inside.

When Martin found himself in the Bojan's bedroom he was a little alarmed, although he was no coward. He felt dimly that he was surrounded and beset by far too many women this summer. He was in love with May. She filled him to the brim with love and tenderness, and with desire and passion. He often had the feeling that an explosion threatened him, that he would rent from top to bottom, that his strength was strained to breaking point. "It's all too much for me," he groaned sometimes, meaning the catastrophe that threatened his too aroused feelings. May, young and vital as she was, had all she could do to keep him centred down. But the other women whom the summer days brought to Freyenace did their utmost to disquiet and upset poor Martin Heil.

The day began with the lumpbacked Resi, who brought him milk warm from the cow before he had left his Procrustean bed. Her eager zeal and devotion were at once ludicrous and pathetic. Next there was Frau 'Hrndi gazing with all her eyes at Martin in his bathing costume, at his muscles and the line of his neck which was indeed admirable. She stood for hours together in the blazing sun, leaning on the railing of the gangway. As for the adoring looks and remarks of the pupils who clustered about him, he could scarcely keep count of them all: from early morning the air seemed to shimmer and flicker with them. Even the dead-and-gone girl had turned up—Stefanie von Brieckmann was her name—to take lessons in swimming and with great patience and kindliness he gave them to her laboriously. Then there was Schwolsbachkel too, pretty as a picture with her blue eyes beneath a crown of plaited black hair, had most emphatic ways of showing her regard. She never removed his plate without pressing against him. "Excuse me, if I'm in your way," she would say pressing against his knees as she passed along between the benches.

All this might have been tolerable. But there was Anika—Anikuchko—and she, owing to the unforgetable caresses of her caresses, was extremely dangerous.

"Anika you set me on fire. Anika don't touch me. I shall go up in the air," Martin implored her in anguish. But Aniko did not care.

And then what was to be said of Carla Lyszenhop, who made appearance one evening in the shadow below the terrace where he was accustomed to meet May and threw herself into his arms under the pretense of being May herself? Martin had received her kiss with alarm and confusion and had not said a word. Was Carla to suppose for a moment that he had not recognized her? What the devil did they all want of him Just now he had had to console Puck. And here he was in Bojan's bedroom in order to accept fifty-two schillings.

He feared the Bojan more than any of these. The Bojan knew only too well how to make herself felt in the most dangerous way of all—she hypnotized him. When he came to the castle she did not behave like the other women. She merely began to uncoil. She gazed at his mouth, hands and arms at his neck. She gazed at his hands. Then his mouth and neck and hands started in turn. But the worst was that she hypnotized him. In a shameless and almost intolerable way she hypnotized him with her red hair and her too smooth skin and the Pierrot costume that she wore in "lulu."

The Bojan was lying in bed. But it was a bed such as Martin had never seen. It was suspended from the ceiling by golden cords like a swing—a Cytherean gondola. On either side stood a tall lamp that gave the effect of a stage setting. The Bojan extended a languid white arm, bare to the shoulders Over her breast was a little transparent lace, and lace fell in a cascade from the gondola. Martin had never imagined that anything like this was to be seen except in a film.

"I kiss your hand," he said with constraint, as he advanced on tiptoe toward the bed, taking care to leave some distance between the Bojan and himself. He took her hand at arm's length and shook it twice very cordially.

"How do you do, doctor," said the Bojan in a subdued voice. "It is nice to see you again. Very nice.." she repeated, and gazing at him she fell in to reflection.

"I have taken the liberty-Puck told me—" Martin stammered.

"Oh of course. So he wants money, our young friend who we fished out of the lake. May I be so vulgar as to ask what the money is for? I confess I am very inquisitive. You are a man who makes women inquisitive, doctor. Do you know that?"

DENY HAMILTON MAN HAD BEEN ROUGHLY TREATED

Paul Zuercher Says He Was Waiting for Train When Accosted by Police

Toronto, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Paul Zuercher, 30-year-old Hamilton carpenter, said today that while he was waiting for a train after being discharged from a hospital at nearby Milton Tuesday, four plainclothes policemen accosted him in Toronto's Union Station, searched and treated him roughly.

Zuercher, who was treated at the Workmen's Compensation Hospital for a foot injury suffered on a construction job, said he arrived at the station late for one train and decided to wait for the next.

He went into a washroom and proceeded to dress his injured foot with material supplied by the hospital. A man approached him and asked him for 15 cents, he said.

Incident of Bergye

Zuercher said he told the man: "Get out of here . . . if you were in Hamilton you would get your head split open after the way my kid was beaten by a drunken bum like you."

(Three-year-old Garry Zuercher was assaulted by a drunken man last Nov. 5, Zuercher said.)

Shortly after the incident, Paul said he went to get a bag he had checked. He was then approached by the four policemen.

"They surrounded me and ordered me to come along . . . I put my hand in my pocket, out of habit and one officer pulled it out."

When he was unable to walk fast enough to suit them, owing to his injured foot, Zuercher said the officers began searching him in the concourse.

He said he explained about his injured foot and that he had just been released from hospital. He put his hand in his pocket again and an officer told him if it happened again he would, "get a damn good clout on the head."

Then Zuercher said, the officers led him along a corridor "shoving me and poking me every time" before detective officials in the city police morality department said they had received only a verbal report of the incident and denied the Hamilton man was abused.

They said they received a call reporting a man in possession of "large quantities of narcotics in the Union Station."

Warned Legatee

Camden, N.J., Nov. 16—(AP)—L. Scott Cherebesky, Camden lawyer, made only one provision in the will of his uncle, Louis Cherebesky, of his estate to his sister, Mrs. Clara Tsak.

It read:

"I warn my executrix (Mrs. Tsak) that should I find that any of this money is being used to pay Hoodoo Brown, then I will come back and haunt her."

Cherebesky, whose estate was valued by the register of wills Tuesday at upwards of $3,000, was stricken at Garden State Race Track Oct. 31.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Synopsis—The temperature fell to zero or below over the Canadian northwest of Lake Superior but elsewhere cloudy skies kept temperatures close to or above the freezing point. Light snowflurries will occur over Ontario today occasionally mixed with rain in the southern portions but will cease by dawn Thursday. Temperatures today and tomorrow will be little changed from Tuesday moderating only slightly on Thursday.

London, Nov. 16 (CP)—Sir Stafford Cripps, chancellor of the exchequer, told churches today to stay out of politics.

"The church should not attempt to devise remedies for particular social, economic or industrial evils," he said. That is the function of technicians such as politicians and administrators."

The Labor party is concerned over a series of recent speeches by Cripps' colleagues defining as to what part churchmen will play in next year's general elections.

The Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril F. Garbett, told his diocesan conference Nov. 8 that "a unionized and subsidized British industry can produce more goods to sell overseas. He called on the government to make the facts known to all" on the economic crisis.

Sir Stafford spoke to church leaders at a luncheon session of the Hinckley wing of the Diocese of Lally is the lay sector of the church assembly, law-making body of the Church of England.

Sir Stafford told the churchmen: "We do not want politics in our religion; but we do want Christian standards in our politics."

Sir Stafford told the church leaders Christianity is perplexed by the struggle between Christianity and Communism. Youth, he said, is attracted to religion and away from harmful materialistic creeds, is presented with two alternatives.

Goose Caught At Sanctuary Banded in '32

Kingsville, Ontario (Special)—Today the body of the late Jack Miner while making a catch of wild Canada Geese at the Jack Miner sanctuary to band them and study their route of migration, was found a Canada Goose which the late Jack Miner had banded in the fall of 1932. This means the bird had carried the band nineteen years and had made the thirty-eight flights north and south across the continent. It is not unusual to make or find him along a corridor "shoving me and poking me every time" before officials in the city police morality department said they had received only a verbal report of the incident and denied the Hamilton man was abused.

They said they received a call reporting a man in possession of "large quantities of narcotics in the Union Station."

Members of the R.C.M.P. narcotics squad were notified and with city police rushed to the station.

HOUSING DEBATE OCCUPIES SEVEN HOURS IN HOUSE

Approve Legislation Without Formal Vote

Ottawa, Nov. 16. (CP)—An air of almost sweet reason—with occasional lapses—pervaded parliament tonight as the Commons wound through nearly seven hours of debate on housing.

Criticism, for the most part lacking fire, was almost wholly constructive in discussions initiated and concluded by Reconstruction Minister Winters.

The Commons found it unnecessary to register a formal vote in approving the principle of the government's new housing legislation.

Also the strongest criticism levelled by the opposition was the length of time it had taken the government to launch the legislation.

Aside from that, most members on the opposition side devoted accusations to suggesting additional features which might be included in the bill.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, thought the government's 4 1-2 per cent interest rate loans under the housing program was too high. He didn't say how much it should be reduced except to point to the 3 1-2 per cent rate under the Ontario plan for reduced down payment on new homes.

Mr. Drew also urged the government to give more attention to new construction and experimental methods with the view to reducing the cost of building costs. Mass-produced prefabrication was one method he mentioned.

Raised Out of Order

J. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) thought the government ought to direct the debate into the field of rent control.

However, speaker Rose Macdonald ruled out of order his amendment which would have delayed approval of the housing bill until the government introduced recent orders for rent increases of 14 and 22 per cent on unheated and heated dwellings, respectively.

The general attitude in the Commons appeared to be that the legislation, introduced earlier by Mr. Winters contains the machinery to bring the housing problem to a big way.

There was emphasis, however, on the fact that it is merely enabling legislation.

Mr. Winters said it would accomplish nothing without co-operation and initiative among municipal, provincial and federal governments.

The suggestion of reduced interest rates received support from Social Credit, C.C.F. and Liberal parties.

C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River) said the rates should be cut and the government should also make every effort to reduce the cost of building materials.

Increased Tension of Present Age Called One Cause of Strange Disease

(By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE)
(Associated Press Science Editor)

Cincinnati, Nov. 16—(AP)—Increase in a strange blood-vessel disease, endometriosis, has been reported to the Southern Medical Association.

Some of a woman's reproductive tissues may develop and grow in parts of her body where they do not belong. Those tissues are identical with the lining of her womb.

Modern woman's hectic pace and postponement of having children, may have given rise to conditions for the increase by drs. Curtis Tyrone and John C. Wood of Tulane University school of Medicine.

The disease is one of the most crippling for women. It is second only to cancers of reproductive organs.

The wandering tissues appear as little blisters on the surface to large size. They confine themselves to the abdomen, and frequently, but not always, attach themselves to other reproductive organs.

The Tulane doctors said there is general agreement that use of contraceptives delaying childbearing, is one cause. Then they added:

"We believe there is another factor. This is the increased tension under which the average woman lives today. The accumulation of women from the professions of the dominated male of the last century, with the necessity and urge to make their own way, has created a state of tension in which features of endocrinological importance evident.

"The female executive, the school teacher, the club woman with her numerous responsibilities, and the housewife burdened with the jones are all more susceptible to the ravages of endometriosis than the more ancient woman who devotes herself completely to home and family."

Where the yearning bits of tissue grow large they have to be removed by a surgeon's knife. But they are more likely to stay and interfere with having children.

The first recognized report on this disease was reported in the association's exhibit by Dr. Karl John Karnaky of Jefferson Davis hospital, Houston, Texas.

He uses silliestrol, a chemical compound which acts exactly like a female sex hormone, although it is chemically entirely different. He said that the silliestrol treatment is lengthy and somewhat complicated, but that it works.

Ronald and Russell Holeday effected their escape by filling the kitchen with steam from a hose and escaping in the dense cloud of vapor. They surrendered without resistance when surrounded by police. — Central Press Canadian.

Poland Believed in Throes Of All-Out Purge By Reds, Pres. Bierut Tells Of Arrests

Warsaw, Nov. 16—(AP)—President Boleslaw Bierut has disclosed the arrest of spies, saboteurs and terrorists in a drive to wipe out an "entire underground army" in communist-led Poland.

The report on widespread opposition to the Red government was made in a speech last week to the Central Committee of the ruling Communist party and published in detail Tuesday in the country's press.

Observers believed the unprecedented revelations indicate a big series of treason trials soon.

Bierut told the committee the number of persons engaged in espionage, sabotage, conspiracy, terror and all similar activities is greater in Poland than in any other country.

With these declarations and the ousting of three former important members of the Communist party's Central Committee it looked as if all-out purge was in the throes of all-out purge.

U.S. Supports Nationalists' Right To Sit In U.N. Seats

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 16—(CP)—The new Chinese Communist regime on China has challenged the right of Chinese Nationalist delegates to keep their seats in the United Nations.

The announcement apparently was the first step by Mao Tze-Tung's Red "People's government" in its bid for taking over the big-power membership in the U.N. held by the retreating Chinese Nationalists.

While no formal demand was made for ousting China's present delegation headed by Dr. T. F. Tsiang, a Communist broadcast from Peiping said the Central People's government repudiates the legal status of the Nationalist delegation.

The United States immediately reaffirmed its support of the Nationalist delegation's right to sit in the U.N.

China's Position in U.N.

The matter of Chinese representation is of importance to all delegations. It is a permanent member of the Security Council and has the right to exercise veto if the Communists ultimately succeed in ousting the Nationalists on the U.N. Chinese front, it is assumed the Soviet debating position in the Security Council would be strengthened but the customary western-led majority would not be affected.

During debate Tuesday on conflicting Russian and American-British proposals to promote world peace, Canada's Paul Martin, in a strong 48-minute speech, challenged Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Union minister, and other Iron Curtain delegates to end "the spreading fear and mistrust abroad."

Martin, Canadian Health Minister, told the U.N. there is little hope of advancing out of the cold war if Russia leaders keep insisting they are always right.

Veteran observers said Martin's address was one of the most impressive ever made by Canada in the U.N. and they viewed it as final proof that Canada has emerged as a major spokesman of the western powers.

Yugoslav delegate Milovan Djilas accused the Russians Tuesday of "monstrous" hypocrisy in talking peace before the United Nations while carrying on a pressure campaign against President Marshal Tito.

Djilas told the committee Yugoslavia could accept most, but not all, of the American-British proposals. That proposal reaffirms the peace provisions of the U.N. Charter and calls upon all countries to refrain from any war acts or acts aimed at impairing the independence or integrity of any country or fomenting civil strife.

MANY PROBLEMS BESETTING GOVT. IN TAX PLAN

May Take "Years" To Eliminate

Ottawa, Nov. 16 — (CP) — A jungle of problems appears to be besetting the government's path as it prepared to initiate the much-heralded payments - in - lieu-of-taxation plan.

So entangled are some of them that a government official says they may take "years" to eliminate.

"This cannot be helped," he adds. "The government stepped into the problem picture raw. It had nothing to go on."

Even if it takes a few "years" to clarify the payments scheme, this was only a small period considering that the plan possibly would run "for 100 years."

Professional municipal - tax experts will be employed by the finance department to bolster a proposed assessment unit which will weigh the problems.

They run from questions of what contributes assessable "federal property" to what is "new property" for which tapering off grants over a period of years will be provided.

Evidence indicates that the government already has in mind the main features relative to the troubleshooting assessment unit.

"Considering the heavy task in front of it, the unit will have to be large. It will not be overburdened with staff, the official said.

Council Municipalities

Members will move about the country frequently, consulting with municipalities, answering appeals for assessment increases and making final decisions on what constitutes federal property.

The unit's decisions will be final. The municipalities will have no appeal.

Meanwhile, steps have been taken to bring the scheme into operation during 1950, with some part of the payments to go out shortly afterwards. Eventually about 100 municipalities will get them, averaging an annual payment of $200,000 each.

One of the most complicated problems is going to be "new property." This issue still is not completely settled. Generally, it is believed that the first municipal payments plan will come into effect on the basis of the present overall scheme starts.

But it is understood that although the plan is not effective until next January, municipalities have a right to protest non-payment where the government makes purchases of property during the latter part of 1949.

It will just hope the government doesn't have any property purchases within the next few weeks," says an official.

LIKES AUSTRALIAN MEN

Darwin, Australia, Nov. 16. (Reuters)—Jean Stevens, 27-year-old millionaire American "flying cowboy" who is making a world trip in his own plane, arrived here today and said: "I am keen to see Australia, where men are men and small elks browse."

Seaway Project Opens Debate On Foreign Affairs

Pearson Wants Development Started Without Delay

Ottawa, Nov. 16 — (CP) — In a statement pointed straight at Washington, External Affairs Minister Pearson said today the Canadian government hopes there won't be "too much more delay" in having the St. Lawrence seaway project considered by the United States Congress.

Initiating a Commons debate on foreign affairs, Mr. Pearson said that once legislative approval is given in Washington the gigantic project can swing quickly under way.

He stressed its economic and military importance and expressed "the hope that Congress will be in a position to deal with it shortly."

Completion of the power and navigation project would have "great strategic importance" because it would simplify the problem of buttressing Europe in any emergency and it would ensure the peaceful development of the Labrador iron-ore deposits.

Mr. Pearson praised the harmony of Canada's foreign policy relations but said the U.S. "must play its part, even relative to play her own part, to make her own contribution and she can only do it as a member of the conference and not as a camp follower."

Must Keep In Mind

He said he did not wish to infer that those wishes now were being ignored by Washington but he raised the subject "because if we don't keep them in mind they might be."

In a general review of world affairs, he recalled that there was a "sad danger" at one time that the dollar and sterling areas would split and he lauded their common front thrown up by the U. K., U. S. and Canada to lessen the crisis brought on by Britain's dollar problem.

TWO MINERS DIE UNDER SLIDE OF ROCK AND MUD

Were Screening Muck Through Heavy Timber Sieve

Noranda, Que., Nov. 16 (CP)—Two miners, one a recent arrival from Europe, were trapped more than 1,000 feet underground Tuesday and died under a slide of rock and mud at the Noranda gold mine.

Dead are Claude Guitard, 52, formerly of Jacket River, N.B., and Walter Alejinkow, a Russian who arrived here a few months ago with his mother. Mine officials said no one else was caught in the slide.

Mine workers were on the job throughout the night, trying to extricate the bodies from a blockhole between the 1,000 and the 1,100-foot levels.

Late last night a miner reached the body of Alejinkow who was wedged upright in the blockhole. Guitard was found, only his head and chest were clear.

The two men, both unmarried, were screening muck through a heavy timber sieve suspended over a blockhole connected between the two levels. The sieve, operated by compressed air, the miners were buried in the blockhole.

Mine Manager R. V. Porritt did not know the cause of the accident.

"It's a bit of a mystery to us," he said.

Thief Just Missed Getting Hands On $28,000 Pay Roll

Trenton, Nov. 16—(CP)— An unsuspecting guard was reported Tuesday to have had the narrow escape of an audacious thief who almost got his hands on a $28,000 R.C.A.F. pay roll.

Officials said the intruder was disturbed in his attempt to break open a portable safe in the accounting office of No. 3 Repair Depot of the R.C.A.F. Saturday. The man calmly walked out to the airfield, jumped into a military garage station wagon and drove towards the gate.

In driving rain the guard on duty saw the car approaching and opened the gate, thinking it contained air force personnel.

The stolen station wagon was found in nearby Belleville several hours later.

16-Year-Old Boy Goes on Trial For Murder

Napanee, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Dale Hubbard, 16-year-old farm hand, went on trial today for murder in the rifle slaying last June of Elijah A. McQuade, district farmer.

McQuade was killed by a fusilade of bullets while driving a rake in a hay field on his farm. Donald Ross, McQuade's employee, was seriously wounded in the shooting and required hospital treatment.

Crown Prosecutor Kenneth S. Ham, K.C., reviewed the case and told court he will call 29 Crown witnesses.

B. W. Trumpour of Kingston, is counsel for Childs.

Dogs at Show Wear Paris Frocks, Emerald Coats, Genuine Diamonds

New York, Nov. 16. (AP)—The canine set and chief-rounder-up of four-legged fashion models for the occasion, said their money was well spent.

"This, she said, is "only the beginning. Some of the costumes have ever seen outside of a regular dog show.

The show is for the benefit of the New York Tuberculosis and Health Association, and the sponsors decided to run it perfectly dead-pan—just like a two-legged fashion show.

Spotlights were set to train on the prize-winning canines as they descended a ramp—unclad at first, then all dolled up in their finery for a repeat performance.

Some of the costumes run into money.

A miniature Pinscher, for instance, came wearing — brace yourself—a white Angora sweater, a silver leash and a guaranteed genuine diamond collar.

BED SHEETS TURN UP BUT WILL HAVE TO BE WASHED AGAIN

The phone rang in the local police station just before seven o'clock this morning and an anxious voice reported the disappearance of five bed sheets from her clothes line in the backyard. Police promised prompt investigation into the matter only to have the phone ring again half an hour later. It was the same lady on the line.

This time she reported the sheets had been recovered. They had merely fallen off the line on to the grass. Now the lady's mind is relieved, but she has another washing on her hands.

BREWERY COMPANY TRUCK DITCHED WEST OF CITY

When the right wheels of the truck caught in the soft shoulder of the highway as the driver swung too far off the pavement, a heavy transport owned by a well known brewery company went into the ditch between Thurlow and Belleville Tuesday afternoon.

The driver of the truck stated an approaching vehicle appeared to be too far over on the highway and he veered to the right to give ample clearance when his wheels caught in the soft shoulders and pulled him into the ditch. Very little damage was caused to the transport as it tipped onto its side in the ditch. The driver was unhurt.

ROADS MADE SLIPPERY BY RAIN AND SNOW

Old mother nature rebelled today and all over the residents of Belleville and district just how angry and miserable she really can get, when a cold driving rain first turned to sleet and then into a heavy soggy snow storm. Roadways in and around the city became slithering slippery surfaces and car and pedestrian travel was slowed to a careful crawl.

Visibility on the highways between the city and the adjoining centres was cut down to a minimum, but there were no reports of serious traffic accidents at press time.

WINDSHIELD ON BUS SMASHED BY RICH

Police Inspector Outlines Work To Optimists

Inspector J. Clare Hayes of Belleville Police Department in an address to Belleville Optimist Club detailed a rich field of anecdote and experience gained in eighteen years police work in Hastings county. Telling of booeing and moonshining cases back in the county, he pointed out that people have an unfortunate tendency to divide laws into several groups, and to treat them varying degrees of respect and obedience. He does not require perfection of the citizen, and is made so that all of us can live together in common advantage.

The inspector stated that the need for understanding between law-enforcement officers and the public was never more necessary than today, when the disrupting conditions of war and its aftermath have led to much juvenile delinquency. He described the modern fingerprint techniques with graphic illustrations of how print lifting had broken a burglary cases in our city, and told of co-operation between federal, provincial and city police which had led to the break-up of a national dope-selling headquarters here.

Inspector Hayes concluded his address with a tribute in verse to the Optimist Club.

Films Shown

The speaker was introduced to the club by Past President John Devine, and thanked on their behalf by Harold Hunter. Further entertainment was kindly provided by Mr. A. W. Stirling, of the Institute organization, who presented technicolor films of his former homeland, South Africa. The films painted a vivid picture of life on the farm, and out in the veldt in Tanganyika.

Ways and Means Chairman P. E. Woolley reported a collection of $204.00 from the tag day held last Saturday.

Welcome guests of the club were Joe Agnew, Ted Clarke, Dr. Paul Foster, and Doug Robertson. Phil Flagler acted as song leader, with Sam Cowan officiating as Sergeant at Arms.

$13,239 Already Subscribed in Red Feather Drive

Subscriptions over the weekend have brought the total of the Red Feather Campaign to $13,239 dollars, 2,340 subscriptions have been received. A checkup has indicated a total of eight residential districts and three business districts to be heard from. There are also six special names workers who have yet to complete their canvass and ten employees lists to be received. Those who have the responsibility for these outstanding subscriptions are requested to complete their tasks within the next day or two.

It is the hope of the executive of the Community Chests that this final and immediate concentration on the week end will serve to close the campaign this week. There is still that little more to the minimum objective can be obtained unless there is a very generous response on the part of all citizens. Those who have already subscribed are asked to consider an additional subscription if at all possible so that the absolute minimum of $18,000 may be obtained. Already many have made a second contribution.

May Have Further Cuts

In the meantime the participating agencies, the Children's Aid Society, the Victorian Order of Nurses, and the Y.M.C.A., each of whom has already received a budget cut to an extent the minimum has been told that further cutting of expenditures will be necessary. This can mean only one thing—a curtailment of staff and services. It is hoped that an upsurge of support by the citizens, employers and employees will put the campaign over the top in the next few days.

The following is another prize-winning essay in the Mercury-News Victoria School:—

"Why should we support the Red Feather Drive?" The Red Feather Organization is one of the reasons why communities all over the United States and Canada are being made better to live in.

The Red Feather supports three great organizations, the Young Men's Christian Association, the Children's Aid Society and the Victorian Order of Nurses.

$18,000 Objective

The objective for Belleville and district this year is sixteen thousand dollars and the Belleville district should be able to and will raise it if everybody donates to this worthy cause.

In larger communities Red Feather representatives drive for funds to support all worthy charities, and in Toronto alone the Red Feather supports over twelve charitable organizations.

There is usually only one drive for funds during the year and in this way, citizens are not continually canvassed for donations.

When a Red Feather canvasser calls at your door don't hesitate to give generously."

Do Not Burn Leaves, Use for Leaf Mould

You have observed the carpet of leaf mould in the woods. This is nature's way of improving the soil and getting rid of the runoff of water, says Dr. G. M. McConkey of the Department of Field Husbandry at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Your garden soil is hungry for good leaf mould.

Leaves contain organic matter, nitrogen, minerals, phosphorus, potash, and calcium; all valuable elements for increasing fertility of your garden soil.

Instead of burning leaves pile them on the compost heap. Pile in layers about 6 inches deep, dampen down with water, and then add alternately 2 inch layers of soil. Keep the pile of compost holder in the centre so that the rain will soak in. In a few months you will have beautiful leaf mould to apply to your soil.

This is good conservation practice right at your home, and a good lesson in conservation for all teachers to teach in all of our schools.

Wells, D.P.H., of Picton, head of the Prince Edward County Health Unit, who will be the guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Queen Mary Home and School Association to be held Thursday evening, Nov. 17th. Dr. Wells is a splendid speaker and is expected to touch on the operation of the health unit in Prince Edward County.

Prevent Fires Before They Start

Among the dozen most common causes of fires in rural Canadian homes those originating from heating and cooking equipment are prominent. Here is the list of common causes: chimneys of substandard construction; sparks from dirty chimneys; faulty smoke-pipes and stove installations; burning grass and bush fires; spontaneous ignition of hay; spontaneous heating of coal; lighted lanterns; mis-use of electrical equipment; threshing outfits; refilling gasoline powered engines; matches or smoking in outbuildings; lightning.

The time to prevent a fire is before it starts. Chimneys and smoke pipes can be checked, gasolines can be stored away from main buildings, rags are never left lying about.

An excellent fire prevention on the farm is a roof ladder. Keep a few buckets of water ready for use and a number of water barrels at suitable points is an added precaution. But they are worse than useless if the water is frozen solid should a sudden emergency arise, so choose a reasonably warm place.

A standard two-and-a-half soda acid fire extinguisher is often a weapon which will scotch an incipient fire and prevent disaster.

Investment Dealers' Assoc. Outlined to Club

"The Investment Dealers' Association is not a broker but a merchant because he sells something that he owns," said William Sprague, Public Relations Officer of the Investment Dealers' Association, in speaking to the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon held at Kiwanis Centre on Tuesday noon. Mr. Sprague is well versed in stock and bond dealing having been connected with the various government issues during the Second World War. His address was most interesting and instructive to the many business members of the club.

The Chamber of Commerce forwarded to the club a questionnaire respecting the establishment of a Recreational Commission in the city and it was moved that each member express his opinion rather than as a club. The members of the club were invited to a social evening to be put on by the women's auxiliary of the club at which time prizes for $500 will be presented to assist in welfare work of the civic organizations. Also the members were invited to take part in the anniversary program of the Parkhurst club to be held on November 22nd. A number will travel north to Madoc to attend the club's meeting.

Importer of Capital

After introduction of the speaker by Stafford McKenna, Mr. Sprague stated the Canada up till the start of World War One was an importer of capital, there being sums invested in and bonds issued on the London exchange than any market in the world. "By 1918 Canada was about out of the London market and 65 per cent of the business was done in New York but that market was also closed in 1917 when United States entered the war and the Dominion entered the market with their own issues," stated the speaker. He told of the growth of the Association he represented and showed the advance of Canada stating that in 1915 the first bond issue was sold in 25,000 customers with a total of $19,000,000 while in the ninth war loan there was sold 45,000,000 to 4 million subscribers.

He stated that his company was eliminating unhealthy practices and building up a high standard of business conduct. The speaker stated that speed and execution was essential in the transaction of business and as there were no legal documents involved the word of the dealer must be as good as his bond. He showed that work was required of new members in the association and they must pass rigid education programs to fit them for the work. Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Bill Stovin.

Eight Persons Left Homeless In Trenton Fire

Trenton, (Special.)—Eight persons were left homeless Tuesday night as the result of a fire that gutted Charlie Sills' two-storey frame house at 191 Sidney Street, yesterday.

Mrs. Donald Rivet, who with her husband and small daughter, Pamela, occupied the front of the house, was lucky to escape with her life when the room she was cleaning with a gasoline solution suddenly burst into flame. "I was working around the hotplate with Yalmi, and I don't know whether the can dropped out of my hand or just exploded", Mrs. Rivet told a fire department official. Mrs. Rivet escaped from the burning house unscathed although she was shaken by her experience.

Mrs. Sills was in the rear of the house and when she saw the fire spreading in the front, quietly picked up her two-year-old son, Robert, playing inside at the time and ran outside to safety. The other two Sills children, Mary and Kenneth, were at school along with the Rivet child, Pamela, and knew nothing of their home burning, until firemen subdued the blaze.

$3,000 Damage

Fire Chief Harry Filion estimated that the fire and water damage would amount to approximately $3,000 only partially covered by insurance. Mrs. Rivet family had no insurance on their contents.

Chief Filion's investigation into the cause and extent of the fire led him to believe that Sills' oil heater blew up sometime during the fire since firemen found the top of the chimney had been shattered and was about to collapse. All but one of Trenton's 18-man volunteer force was needed to extinguish the blaze and their prompt action and efforts undoubtedly saved neighbors' homes on either side nearby.

Owner Charlie Sills was back in the north deer hunting at the time, but was expected to return to his homeless family last night. Mr. Rivet, a member of the R.C.A.F. at No. 6 R.D., was on duty when notified of the blaze.

Firemen fought the flames over an hour and a half and had two lines of hose into play before the fire was finally extinguished.

Police Court

Mabel Weeks and Hubert Holland, both of Trenton, appeared in Police Court here yesterday on charges of violating the Liquor Control Act for the third time. They were found guilty by Magistrate C. Y. Wills and sentenced to spend the next three months in the county jail at 191 Sidney Street.

Clarence Finnegan, appearing for the second time for violating the L.C.A., entered the plight of the former two paying $58.50 for his freedom. He had paid $14.50 at an earlier court session.

For fighting and causing a general disturbance at the Boston Cafe, last Saturday night, Earl Ashley and Theodore Wager contributed $15 each plus costs, and were compelled to make restitution.

Joseph White laid out $13 as a penalty for an infraction of the L.C.A.

Newsprint Tax Protested By Newspapers

Ottawa, Nov. 16—(CP)— A 40-man delegation of Canadian newspaper publishers yesterday appealed to Finance Minister Abbott to lift the eight-per-cent sales tax on newsprint purchased by the dailies.

A. R. Mercier of Quebec, head of the delegation, said that Mr. Abbott promised to consider the appeal when studying the 1950-51 budget. But he would not commit himself on whether the tax would be eliminated.

Mr. Mercier, president of the Candian Daily Newspaper Association and general manager of the Quebec Le Soleil, and L'Evenement-Journal, said the tax meant an added cost to the newspapers of $2,000,000 a year.

While the tax was applied on newsprint delivered to the dailies, it was not applied to newsprint delivered to magazines including The Toronto Star Weekly, he said.

This was "unfair". It discriminated against the dailies. "Why should magazines and comic books not have to pay and we must."

The $2,000,000 added costs were absorbed by the newspapers themselves. It placed a burden on newspaper production and it made it more difficult for the newspapers to compete with other forms of publication.

Big Tomcat Shot, Large As Lynx

London, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP) —A tomcat so big that farmers mistook him for a lynx was trapped and killed by a posse at nearby Prospect Hill Tuesday after being hunted for two months. The cat is reported to have attacked 11-year-old Jack Rovey and his dog as they went to bring home cows last August.

FOR PRE-WAR CLAIMS

London, Ont., Nov. 16—(Reuters)—The Commons Tuesday night gave German property in Britain, estimated to value £15,000,000 ($45,500,000), to be used towards meeting the pre-war claims of British creditors against German debtors. The treasury minister, British claims at about £120,000,000.

Luxury Freighter On Maiden Voyage

Montreal, Nov. 16—(CP)—British shipowner Edmund Watts threw the rule book into the briny deep when he decided to build the MV Wanstead, a freighter with luxury liner trimmings.

The 8,600-ton motor vessel reached here Tuesday on its maiden voyage from Liverpool, inaugurating service between Montreal and London.

Watts says the ship has a revolutionary design which provides crew members with both comfort at work and off duty and also has more stability. He claims the ship uses less fuel and rides better in heavier seas than the ordinary freighter.

Now, he claims, the British Admiralty plans to use some of Wanstead's new features, the United States Navy wants to look over his blueprints and Denmark, Holland, Belgium, France and Norway want the patents.

Transport Minister Chevrier plans to look the ship over here tomorrow.

The 48 crew members consider the Wanstead "a home away from home". Aft, from the cabin boy to the skipper, has his own cabin, with a cushy bed, bed-lamp, reading table, dresser and other furniture.

They eat cafeteria-style in a clean ship's restaurant. A menu on the wall shows the day's fare.

BRITISH JETS

Progress in re-equipping jet-fighter aircraft has been very marked in the Royal Auxiliary Air Force. By the end of this year one third of this body will have jet fighters. These are the famous weekend "airmen" who took such a heroic part in the Second World War.

This information was given the British Commons recently by State Secretary for Air, Arthur Henderson, who pointed out that all squadrons of the Royal Air Force Fighter Command and all ground attack squadrons in the Middle East and Germany have been equipped with jet fighters. Jet aircraft have also been exported to other countries.

Britain hopes that the whole Royal Auxiliary Air Force will have jets by the early part of 1951.

MILD WEATHER

November is a month of great variety of atmospheric conditions especially when there is a mild spell. This year it has been mild even though it brought frost and sent the mercury down to below freezing for a short spell during the night.

This season has been particularly favorable with rain instead of snow, the rain serving not a little in providing the power which the Hydro system of Ontario so much requires in these blrobbing days of activity.

Half gone, November has left no trace of snow in the south though in the northern parts there has been a fall of some depth. In the south absence of snow makes it seem as if the winter were cut short.

Of course the month remains grey for much of the color of the landscape has departed. Grey stone and faded brown leaf are there with only the green grass on lawn or in park to keep up the semblance of a departed summer and autumn.

A writer in the Montreal Gazette comments: "The whiteness of winter is dazzling and covers much that we do not wish to see . . . November does not cater to our all-too human wish to be deluded. It shows us the world in its nature and man without decoration. . . . November is the game. Its quarry is superimposed. November wears no make-up. For one month of the year we are face to face with reality."

RELICS OF A GREAT WRITER

There is an inspiration in becoming familiar with the homes of persons whose life history and achievements have made them household words in any or many parts of the world.

One of these greats of the earth, Jane Austen, wrote only six novels, but of such a quality that they place her in the forefront of the great writers of fiction. So appealing is her picture of her time as portrayed in the novels that even in the midst of war a small group of people could find time to form a Jane Austen society. Known as Janeites the members every year make available for admirers of the modern girl who wrote these famous novels as many of her possessions and letters as they can collect.

These people have now bought her house in the Hampshire village of Chawton as a memorial. The house, owned by the Duke of Wellington, president of the society, will be opened by the Duke of Wellington, president of the society. This house where Jane Austen lived and wrote is early Georgian in architecture and of mellow red brick. The oak that Jane planted in 1809 is now a sturdy tree. The house and a great part of the village remain as she knew them. Already the living room has been opened to the public but the rest of the house is occupied by three families. In its drawing room Jane wrote "Mansfield Park," "Emma" and "Persuasion" and re-wrote "Pride and Prejudice" and "Sense and Sensibility." It is a fair-sized room, square and with an Adam style mantle-piece and fireplace. It contains contemporary furniture and part of the white dinner service with the diamond shaped edging in blue and gold that Jane mentions in one of her letters.

She has written in these novel works of elegance and charm and knowledge of human nature and with a slightly acid wit which are as modern as in the days when she created these works which will be a joy and pleasure to generations to come.

To see the house where such a truly great person lived and from across from which she drew her inspiration must be a lasting influence upon all lovers of her work, who either visit her home or see it in their imagination.

The best of all medicines are rest and fasting—Franklin.

THE SECOND GUESS

The second guess is easy. It's the first guess that is hard.
Could you play the last hand over you would lead a different card.
When the football game is ended any quarterback can see
If he had to do it over he would try another play.

As it does with all endeavor, and the chance to win or lose,
Comes that moment of decision: what is best to do to choose.

When it means success or failure, judgment cannot be delayed.
Second guessing will be easy when the blunder has been made.

Vain to look back over failure, in the books the score will stay.
What you should have done you didn't. That is all there is to say.
But that first choice must be taken with the odds against it great.
Though the second guess is wiser, it is always just too late.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

EX-JUVENILE DELINQUENCY.

The other day I picked up the telephone to call Eleanor, and it was almost half a minute before I could remember my number at home. At the time, this memory lapse didn't seem worth brooding about, but last night I happened to meet up with a well-known prizefighter at the Stork Club, and over a jigger of gingerbeer I told him what had happened.

"It was probably a mild attack of amnesia," he said. "As a rule, the victims are folks who, consciously or unconsciously, want to escape from their routine chores, and every now and then their mind will ask for a protest against doing the same old things the same old way."

"What kind of chores should I take?"

"Run pills," said the mind-medico. "Buy yourself a sailboat, take up street-shooting, or get a set of water colors and learn how to paint."

"And supposing I don't?"

"Chances are nothing will happen except that you'll forget a little more frequently. On the other hand, there's always the possibility that you might get bigger and more frequent. That's what happened not long ago to a prominent lawyer."

"What's his name?"

"It don't matter. It'll relish seeing it in print," said the psychiatrist. "Jerry—and I'm sure you know who I mean—may also be one of Broadway's leading juveniles and retire at the latter age, as you know, he put away his hair oil and got a job managing a prizefighter. And not long after, he married the daughter of a network vice-president, bought a home in Scarsdale and decided to settle down.

"Well, he did, for a progress when a girl has too much dowry, his wife did most of the settling for him. She made him acquainted with his friends for hers, his fun for hers and his life for hers. And after about a year, the man who used to be a gay dog became all dog—a Pekingese-lover, that is," Caspar Milquetoast.

"After that year or years of being tamered at by his missus, Jerry came to see me one day and said that he was having trouble with his memory — that it was blacking out on him every now and then. I asked him some questions about his home life, and found that he had an attack of amnesia, and when he came to fifteen hours later he was in a New York hotel room, with no idea of what had happened in between.

"I phoned my wife, and from her story, managed to put the pieces together. Jerry's memory had snapped as he was going to the door of his house in Scarsdale—perhaps in protest against his shuffle-people his wife had invited to dinner—and all he knew was that he was standing on a strange stoop.

"Afraid to ring the bell, he sneaked into the back yard, found an open window, hoisted himself through, then, finding nothing stopped to puzzle out the situation. Why was he in Mrs. Jones' room, would climb through the window of a strange house? And if he climbed in, ergo, he must be a burglar. And so he tiptoed on the left side of the bed, to the room and began stuffing her jewelry in a bag.

"At this point, his misus walked in, told him to stop playing the piccolo and get back to bed, covering him at the top of her oversized lungs. Jerry, in his fright, was afraid of melting into the carpet, belted her one right in the kisser.

"That's, all there was to it, except that he left the house in York, checked in at a hotel, and when he woke up his amnesia was gone.

"Did you tell his wife that her husband had been in a hotel and clinched her on the chin?" I asked.

"The psychiatrist replied, "Of course not, and what's more, I advised my patient to keep his conclusion secret. He's a big reconciliation scene — the old 'wormy apple' routine with Mr. Jones. The more spine he has shown the more apples he will get. Eventually he'll work out to his house for a poker session recently, and the only sign of the cane in the room was when she brought in the drinks. Right now there have been no recurrences of amnesia, and it's my belief that he never will have any more nonsense from his wife, there won't be.

"But are you suggesting I go home and hang a shiner on Eleanor's eye?" I asked.

"In your case," said the psychiatrist, "I think it is necessary. However, if you have any more trouble remembering telephone numbers, I'd suggest you rent a few dollars in a water-color set.

"Look!" he said. "You appear to be making a decent sort of man. Let me tell you something in confidence.

And he told about the impending plight of the Duke of Bridges. The deal fell through. The manager helped the prospect to find a better bridge for $75 a week now, with the new boss.

Moral: Any man in business always offer the old manager more than he is getting. If he won't take it, don't buy.

PAIN IN THE CHEST NOT PROOF OF HEART DISEASE

Less some scary folks get alarmed unnecessarily by remarks in a previous article referring to pain in the chest as being symptom of heart disease. I hasten to assure all that a great deal of chest pain has nothing to do with heart disease.

Pain in the chest may be caused by 57 varieties of disorders, most of them on a great importance. I will rest off just a few here to indicate the possibilities.

"Neuralgia" means pain in a nerve. Neuralgia and neuritis are two different things although one may accompany the other. Neuritis actually means inflammation of a nerve, although, common usage of the term is often extended to degenerative disorders of the nerve in which inflammation is a very minor consideration. The nerves running between and parallel with the ribs are often the site of pain. This state is due, in turn, to a number of different causes which air too extensive to discuss here, Tuberculosis is known as "pleurodynia" Persistent pain of this type should cause a person into brooding about heart disease, if it happens to be on the left side of the chest, close to the heart.

Pleurisy is an inflammation of the covering of the lung. Certain types of it are painful. If the pleurisy happens to be on the left side, it might give rise to the thought of heart disease as the pain is part of the patient, but not to the doctor. Pleurisy can be a rather trifling disorder.

Muscular strain and slight injuries, unnoticed at the time of happening, often give rise to pain in the chest of a persistent nature later on. Any one of the backbone joints may cause pain in the chest of a persistent and persistent nature. This pain follows the course of the intercostal nerves and if pressed on the left side may be interpreted by a suspicious person as a sign of heart disease, which it isn't.

Chronic bronchitis may be accompanied by pain in the chest. It has nothing to do with heart disease. Pain in the chest may be the early symptom of an infectious or contagious disease of the respiratory apparatus.

Disease or disorder of the abdominal organs VEry commonly give rise to pain in the chest. Pain in the right chest is especially notable in this respect. Temporary states causing minor obstruction in the bowels may be a source of pain. Disorders of the stomach, including ulcer or severe, temporary or persistent, may result in chest pain.

The PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Near one of our large cities, an old bridge was condemned and a new bridge built. Naturally, there was some distance from the old.

Hearing in advance through the grapevine that the new bridge was leaving him, a hotel owner, whose promises were at the foot of the old bridge, offered his hotel for sale.

Among the prospective purchasers was a certain city man from a distant region, a man who had always wanted to own the hotel business. He had saved cash sufficient for the purchase.

The deal progressed famously. Few days in the district knew anything about the impending change of bridge sites. Caveat emptor was moving frantically into the sights for the final shot, when the isolated one phoned "Your manager," he said to the hotel owner. "I like him. I want him to come with me, if I close the deal."

This required the manager's consent. He was called in, and the situation discussed.

"How much are you getting?" the city banker asked.

"Fifty a week," said the manager.

"Fifty?" exclaimed the prospect. "Why, that's no pay. I'll pay you $75. You're worth it."

The hotel owner swallowed. The manager gasped. The prospect went away to find a lawyer, and the hotel owner went to look him asleep.

"Look!" he said. "You appear to be making a decent sort of man. Let me tell you something in confidence."

And he told about the impending plight of the Duke of Bridges. The deal fell through. The manager helped the prospect to find a better bridge for $75 a week now, with the new boss.

Moral: Any man in business always offer the old manager more than he is getting. If he won't take it, don't buy.

Two Are Found Shot To Death In Small Home

Port William, Ont., Nov. 16. — (CP) — Bartell and Elizabeth Smith, both about 35, Tuesday were found shot to death in their small bungalow here.

The couple's two small children —Carol, three, and Grant, two, were playing in the house when Mrs. Smith's mother came to visit and found the bodies. The children had apparently been sleeping in the house at the time of the shooting.

Neighbors said Smith, a trainman, and his wife, had been arguing and drinking Monday night.

Police, who classed the affair as a murder-suicide, said a rifle was found lying across Smith's chest.

Coroner J. W. Cook said an inquest is unlikely.

Strength for the Day

THE WHOLLY IMPOSSIBLE

The men who built the Panama Canal had a song theme of which they specialize in the wholly impossible.

People who take the path of least resistance specialize in nothing but certainties. People who are successful but not necessarily great specialize in the improbable. But it is reserved for the great to specialize in the wholly impossible. We need only to look in the Bible to see just how it has happened a number of times in the case of great world characters.

Of course the man who has accomplished the most utterly impossible task in history is Jesus of Nazareth. He started out to conquer the world—and he conquered it. He took all the worldly wealth of his day and all subsequent ages and piled them on their heads. He proposed in this wretched world to build a kingdom of love and gentleness. He Says Soviet Rulers Create Distrust, Fear in Russians

(By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lake Success, N.Y., Nov. 15—(CP)—Grant Martin of Canada today told the United Nations that the Soviet rulers are creating in Russian minds a false distrust and fear of western peoples.

The Dominion's Health Minister said the real problem facing the world is "fear and insecurity which lies like ice on the hearts of men everywhere."

Speaking in the debate on Russia's peace proposals in the Assembly's 59 - member political committee, Martin delivered what veteran observers described as one of the sharpest indictments of the Communist system ever heard in the U.N.

Martin said there is little hope of getting beyond the stage of distrustful watchfulness between Russia and the western world if Russia continues to cling to the apparent attitude that she is always right.

He answered the slashing personal attack made Monday by Andrei Y. Vishinsky on L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister. The Russian Foreign Minister described as "slanderous falsification" Pearson's assertion that Russia threatens the world with a new aggressive imperialism.

Martin said the validity of Pearson's statement was "apparently fully appreciated by Mr. Vishinsky for it certainly roused the Foreign Minister of the Soviet Union."

Pearson, he said, had told Vishinsky the truth and Vishinsky did not like it.

The Canadian Minister said the western powers believe every problem which now troubles the world can be settled readily.

London Letter: Society Members Find Beauty In Records of Bygone Age

BY NORMAN CRISMENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 16—(CP)—A score of middle-aged men meet in London periodically to hear the voices of ghosts.

In a quiet, dim-lit room over an ancient tavern they listen to voices that have been stilled for half a century or more.

The men with their ears in the past are members of the city of London phonograph and gramophone society, who have been collecting records from the days of the 1890's when the Edison Bell Company first startled the world by recording human voices on wax.

At their last meeting the society listened to famous singers of two generations ago whose names now are hardly remembered. They played the records of Bonci—the Gigli of the early, 1900s—Selma Kurtz, famous contralto in Edwardian days and George Formby, father of the George Formby who now plays in British music halls.

Better known artists, such as Caruso, the Italian opera singer, Kubelik, the violinist, and Rachmaninoff the Russian pianist and composer are usually given a concert by themselves.

Find Real Beauty

"We find a real beauty in the records of a bygone age," said R. H. Clarke, the club's secretary.

"Most of our members are middle-aged folk who are not so much lovers of music as lovers of old things.

"Using modern electrical amplifiers and pick-ups, we find that we can get almost as good a tone from the old cylindrical records as from the latest electrical recordings.

"There is a real thrill in listening to men and women who have since lost the great musical gifts they once possessed."

Members of the club spend their leisure time going round the junk stores looking for old records.

"Sometimes we pick up 50 old records for a few shillings," Clarke said. "At others, bidding against rival collectors, we are driven to spending several pounds on one cylinder."

When a record of particular value is found, it is re-recorded on a master disc so that it can be preserved forever.

Cartoonist Ribs His Editors

Windsor, Nov. 16. (CP)—Three senior editors of the Windsor Star turned up for work yesterday in sweaters and then found themselves ribbed by their cartoonist.

The freezing change in weather was the reason Harold Vaughan, Norm Hull and Bob Pearson turned to woollies but Cartoonist Charlie Knight pictured them as "sweater boys" and captioned his picture:

"Editors handle thousands of pictures annually of Lana Turner and assorted sweater girls . . . until finally. . . ."

See Hope Of Ending Feud Of France, Germany

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

One of the greatest boons for peace and rehabilitation of Europe would be a solution of the bitter enmity between Germany and France—and from important quarters comes guarded word that there is hope the breach may be healed.

Foreign secretary Bevin of Britain told an audience in London that the recent Paris meeting of the big three foreign ministers dealt with "probably one of the biggest problems of all—the integration of Germany into Western civilization."

"We can only hope that the results of these discussions will be the beginning of the ending of the age-long feud between the French and Germans," he said.

The unexpected statement by one of the world's leading statesmen was preceded by other equally surprising pronouncements from the hostile camps themselves. Going back to the early part of this month we had Foreign minister Schuman of France trying to convince his people that the best way to avoid trouble with the Germans is for the two countries to become good neighbors instead of suspicious rivals.

That's strong medicine for the average French citizen to swallow. However, not only Schuman but other French officials said the chances of ending the old Franco-German feud were better than ever before in history.

And a few days later Ludwig Erhard, economics minister for the new west German Republic predicted in Paris, that the future of European co-operation will depend on Franco-German co-operation. He said it should be easier now to bring the two countries together because their economic ideas correspond.

Erhard told a press conference he was in Paris to find an economic basis for a political agreement which he expected would be concluded soon. He said Germany recognized the French need for security guarantees and was willing to make sacrifices in order to demonstrate its readiness for reconciliation.

Sounds encouraging, doesn't it? Certainly things seem to be moving in the right direction. However, we shall be wise if we don't jump to sweeping conclusions.

France has developed both hatred and fear for "the boche" as she has bitterly designated the Germans. For many decades now she has lived in constant dread of invasion from Germany.

Fear and hatred breed fear and hatred. And so through the years there has grown up the mighty Franco-German barrier which allied statesmen now are trying to remove.

WEDDINGS

BROOKS—SCOTT

A pretty November wedding was solemnized in Grace Chapel, Stirling, Ont., on Saturday, 12th, at 3:30 p.m., when Mr. William Floyd united in marriage, before an altar banked with palms and white chrysanthemums, Edith Frances, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Scott, of Moira, to Glen Wright Brooks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ashley Brooks, Stirling.

Mrs. Roy Brooks, of Toronto, provided the wedding music and marriage hymns were sung by the wedding guests, before the ceremony, and during the signing of the register, by the soloist, Mrs. Fred Elliott, of Moira.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in her bridal gown of white slipper satin, featuring a sweetheart neckline, molded bodice, with long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in fine points at the wrists and full skirt. Her full length veil of white illusion was held in place by a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a cascade bouquet of roses. She wore a two strand necklace of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

Miss Miss Scott, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in pink satin, with matching headdress of bridal satin and carrying a nosegay of golden-tinted 'mums and gypsophila.

Little Misses Joan Stapley and Gwendolyn Wilson, nieces of the bride, were flower girls, gowned in floor length frocks of yellow and mauve taffeta, respectively with matching headdresses of rosettes. They carried nosegays of yellow and mauve baby 'mums.

Mr. Roy Brooks, of Toronto, was groomsman and Mr. Leon Wilson, of Foxboro, and Mr. Douglas Frost, of Holloway, Ont., were ushers.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, which was tastefully decorated with baskets of pink and white 'mums, pink and white streamers, and white wedding bells, the bride's bouquet received, wearing a gown of violet crepe, black accessories and corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a green dress in colored moire taffeta, black accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations.

The bride's table was adorned with an Irish linen damask tablecloth, having the map of Ireland in the centre, and bordered by various designs, among which, St. Patrick, and Brian Boru at the Battle of Clontarf, were interwoven. A four-tier wedding cake centred the bridal table.

After the reception, at which the toasts were proposed and the bride donned a suit of blue gabardine with wine colored accessories and corsage of red roses. A top coat of muskrat completed her ensemble for the wedding trip to Windsor, western points, and the United States. Upon their return the happy couple will reside in Foxboro, Ont.

Out-of-town guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Mimico, Kingston, and Bermuda, Peterborough, Belleville, Ivanhoe, and Foxboro.

Find Mysterious Blood Difference In Men, Women

San Francisco, Nov. 16. (AP)—Accidental discovery of a mysterious difference between the blood of men and women—a finding which appears destined to save the lives of thousands of babies—was reported today to American child specialists.

The discovery is that the blood of women contains some mysterious factor which gives infants a new degree of protection against jaundice of the new-born, and that the blood of men doth not contain it.

This was disclosed to the American Academy of Pediatrics by Dr. Fred H. Allen, Jr., and Dr. Louis K. Diamond of Harvard Medical school, the Boston Children's Medical Centre and Boston Lying-in Hospital.

The disease is due to the RH factor in blood. Women whose blood contains no protective substance against this factor may give birth to babies marked for death unless treated quickly and effectively. The child develops jaundice, anaemia and a form of immature red blood cells.

Transfusions of blood which does not contain the RH factor may save some babies.

Seeking all possible clues to the reason for these deaths, Dr. Allen and Dr. Diamond checked on 179 babies. They found that 137 of the babies received blood from male donors. Twenty-seven of those babies died. Forty-two of the babies received blood from women donors. None of the infants died.

In the last six months another 40 babies have been treated with women's blood. Only one—a stillborn infant already near death—succumbed.

Dream Thwarted Comes True In Life of Niece

By ADELAIDE KERR

New York. (AP)— Sometimes thwarted dreams flower anew in succeeding years.

Eleanor Rabb's life is proof of it. Almost from the time she could talk, her dreams were spangled with bright lights spelling her name on a Broadway marquee. But those dreams never came to life.

She worked in millinery shops and offices, took speech lessons and other lessons, practised hours in dim hall bedrooms and made the rounds of casting offices. She did land a few parts in stock plays. But she never made Broadway.

The dream didn't die, though. After she married to George Rabb, New York business man, and had a six-year-old niece came to live with them, it blazed up like bonfire. "I'll make an actress out of her!"

She coached the little girl till she landed a Broadway part. But when the play's run ended, the child put away her grease paintand refused to have anything more to do with the stage.

Then one night Mrs. Raab went to a Scottish Rite party where she heard eleven-year-old Johnny Stewart sing. Afterwards she asked him if he'd like to become, like he ever thought of the theatre! He had, and had tried it, and didn't. Would he like some help? He would.

So the team work began — steady months of work in the Raab flat on diction, conversation, reading and acting plays.

Understudy Succeeded

The day came when Johnny Stewart understudied in the Broadway show "High Button Shoes", Bretaigne Windust, got the role. A few months later he moved on to "Love Life". This winter he will be seen in central role in the Rogers and Hammerstein show "The Happy Time".

After Mrs. Raab's experience with Johnny Stewart, success knocked again and again. Friends neighbors and theatrical producers sent her gifted children. She coached Andy Sanders, Donny Hill, Jackie Collins, Keith Rushton and Jimmy Hayward, all of whom appeared in Broadway or road productions of "High Button Shoes". Three of them have appeared on television.

Eleanor Raab's dream had flowered at last.

"I won't tell you how happy it makes me," she said. "Everybody used to ask me why I kept on and on. I couldn't explain. I'm just crazy about the theatre and I couldn't stop. My husband has been wonderful. He helped me a lot. The children think he's swell."

Mrs. Raab is a slender woman with a sixteen-year-old figure clad in dark slacks and sports blouse, topped by a copper-hued halo of hair.

The help she gives the youngsters goes far beyond diction. She has acted as guardian to some who came from broken homes, taught others how to handle knife and fork, pruned "dese and dose" from their speech and given them sensible vacations. She has helped them buy their clothes, fix their hairdos and wash behind their ears. Now she has a class of nine which meets three times a week. Theatrical agent places many of the youngsters she trains.

What is Eleanor Raab's ambition now? It's simple enough. She just wants to keep on tending a dream and making it thrive.

Corn and hogs have always gone together.

As the corn crop grows big so do the hogs. When the corn belt flourishes, pork becomes cheap as any visit to a meat market will demonstrate these days.

The two thieves who tried to steal a 300-pound hog in Germany recently should have used corn instead of chloroform to catch their victim. The hog, it seems, was a stubborn Teutonic species who just would not go to sleep. In fact, the thieves themselves inhaled so many fumes that they were later found flat on their backs in the pig sty while the porker grunted happily.

Smoked ham and corn are so old kitchen combination. Baked ham with corn sticks and creamed ham on corn bread have long been an irresistible call to the table.

An Italian specialty, corn meal mush and tomatoes, called polenta, can be combined with ham for a marvelous luncheon or supper dish. For best results use thin slices of raw ham. If you cannot obtain raw ham sliced thin, use boiled ham instead.

Corn Meal Mush with Ham.
Serves 4.

Combine 1-2 cup yellow corn meal with 1-3 cup cold water, mixing until smooth. Add to 1 cup boiling water to which 1-2 teaspoon salt has been added. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Cover with lid and cook over very low flame or in the top part of a double boiler 20 minutes more stirring frequently. Turn into a greased pan. Store in top box overnight.

When ready to use, turn mush out of pan. Cut into 1-2 inch thick slices. Brown slices on both sides in a heavy well greased pan.

In the same pan brown 4 thin slices of raw or boiled ham. Place ham in a greased baking dish. Place slices of mush on top of ham.

Cover with 1-4 pound slices mozzarella cheese. Sprinkle with 1-4 cup grated parmesan cheese. Pour one 8 ounce can of tomato sauce over cheese. Place in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, 20-30 minutes.

Do you want a particular recipe or have you a cooking problem? Write Mario, care this paper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, for his reply.

Hostility Meets Diplomatic Corps Living in Moscow

By J. C. GRAHAM
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z., (CP)—For a person used to the way of life of the western world, Russia presents "a strange dream world. There there is no criticism at all and where all values are topsy-turvy".

That's the opinion of Mrs. C. W. Boswell, wife of the former New Zealand minister to Moscow, who recently returned after five years in Russia.

In the first public comment she or her husband have made since their return, Mrs. Boswell said, "I know now that the philosophy and way of life is so different from anything we have known that it seems incredible."

She admits she didn't always think so. "When I went to Moscow over five years ago I had a long argument with one of the Commonwealth ministers about Communism. At the end, when I said that I had an open mind about the system, he said, 'Well, wait and see'."

"During our first two years my husband and I were mildly amused to read reports in the New Zealand press that the Boswells were living in luxury in Moscow. At last time, at the end of the war, we stayed at the National Hotel in Moscow. The place catered specially for diplomats, and the food was the best available. But it was still so bad that it was inedible. In the first eight months I lost 13 pounds.

"At last we were allowed to have a hot-plate in our room and could buy 40 per cent of our food at the special diplomatic shop and cook it ourselves. Even so if the British had not shared some of their food we would almost have starved, as our own food from New Zealand was lost. Each evening we would have a tin of beans, herrings or peas for dinner, and sometimes we would wake up in the middle of the night and just talk about food. It is still the favorite topic of conversation among all the 150 foreign diplomats.

No One Dares Complain

The transport is bad and the housing situation terrible. Still, no one dares say so, whether they are Russians or foreign visitors."

"During the last 12 months the diplomatic corps has been the target of a campaign of hate. During the first couple of years we were in Moscow, people in the streets would talk to diplomats, children would accept candy and, although women would not visit them, they would talk freely when they met.

"I learned Russian for three years and could speak the language fluently. When I went to the villages and homes I was able to get to know the people well. All that changed in the last couple of years. People would not even smile at us in the streets. Children would run away from us. We could never meet an educated Russian. We could speak only to certain officials at public functions, for perhaps five or ten minutes, and we saw only one or two wives of these officials at the larger state functions.

"If we held a dinner or reception, a few wives of officials or artists would come. But they would never visit us otherwise. They would make all kinds of excuses, often at the last minute, and then conclude, 'we do not think it very wise'."

Mrs. Boswell said she became friendly with a famous woman who held a responsible position. She gave her a pair of shoes from New Zealand. But the woman finally asked her foreign friends not to attempt to find her. They did not hear of her again and did not know whether she had been dismissed or retired.

Staff Removed

"In the last few months members of Mr. Boswell's staff began to disappear," said Mrs. Boswell. "My Russian teacher just failed to turn up one day and we heard no more about her. Then our housekeeper did not arrive. All the teachers of Russian employed by foreigners also vanished.

"Although there was little difficulty in obtaining domestics through the official bureau, they could never stay long. Probably it was to ensure that they did not become fond of foreigners."

Mrs. Boswell said she and her husband were invited to visit a child hostel and asked to return again some months later. For her second visit, she had collected a large number of Christmas cards for the children. A union official escorted her everywhere, watched while she spoke to the children and finally inspected all the Christmas cards.

He put four on one side, but said the rest, which were chiefly of the robin and snow variety, would be permitted. The remaining four were pictures of houses in New Zealand. The children were not allowed to see them in case comparisons were made.

"We once showed a New Zealand film to a group of servants," Mrs. Boswell continued. "They thought it very pretty, but could not believe that each house was for only one family—they are so used to thinking of a home in terms of one room.

"Altogether our time in Moscow was a frustrating experience. It was like living in a strange alien world, where there is no criticism at all and all values are topsy-turvy. I don't think we will ever be quite the same again."

Diplomat's Wife Admires Activity of Women Workers

Ottawa (CP)—Ask Mrs. Francis Forde what she likes most about this country and she probably will say—the women themselves.

In Canada three years now, the grey-eyed wife of Australia's High Commissioner has had plenty of opportunity to see Canadian women at work.

"I admire their enthusiasm and the energy with which they enter into church and welfare activities," she said in an interview. "I think they have a great deal of citizenship."

She recalled a particular instance, a garden party which the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Rehabilitated Society held on the grounds of the Australian High Commission. It rained. But that didn't discourage the hundreds of visitors.

"The women came in crowds," said Mrs. Forde. "The garden party was a complete success."

Summer means a constant going and coming at the official residence of Australia's high commissioner—a towering red-brick mansion in Ottawa's Sandy Hill district.

"It is the busiest season for us," said Mrs. Forde. "Most Australian officials travelling to Canada try to arrange their visits for the summer months, to be here during the good weather."

Four Children

In summer, too, Mary, Marcia and Clare are home from college. Seventeen-year-old Clare, the third of the four children, now in her second year at the University of Toronto, Marcia, 19, is attending McGill University, Montreal. Mary, who is 21, graduated from McGill this year, and now is studying drama in Washington.

The youngest in the family, 13-year-old Francis Gerard, is the only one left at home when school days roll around. A resident at a day school in Ottawa, Gerard is a Boy Scout and is most proud of Lone Scout badges he has won since coming to Canada.

All in all, the Fordes family has found it comparatively easy to pick up the threads of everyday living in this Dominion, which Mrs. Forde said "has so much in common with Australia."

She recalled her first months in Canada, the troubles she had becoming accustomed to the change in season and the fact that gardens bloom less than half the year.

But she found Canadians use their greenery time to the limit, planting the first bulbs before winter has disappeared and keeping gardens in trim until the last day of summer. And finally, when there no longer are flowers to decorate their homes, Canadians use the brilliant autumn leaves.

Mrs. Forde thinks this such a good idea that she has several vases filled with scarlet and golden maple-leaves in the drawing room of her home.

"In Australia we they wouldn't understand my using leaves as decoration," she said. "But then, at home they have flowers the year 'round—here I find the lovely autumn leaves do just as well."

Fashion Flashes

A FAVORITE with the older woman is the small hat of fall draped with velvet. A high, slanted brim and medium crown for a hat of winter navy felt draped with velvet in three shades of blue.

* * *

A WIDE VARIETY of fur-lined coats is available this year. One of the loveliest is a full-length coat of deep cream colored woolen lined in nutria that extends to the front closing in a narrow banding. Turn-back cuffs are edged with the fur banding. Full coat is worn loose or belted.

* * *

NEW METHODS of handling the shoulder line appear in many dresses. A beautiful afternoon dress of palest wine red silk taffeta has high-placed cuffs at the top of the short sleeves to introduce shoulder width. There are pockets in the side folds of the full skirt.

After Dark Picture Hat

By PRUNELLA WOOD

Most flattering costume for any woman, from salad days to dowager evenings, is the low cut gown topped with a brimmed and elegant hat. For some reason unknown, the combination is rarely in fashion, but it's good here and now. This evening dines in public and dresstily; the tabletop hat should be charming. As to the argument that an evening hat must be tiny (the perennial argument) so that those behind you at the theatre can see what's up on the stage . . . where do all these people get tickets to South Pacific, anyway? Coo' . . . what nonsense!

This model is black velvet, with soft and asymmetric brim, and a huge shot of mock Paradise feathers at its crown.

Miss Olive Ashe, president, conducted the meeting. The reading of the minutes of the previous meeting was followed by the treasurer's report. The proceeds from the anniversary supper were gratifying and the president thanked all those who helped make it such a success.

The nominating committee is as follows: Mrs. S. R. Beatty, Mrs. E. Cassidy, Mrs. F. Phillips and Mrs. Hubert Nickle.

The program was in charge of Mrs. C. White and Mrs. G. Murray. The devotional period was in charge of Mrs. C. Johnston who gave a reading with a "Remembrance Day" theme. Mrs. E. Cassidy read the poem "O Valiant Hearts." Mrs. G. Murray gave a humorous reading about "Beatrice Lillie."

Mrs. White then introduced Mrs. Smiley who gave an informal address on Holland which was intensely interesting.

Mrs. DeCrocker spoke briefly and a short discussion period followed.

Mrs. J. McGowan expressed the appreciation of the club to these ladies, after which refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN
Sunday Supper Service

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. In our house we usually have guests to Sunday supper. Would it be proper for me to have lighted candles on the table for a Sunday supper, at about six o'clock.

2. We have a silver service (6 pieces on a tray), and I would like to know when and how I should use it. Also is this for tea service as well as coffee?

3. At these Sunday suppers, I generally serve cold cuts on a very large round platter that fits nicely in the middle of our dining-room table. But it is cumbersome to pass to each guest. Is it correct to leave it on the table, and let the guests help themselves?

T. H. A.

1. Yes, do give your Sunday supper parties the charm of candlelight. . . lighted candles are correct on your table for such occasions at this hour of dusk, early evening hour, correct and delightful for their glowing welcome to your guests.

2. Make friends with such a friendly possession as a silver service complete with tray, and plan to use it for many occasions, not only as a unit, but also as individual pieces. Enjoy owning the sugar bowl and cream pitcher by using them for every-day occasions. When you serve coffee at the table, have the tray, with the three pieces on it, placed before you, and serve the coffee from your place. Or, on occasions, serve after-luncheon or after-dinner coffee in your living-room, placing the tray on a table before you, perhaps having your husband (or one of the children) take a small cup of coffee from the tray to each guest. Of course it would be an excellent and gracious addition to your Sunday supper service . . . pleasant to "feature" it as the coffee service, either large or small cups.

It's not a good idea to use the coffee pot as a teapot. However, I'm sure you could find an old teapot, even though an unmatched piece of a similar style and of approximately the same scale, that would combine very well with the cream pitcher and sugar bowl. Or use a good-looking china or porcelain teapot (which many people prefer to a silver teapot anyway). Then use this group for afternoon tea. . . have fun creating occasions for its gracious use!

3. Why not plan buffet service for your Sunday suppers? Then you might use your coffee service at one end of the table, and perhaps a salad service at the opposite end. Toward the front of the table (you might even push your table against a wall, having your candlesticks with the lighted candles toward the wall back-ground) have the piles of plates, pieces of silver, the group of napkins, and so forth: in the front center, the large platter of slices of cold meats and then the other food items, placed conveniently so that the guests may serve themselves.

How to Address the President and His Wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am right. . . am I not? . . . in saying that when you speaks to the President, the correct form of address is "Mr. President"! Then what form of address is correct when one speaks to the President's wife?

Althea W.

Yes, you are right in saying that in speaking to the President, the correct form of address is "Mr. President." There is no special form of address for the President's wife. . . she is spoken to as "Mrs. ——" — "Mrs. Truman," for example.

Pretty Pearl Ensemble

By ALICE ALDEN

More than one would think, our system of economics ties up with American fashion. By this we mean that our dress and accessory manufacturers are ever expanding, seeking to give more consumers more and better merchandise at down-to-earth prices. Thus we find a compact manufacturer branching out into costume jewelry. Individually hand made on the island of Majorca is a new line of simulated pearls. Here is an elegant rope, combined with bracelet and earrings, adding up to an elegant ensemble.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Has Only a Few Years to Live—Shall She Steal Another's Husband?

If you knew you had only a few years to live, would you wish to spend the rest of your life trying to make others happy? Or would you feel that you were entitled to do exactly as you pleased for those few remaining years, no matter whom you might hurt?

That, in brief, is the question with which the woman who writes me the following letter is struggling.

"I am the cause of a man leaving his wife and home", she writes, "I am really in love with him and he is in love with me, but his wife refuses to divorce him and he has no reasonable grounds for divorce.

"I am an incurable invalid and have only four years to live at most. Even if this man were able to get a divorce he would have to wait two years for it to become final. I can only grab a year or two of happiness, and I believe I am entitled to it, but I also think it is unfair to him and to his wife who loves him as much as I ever could.

"Would you please advise me."

Somehow, while a decision in a situation like this might be hard to carry out, I do not think it should be difficult to make. Whatever you may believe about what may follow death, the really important thing is, as I see it, what one does with life itself. If there is to be a hereafter, with survival of personality, it logically follows, I would think, that there should be some awareness of what that personality did on earth. Consequently, I would think that anyone who believed this way would prefer to remember his earthly self as one who tried always to live a life of kindness and decency rather than to remember that he had devoted his last years to cold-blooded and deliberate treachery.

On the other hand, if one believes that death ends all consciousness, then it also logically follows that the only immortality a human being can have is the memory of himself he leaves in other people's minds and hearts. Thereupon, the question becomes what sort of memory does one want to leave behind as his sole monument.

To get back to my correspondent, she admits that she thinks to take this man away from his wife would be not only unfair to the wife but also to him. Consequently, whatever conception she may have of what is awaiting her at the end of the period she has yet to live, I would think that even in her own eyes she would be the loser if she yielded to her very human and natural desire to grab a year or two of happiness.

Nor do I think for a moment that if she makes up her mind to refrain from breaking up another woman's home, it will mean that she has given up any chance for happiness in these remaining years. On the contrary, I believe all my friends that she will find herself far happier than she ever would if she followed out her present desires. No matter what circumstances may rob us of in life, there are always far more things left, out of which we can create real happiness than have been taken away from us.

I suggest that this woman, who is obviously making a sincere attempt to do the right thing, should have the will power and determination to put an end entirely to all thought of any relationship with this man, and turn her attention to her friends, and whatever activities she may still be able to engage in, preferably those that may be useful in helping other people. I am quite certain that if she will do this, she will find that the time she has left count not only in how her own happiness, but for the happiness of many other people.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON
Restoring the youthful figure.

That the female of the species is getting more sense in her head is attested by the fact that the fresh diet for reducing isn't going over with a whoop as it used to. In the period of the "boyish shape" the heavyweights took to living on nothing a day, with perhaps a lettuce leaf now and then to assuage appetite. It was plain starvation and semi-starvation made their figures younger and their faces older, because the delicate tissues went into a state of dissolution and fine accordion pleats appeared.

The sisters are not accepting over-curves and they refuse to carry about with them awkward bumps where bumps should not be. They understand now that, if they are overweight, old family Doc will be glad to take them in hand. At a slight consultation —the charge is a small price to pay for regaining the youthful shape—he will make a general check-up. If the patient gets a good bill of health she will be handed a slip of paper telling her exactly and precisely what she should eat. She will get all the food elements necessary for well-being.

Semi-starvation made their figures younger and their faces older.

If she has sufficient will and determination to keep riding on the diet wagon, never falling off once, she can delete pounds with no harm done to her facial upholstery.

Her dietary enemies are fats, sweets and starches; four must be reduced to the limit. Since they create energy, it is not wise to delete them altogether. Though she should avoid candy and pastries. Those dainty little cookies contain just about every thing that promotes adipose cushions. From fresh breaking up another fruit, raw or cooked and without sugar.

Usually it is necessary to make the appetite do a turn-about. Mrs. Plumple will tell you that she eats practically nothing, but she probably has a special yen for those dishes that she should not have. She is likely to use cream and sugar freely in coffee; if that is the case, she is not justified in growling and bawling about the complete loss of her waistline. She can become accustomed to clear coffee, or she can substitute milk for cream.

Breakfast should consist of fruit or fruit juices, a soft boiled egg, beverage and toasted rye bread, which is no hardship. Many individuals prefer it to white bread.

Once a day she should have a green salad to provide mineral salts and bulk. Other items on the doctor's list will be lean meats; fish that is not fat and other sea foods; vegetables—preferably those that grow above ground; unsweetened lemonade; cottage cheese; buttermilk. A boiled or baked potato now and then is permitted. Potatoes are seventy-five per cent water, contain little starch; if is the butter or the gravy added that does the mischief.

FILE OF NEWSPAPERS LEADS TO DISCOVERY

WEDDING BELL: When a bride is the most beautiful on the groom if she wears her wedding dress of best quality satin or velvet, with a long train?

Answer: A white satin sandal with a high heel would complete the bride and about the right height. They're dreamy and comfortable. Queen Mary always wore low heels when standing beside the King, and Princess Elizabeth does the same.

WEDDING MAID: My bridesmaid has been chosen because of her beauty and the sheen of her blonde hair. What duties will be hers to perform?

Answer: Your husband tells us she is a dear friend. If she is capable of doing so, have her help you with the wedding gifts. Help make a bridesmaid look a bit camera shy, that they claim.

North Ontario Will Be Given Power Cuts

Toronto, Nov. 16 — (CP) — Steps to put Northeastern Ontario municipalities on a power delivery quota are being taken by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission as a result of a winter shortage in the north.

Robert Saunders, commission chairman, said in a statement Tuesday night that the move will not affect Southern Ontario.

Officials of municipalities in the Sudbury area have been asked to attend a meeting there Thursday night when the situation will be outlined to them by P. R. McAdam, Sudbury district Hydro manager. In 1947 and 1948 a cut of 15 per cent in normal deliveries was instituted in Sudbury from November until March.

The secretary, Miss Jean Dudley, gave the minutes of the last meeting which was the first one meeting at which the officers for the year were elected. This was followed by a short business period. The young people decided to practise for a dialogue or pageant for the Christmas entertainment.

The devotional period was taken by Miss Jean Dudley in the form of a "Remembrance Day" service which was appropriate for the occasion.

After the meeting closed the hostess served refreshments, and a social time was enjoyed.

FRANKFORD

MEMORIAL SERVICES

Frankford—Memorial services were held at the Frankford Cenotaph on Friday under the sponsorship of the Frankford Canadian Legion. Reeve George N. Spencer acted as chairman for the ceremony. The hymn "O God Our Help in Ages Past" was sung following which Reeve Spencer spoke briefly on the purpose of the annual memorial services. Reeve Spencer then called on the Reverend S. Campbell of the Free Methodist Church for prayer, Bugler R. Smith of the Trenton Salvation Army sounded Last Post, which was followed by two minutes silence. Reveille was sounded. Wreaths were placed by the Canadian Legion in commemoration of both wars, by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion, and by Mrs. J. Tompkins, in memory of her son, George, who gave his life in the Second Great War.

Rev. Mr. Campbell delivered a very fine memorial address, urging all present to consider, and carry out the responsibilities they had in repaying the debt owed to the fallen ones whose names appear on the cenotaph. Mr. Campbell stated that his remarks should be heard by the ones who remained at home by the fireside, rather than the ones who turned out for the services. The benediction was pronounced by Mr. Campbell.

A fair number of veterans turned out for the occasion, and a good attendance of citizens was noted. The color party included members of the Legion, the Ladies Auxiliary of the Legion, and the Frankford Boy Scouts.

Considerable comment has taken place in the village to the effect, that the veterans themselves have had to arrange Remembrance Day Services each year, in tribute to their own comrades. It seems to be the general opinion of both private citizens and veterans alike that it should really be the duty of the village to organize these services, and invite veterans to take part. It is hopeful that more suitable arrangements can be made in the future, which will prove satisfactory to all.

BRIGADE NO HERO TO MOTHER

While consoling words are spoken by Ernesto Cardinal Ruffini, archbishop of Palermo, Italy, an Italian officer hands a sorrowbowed mother a medal of valor awarded her son posthumously. The young man was the 85th policeman to die at the hands of Salvatore Giuliano and his brigand band, operating in the Palermo hills. Many regard Giuliano as a modern Robin Hood — but not the relatives of the persons he has slain. — Central Press Canadian Photos.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg — Remembrance Day was observed as a holiday at the public school. On Thursday forenoon the teachers and pupils had a "Remembrance Day" service at the school, after which they marched to Thomasburg Cemetery, where they placed flowers on the grave of one of their classmates and school chum of last year, Jimmie Vance, who on August 1st passed away, the result of poliomyelitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Fleming, and baby, have taken up residence in Mrs. Richardson's vacant apartment which was recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond French.

The Moira Valley Cheese Factory has closed after a busy and successful summer with Mr. Edward Richardson as cheesemaker.

Several ladies from Christ Church attended the open meeting of the Anglican Women's Auxiliary at Tweed, on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Herb Kimmerly of Napanee, is visiting with her sister Mrs. Allan Jones and Mr. Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Gadkl, and Sharon of Clifford Ont., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Walker for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Webb, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Webb, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert McTaggart visited recently with Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Martin.

A thunder storm passed over this vicinity on Thursday night. Track Struck

Early Sunday morning an army truck driven by an army man and accompanied by another army man went to stop suddenly in front of Mrs. Howard Thompson's General Store, and when they applied the brakes due to wet pavement of the Thompson store. The broken pole caused the hydro meant the truck slid into a telephone pole breaking it off in wires connecting Mrs. Will Robert's house to break but no other damage was done and there were no injuries, only nearby neighbors were disturbed from their peaceful slumber a bit earlier than usual for a Sunday morning.

500 Passengers, Dry Cargo Vessels May be Tied up

(By The Associated Press)

A labor dispute threatened today to tie up some 500 passenger and dry cargo vessels at Atlantic and Gulf coast ports in the United States and make idle about 25,000 ship crew members.

A strike was set for midnight tonight by some 2,000 members of an A.F.L. deck officers union in a dispute with ship operators. The major issue was rotating jobs.

Government mediators made last-minute efforts to avert the threatened walkout of the Masters, Mates and Pilots Union (A.F.L.). The strike would not halt movement of oil tankers and coal carrying vessels.

As the maritime strike threatened, there appeared little progress in the country's coal dispute. But the steel industry was gradually returning to normal production as additional companies signed contracts ending curbs.

The government marked time in the coal dispute. But there were hints it was ready to make some move in an attempt to effect a settlement between the soft coal operators and John L. Lewis.

Meanwhile, the 330,000 workers who were on strike for 53 days, continued digging coal. But Lewis has threatened to take them out of the pits Dec. 1 if a settlement is not reached.

Joining in the back-to-work movement in the steel industry were more than 12,000 workers in five plants of Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Corporation. The company signed a contract similar to those signed by other firms in the last week which call for free pensions.

It was expected most of the 200,000 C.I.O. United Steelworkers who struck Oct. 1 will be back on the job within 10 days. Among major producers still unsigned and who employ about 35,000 workers are Bunson Steel Corporation and Pittsburgh Steel Company.

W.A. Bazaar, Tea

Wednesday was an ideal afternoon for the annual bazaar and afternoon tea held by the Women's Association of the United Church. Judging from the number present, the half-holiday and the weather combined to make this event a successful one. In the neighborhood of $164. was cleared as the result of the day's activities.

The ladies had been exceedingly busy judging from the number and variety of articles for sale.

In charge of the "loaded" apron table were Mesdames Everett Stratton, Walter Morden and Orville Stratton. The cost of living must be on "the wane" as the ladies reported a decrease in the price of their aprons this year. On display were all colors, styles and sizes.

The "Touch and Take" table caught one's eye with its splendid array of numerous articles. Many a dime was spent here in hopes of taking home a "gold mine". In charge of this table were Mrs. Archie Greatrix and Mrs. Elmer Vivian.

Fine Cookery

Not many passed the home cooking array without the urge to procure one of their tempting pies, cakes, tarts, muffins, cookies or buns. Mesdames Carl, Hinchey and Saul McFarlane had charge of this thriving business. One wondered where the variety and amount could ever come from. It did prove to an outsider that the local ladies could certainly cook. A tempting display of home-made candy was also present on this table.

Mesdames Claude Clarke, Clarence Mastin, and Kenneth Vivian, were the ladies in charge of the fancy work table. This was an ideal spot to do some early Xmas shopping and it was indeed fortunate that pay day was not too far past when one saw the tempting display of embroidered pillow cases, tea towels, table cloths, crocheted doilies, tatted hankies and other numerous articles.

In charge of the vegetable table was Mrs. Percy Moore and Mrs. W. D. Robertson. From the variety of vegetables all Shannonville gardners had excellent intentions this past summer. Home-made pickles and tomato juice also plants were on sale at this table.

Fine Hundiwork of Teen Age Girls

The Sunshine Girls' group had their display table again this year. All work being done by these teen-age girls who are real "live wires" in their accomplishments. Viewed on this table was a variety of knitted articles, embroidery work, home cooking and candy. Miss Beatrice Uens was in charge of the sales the early part of the afternoon and Miss Leona Uens, the latter part of the day.

The tea table looked most attractive with its exquisite lace cloth, silver candlesticks with red and green lighted tapers, beautiful tea services gracing each end of the table and centred by autumn flowers.

Pouring tea during the afternoon were: Mrs. Alan MacDonald, Mrs. G. Currie, Mrs. J. F. MacFarlane, Mrs. A. Curl and Mrs L. W. Scott.

Mrs. Stanley MacDonald acted in the capacity of cashier for the tea. Assisting with the tea plates were: Mrs. Frank Doxtator, Mrs. Arthur Horton, Mrs. Ross Shelter, and Mrs. Russell Westcott.

Mrs. Harry Sine had charge of the making of the tea. Mrs. Hudson Cook and Miss Winnifred Eckhardt did a marvellous job of dish-washing.

Much credit is due the president Mrs. Sam Elliott, and the ladies of the Women's Association for their hard work, planning and making this annual event the success it was.

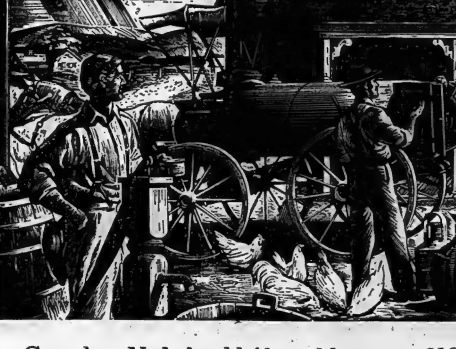
60 YEARS OF ACCOMPLISHMENT

1889 1949

Lamp oil or kerosene, the most valued product derived from petroleum in 1889, was often peddled from door to door in horse-drawn tank wagons. Gasoline, a dangerous by-product, was a drug on the market for many years. Today the search for new oil deposits and the search for still greater efficiency in refining petroleum into hundreds of useful products have become big business. Nickel steels, because of their exceptional strength and toughness, are practically indispensable in the machinery which drills deep into the earth. In its refineries, Nickel alloys have solved numerous problems because they resist acid corrosion and stand up under terrific heat and sub-zero temperatures.



Canadian Nickel sold Abroad brings in U.S. Dollars

Since more than ninety per cent of the Nickel produced in Canada is sold to the United States and other countries, it brings a constant flow of dollars back to Canada. In fact, Canada's Nickel industry is one of our chief sources of U.S. dollars so essential at the present time to maintain our foreign trade and make available products not produced in this country.

These dollars help pay the wages of the 14,000 Nickel employees, and help provide the dollars which make it possible to pay millions in freight to Canadian railways, to buy timber, steel, coal, machinery and supplies amounting to many millions each year.

These millions, flowing into all industries through the length and breadth of Canada, help create jobs for Canadians.

ARMISTICE DAY IN STEEL WAR

Signatures have been affixed to the agreement ending Big Steel's 63-day long strike, and it's handshakes all around. Mexican Police Help Search For Sadistic Slayer of Child

Los Angeles, Nov. 16 —(AP)— Mexican police today helped search for the sadistic slayer of six-year-old Linda Joyce Glucich as an autopsy disclosed the vicious brutality of the attack.

The mutilated blanket-wrapped body of the little girl was found Tuesday buried under rubbish in the backyard of a neighbor's house where she last was seen alive. In that house lived Fred Stroble, 66, retired baker, at large in another child molestation case. Stroble, a police broadcast said, "is believed to have murdered" Linda Joyce.

A bus driver told police he drove a man resembling Stroble across the Mexican border.

The child had been strangled by a man's tie and her body hacked with an ax and stabbed by an ice pick or similar instrument.

Dr. Frederick D. Newbarr, county autopsy surgeon, said death was caused by asphyxia from strangulation. He found three stab wounds, two of which penetrated the lungs.

Twelve slashes in her head presumably were made by a bloody ax found at the scene.

While Detective Sgt. Bill Brennan said that all evidence pointed to rape, Dr. Newbarr said he found no evidence of a sexual attack on the child. However, he said microscopic tests will be made to determine this.

Linda Joyce had been missing since Monday afternoon when she ran laughing out to play. Police believe she had gone to the home where Stroble was staying to play with his grandchild, Rochelle Hausman, six, Rochelle's backyard, with its swings and teeter-totters, was a neighborhood mecca for kids.

But Rochelle and her mother, Mrs. Sylvia Hausman, were not home. Stroble was alone in the house. He was gone when they returned.

Stroble had been at the home of his son-in-law, Reuben Hausman, only a week. He had jumped $500 bail May 11 when due for trial on a morals charge involving a 10-year-old girl in suburban Highland Park. Stroble's wife is in a mental institution.

All Six Guns Of Hunting Party Are Recovered

Marmora—Recovery of the six guns belonging to the hunting party which included Herbert Wright and James Allan McGarvey, principals in the near drowning episode on Sunday was effected on Monday.

Wright and Hilliard McGarvey, cousin, of James Allan McGarvey, left Marmora to be at the scene of the accident at daybreak to search for the guns, which had a total value of at least two hundred dollars. They intended to search the creek for about two hundred yards. Seeing a newspaper in about three feet of water close to the shore the two immersed men had been taken out the previous afternoon. McGarvey had the feeling that they were on the right scent.

Spotted Haversack

Paddling out a little, he then spotted a haversack in the bottom of the stream. Reaching to shore, he procured a stake which he drove into the bed of the haversack as a marker, that the two men might search the waters around for a fifty foot radius. Then the haversack was pulled up from a depth of eight or nine feet with the use of an oar.

A few feet further upstream McGarvey sighted the gasoline canteen that had belonged to the gift and near it the six guns. Two of these he raised by putting a nail through a pole to serve as a hook. At this time visibility ended through the watery becoming ruffled by a wind which had risen. The men stayed at their camp until nightfall, when two more of their party, Harold Landon and Henry Emmy returned from the village with lamps and a gaff. The watter now being calm the remaining four guns were recovered.

16 Municipalities Ask Assistance To Finance Work

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Sixteen Ontario municipalities are supplying for assistance in financing sewers and waterworks projects valued altogether at more than $2,500,000.

The applications go first to the Ontario Municipal Board, which decides whether the size and need of each project is justified in relation to the municipality's ability to pay for it.

Discussing the applications in an interview Tuesday, Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar said that when the Board approves an application the province then moves to buy up the debentures that are issued to obtain the necessary monies to do the work. The financing is done by a crown corporation, which will have $50,000,000 to work with.

The province has already taken up a $135,000 debenture issue of Mattawa's in order that the town could proceed with the construction of a waterworks and sewage disposal system. Because the government pays the full dollar value of the issue and charges less than the four per cent interest rate prevailing on the open market, it has been estimated Mattawa would save $12,000 in its financing venture.

Other municipalities which have applied include Norwood, $100,000 for waterworks; Port Credit, $600,000, sewers and waterworks; Tweed $75,000 for waterworks; Cannington $120,000 for waterworks; Acton, $350,000 for sewers; Goderich, $0,000 for sewers; New Liskeard, $150,000 for sewers and waterworks; Thurlow Township $60,000 for waterworks; Scarboro Township, $450,000 for sewers and waterworks; Cornwall, $25,000 for waterworks; Merrisburg, $1,200 for waterworks; Oshawa, $210,000 for waterworks; Milton $300,000 for sewers; Sandwich East Township, $6,000 for waterworks and Bennsville, $183,000 for sewers.

LEWIS OBJECTS TO FACT-FINDING BOARD ON ISSUE

Steel Strike Continues Its Rapid Collapsing

(By The Associated Press)

The choice of the devil or the deep blue sea—in his viewpoint—faced John L. Lewis today.

Elsewhere the United States labor picture showed the C.I.O. electrical workers fighting their ousted brethren in courts in a continuation of the left wing-right wing battle. A strike of Maritime ship's officers was averted, and the steel strike continued its rapid collapsing.

Lewis, as United Mine Workers, was reported in two views on the issue, neither of which were to his taste: A fact-finding board with power to recommend a settlement of the coal strike; or invocation of Taft-Hartley labor law provisions for an 80-day anti-strike injunction.

The coal operators were reported willing to accept the fact-finding board, but would reject use of the 80-day mine walkout but Lewis has indicated his prevalent opposition. The White House, however, was reported ready to invoke the Taft-Hartley law—disliked again by Lewis—to avoid another walkout. The two sides are temporarily back at work.

Narrowly Averted

A strike of 2,000 A.F.L. deck and engine United States vessels plying the Atlantic and Gulf coasts was averted when a narrowly averted late Tuesday night by government intervention.

A truce for at least one week—but more probably for 30 days —was agreed upon an hour before the A.F.L. masters, mates and pilots were to walk off passenger and dry cargo vessels.

Federal mediators proposed the truce to allow more time for the parties to work out a 30-day cooling-off hour hiring arrangements demanded by the union, and 18 other contract figures.

The tangled civil war of the electrical workers was referred to the courts and moved up to the National Labor Relations Board. At issue was the C.I.O. union membership of the union recently ousted by it, on the usual charges of communist control.

Company Asks Question

The new C.I.O. union, the International Electrical Union, today asked a direct bargaining elections under auspices of the National Labor Relations Board at all major electrical manufacturing firms. Officials of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation asked the N.L.R.B. to decide whether which union it shall deal—the C.I.O.-I.U.E. or the ousted United Electrical Workers.

Right-wingers by the thousands, in 10 key states, have voted for secession from the left-wing union.

In the steel situation, blast furnaces continued their warming up processes as more men streamed back in the wake of settlements. Production this week was placed at 61.5 per cent of capacity with steel-men aiming at 100 per cent by mid-December.

Coasting Vessels Collide in Thames, Fog Slows Traffic

London, Nov. 16—(CP)—Two coasting vessels collided in the Thames estuary today as England's two-day fog began to lift in patches. Early reports that one of the ships sank were erroneous.

Road and rail traffic continued at a crawl and thousands reported late for work.

The small Netherlands coaster Mercurius was anchored off Hole Haven with a slight list after a collision with the 400-ton British coaster Scotsburn.

Both ships were reported safe after two seamen from the Mercurius, knocked from the ship in the crash, were picked up from the water.

Many road accidents were reported and trains were running slow on fog service. Airports in the London area, foggbound Tuesday, were expected to resume operations as the fog lifted today.

THEN . . . AND NOW

Richard C. MacGregor of Saskatoon is shown, left, as a private with the 53rd Infantry Battalion during the First World War. He was reported missing, believed killed in action, in 1917. Suffering from partial loss of memory, he somehow got back to Canada. In 1937 he wandered into a pensions office in Regina to apply for help —but his discharge papers were lost and his memory hazy. For 13 years the R.C.M.P. and the Veterans, Defence and Resources Departments searched records for a clue to his identity. The mystery was solved this year: his laugh was recognized by a woman he once planned to marry. The "new" Richard C. MacGregor, right, now gets a $40-a-month veteran's allowance. — (CP Photo.)

OLD INFORMER SNEAKING BACK INTO POLITICS

British Govt. Admits Some Have Been Paid for Information

London, Nov. 16 — (CP) — A casual parliamentary question brought that allopery character, the informer, skulking back to the centre of the British political stage.

His reappearance has caused a lot of thought about activities of the informer in civilized communities. Some independent critics asked a pointed question:

Is British socialism, by encouraging informers, taking the first step down the sinister slope to a "secret state"?

Those who answered yes to that question went back 300 years for a parallel. They compared modern informers with Titus Oates, a 17th century English conspirator who devoted most of his lifetime to concocting elaborate plots which ended during the reign of Charles II.

The question of informers arose in a written answer in a parliamentary question. The government said it had "suitable cases" it will pay people who give information leading to convictions under currency control regulations.

Britons Jailed

The announcement jolted Britons who pride themselves on love of liberty. They grumbled that it's bad enough to have to count your pennies every time you go abroad; why pay people to spy on you and make sure you are not taking more than you pay?

It was noted that large - scale violations of currency are not the only ones liable to conviction. Women who take their jewelry to other countries and schoolboys who send their stamp collections to foreign parts can also take a rap.

The government weekly Economist was horrified. It suggested that political life would revive a bill introduced two years ago to preserve "rights of the subject."

Govt. Takes It Calmly

The government took it all calmly. When one of its back-benchers asked in the House of Commons what payments have been made to currency informers, the government replied in two words: "None, Sir."

Later the Commons was told the practice of paying informers dates back 60 years in some fields. For instance a total of £438 ($1,358) had been paid since 1945 by people who had informed the treasury about income-tax evasions.

Henry Strauss, a stern-faced Conservative member, asked whether the cabinet planned to pay children for informing against their parents.

Some Socialists insisted that it was the Conservatives who started the system of paying people for information leading to arrests.

Critics refused to be mollified by this defence. The independent Sunday Observer said labor, which usually complains about the bad old days of alleged Tory misrule, seemed to be finding an excuse for perpetuating the evil.

ROYAL WINTER FAIR OPENED BY L. B. PEARSON

Disarmament Talks Won't Ease Defence Burden Says Minister

Toronto, Nov. 16 (CP)—Some 8,000 persons at the Coliseum heard External Affairs Minister Pearson officially open the 31st Royal Winter Fair.

Mr. Pearson earlier told a dinner attended by some 1,000 farmers from all parts of Canada and the United States that the burden of defence costs will not be reduced by current disarmament discussions in the United Nations.

"I do not think that any practical plan for disarmament put forward by Russia will be accepted by the Russians in present circumstances," he said.

Canada's military establishments are also large compared with some other countries, he added, but "the burden is increasing and will continue to increase so long as there is instability and insecurity in the world."

However, the U.N. is constantly considering the disarmament question, and "I am not sorry for the time and energy we put into discussing this subject. . . especially since I am confident that these discussions honestly reflect the constant concern that people have to find some means of relieving themselves of this great burden."

Fireworks Interrupted

Formal opening ceremonies interrupted the horse show performances in the coliseum building of the Canadian National Exhibition park. Mr. Pearson pulled a switch which released a Union Jack and Canadian flag from the roof. As the band of the Governor-General's Horse Guards played the National anthems of Mexico, Chile, The Republic of Ireland and Canada, military jumping teams from each country rode forward at the ring.

The Mexican team won its first victory of the fair when it took the three-horse event with a classes for young riders, some mounted in jumper-of Chile and Canada were tied for third place.

Mrs. Amy Grace Kelsey of Erickson, B.C., won her third wheat title with her sample of hybrid smutty. World champion ships are still to be announced in oats, potatoes and barley.

The 20-year old princess, slender and brown-haired, is the daughter of the late Princess Jean Ghica who was killed in a plane crash 13 years ago. She lives in Paris with her mother, Mrs. Ebi Donescu, who has since remarried.

The 38-year-old Flynn has been married twice before—to Lili Damita and to Nora Eddington. Both marriages ended in divorces.

BRITISH SHIPS HELD BY CHINESE NOW RELEASED

Accused of Being Blockade Runners

Hong Kong, Nov. 16 — (CP)— The Royal Navy today announced that the British merchant ships Tainan and Wosang, held as blockade runners at the mouth of the Yangtze River, had been released by Chinese Nationalist warships.

The two British ships were reported proceeding to Hong Kong.

The Tainan was detained by a Nationalist destroyer Nov. 5, the Wosang Nov. 8.

The release of the two vessels came on the heels of reports of serious and hostile incidents involving both British and American shipping.

The South-China Morning Post said Chinese Nationalist planes raided a dock area where two British ships were unloading at communist-held Swatow Sunday. Two persons were reported killed and 20 badly injured.

Owners of the United States vessel Flying Cloud held up by the Nationalists as part of their blockade of communist - held Chinese ports, Tuesday informed State Department Dean Acheson that their vessels had been released on by a Nationalist warship.

The owners, the Isbrandtsen Steamship Company, said the Flying Cloud had been hit several times but there were no casualties.

Tried to Hit Ships

In the bombing at Swatow, the South-China Post said a Nationalist bomber and fighter apparently tried to hit the British ships and succeeded only the Cloverleck — for defying Nationalist blockade.

Instead, the Post said, the bombers hit a pontoon wharf on either side of the ships. It is near the customs wharf where the two British vessels were tied up. The other two bombs fell in the water.

Then, the account added, the fighter flew low over the ships and machine - gunned three several machine - gun bursts, injuring many persons on junks and one person aboard the Cloverlock. No one on the Kinfauns was hit.

Meanwhile, Chinese Nationalist Navy vessels blockaded the capital destroyer 373 — but British freighter Elsie Moller at the mouth of the Yangtze today, usually reliable sources here said.

The freighter — sister ship of the 800-ton Edith Moller seized by the Nationalists last August and released a month later after vigorous diplomatic protests by Britain was intercepted only a few hours after the release of the two other British ships.

Ghastly Tale Of Mistreatment Exposed By Cop

Berkeley, Calif., Nov. 16—(AP) Nine-year-old Kay Garber told his mother a ghastly tale of what Stanley Gitler and her father did to me."

His bedsheet was smeared with blood. One of his teeth was gone.

Mrs. Mercedes Weill, naturally, demanded police action.

Patrolman Kenneth Dunham investigated and reported:

Gitler, Donna Glancoll, 16, took the boy home to her parents' flat. Eric had locked her out of the house, . . . thrown her schoolbooks out of an upstairs window . . . turned off the lights with the master switch . . . kicked the girl in the shins . . . and "in general acted like a brat."

Eric testified, the sitter's father, finally threatened the youngster with a clothes whip. That did no good, so he washed out the boy's mouth with soap.

Commenting with this testimony, Eric admitted all. The tooth had been knocked out when he had pulled it out.

"I am the culprit," said Officer Dunham, "that the boy was not mistreated in any way. If anyone was mistreated, it was the baby sitter and her father."

Seven-Year Girl Rescued in Detroit From Abductor

Child Picks Out Suspect In Lineup After Police Chase

Detroit, Nov. 16—(AP) — Police raced their cars up and down the streets of east side Detroit Tuesday night and rescued pert little Karen Kuschenmeister from an abductor.

An hour later a suspect was arrested.

Only "the grace of God and efficient police work" saved seven-year-old Karen, said Chief Assistant Prosecutor Ralph Garber. The girl was unharmed.

Garber said sex was the motive of the intruder who snatched the blonde, blue-eyed child from the living room of her home on fashionable Alter Road.

Police arrested William A. Mabrey, 35, manager of a small hotel and father of a three-year-old daughter.

Garber said Mabrey would be charged "at least with kidnapping."

Snatched from Playmates

Karen, daughter of Karl M. Kuschenmeister, a hardware salesman, was snatched from playmates at her home about 5 p. m.

The abductor, with Karen in his arms, fled to his parked car as Kuschenmeister gave vain pursuit.

Given an almost instantaneous alarm, police in 18 scout cars picked up the chase. At speeds of 80 to 90 miles an hour the race ran a zig-zag course on east side streets.

When officers closed in, the abductor jerked his car to a halt and fled on foot.

As he ran with police in hot pursuit, Karen jumped from the auto and ran to a nearby house.

There officers found her, quite calm and unruffled. They said her clothing was disarranged, but she was not hurt.

Some of her clothing was found in Maybrey's pocket later, police said.

Without hesitation, the widely-eyed child subsequently picked Mabrey out of a police line-up.

Police said Mabrey's arrest followed a telephone call from him to report two men had stolen his car and robbed him of $225.

Patrolmen Matthew Perkins and Larry Princlusky were sent to investigate. They arrested Mabrey immediately because he resembled the description of the abductor.

Also, they said, the license number of the car was the same as that of the pursued car.

'BLOOD THUNDER' BOOKS

Kitchener, Nov. 16 — (CP) —"If children want 'blood and thunder' books then let them read them," Dr. G.E. Reaman of the Department of English at the Ontario Agriculture College, Guelph, told guests at the Kitchener Public Library Tuesday night.

Announce Scheme Of Legal Aid For Low Wage Earners

New York, Nov. 16—(CP)—In an effort to bring legal aid to the bulk of the intermediate wage-earners of the United States, the American Bar Association Tuesday night announced a scheme to help create legal reference agencies by every municipal area, in the country.

Putting on a country-wide scale a plan which was started 13 years ago in Los Angeles, the A.B.A. hopes in this way to solve the problem of small wage earners in finding competent, yet inexpensive, legal aid when they require it.

Reginald H. Smith of Boston, director of the Survey of the Legal Profession, in making his announcement, said the lawyer reference plan is the result of a survey which the A.B.A. has undertaken to determine the place of the legal profession in the social and economic life of the community. The survey and report will be published Nov. 22, Smith said.

Survey of Profession

(A similar survey of the Canadian legal profession to determine its place in the Dominion's social and economic life and to appraise its future, was announced in September by A. W. Carter of Calgary John, N.B. president of the Canadian Bar Association. The survey panel, independent of the C.B.A. will report periodically to the latter.)

The American survey showed that fear and ignorance kept people away from lawyers, Smith told a press conference.

"And worse, people who sought help from the local Bar Association were given none unless the association was forbidden to recommend a lawyer," he added.

"To overcome the fear and to direct people to competent lawyers without their having the further fear of exorbitant fees, the legal reference plan was established," Smith said.

Since the creation of the Los Angeles scheme 12 years ago, 39 cities in the United States have set up similar plans. The local reference plan office directs persons to lawyers known to possess most competent in handling their particular problems with the assurance that the initial fee will be nominal and that the entire fee for any legal service necessary will be within reason.

Rokossovsky Gets Third High Post In Red Party

Warsaw, Nov. 15 (AP)—Former Soviet Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky today stretched his influence into the hierarchy of Poland's ruling Communist party. He got his third high Polish position at once by quitting the Red army only a week ago.

Polish-born Rokossovsky was elected to membership in the central committee of the Polish United Workers' (Communist) party, the body which not only rules the party but also helps to shape government policy.

Last week he became a Polish citizen, giving up his rank of Marshal in the Soviet army, to take a similar rank in the Polish army. Instantly he was made Minister of National Defence.

Monday's official communique by the central committee of the party revealed that Rokossovsky was elected to the docket of a three-party purge which ousted—three once-important leaders, including former Vice-Premier Wladyslaw Gomulka from the central committee.

The purge gave rise to speculation that trials may be ordered soon against Titoist sympathizers. They were expected to follow the pattern of the recent trial in Hungary in which former Foreign Minister Laszlo Rajk was executed on charges of plotting with Premier Tito of Yugoslavia to overthrow the Hungarian government.

Also ousted from the central committee were Construction Minister Gen. Marian Spychalski and Zenon Nowicko, Vice-Minister of Justice.

Charges of "nationalism" against all three indicated that they—like Tito—are accused of fostering the Communist interests of their own country, instead of giving unquestioning loyalty to the Soviet Union.

Pleads Guilty To Manslaughter

Toronto, Nov. 15 (CP)— Phillip J. Gendron, 27, today pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the re-trial of Arthur Wickett, 28, and will be sentenced Nov. 18.

The court accepted Gendron's plea of guilty of manslaughter. He entered the plea during his trial on a murder charge.

Wickett, a department store executive, was Gendron's brother-in-law. Mrs. Wickett testified Monday that she had accused her husband of acting in an improper way with her sister.

Wickett's body, with a bullet wound in the head, was found in the basement apartment of the Walmer Road Convalescent Home operated by Gendron and his wife

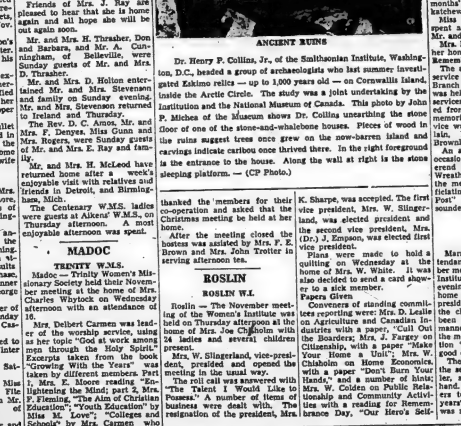
OUT OF THE PAST

These ruins, on Cornwallis Island, 1,200 miles north of Churchill, Man., are the remains of the whalebone walls of houses built some 1,000 years ago by Thule (pronounced Tooley) Eskimos after their long trek from the Western Arctic. Only the whalebone and the rock floors — shown in this photo — remain. The ruins, discovered almost 100 years ago, were studied last summer by archaeologists of the Museum and the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D.C. — (CP Photo.)

ANCIENT RUINS

Dr. Henry P. Collins, Jr., of the Smithsonian Institute, Washington, D.C., headed a group of archaeologists who last summer investigated Eskimo relics — up to 1,000 years old — on Cornwallis Island, inside the Arctic Circle. The study was a joint undertaking by the Institution and the National Museum of Canada. This photo by John P. Michea of the Museum shows Dr. Collins unearthing the stone floor of one of the stone-and-whalebone houses. Pieces of wood in the ruins suggest trees once grew on the now-barren island and the findings indicate Eskimos once dwelled there. In the right foreground is the entrance to the house. Along the wall at right is the stone sleeping platform. — (CP Photo.)



Economic System All Worry Says Senator Fraser

Picton—"Not the high cost-of-living, but the cost of high-living, is what is wrong with our economic picture today," declared Senator W. A. Fraser of Renton in an address at Picton Rotary Club yesterday. Take the man who drinks eight or 10 bottles of 'coke' and who smokes two packages of cigarettes a day. He is the man who talks most about the high cost-of-living," the Senator said.

Our Canadian economy is becoming 'top-sided' and it is getting more so every day," he declared. As an illustration he referred to the comparison between values of farm produce and workmen's wages. "It took the equivalent of the sale price of nine and one-half boxes of No. 1 McIntosh apples to pay wages for putting on the storm windows and doors of my home," he declared.

Don't Balance

"You can't balance out the sale price of apples at $2.50 a bushel with the wages of a steel erector at $2.10 an hour. Nor does the situation add up, with industrial workers working five or five and a half days a week at their present rates of pay, as compared to the necessity of farmers working seven days a week, with farm produce at its present levels," he said. "That leads to industrial habits as well as industrial wage rates creeping on to the farm with disastrous effects."

Developed Bad Habits

'During the war years, we in Canada developed bad habits, despite the fact that thousands elsewhere were being shot, burned or maimed. Money in terms of income, and the velocity of exchange of money increased, and, in spite of additional taxation, each of us felt the effect of prosperity, and developed bad habits. Industry was benevolent in the matter of wages and bonuses, and we increased our spending. Youth thought life 'a bowl of cherries', and adults forgot the methods and habits by which the country was built," said the Senator.

Want More For Doing Less

'People today want more and more for doing less and less. As far as I am concerned, a man who is not willing to throw himself into giving value, in order to earn his livelihood, and by something for old age, is a 'piker," Senator Fraser declared.

SEAWAY PROJECT

It would have been "disastrous" both economically and to defence if the split had come on it its came yet but he was sure three countries would do everything possible to avoid it. For one thing, the Atlantic Pact would be "undermined" and many of Canada's foreign markets eliminated.

Historic Importance

Looking at the Commonwealth, Mr. Pearson said the abandonment of the three Indian Dominions within a new framework was of historic importance in providing "a bridge between East and West." It was the "kind of compromise" which not only prevented dissolution of the Commonwealth but strengthened it.

At the same time, he expressed Canada's "disappointment" at Eire's decision to leave the Commonwealth but said Canadians sensed in the people of Ireland continuing warmth of affection.

Today's Commonwealth was "vastly different from the British Empire of not so many years ago." Most people would consider it improved too.

Mr. Pearson said another example of co-operation between Canada and the United States was found in the work of the International Joint Commission, which settles disputes over international waters.

New Agreement Signed

He recalled that following Newfoundland's union with Canada last March 31 a new bilateral air agreement was signed with the United States. It provided for an exchange of air rights.

One of the rights granted by the United States involved the inauguration of a Trans-Canada Air Lines service from Montreal to New York. The granting of that right has been delayed by legal action in the United States.

Meantime, said Mr. Pearson, the United States air lines have been given temporary rights to use the important transatlantic airport in Gander, Nfld. But these temporary arrangements could not be continued indefinitely. He hoped that a solution would soon be found and that the treaty would come into effect without further delay.

Rights Explained

The rights of United forces in Newfoundland was another matter in dispute between Canada and the United States. The Canadian government does not challenge the United States right to land leased to it in Newfoundland during the war.

However, the Canadian government felt that the operation of the United States bases should be brought more closely in line with sentiments expressed in a joint defence statement issued in 1947 by former prime minister Mackenzie King and President Truman.

In that statement the two countries said that in joint defence matters they would co-operate without impairment to the control of all land within the territory of either country.

Mr. Pearson hoped a way will be found shortly to meet Canada's views on the exercise of sovereignty over any Canadian territories.

Mr. Pearson said there has been a great movement of tourists to and from the United States, but some Canadians were prevented from crossing the American border.

Similar Right Exercised

Canada accepted the United States right to admit or refuse anyone. A similar right is exercised by this country. Negotiations are being conducted to prevent embarrassment to innocent Canadians who are held up at American points for alleged security reasons or for alleged activities in some associations.

Canada would be foolish to turn her back on problems in Asia, the minister said.

Asia now is close to Canada by air, he said. In the air age it was "no longer far and no longer east."

Conclusion of a Japanese peace treaty would not solve all the problems for the far east, but the absence of such a treaty was certainly the cause for some of the uncertainty in Asia.

CHURCHES

"One is the passionate materialism of the Communist ideology which has already swept millions of them to their destruction, with all the glamor of real and reputed accomplishments.

"The other is the Christian religion, not so spectacular, with no great visible achievements in recent times to record.

"If the inner quality of the two were the same Communism would drive out religion, but it is not in our Christian faith we have something far greater and better than any man-made ideology because our religion is divine in its origin."

HOUSING DEBATE

There should be government voice in the eventual selling prices of homes, if the government now would be laying out money to help construct the houses.

Mr. Johnston urged establishment of a Royal Commission to investigate the building and financing of housing in Canada.

Housing discussions were interrupted for an hour at the night sitting as the Commons turned to private bills.

Trade Minister Howe said that, if necessary, the government will seek suspension of the rules to stop a "filibuster" against bills to incorporate two natural gas pipeline companies.

Debate on the bills has been going on for weeks at different periods and there has been considerable opposition to the legislation.

In explaining the housing legislation Mr. Winters said 96,000 new homes will be completed this year, eating into the backlog for the first time since before the war.

The legislation would provide for reduction by half in the down payment on new homes.

It would facilitate loans to co-operatives undertaking housing projects and would enable the provinces and municipalities to enter into arrangements for low-rental subsidized housing.

Enabling in Character

Another feature was the provision for provincial-federal purchase of land and services for resale to builders.

Mr. Winters said the general legislation is "enabling in character" and would mean "that provincial authority, in most cases, requires authority from their legislatures" in order to join with the Dominion on the projects.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) said the government policy on subsidization needed further clarification.

"When they talk of assistance for low rental projects, do they mean subsidized housing?" he asked.

Several Liberals took part in the debate.

David Croll (L—Toronto Spadina) said the legislation marks formal admission of federal responsibility in what is constitutionally a provincial field-housing. The bill was not a "perfect specimen" but it was a "beginning and a very fine beginning, imperfect as it might be."

Jack Garland (L-Nipissing) said he doesn't subscribe to the belief that the majority of the people are not in position to buy homes. He didn't think many Canadians wanted to live in subsidized houses.

Makes Maiden Speech

Making his maiden speech in the Commons, Mr. Garland suggested caution in proceeding with any plan for low-rental housing. Subsidization should be paid for on a different basis—one that would be fairer to the farmers and people who could not possibly benefit directly from subsidization.

Mr. Garland said the government should encourage the construction of more small houses for young couples starting out in life. It should be possible for the young to obtain houses at prices which would enable them to meet payments and still be able to enjoy some of the luxuries of life.

Later, the small homes could be sold to other young couples and the original owner, now more experienced with housing problems, could move to a larger, high-priced home, he added.

Hughes Cleaver (L—Halton) said he was in favor of subsidized housing to take care of the transient part of the population. But he didn't want to see Ottawa degenerate into a land of tenants. The country's economy was strengthened by the stability of people who owned their own homes.

G. F. Higgins (PC—St. John's East) said rural housing had not been properly considered in the bill. It should be included to make farm life more attractive and stem the flow of people from rural to urban areas.

SPRING TO IT AND DO IT!

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Slicks carried chin high, elbows at ear level, knees doing a hockey counterpart of the goose-step featured the game between the Rockets Juniors and Trenton RCAF Flyers between the Rockets Juniors and Trenton RCAF Flyers in the curtain raiser of the District Hockey League twin bill last night. Chips were carried on shoulders in the most ambitiously semi-lighthearted way and the teams clashed in a rough and rugged battle that at times had little resemblance to good hockey. It was bruising stuff to say the least, but the sin-bin was a busy place especially in the last period.

* * *

Rockets could not apparently find their stride. They did not resemble in any line the team that chased the Northern Electrics to the wire last week. Their attacks were disorganized, their passes were not clicking and they exposed especially in the first period from shooting the puck around in the corners and rushing in after it. They attempted into enemy territory and against the rugged, stiff Flyer a stick - handling and against the rugged, stiff Flyer defence. It was practically impotent. Flyers on the other hand going both ways and the kids could do nothing about it.

* * *

For two periods it was check, check and double check and when opposing forwards did get within scoring distance Trypp and Green in the respective nets kicked the rubber aside. Hogan cracked the scoring ice with five seconds to go in the second period. The third saw more goals but the same shinnified type of hockey until midway through the heat. The scores was tied twice, with a 2-1 lead two Rockets got the nod and the Flyers turned on the heat, tied it up got the nod and the Flyers turned on the heat, tied it up and went into the lead. The kids turned in the best effort of the night in the last minutes of play, but the Flyer defence stood firm and shivved back the offensives.

* * *

On the other hand, it must be remembered that Rockets were up against an experienced hockey crew. Flyers have been playing together, the most of them for years and on occasions have defeated the youngsters by more than a single goal. But at the same time Rockets can play a lot better hockey than they dished up last night. They'll have to if they expect to get anywhere.

* * *

The surprise package of the evening was the grand effort staged by the 6 R. D. Tigers against the powerful Northern Electric squad. Ballbirds predicted a rout for the plainsmen. But Tigers took up with a dazzling display of fast, effective and defensive hockey that had a surprised crowd cheering for them time and time again throughout the game. McGuill was the hero of the piece from the Tiger standpoint and by the same token clever Alf Pike was the Electric star. Pike had been in a hockey game before tags was sounded. Tigers were a vastly improved team over their last appearance and they'll bruitls somebody's ship before the league is over.

* * *

Something should be done by the Arena Commission with regard to the goal-posts and nets. Last night they toppled over twice and a player received a slight injury when he crashed into a horizontal goal-post. The spikes at the end of the posts are sharp and a player sliding into them could well receive a severe hurt. Something should be done before that happens.

* * *

* * *

That news item the other day that carried the story that Lou Marsh and Arthur Lou Gaudaur had retired the presidency of the Big Four and recommended Air Vice Marshal Frank McGill as the logical man for the job, recalls the war days when the amiable RCAF officer commanded the Trenton Air Station.

* * *

We had our first flight in a Locheed "12" bomber during the Middle East Regime at Trenton. That occurred when we were one of the escort party that conveyed the famous Commando daggers symbolic of one of the Victory Loans, to Air Force Headquarters, Toronto.

* * *

McGill was a well-known football star in his day and were the colors of the former Montreal Amateur Athletic Association in many a bloody - fought battle. He was a veteran of repute and at one time conducted aviatorial classes at the air station. And in those hectic war days many an ambitious flyer came out of the pool with a scarlet face after the "old man" had beaten him in a race.

* * *

During lunch after the flight, the conversation, in some way or another turned to sport and eventually football. And McGill told an amusing story of an event that occurred long after he had doffed the moleskins and helmet.

* * *

He and a party of friends were motoring along St. Catharine Street, Montreal, and perhaps the jalopy was exceeding the speed limit by a mile or two. In any event, a husky Montreal gendarme thought so and signalled the McGills over to stop. McGill sensed a spot of trouble and decided to appeal to the bobby's civic loyalty.

* * *

"So, dat foot she step on der gas, huh?" queried the police laddy.

"Where's der fire, your grandmere she is sick, perhaps, or are you putting on der marriage? No?"

"Listen, officer" smiled McGill, "perhaps you do not know who I am?"

"No, m'sieu, I am strail I do not."

"Ever hear of the M. A. A. A. football club?"

The eyes of the limb of the law lighted up.

"Ah, m'sieu, she was was dat club, yes! Yes!"

McGill smiled. "Well, officer, I should know, I'm Frank McGill who used to play on that team".

"And" he went on, "I was a great friend of a French Canadian player, Pierre Morin (That name is fictitious, we can't remember the original). There was a player. Could that fellow kick and plunge. He was one of my best friends. We were chums in fact."

"Oui, m'sieu!" replied the officer, a smile creeping over his face. "So what!"

McGill's face dropped a bit. "Well," he said, "I thought perhaps you might know him."

"But oui, m'sieu I do," replied the gendarme now smiling broadly.

McGill leaned out the car window. "You do? Tell me, where is he? I would like to see him."

The official smile faded. The face of the law became stern. He tapped his chest.

"Right here, m'sieu," he said.

The country is at the present moment thoroughly football conscious what with the Grey Cup finals in the offing and various championships being fought for all over the place. Lots of us can't see the big games but you fans in Belleville can see a fine screen exhibition of the real thing when the picture "Father was a Fullback" comes to the Capitol Theatre Friday Nov. 25 through Tuesday, Nov. 29. It's a delicious gridiron comedy with such stars as Fred MacMurray, Maureen O'Hara and Rudy Vallee. Don't miss it.

Trenton Flyers, Northern Electric Defeat Rockets Jrs., 6 R.D. Tigers In District Hockey Loop Games

Rough rugged hockey that at times approached the borderline of shinny, was offset by an outstanding sample of the game as it should be played in the District Hockey League twin bill last night.

Belleville Rockets and Trenton Flyers staged a high-checking, high-elbowing game with the player rather than the puck being the target for the night with Flyers edging the Junior squad by a 3-2 score.

No. 6 R. D. Tigers in a surprising display of play improvement met the league-leading Northern Electrics offensively and defensively but emerged on the short end of a 7-5 count.

Trenton Flyers 3, Belleville Rockets 2

Indications that the game would be the bruising rugged type was evidenced in the first few minutes of play in the Rockets-Flyers tussle. It was marked throughout with high-sticks, slashing, kneeing and other methods of semi-mayhem and anything was liable to break out.

Rockets could not apparently get organized and played against Northern Electric last week. And against that style of play, that was the more experienced speedier Flyers (last night at least) paid off with a clear-cut margin of victory.

It was a heavy checking battle with the Flyer defence almost unpassable at times. They backchecked and forechecked and Rockets steadily whittle the kids did not favor shooting the puck into the enemy zone and racing after it.

There was no score in the first period with Semark and O'Meara frowning in their cages and that's the best.

The second period was a repetition of the first with the same roughshod methods tinged at times with good hockey. Rockets keeping the score sheet smyby until within two seconds of time. Don Hogan, one of the better players of the evening grabbed a loose puck and raced in alone on Keys to draw first scoring blood.

Play Roughened

Play got somewhat better in the third period as the Flyers stung by the reverse lore in scoring section. Four minutes after the period started Gagnon raced in with Jackson and fed his mate a goal-mouth pass. He made no mistake. Rockets surged into the lead again and Mulholland broke the tie from Semark's pass.

Then the penalties started to come. Two Rockets got the pale in a row and Flyers put on the pressure. Miller and Zaleskie scored two quick goals while the Juniors were shorthanded and that ended the scoring.

Play was still rough and rugged and Cunningham and Miller got the gate. Sargent drew a major with two minutes to go for clipping despite that but Flyers defence held off the Rocket attacks until the gong.

Trumbull, Turland, Hogan and Graham looked the best for the Rockets as Sargent, Miller, Jackson and Auit, with Lawlor, going well for the Flyers.

The teams:

Flyers: Goal, Keyes; defence, Lawlor, Robertson; centres, Auit; wings, Miller, Zaleskie; subs, Sargent, Gagnon, Jackson, Prendergast, Cadeil, O'Meara, Hudbs, Cunningham, Park.

Rockets: Goal, Tripp; defence, Trumble, Graham; centre, Hogan; wings, Semark, Mulholland; subs, Bone, Green, Murphy, Fish, Cavanaugh, Wright, Turland, Fisher, Fletch, Schneider, Kenelly, Darragh.

Summary

1st Period.
No score.
Penalties—Semark, O'Mears.
2nd Period.
1 Rocket, Hogan 19.56
Penalties: Wright, Darragh.
3rd Period.
2 Flyers, Jackson (Gagnon) 4.39
3 Rockets, Mulholland (Semark) 8.00
4 Flyers, Miller (Auit) 11.20
5 Flyers, Zaleskie 12.14
Penalties—Cunningham Semark, Wright, Miller, Sargent (major), Kenelly.
Northern Electric 7
6 R.D. Tigers 5

Showing an improvement of play that astounded the more hard-boiled fans and experts in Northern Electric team, the 6 R. D. Flyers carried the battle to the fast-skating clicking front lines of the loop leaders in a game that was in distinct contrast to the opener.

Sparked by the Don Barrett - Jack Wardhaugh-Johnny Semark line the Electrics dropped to a level of power but they were met by a fast-skating Tiger crew that strided territorial play well into the night's game.

The score does not indicate the difference between the teams, last night at least. It was cleanly played with but four penalties handed out. The more polished front lines of the Electrics dropped to an outstanding display by Alfie Plumley was the difference between the teams.

Rehund McKenna, Tiger goalie, was one of the stars of the evening. He played an outstanding game all night and kicked out plenty of rubber from the flying Electric attacking divisions.

Barrett Scores Two

Don Barrett scored the only two goals of the first period with assists from mates Semark and Wardhaugh. Barrett scored the three up early in the second period then Tigers came to life. They scored two quick goals from Johnson and Christie in five minutes and cut the margin to one. Williamson banged home a goal from Jones and Whiteman added another one from Watson at the period.

Tigers cut the lead to 5-3 early in the third when Schmidt and Christie raced through with the former scoring on a nice combination play. Electrics increased it to 6-3 when Barrett scored and Wardhaugh scored with both teams a man short. Tigers roared back into the play here and the distinct edge in the closing minutes. Christie fired home Koech's pass and minutes later Watson took Johnson's pass to cut the Electric margin to two goals. And that's the way it ended.

The Barrett - Wardhaugh - Semark line was the best on the ice. Williamson played a fine game going both ways earning a goal and an assist. Barrett got two and one. Jones and three assists. Whiteman got a pair of goals with Cousins and Wardhaugh getting the other two.

Lou Schmidt, Christie and McKenna were the best bets for the Tigers with Filion, Watson and Johnson turning in fine efforts.

The teams:

Northern Electric: Goal, Plumley; defence, Williamson, Creighton; centre, Barrett; wings, Semark, Wardhaugh; subs, D. Semark, Jones, Mulvihill, Whiteman, Cousins, Markle, B. Meagher, York, Reeves, D. Green, A. Meagher, Baker.

6 R.D. Tigers: Goal, McKenna; defence, Schmidt, Filion; centre, Forget; Twigg, Demille, wings; subs, Christie, Wesley, Koech, Jones, C. Johnson, Watson, Whitetam, Hubbe, Crossett, Zenck, Broderick, Roberts.

Both Toronto Teams Beaten By Opposition

By The Canadian Press

Two of the best teams in the Ontario Hockey Association both bouncing the opposition almost at will—were rocked back on their heels last night.

Toronto's senior Marlboros, who had won nine games in 12 starts were handed a 4-3 setback by the second-place Owen Sound Mercurys while their juniors counterparts, riding on the crest of 10 victories in 13 games, suffered a 6-5 defeat at the hands of Toronto St. Michael's Majors.

The teams remained in first place in their respective leagues however. The seniors have a five-point margin over the Mercurys while the juniors have a three-point lead over the second-place St. Catharines Teepees.

In other games last night, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen strengthened their hold on third place in the senior race by defeating the last-place Hamilton Tigers 5-2 at Hamilton.

In the junior league, the teepees trounced Stratford Kroehlers 8-2 and Galt Black Hawks gained a 5-4 victory over Oshawa Generals.

At Owen Sound, the Dukes staged a desperate rally in the last few minutes of play but Bobby Gillson in the Owen Sound nets wouldn't yield.

The Dukes moved into a 2-1 lead in the first period but the Mercurys drove back in the second to count unanswered markers. They split two goals in the last session.

Jack Ingoldsby, B. White Buck Forslund and Mike Bukecheski counted for the winners. Bobby Hassard, Hugh Bolton and Scotty Muir tallied for the Dukes.

Ingoldsby Scores Three

At Toronto, it took until the midway mark of the third period for the Majors to score the clinching goal when Jerry Ingoldsby popped in the last of his three markers. The Majors held a 2-1 lead at the end of the first period and a 5-4 lead at the end of the second.

Other St. Michael's scorers were Bill Marshall with two and Paul Alain with a single. George Lumley strong turned in a three-goal performance for the Dukes in the losing cause. Danny Lewicki got the other two.

The Dutchmen had little trouble as they overpowered the hapless Tigers throughout the game. Butch Martin gave the Dutchmen a one-goal lead early in the first period and Harvey Jacklin made it 2-0 minutes later.

Tom Smellie got one back for the Tigers but Art Herchenratzler, Johnny Bluie and Bill Walsh scored in the final frame to put the game on ice. The Tigers scored one goal in the last session—that by veteran Clare Shillington.

Teepees Rolling

The Teepees rolled to their ninth victory in 13 starts as they drove into a 3-0 margin in the first period and held the edge at the end of the second before fighting through a scoreless third session.

Con Switzer, Gord Byers and Jack McIntyre paced the Teepees with two goals apiece while singles were scored by Smith and Wayne Brown got one apiece. The two Stratford goals were scored by Jim French and Doug Williams.

At Galt, the Black Hawks, showing surprising power, built up a three-goal lead in the first period that gave them the edge over the Generals. The Generals outscored the Hawks in the second session. The third period went scoreless.

George Ford led the Black Hawks with two goals while Chuck went to John Lumley, Norm Prest and Bronco Horvath. Louie Jankowski, Gord Wall, Jim Connor and Doug Chapman tallied for the Generals.

Two games are scheduled in O.H.A. warfare tonight—one in the senior and one in the junior. In the senior it's Owen Sound at Kitchener and in the junior Guelph at Windsor Spitfires.

CONVICTED OF SHOOTING

Los Angeles, Nov. 15—(AP)—Richard Elliott, 15, who said he fired a "gunny" shot into his 15-year-old brother, Robert, after the latter had been accidentally wounded, today was found sane and convicted of involuntary manslaughter. Judge A. A. Scott said his agony declared the boy a ward of the court, but released him in custody of his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Harold M. Elliott. Richard told juvenile officers he accidentally shot his brother in the head while showing him a pistol, then said he was mocking. I just couldn't stand it, so I shot him again to end his agony."

Stigma Taken Off Hockey Stick As Judge Exonerates Two National Loop Players

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

To the relief of armored knights of the ice-lanes everywhere, a Chicago judge has taken the stigma off the hockey stick.

Judge Joseph Hermes ruled in effect at Chicago Tuesday that hockey sticks are not deadly weapons when he exonerated Leo Gravelle and Ken Reardon of Montreal Canadiens on charges of assault with a deadly weapon (said hockey sticks). The charges dated back to the National Hockey League game at Chicago Nov. 7 when the two Canadiens decided the customer isn't always right.

The charge against Gravelle was dismissed. That against Reardon was nolle prossed by the judge when the plaintiffs admitted they intended to sign a complaint only against the team-mate.

The judge was agreed with the players that the customer is not always right. In fact, he found in this case the fans 'involved in the player-spectator fracas had overstepped the rights that went along with the price of admission.

"It is the prerogative of the American fan to boost his team and heckle opponents," Judge Hermes found. "But from the testimony presented here it is evident that the complainants were the aggressors."

Testimony Given

Judge Hermes made his ruling after 1½ hours of testimony. Three of the four fans involved were there—Joseph Anthony Scornavacco and Pete Zarillo, the famed George Gerdin, object of Reardon's affections, wasn't. The court was told he had sold up in Chicago and moved to Wisconsin.

It was Grdich whose forehead was slashed for seven stitches by Reardon's stick. Maybe he found his wasn't worth living in Chicago after coming out on the losing end against a Canadien.

Gravelle told of his part in the affray that followed the nogging-knocking. "I did not strike any of the spectators. 'Everybody was standing up and leaning across the barrier; so I hit the top of the barrier with my stick a couple of times to keep them from coming over."

Grabbed His Sweater

Reardon previously described how a fan reached over the boards and grabbed his sweater.

"I spun around and thought that my stick hit the screen and then I saw that a man was bleeding. The man (Grdich) yelled at me that he was O.K. Just then another man climbed over the barrier and came at me as though he wanted to fight. I dropped my stick and gloves but the officials ordered the owner of the ice before he got to me."

Reardon and Gravelle, who remained over since Sunday, left after the trial to join Canadiens at Toronto for tonight's game with the Maple Leafs.

In tonight's other two games, the league-leading Red Wings take on the fourth-place Chicago Blacks at Detroit and Boston Bruins try to break their cellar deadlock with the Rangers at New York.

T-Formation or Single Wing Best, Is the Question

New York, Nov. 16—(CP)—How good is the T-formation? Is it better than the single wing?

Even a meeting between top exponents in the United States of these two basic offensive Americana be the gridiron's two ever had at Notre Dame," he said conclusive answer.

Last weekend Notre Dame, the gridiron juggernaut guided by that brilliant T-quarterback, Bob Williams, defeated North Carolina's single-wing squad 42-6. But the last beefy held Notre Dame's green and gold to a 6-6 tie until the third period.

And the southerners' All-American halfback, Charley (Choo Choo) Justice, was sidetracked with an ankle injury.

This Saturday big game, army's T-formation platoons just squeaked through with a 14-13 victory over Columbia that was bloody. Doug Kenna, army's top single-wing power, rolled up 23 first downs to the cadets' 10.

Frank Leahy, Notre Dame coach, the final score Saturday did not give a true picture of the game. Although the 1949 squad "Just as good as the 1946 boys, you can win."

Jake Gaudaur, team captain and a former Alouette, quoted statistics to back his argument that the Montreal line won't push the Tigers around. The 225-pound centre secondary estimated Hamilton's starting roughers, including ends, averages 215 pounds Alouettes line averages 209.

Coach Jeff Nixon, whose shoulder injury will keep him on the sidelines, paid tribute to Fischock as "one of the great all-around players of American football." But he indicated he had figured out a defence against the forward passing ought to settle while running mate on the professional field. He wasn't giving any hints on what it is.

Tigers plan to leave for Montreal Friday night.

Hamilton Tigers Figure to Beat The Alouettes

Hamilton, Nov. 16 (CP)—Hamilton Tigers brimmed confidence today as the Ontario Rugby Union champions neared the end of the training trail for the Eastern Canada final against the Alouettes in Montreal Sunday.

Despite the odds of 3-1 and higher against them, the Tigers executive renewed declarations of faith in their chances against the Big Four titleholders.

Denny Whitaker, vice-president and former Tiger great told the players after Tuesday night's stiff workout that they are better than last year's team. The 1948 Tigers lost the eastern final 19-0 to Ottawa Rough Riders after Frank Filchock, their star passing main-spring, was injured on the second play of the game.

"Upsets have happened before and no matter what (Coach Lew) Hayman tells the Alouettes, they will go into the game overconfident," he said. "I am speaking for the entire executive when I say.. you can win."

Jake Gaudaur, team captain and a former Alouette, quoted statistics to back his argument that the Montreal line won't push the Tigers around. The 225-pound centre secondary estimated Hamilton's starting roughers, including ends, averages 215 pounds Alouettes line averages 209.

Excitement Boils As Time Nears For Big Game

Montreal, Nov. 16 — (CP) — A pre-season gamble and an unpopular price boost today has local football fandom in a tizzy as excitement boils for the Eastern Canada final here next Sunday between Montreal Alouettes and Hamilton Tigers.

Second-guessers are having a field day considering whether Alouette Coach Lew Hayman should have decided last Sept. 1 that backfielders Bronco Reed and end Chuck Anderson would not play in the Eastern final if the Als reached it.

Meanwhile, fans seeking lowerpriced seats as wintry weather and Canadian Rugby Union's announcement Tuesday that additional prices would be hiked up considerably for the playoff.

Hayman's pre-game decision on Reese and Anderson — announced only Monday — came because of a C.R.U. ruling that only five United States imports can be used in the Eastern championship series between the Big Four and Ontario Rugby Football Union titlists. The Big Four permits seven imports.

Hayman's difficult decision had to be made before the season opened and since then Reese has become one of the most powerful line plungers in the Big Four while Anderson has been an effective blocker and pass receiver.

The fans were more vocal about the increase in prices, especially because the boost hits the lowerpriced tickets hard but doesn't affect box seats and the choicer sections.

A block of 2,500 bleacher seats in Montreal's baseball stadium were jumped from 25 to 50 cents — 100 per cent increase.

Reserved seats, running from $1.25 to $1.75, were hiked to a flat $2 — an increase ranging from 50 to 14 per cent.

Solly Cantor Held to Draw By Belgian Boxer

(By The Canadian Press)

Solly Cantor of Toronto was held to an eight-round draw Tuesday night by Kid Dussart, European lightweight boxing champion, in an eight-round fight at London's Harringay Arena.

Cantor, a leading contender for Arthur King's Empire championship, weighed 133, Dussart, a Belgian, scaled 127½.

About 12,000 fans in the fog-filled arena watched the former Canadian newsboy stretch his unbeaten string in British rings to seven.

As in previous appearances in these parts, Cantor's chief weapon was a stabbing straight left which pecked constantly about the Belgian's head. Dussart countered by boring inside with hard right and left hooks to the body.

The crowd booed the decision, some apparently thinking Cantor's classic left hand had won again. The Canadian Press scorecard agreed with referee Teddy Waltham's decision, giving three rounds to each with two even.

Donald Knowles of Sarnia, has been chosen as the player most valuable to his team, the most gentlemanly and the most sportsmanlike in Ontario Rugby Football Union senior competition during the 1949 season, it was announced at Toronto Tuesday.

The speedy Sarnia Imperials back is the winner of a trophy awarded annually by an oil company (Imperial Oil).

Knowles' tricky running was credited with helping his team finish second in final league standing. Knowles is the first Sarnia player to win the trophy since Nick Pathouski won it in 1940. Last year's winner was Frank Filchock, then with Hamilton Tigers. Filchock now is with Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four.

Johnny Stroppe of Winnipeg Blue Bombers is one of those rare first-year men in football who came up without any rawe notices and took over a full-time backfield job like a veteran. It won him the rookie award in the West's big-time.

Playing practically 60 minutes of each contest with Bombers in the Western Interprovincial Union this year, the 23-yrhr-old Stroppe proved one of the few leading lights on the last-place Winnipeg club.

Sports writers picked him as the rookie most valuable to his club during the 1949 W.I.F.U. schedule.

Eddie Vann, young British fighter, scored the fastest heavyweight knockout in boxing history Tuesday night at London when he finished George Stern in 13 seconds.

Vann came out of his corner at the start of the scheduled six-round bout and landed a right to Stern's jaw. The latter went down and was counted out. Including the 10-second count the fight lasted exactly 13 seconds.

It was not the fastest knockout on record, however. Al Foreman, a Canadian lightweight, knocked out Tony Levine of Lewiston, Me., in 11.5 seconds, including the count, in a fight at Montreal in 1928.

Record books list lightweight Tony Canzoneri's 1:05 knockout of Al Singer in 1930 as the quickest title bout in history.

At Philadelphia, owner Bob Carpenter of the National Baseball League's Philadelphia Phillies said Tuesday he'll have nothing to do with what he calls the Brooklyn Dodgers' attempt to sell minor - league players for exorbitant major - league prices."

Carpenter said he was approached by the Dodgers' Branch Richey at the World Series and offered a flock of players. He did buy outfielder Dick Whitman but Carpenter said he is to be delivered to the Phillys' international league farm club, Toronto Maple Leafs.

"I could have bought Paul Minner, Marv Rackley or Preacher Wert," Carpenter added, "but I wouldn't pay his prices for players to send to the minors."

Toronto Wanderers Rugger Club will not compete in the final playoff for the McTier Cup but awarded the best club team in Eastern Canada — against St. Francis Xavier University at Antigonish, N. S., next Saturday.

The decision was reached Tuesday night at Toronto when club members decided the $2,000 expenses for the trip could not be raised. The Toronto club last Saturday reached the final when they defeated McGill University 4 Montreal 3 in the semi-final.

Pancho Gonzales, now engaged in world's No. 1 amateur tennis player for 1949 by American Lawn Tennis magazine.

Ted Schroeder, who was beaten by Gonzales in a thrilling finish at the national championships at Forest Hills, is ranked No. 2, with Billy Talbert No. 3 and Frank Parker, now also hirned professional, No. 4.

The St. Louis Browns announced Tuesday that Zack Taylor will be retained as manager Next year. The Browns finished seventh last year under Taylor.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Time was when prizes were offered to those who would report a slam bid that was made. This policy seems ludicrous today. The bidding of safe slams is now easier than accurate part scores.

From afar was sent me this deal:

NORTH
♠ A K Q 6 4 3
♣ A 5 4 3

WEST	EAST
♠ J 10	♠ 9 8 7 5 2
♥ 9 8 3 2	♥ Q J 10 7 6
♦ Q J 10 6 4 3	♦ 8
♣ Q	♣ 9

SOUTH
♠ None
♥ A K 4
♦ A 9 5
♣ K J 10 7 5 4 2

The information with it indicates that it was planted in some duplicate match to see what all tables would do with it. This is a practice that more groups should entertain.

It is told me that all tables would up in seven clubs; that most of the pairs considered grand slam in no-trump as a guess. He wants me to say what bids would be most correct in this case.

In Horse Sense the bids would definitely be:

South	North
1 C	2 S
3 C	3 S
4 C	4 NT
6 S	7 NT ;

From the moment north jumps his response, south knows they have a slam of some kind. From the moment south rebids his clubs north knows they have a club slam of some kind.

Thereafter it is simply a matter of finding out two things. What will be their final denomination. How many aces and kings are in the combined hands of their own pairs.

Four no-trump is the convention signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he holds. Six spades reply to this is Horse Sense conventing, signal for two aces and three kings.

Grand slam is simply a matter of having no club losers. So, if they can make seven clubs they can make seven no-trump. All they need do is lay them down and pick them up.

Owner Unaware Vault Robbed Three Months Ago

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP) — John G. Maulhard lost $19,000 cash—maybe three months ago—but he didn't find it out until Tuesday.

Police were advised that Chas. W. Swiger, 21, had surrendered $17,000 to St. Louis police and told them he stole it from Maulhard's safe.

Maulhard, a produce merchant, was surprised when police told him about it. He said the last time he had opened the secret vault was Aug. 18.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Nov. 18 (AP)—Movie stars may soon be able to consult a handbook called 'how to visit New York without being maimed or defamed."

The need for such a book is great, says Frank Sinatra, who is willing to be the author.

"It's murder for any celebrity to visit New York," said Frankie, who bravely returns to the town in a few days. "I know many movie stars who say they'll never go there any more. Cary Grant for one."

The escapades of Humphrey Bogart and Errol Flynn are examples of how a star can get in trouble there, the crooner said.

"A lot of people are gunning for you," he said, and you can't always brush them off."

Little Monsters

He told of a time when a character kept glaring at him all evening. The crooner knew it meant trouble and started to leave. The guy followed and got quarrelsome outside, so Frankie slugged him.

And then there are the "fans". Not the real fan-clubbers, who are bread-and-butter to Frank and other stars. There is another kind.

"There's a bunch of girls that call themselves the 'little monsters'," he told me. "And believe me, they are. But they aren't so little anymore. They're around 18 or 19 and they're looking for trouble.

An Education

"They follow you around constantly. They follow you around to restaurants, night clubs, even to your hotel room. They lie on the floor or waiting taxi cabs and when you drive away, they follow you."

He told of an occasion when he was in a party with Claudette Colbert and they were hurrying to catch a show. They signed some autographs and begged to leave. One of the young girls hurled an epithet at Miss Colbert that Frankie said was "so shocking I couldn't say a word all evening."

How to handle these young hoodlums, plus publicity reekers and trouble makers is a major education, Frankie added.

I was watching pop smoking to himself in his private chair, and I thawt, Heck, I got to have my report card signed and handed in by tomorrow morning, so I got to ask him now and that's all there is to it, heck.

And I said, Hay pop, what's you know, my report card is better this munth, and pop said, Good, will you allow me to be the first to congratulate you?

Sure, pop, I said, and he said, Thank you. What did you get for geografity? he said.

Oh, you mean geografity, I said, and pop said, What did I say?

Yes sir, I said. I got an F, I said.

Meening Fair, and pop said, What did you get on last munth's card?

An F, I said, and pop said, Well, after all, if the weather is fair 2 munths in succession, it's such an unusual occurance that it practically amounts to an improvement, so perhaps the same thing applies to your geografity marks. What did you get in history? he said.

Oh, history? I said. Only a F, I said.

Meening Poor, and pop said, What was it last time?

An F, I said, and pop said, For Pete sake where does the improvement come in? Do you mean your report card has fewer smudgy finger marks on it? he said.

No sir, I meen last munth I only got a F on account of being absent 2 days on account of my cold, but this munth I didn't miss a day so I got a E, and that's Excellent, I said and pop said, Yes gods, so are you.

Not saying in what way but probably meening it sourcastic.

Program Started To Keep Butter Before Public

Toronto, Nov. 16. (CP)—Ontario Cream Producers announced Tuesday that a program has been launched to keep butter before the public's eye "in the face of substitutes."

James Gifford of Ennismore, chairman of the Ontario Cream Producers' Marketing Board, said a special committee on quality improvement will work toward that end.

Addressing the group's annual meeting, Mr. Gifford said he believed the industry's greatest asset in the face of substitutes "is the largest amount we can produce of the very highest quality."

"We may state further that on a special committee on dairying, presently being announced by the Minister of Agriculture, to deal with quality, markets, as well as other features pertaining to the industry, our cream producers have been given representation," he said.

He said the producers did not want to prevent "those of our consumers from having a spread for their bread which oiberries might not be available."

"We have felt strongly, however, that margarine should not have been allowed on our market without as much as being subject to similar regulations applying to butter. To offset this injustice we have carried on as energetic a campaign as possible. . . ."

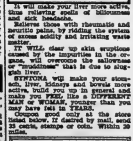
I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

SUFFERERS FROM STOMACH TROUBLE, WEAK KIDNEYS, LAZY LIVER, NERVOUSNESS AND GENERAL RUNDOWN CONDITION



Science brings us methods which enable us to bring this Prussian medicine within reach of all sufferers. Permits purchase to go away from the habitual use of heart-breaking pills and harsh drugs.

It will make your liver move active, bile flow freely, digestion be restored and sick headaches.

Relieves those with rheumatic and neuritic pains, by ridding the system of excess acidity and irritating waste matter.

IT WILL clear up skin eruptions due to the impurities in the blood stream, and overcome the unloveliness of "tired-out" that is due to sluggish liver.

SYNTONA will make your stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels more active, build you up in general and make you feel like a NEW PERSON! MAY or WEAKER. Don't wonder you may have felt in YEARS.

Obtain your bottle at the price listed below, if desired by mail, send 25 cents, stamps or coin. Within 30 miles.

What It Is!

This is no salts or pill, nor is it a powder, cigarette or tablet.

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is in the form of tablets and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing out the poisons that favor stomach troubles. It acts within ten minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA helps to relieve headaches, kidneys and relieves headaches, bladder irritation and weakness.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your suffering in a day or a week—remains to be seen. But we DO KNOW that it will help for others. It is surely a blessing for us to try it for 25 cents, only a fraction of its worth. This extraordinary offer is good Thursday, Friday, and Saturday ONLY, so read this carefully, our advertisement and act at once. You have nothing to pretend and your family.

What It Will Do!

SYNTONA will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe), it will sweeten your stomach, and it will work on awful gases and intestines (frequently from the first dose) which may have been a source of pep a long time, causing you many days of misery with headaches, dizzy spells, skin eruptions and hop, skip and jump pains.

SYNTONA will relieve acid conditions and make the digestive organs sweet and clean, and give great relief from acid indigestion, bloating, sour stomach, shortness of breath and sleepless.

SYNTONA helps improve your appetite and thereby improve assimilation of food for ENERGY and RESISTANCE.

SYNTONA will act as a diuretic to flush kidneys and flush out quantities of impurities that may have been damned up inside, causing backaches, NIGHT PAINS and RISING at MORNING.

Consular authorities said they had no reports yet of similar action against U.S. Nationals here.

New Machine To Take Place Of Dental Drill

Toronto, Nov. 16 —(CP)— The dread dental drill, which haunts toothache sufferers and often keeps them away from dentists, will probably go out of use in the next five or 10 years.

A new machine which may take its place was described Monday night to 6,000 dentists in 155 cities in Canada and the United States, linked together by telephone.

The dentists heard Dr. Donald A. Wallace, a Chicago scientist, describe the new instrument. He said it will be a friction-free apparatus and will clean out cavities on the sand blast principle.

In Toronto, the broadcast was heard by Dr. Roy G. Ellis, Dean of the Faculty of Dentistry at the University of Toronto, and 40 members of his staff.

Dr. Ellis emphasized that the new apparatus won't be ready for five or 10 years. He described the instrument as a hand-piece which "cuts through the tooth structure by means of a high speed jet of air carrying a fine abrasive."

With the vibration of the drill eliminated, the patient will be able to sit in a dentist's chair without fear of pain, Dr. Wallace said.

BIG EGG, MODEST PULLET

Winnipeg, Nov. 15. (CP)— A modest leghorn pullet has presented owner Mervin Know with an egg tipping the scales at six ounces—three times the size of a standard egg. The egg is 3 1-2 inches long and eight inches around the middle. The hen is so modest about her accomplishment, Snow said Monday he has been unable to identify her among his flock of 300 eight-month-old Leghorns.

ORIGIN OF RACE

Sudan, East Africa, is believed to be the original home of the Negro race.

Martin's Summer

By Vicki Baum

Martin with parched throat murmured a negative. Not for anything in the world was he going to favor her with the story of his pawned dinner jacket. "A liability—sudden embarrassment," he murmured. He observed on his white shoes the red stains of Puck's currants. How painful it all was. "The post is so irregular in Frauensee—" he added, and then said no more.

The Bojan said nothing either.

This lasted for some minutes seemed to him and spin through the air laden with a sharp feminine perfume. They careened over Martin's head like something heavy and frenzied and catastrophic, like an express train or a fire or a landslide. Absurd, he thought with throbbing temples. I shall get through, I shall get through if only I don't stir.

He stood stock still in front of the Bojan's bed and braced every muscle. He got through. It was dangerous moment, but he got through. The Bojan who loved scenes and lived on them, dispointed the widower her bare arm and let it fall on her pillows. These summers away from the theater were so vacant and so unbearably tedious. Her head fell back. Her eyes closed, and a look of pain came over her face.

"Go into the dressing-room and look in the right-hand side of the cupboard. On the top shelf you will find my handbag," she said wearily. Martin followed the direction of her hand and passing through an atmosphere heavy with scent came to the cupboard. He found himself in a room that was redolent of a fastidious woman and full of a thousand alluring mysterious feminine objects. He felt about the enormous cupboard among the billowy and rustling disorder of the Bojan's clothing. At least he came upon the handbag amidst her silk underclothes. His conscience smote him as he took hold of it, for the whole situation seemed false and unfair to May. He laid the handbag at arm's length on the actress bed.

"Please, take what you want," said the Bojan, with a mocking air. She watched him attentively as he took the handbag from her bed again and began to rummage in it with trembling fingers. She was not making things easy for him, but it amused her to add to the embarrassment of this awkward Apollo. When Martin had collected the fifty-two schillings in a number of small notes and coins, which he counted together in one hand, he felt that his hair was moist with perspiration.

The Bojan smiled. She had two small pointed mocking eye teeth. "And that is all you want of me?" she asked. "Good night then. Puck is waiting for you. Sleep well." She said this in darkly perfidious singing note as if she knew perfectly well that the hypnotized Martin. She made no secret of it.

"Thanks awfully. That was all."

The Bojan once more extended her hand to him.

"Thanks again. Ever so many thanks. I kiss your hand," said Martin in his best manner, and now that his retreat was assured he took the smooth hot hand and gallantly kissed it.

But this salute ended otherwise than he intended. he hand that he raised to his lips turned its palm toward them and cleaved as thirstingly to them as if it were itself a mouth. Then her arm white, blue-veined, and as smooth as glass, slid its warmth across his face and encircled his neck. He felt its pressure as he was drawn toward her and knew no more what was happening to him. His hands were buried in the lace around her breast. His mouth was pressed to hers. All the tension of his being gave way, and he whirled swiftly and dizzily down to depths that engulfed He saw himself fall headlong. No, he thought within himself. No. No. With a violent effort he regained possession of himself, of his mouth his hands, his whole straining body. He staggered as he stood upright. The gondola swayed lightly on its golden cords. Martin by on its golden cords. Martin's heart beat madly in his throat.

"There then.." said the Bojan with closed eyes.

Martin collected the money that had fallen from his grasp and stumbled from the room. Outside Tiger was excitedly on guard. His eyes shone green. "I'd rather have fallen into a bed of nettles Tiger," he said in exhaustion, as he laid his head on the dog's spotted hide.

Two days before the assembly dance a letter came for Martin and it ran as follows:

My dear boy,

Thank you for sending the fifty-two schillings. Unfortunately your dinner jacket was forfeited six weeks ago, as no further payments had been made on it. So I have used the money to redeem your bicycle. I hope that was all right. Have a good time at the dance and don't catch a chill. Don't drink water when you are hot from dancing.

With best love,

Your own loving MOTHER

May Lyssenhop and Martin Heil at the top of the high diving platform were having a violent quarrel. They were perched up there on this ten-meter springboard so as not to be disturbed. From below they looked quite small against the sky as they sat side by side with their legs dangling down. Two tiers lower on the three-meter platform Carla was practicing back somersaults. It was the quiet time of the day at the bathing place between one and two. The beach was silent and even the quarrel in the air was conducted cautiously in tense undertones.

"You're a tyrant, that's what It is. You're tyrannical and conceited, and you'd like to order me about," said May Lyssenhop, trembling with suppressed anger.

"Oh, so I'm a tyrant! Splendid, so I.. I am a tyrant am I? Ha, ha! And do you know what you are? You're superficial and vain, and you have no morality whatever" said Martin Heil. Both their voices were deep with rage and bitterness.

"Why didn't you come to the assembly dance? Honestly I'd have danced with no one but you all the evening."

"And why didn't you stay away from the assembly? Didn't I beg you not to go to Frauensee? But you don't understand anything about me—"

"What is there for me to understand Do you ever talk to me about your affairs? You clench your teeth till they crack and that's all. And then I'm supposed to fill in the whole story. Why didn't you come to the dance? Just tell me, and then perhaps I shall understand you."

"I had my reasons. I can't tell you what they were."

"Good God!" said May, and she wrung her hands in anger at such perversity. "But I know those reasons of yours that you can't tell me. Shall I tell you something! There's some woman behind it. That's the whole story."

"What woman?" demanded Martin. "Heavens above! What on earth are you getting at now, May?"

"How do I know! I don't know who all of them are. They're all crazy about you. The little baroness or the actress or the count—so—how should I know! It's nothing but a misfortune having to do with men, all the women run after. One can't be sure of one's own fiancé."

"But, May—on my solem oath—after all, I've given you my word and what more can I say? I keep it. But do you imagine, by and chance, that you are making things easier for me?"

"There you go! So it's I who make things difficult for you? I'm to blame for that as well. And yet I do whatever you ask—"

"You're as stupid sometimes, May, as a child of six. To start with, I've got worries. And then I'm often driven half beside myself. I'm not myself. I think about you day and night, and you leave me to sizzle and simmer in boiling oil. Often I'd like to..see everything to blazes—"

"What on earth are you talking about now?"

"What am I talking about! About wanting you," Martin shouted. All the pent-up sorrow and impassioned rage of the past weeks came out as he sat there with clenched fists and shouted hoarsely with anger in his face. Instantly, May was silent and her lips closed. Her hands moved, she scratched the coarse matting that covered the diving platform.

"Why didn't you tell me?" she asked softly in a low voice. "I'm yours, you baby—"

"Eh?"

"All. You can never lose me. You have me for always."

"A nice always. In a month you go to Berlin and leave me planted here. There will be nothing but a summer flirtation you had with a swimming instructor," said Martin, tormenting himself horribly.

"Oh, don't talk nonsense. You're coming to Berlin in September for your race. Perhaps before that you will have had your famous letters you're always taking about."

"May," said Martin becoming very serious "tell me one thing. Do you believe in me really? And that the letter will put everything right? Or are you laughing at me?"

"Well you've never told me anything very definite about it. So what is there to believe in particularly? I don't know in the least what it's all about."

"I can't tell you all May You're only a big growing girl, and a spoiled one too—a princess with your silver and silver shoes. Your Tat is a king in his way, and you are.. well, there it is. I can't talk to you about my affairs. How could I ever explain to you what inner troubles are? Can you imagine, May, can you imagine what it is to be hungry, so that you have a pain in the stomach and have to swallow all the time as if you had cramps in the throat? And your head goes light, and you see nothing before your eyes but roast meat, as if you were a dog—"

"Have you been hungry?" May asked quickly.

And as quickly Martin replied: "No, never."

May put her hands carefully over Martins hand that gripped the edge of the plank. "Just tell me..only tell me.." she said softly.

A moment went by, and then Martin nodded his head. "Yes, I've been hungry," he answered almost inaudibly.

"My dear, my dear," whispered May. "Just tell me.."

"Well, I know a woman for example, a lovely woman. Her husband lived was a government official, and he died before her child was born. She has had to get along on her pension ever since with the boy on her hands. She's an old lady now, and her pension is thirty-two schillings a month. Her son is out of a job. Can you imagine anything like that May? How do you think such people exist?"

"Yes, yes, go on .."

FARM LABORER SAYS ACCUSED SHOT McQUAIG

Claims He Was Holding Rifle in Barn Door After Shooting

Napanee, Nov. 17. (CP)—The murder trial of Alfred Childs, 16, charged with murder in the rifle slaying of Elijah McQuaig last June 20, went into its second day today with testimony from a witness as to events after the shooting.

Morris McCracken recalled the accused coming to the McCracken farm about 11.30 a.m. the day McQuaig was shot while working on his farm.

Picked Up By Car

He said the accused drank two dippers of water, then asked the direction to White Lake. McCracken said Childs went south on No. 41 Highway, but he saw him being picked up by a car a short distance from the farm gate.

Elwyn Dewitt, a farmer living two miles from the McQuaig farm, said he had picked up the accused on the highway and had taken him to police in Napanee.

Wednesday, Ronnie Ross, 12-year-old farm laborer, testified that Childs was the rifleman who shot McQuaig.

Ross, who was working on Archibald Davis' farm at nearby Selby, said he saw Childs in the south doorway of the Davis barn after the shooting. He was holding a rifle.

"We had been working about 20 minutes," said Ross. "Harry Thompson (a fellow worker) and I heard the crack of a rifle a couple of times. I thought it might be Mr. McQuaig striking the horner, but then the bullets started coming our way."

Ross said he was wounded in the groin, leg and arm as he ran to aid McQuaig, a neighboring farmer who was shot down.

Saying for Davis.

"We started toward the barn and found Mr. McQuaig lying on his face, motionless, with his team (of horses) standing about 25 feet away," said Ross.

Used Like Sharpshooter

Ephraim Robinson, a farmer from the Selby district north of here, said he had seen Childs use the rifle like a sharpshooter on June 29—the day of the slaying —Childs disappeared from the Robinson farm.

Mrs. Robinson testified that Childs was an ardent reader of western thrillers. She said he spent all his spare time reading them. Since the Christmas of Napanee county jail, it was reported Childs had been busy writing stories which follow his favorite type of literature.

Two hundred townsfolk packed the court room Wednesday. Among them was Alfred Childs, the youth's father, seated with a Salvation Army officer. During a recess Mr. Childs chatted with his son in a corridor, and gave him a cigar which the youth smoked with apparent enjoyment.

"Weed Out Ruffians in Ranks" Says Toronto Controller In Recommendation to Police

Toronto, Nov. 17 — (CP) — A warning by Mr. Justice J. Keiller Mackay that some police officers have a tendency to abuse their authority was brought to attention by John Innes today a recommendation that the Toronto police force should "weed out the ruffians in its ranks."

Mr. Justice Mackay told the annual banquet of the Toronto Police Association Wednesday night that "there are black sheep in every fold." While praising the Toronto force as a whole he said "when uncontrolled power is put into the hands of men it is not to be expected that everybody can successfully resist repeated temptation to abuse it."

Mr. Innes today called on the police force to "get back to those days 25 years ago when the cop was the friend of the neighborhood and knew everything that was going on in the neighborhood."

His blamed present conditions on the use or the squad car by which he said "the human personality of the policemen has been submerged." Extreme police brutality could not be condoned.

Mr. Justice Mackay recommended that regular police officers be relieved of traffic duties.

At the annual banquet of the Toronto Police Association, Mr. Justice Mackay said regular members should be relieved of traffic duties by an auxiliary which would have a lower pay scale and fewer responsibilities.

He said:

"It does not require young men of ability and judgment to take the number of offending vehicles or poor temporary no parking signs. It is a question whether intelligent men with such petty duties is good for the morale of men whose first duty is to safeguard the people."

He said police officers should be careful of the rights of the individual.

"Too much authority is like alcohol in its effect on the brain," he said. "There is no excuse for infringing on the rights of the individual on the ground that you are defending the freedom of the state."

Student Suffers Superficial Burns At 'Cake Fight'

Toronto, Nov. 17. (CP)— Eric Ford, 20, second-year student at Trinity College, University of Toronto, is in hospital today suffering from chemical burns and bright orange discoloration from the waist up, said to have been the result of the annual college "cake fight" between freshmen and upper-classmen Wednesday night.

A student said Eric told him he had been put into a bath into which chemical had been poured and it was that which had caused the burns.

L.W. Ford, of Willowdale, Ont., the boy's father, said the boy had suffered superficial burns to the face and chest.

Mr. Ford said the affair was the windup of an initiation in which freshmen at Trinity were required to go through a "cake fight". The object was for the freshies to go through a door with a cake. The door was defended by second-year students.

During the scuffle that followed Eric was splashed with the chemical.

Hospital officials said Eric has pads over both eyes. He was not considered in the chemical but was hit in the face with a block of the stuff, they said.

Probe Scientific Palm Reading For Detection of Hidden Disease

By RENNIE TAYLOR

San Francisco, Nov. 17 (AP)— A new method of detecting hidden diseases by scientific palm reading is under investigation by a group of Tulane University medical researchers.

Thus far the idea is being used only to uncover mongolism in children. However, the researchers are trying to determine whether it eventually may be applied to detect other diseases of genetic or pre-natal origin.

The mongolism technique was exhibited to the American Academy of Pediatrics by Dr. R. S. Platou, Dr. Carolyn Talley and Dr. Harold Cummins, all of Tulane.

Mongolism is a disorder characterized by idiocy or feebleindedness, large misshapen hands, slanting eyes, stubby fingers and other abnormalities.

The lines in the palms of mongoloid children follow a different pattern from those in normal children, said Dr. Platou. These are the line lines such as those used in fingerprint identification, and not the large creases which figure in palm reading. There is nothing mystic about the method.

In normal children the fine line starting at the base of the index finger curve gradually downward over the wrist. In mongoloids, said Dr. Platou, they ran across the palm. Other fine area, just below the little finger. There the pattern which differs from normal is formed.

This abnormal pattern is not a sign of mongolism, however, unless it occurs in both hands. Many normal people have the abnormal figuring in one hand and the normal pattern in the other.

The method has not yet been developed to the point where it can be used generally, Dr. Platou

COMMUNISM SEEN STUMBLING BLOCK AT EVERY TURN

Foreign Policy Affairs Discussed In House

Ottawa, Nov. 17 (CP)—Parliament wound along the twisting path of foreign policy discussions Wednesday and came up against Russia and Communism at virtually every turn.

External Affairs Minister Pearson led off with a general outline of Canada's position in world affairs. Opposition members picked up the trail, one after another heading in their own direction suggestions on what should or should not be done.

Almost every topic—the North Atlantic Security Pact, the China situation, the United Nations and western European unity—was discussed. But a theme so to suggest that the basis of every major foreign policy problem facing Canada has something to do with Russia and Communism.

Mr. Pearson, in his review of the system the spread of Communism and west beyond that to suggest hope that territories now under Russian domination still contained the seeds of freedom to end the "darkness."

Gordon Grayndon (PC—Peel), Progressive Conservative external affairs spokesman emphasized that the Russian peace offensive is "not a shift of the goals, but merely a shift of methods designed to lead on down the primrose path of complacency."

Vancouver City Fireman Given $600,000 Bequest

Vancouver, Nov. 17—(CP) Gilbert Campbell found today his $600,000 inheritance had dwindled rapidly yesterday.

The legacy which descended from a blue sky Wednesday to the city fireman, with the finding of a will believed non-existent, was described by executor Zimore Meredith as "nowhere near the expected $600,000.

Meredith said successive duties already have left a considerable shrivel of the value. Besides, Campbell received no gift tax.

Largest shares of the estate go to former employees of the Campbell Klondike Gold Trail.

The will was that of the late James Thomson, former hotel owner here and a veteran of the Klondike Gold Trail.

An 11-year-old petition for the document preceded its unearthing in the probate office of a friend of the deceased.

First exuberant surveys of the estate placed Thomson-estate reckoned without some unexpected claims.

Largest shares of the estate go to former employees of Thomson's hotel. Campbell was a close friend of his.

Discovery of the will deprived Mrs. Marjorie Miller, widowed old-age pensioner, of eligibility for $400,000 from the estate.

Mrs. Miller, Thomson's first cousin, originally would have shared the estate with her sister, the late Mrs. Jane Wilson, who was settled $10,000.

Elliott Sennabaugh, 63, tap man in the hotel's beverage room for 18 years, was one of three employed to draw $30,000.

Snow Forecast For Ontario With Cooler Weather

Toronto, Nov. 17. (CP)—Snowflurries are forecast for most of Ontario, with colder weather tonight indicating that winter is almost at hand in southern sections of the province.

Up to 15 inches of snow now lie on the bleak land of rock and bush north and northwest of Lake Superior, while at Sault Ste. Marie, the greatest fall recorded by far is seven inches. In the Cochrane area, however, temperatures this week have averaged 20 degrees above zero, highways are snowsurfaced.

Ontario expected a snowstorm that hit Buffalo, Wednesday. More than 12 inches of snow fell in the Northern New York city, breaking a November record of slightly less than 15 inches established in 1920.

Road-Bloc Set Up Then Withdrawn By Russ Troops

Vienna, Nov. 17. (AP)— The Russians unexpectedly established a roadblock on the Austro-Hungarian border leading to the United States air base at Tulln and then, just as unexpectedly, withdrew it.

During the hours the block was in effect, Russian motorists on special passes from American personnel moving to and from Vienna were halted. About 20 miles outside Vienna in the Soviet occupation zone.

American sources said they thought a Russian junior officer had set up the block without receiving some old regulations which were in force when the previous last roadblock was established 18 months ago.

40-YEAR-OLD MAN IS MERCILESSLY BEATEN AND DIES

Three Men Sought For Alleged Punmelling

Montreal, Nov. 17. (CP) — Police today sought three men who allegedly pummelled a 40-year-old man mercilessly in a street fight, inflicting severe head injuries that resulted in his death three hours later.

Police identified the victim as Romeo Lamy, who two months ago moved into a new home here with his wife and one-year-old daughter, Murielle.

Lamy, for the last year employed as a carpenter at an oil refinery, was seen staggering off a street car with three other men.

Witnesses told police the man was struck repeatedly in the face by two of the men as soon as they reached the sidewalk.

Left lying unconscious on the sidewalk, the injured man was taken to the hospital where he was found to be suffering a fractured skull. His right eye had been pierced and practically torn out.

He died three hours later without regaining consciousness.

Police said the cause of death was apparently a case of vengeance. Three men, all friends of fellow-workers were believed to have beaten him.

Gold and Dollar Resources Up Since September

London, Nov. 17 (Reuters)— Britain's gold and dollar resources increased by $70 million in October since the end of September, when the last official figures were released, Sir Stafford Cripps said today.

"The forward prospects are not by any means discouraging," the chancellor of the exchequer told a press conference.

At the end of the second quarter of 1949 the gold and dollar reserves totalled $1,404,000,000, he announced Oct. 4. This was a net deficit for the third quarter of $220,000,000. However, the third quarter, the chancellor said today.

"There is no economic or financial reason for any lack of confidence in sterling at the existing rate."

Exports had shown a big increase in August, when those to Canada and the United States showed useful increases in steel, textiles and machinery 32 and 25 per cent respectively. It was too early to say how much of this was due to increased volume instead of merely the automatic result of devaluation.

Collision Occurs During Heavy Fog 26,000 Feet Up

Four Airmen Aboard Planes Survive, Not Seriously Hurt

Stockton, Calif., Nov. 17 — (AP) — Two United States Air Force B-29 Superfortress planes collided 26,000 feet above Stockton at midnight Wednesday night. One fell in flames. The tail of the other fell off and it crashed in the mud.

Four of the 22 men aboard were saved.

Seven were found dead in the wreckage.

Eleven are missing.

The four survivors — all at the Navy Annex of the Stockton Supply Depot after treatment for minor injuries — are:

Lieut. Warren F. Sarrock, whose home is only 32 miles east of Stockton in the Sierra foothills.

Pte. Keith R. Burns, 19, Boise, Ida., reportedly the only survivor of the burning plane.

Sgt. B. Schmidt, Kingsley, Ohio.

Sgt. Robert S. Kluge, 26, Spokane, Wash.

Three Bodies Taken Out

The sheriff's office field party radioed that three bodies had been taken from the plane that burned on a McDonald Island levee on the San Joaquin River, nine miles west of here.

State Highway Patrolman Bill Alott said four bodies were taken from the plane that crashed six feet deep into the mud on the Bixler Tract levee miles north and across the San Joaquin.

The wings of the plane were intact, but the tail assembly had collapsed.

First definite word of the crash, in a fog, came from one of the survivors, Lieut. Sharrock of Stanford University and Kenyon's King Island fishing resort bleeding from a head injury.

"The other plane ran smack into us," he gasped.

But Kenyons heard the crash. They were out looking for the flames in the fog when Sharrock arrived.

Lincoln County Council Makes Hospital Grants

St. Catharines, Nov. 17 (CP)— The Lincoln County Council Wednesday gave unanimous approval to a scheme to make a capital grant of $24,000 annually for the next ten of ten years to four district hospitals.

The money granted for the erection, establishments and equipment was apportioned as follows: St. Catharines General Hospital $11,000; Hotel Dieu Hospital $6,000; West Lincoln Memorial Hospital $4,000 and Niagara Cottage Hospital $3,000.

Rehabilitation Project on Athabaska Delta Aimed At Boosting Indians

Edmonton, Nov. 17 — (CP) — A huge rehabilitation project for Indians trapping muskrats in the Lake Athabasca's shores is proposed in a joint plan of the provincial and federal governments.

The plan would stabilize income for the Indians around the mouth of the Athabasca River, where it enters the lake in Northern Alberta.

E. S. Houtzis, provincial game commissioner, said today the plan is to increase the muskrat population by means of "controlled trapping under supervision and pay the Indians by instalments. This is intended to ensure them a larger and steadier income. White trappers would benefit from the increased number of muskrats.

Wide fluctuations in the water level of the sprawling delta now limit the "rat" population. It is flooded in high shows of water and thus produce more muskrats.

Roughly half of the 750,000-acre ipect near Fort Chipewyan, Alta., is an Indian reservation. The remainder belongs to the Alberta government, Federal and provincial officials are co-operating with Bucky Mitchell-Hedges in preliminary discussion of the plan.

Mr. Houtzis said a similar scheme undertaken on the Saskatchewan River delta increased the trapping population "by six times." It was necessary to bring in additional trappers to handle the catch.

Under the plans on the Athabasca delta call for strategic dams to trap flood waters. Mr. Houtzis pointed out that food for the muskrats will disappear if the water is simply impounded. Provision must also be made to release the water at suitable times.

In the 1947-48 season, Alberta trapped took 462,000 pelts. The number in the provincial six years fluctuated between 150,000 and 378,000.

Needs 41 Stitches To Close Wounds After Beating

Toronto, Nov. 17—(CP)—Beaten "unmercifully" by two men with whom he had been drinking beer, Charles Jacques, 21, early today was found bloodsoaked and unconscious in a dimly-lit parking lot at the rear of a Danforth Avenue hotel. He required 41 stitches to his face and head to close wounds.

Picked up in a cafe on the city limits, Ramon Kyles, 21, and John Campbell, 32, have been charged with robbery with violence and are scheduled to appear in court today.

George A. Walkerton, arresting police he was robbed of $1 and that he did not remember much of what happened. He said as he left the hotel, the pair "buttonholed" him, said they were strangers but that they had been drinking with him.

Deputy Chief Wilf McLellan said it was one of the most "unmerciful" beatings he has ever seen.

Eggs and Timber Purchases Here Cut By Britain

He told a press conference that Britain is switching back to her original source of supply for certain food imports, obtained from Canada during the war, he mentioned eggs specifically.

Before the war, Britain obtained most of her eggs from Denmark.

On the question of imports out generally, Sir Stafford said that Britain plans to reduce purchases of "marginal foodstuffs and semi-luxury things" were allocative supplies were available.

He said timber was one of the things which would be cut.

The driver of the truck is then said to have continued on without stopping. Investigation is being conducted by Provincial Constable Harry Pratt.

Hunter Wounded North of Denbigh, Taken for Bear

Mistaken for a bear while he was hunting deer in the Denbigh district, 30 miles northeast of here, Allan Benn of Richmond township, near Napanee, is in Kingston General Hospital with a bullet wound through his abdomen and hip.

The accident occurred about noon on Wednesday when another hunter saw a deer and a deer run is said to have fired when he heard a rustle in the woods behind him. The bullet passed completely through the hip and abdomen, police say, and Allan Benn's condition is stated to be favorable.

Four doctors were stated to be hunting from a nearby hunting camp but were out in the woods and could not be located. Benn was carried three miles out of the woods and rushed to hospital.

Mr. Benn had gone in to the hunting camp on Sunday. He is a brother of Constable Harry Benn of Napanee.

Chief to Crack Down On Drivers Splashing Walkers

Trenton (Special)—The Trenton Police Department had nothing new to report last night and apparently the first sleet and snow storm that struck this district earlier in the day left no particular damage in its path. The sleet fell the snow and slush on the streets and sidewalks disappeared, faster than it came, when the mercury turned upwards.

There were reports, however, of car drivers who deliberately splashed people walking on the streets and Chief John Taylor, after viewing the complaints, instructed his constables to apprehend any other disrespectful driver. Violators will be charged under the Highway Traffic Act.

With winter setting in the police department expects traffic in transients seeking a night's lodging at the station and, as a matter of fact, a number of persons are already on the increase. Chief Taylor has issued orders to discourage star boarders from stopping over, but they can rest assured that they'll work plenty for their keep.

Trenton's Growth May Cause Cuts In Govt. Grants

The man who holds the purse strings for the corporation of the town of Trenton keeps a keen and his usual amount of worry now that the 1949 financial statistics show that the town's population may be in excess of 10,000 which means that Trenton will be classed as a city and not eligible for the full Ontario Government grants. The headache will not be severe, however, since the reduction in most instances is small. The following reductions will come into effect if Trenton takes her position with other Canadian cities:

1. A reduction of 5 per cent in the Ontario Government grant towards the upkeep of the Trenton police department.

2. A reduction of 8 per cent in the Ontario Government grant toward the upkeep of the Trenton fire department.

3. A reduction in the retail merchants local business tax of from 35 to 30 per cent of the total assessment.

It is expected that the cost of incorporating a city to be considered, but this does not concern the town financiers a great deal since the town is now a separated town and pays nothing toward, nor receives grants from the county.

The expected grant from the Ontario Government for police upkeep this year is slightly under $7,000 or 45 per cent of the 1949 police budget. If the population does exceed 10,000 the annual grant will be dropped to 30 per cent of yearly expenditures. Similarly the fire department's grant will drop from 35 to 30 per cent.

Final count of Trenton's population to date will not be completed until sometime this week.

Board Reserves Judgment On Application For Approval Of By-Law Designating Area

Decision of the Ontario Municipal Board was reserved yesterday afternoon following the hearing at the city hall council chambers on the application for approval of the city by-law designating a specific area in Parkwood Heights as a commercial area.

The by-law restricts business establishments in the Parkwood Heights area to the one block bounded by Humewood Gardens on the north; Humewood Drive on the east; Bertram Gardens on the south, and Bertram Blvd. on the west.

Vice Chairman of the Municipal Board, W. P. Near, heard the arguments for the approval of the by-law given by Dennis Swan on behalf of the Parkwood Heights residents. Frank Cunning, K.C., solicitor for Mr. Bertram Gardiner, presented argument against the by-law.

Calls For Three Blocks

Mr. Cushing told the Municipal Board representing the residential plans of the Parkwood Heights area called for three blocks, including Bertram Boulevard, on the north and Victoria Ave. on the south, being designated as a business area.

He claimed that if this was upset now it would mean re-setting carefully thought out plans which would prevent any business area for the several new sub-divisions established in the east end of the city.

He went on to point out that the present commercial area of the city should not be expanded and it was necessary that other business area be established. The idea of the city council restricting the commercial area in Parkwood Heights, to but one block was to interfere with the overall plan.

Construction contractors who had built residences in Parkwood Heights had been fully cognizant of the plan for the commercial area, it was stated.

Favors Original Plan

J. T. Ransom, land surveyor, also spoke in favor of the original plan, which made the commercial area sufficiently large to permit customer parking. "If the area is reduced, the commercial area may as well be eliminated altogether," he said.

Presenting the argument for approval of the city by-law dedicating but the one block as a business area, Mr. Swan stated that prospective purchasers of homes in the Parkwood Heights district had been told nothing of the proposed commercial area. "This had been found out after the homes," he said.

He said that Parkwood Heights residents felt that a commercial area directly from residences would deteriorate property values and would be a threat to the property value throughout the area.

Number of Maps

Mr. Swan admitted there had been a number of different maps of Parkwood Heights development but prospective purchasers had been told nothing of the proposed commercial area. It had been through the efforts of the Parkwood Heights Home Owners' Association that the by-law had been drawn up restricting the commercial area to one block.

Another Parkwood Heights homeowner, Mrs. Schllevert complained that there was "confusion" on the part of city officials when they had sought information regarding the Parkwood Heights housing development. She said that inquiries at the city hall had met with "rudeness".

She said they had been told by the contractor that the area was to be "strictly residential". After homes had been purchased owners learned of the proposed commercial area.

Don't Want Area

"We don't want a commercial area, we are willing to come downtown to do our shopping" she said.

Mr. Near pointed out to Parkwood Heights homeowners that it had been their responsibility to find out before buying, by reading building restrictions. "The trouble is," he said, "that people don't want to be protected until they are in trouble."

He stated that although there apparently had been several plans of the sub-division, none had been approved by the municipal board through by-law.

Chairman of the local planning board, Mr. J. J. Trudeau, stated that his board considered that the larger commercial area was necessary for the Parkwood Heights district.

Three Alarms Turn Out to be For Minor Causes

Three alarms, all of which turned out to be for minor causes, were answered by the local fire department during the past 24 hours.

Yesterday the reels were called to City Council Street to investigate an oil burner which got out of commission also yesterday afternoon there was a call to the Corbin Lock neighborhood. The alarm proved false.

This morning firemen were called to the Swift Canadian chicken brooder houses on Colegs Street where pipes were reported overheated. Here again no damage was reported.

City Resident Returns From Summer Cottage

With the coming of the snow the majority of residents of this city who have been commuting between their summer homes on the Quinte shores and offices in town have returned to stay in Belleville for the winter months.

Included among the last cottagers to return to the warmth and conveniences of their city homes were Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Reynolds of the Belleville Motor Car Company who this season besides clearing the land around their newly-acquired Ameross camp on the south shore, erected a modern boat house.

The boat house is a two-storey arrangement with all the up-to-date equipment installed for hoisting his watercraft out of the water, while a compact self-contained, three-roomed apartment makes up the top section of the structure. The apartment was not occupied this year, but the Reynolds plan to have it fully completed in the spring.

As part of the landscaping program in effect the Reynolds set out some 200 young evergreen trees on their property this fall.
